After a long illness of eighteen months the death occurred Saturday morning at six o'clock at the early age of 30 years, of Joseph Wilbert Hayes, M.D., at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Hayes, 219 Park street. Dr. "Bert" Hayes was the youngest surgeon in the Dominion of Canada and was well and favourably known in this city. He was a graduate of the Peterborough Collegiate Institute, after which he entered Payne's drug store to learn the drug business. Following this he went to Ottawa University, after which he entered the University of Toronto where, in 1918, he graduated, and the following year he was head house surgeon at St. Michael's Hospital, Toronto. The year following he was in the City Hospital, Blackwell Island, New York, as assistant pathologist, returning to Toronto in April, 1917, to assume the responsibilities of junior surgeon in St. Michael's Hospital, which carries with it the duties of clinician of the University of Toronto. This position he held at the commencement of his long illness.

Besides his parents, 219 Park street, city, he leaves four brothers, Carol V. of this city, Dr. J. Vernon, Cecil F., who is still in England with the Royal Army Medical Corps, and Dr. W. N. Hayes, also two sisters, Marion and Alice.

The funeral takes place on Wednesday morning from the family residence, 219 Park street, to St. Peter's Cathedral and St. Peter's cemetery.

SUNDAY SERVICES AT THE TEMPLE

The visit of Colonel Bell, principal of the Salvation Army Training College in Toronto to the local corps during the week end was a success in every way. The Colonel [illegible] his efforts in the interests of his audiences.

Colonel Bell is a fluent and forceful speaker, and his addresses both in the open-air services in the street and on the park, and also in the inside meetings were listened to with great interest by the large audience who attended all the services.

During the week-end several candidates who intend entering the Training College which is under the Colonel's control, took part in the services.

A number of members who enlisted for active service overseas in 1915 returne dduring the last week, and these were given a hearty welcome back to the corps. In the morning service the Colonel made reference to his son who enlisted in an English regiment and went through the whole war, being wounded three times. He then asked all those who had gone either to England or France to rise, and in the name of the friends at home welcomed these men back.

Altogether, the day was one of great interest and blessing to those who took part and attended the service.

ONE OF THE IMMORTALS.

Interest in Robinson Crusoe is of the Undying Sort.

"Robinson Crusoe" has passed the 200-year mark without losing any of the vitality of youth. Few if any books have done the world better service; none has so powerfully and wholesomely influenced succeeding generations of the young. Defoe's method was subjective. The appeal of "Robinson Crusoe" is to the imagination. Under its stimulation constructive instincts of normal youth are quickened, and the healthy impulses of the moral nature set in motion. The lessons of "Robinson Crusoe" are the fundamental lessons of life. Youth is taught to look upon work as the primary law of existence. Courage, persistence, initiative and independence are inculcated. The will to make the most of adverse circumstances and to employ to the full every available resource, is held up for emulation.

But "Robinson Crusoe" was not written for the young. Disgusted with the artificialities and frivolities of his time, Defoe set about showing by absolute contrast, the infinite superiority and incomparably greater satisfaction of life lived on a plane of actuality and simplicity. The work was probably not intended for a satire. But it reacted upon the age in which it appeared as a satire so convincing and convicting as to undermine the artificial manners superficialities, selfishness, and vices of the [illegible] done. The inane fop of the court of Charles II., the admired model of his time, was not mentioned. But Defoe mercilessly revealed him to his contemporaries for what he was by taking a castaway and setting him down on an unknown and uninhabited island in the Pacific, there to work out his own salvation in twenty years of loneliness. The startling vividness of contrast cut English pride to the quick, and Defoe's masterpiece accomplished more for decency in England than all the Puritan homilies and canting farages of pious ranters now remembered or long since forgotten.

After 200 years the world begins to show signs of catching up with the philosophy of "Robinson Crusoe." The educational implications of that philosophy are consciously or unconsciously coming to be recognized and more and more to be grafted into educational practice. The beauty of Defoe's moral conceptions, and the significance of his appeal for natural living in love for nature and fealty to nature's laws, become more evident as the years go by. And the political threads in the philosophy of "Robinson Crusoe," spun as they are into the design of service, are only coming now in this tremendous era of the world's history to be seen as the warp and the woof of the fabric of right human relationships.—Hartford Times.

Deserters Were Shot.

Hon. Hugo Guthrie stated in the Canadian House of Commons recently that he had been informed that a number of Canadian deserters overseas had been executed. Others had received sentences up to 24 years. He said that punishments in England were more severe than in this country. Gen. Hughes said they had been tried by court-martial and shot, both in England and at the front.

Gen. S. C. Mewburn said that he did not want the impression to go abroad that a large number of Canadian soldiers had been shot overseas. He understood that during the time that Gen. Hughes was Minister of Militia men were tried by court-martial and shot on being found guilty. No such cases had occurred since he became Minister.

Mr. Guthrie said there were Canadian soldiers who had been discharged with a variety of offences. He went on to say that in Canada there were a great many cases in which the defaulter had been more or less technical, but some had resisted arrest with firearms and other weapons.

Mr. E. B. Devlin, Wright, interrupted to ask the Solicitor-General how many Canadian soldiers were shot in England. Mr. Guthrie said he had no official information, he had simply been told that there were some.

Gen. Hughes asked if there were no returns made to the Government of Canada before the sentences were carried out. Mr. Guthrie replied that these cases never came before him, except in appeals for clemency.

Helium Used In War.

Prof. McLellan of Toronto University, who was invited by the British Admiralty in 1915 to investigate the possibility of large scale production of helium, found large quantities available in natural gas in Ontario and Western Canada, producible at a cost of a shilling per cubic foot. The United States also co-operated and gave large orders for machinery and plant. Then the possibility of securing large supplies of helium was assured simultaneously with the practical details of production. Airships inflated with helium have been developed by the British navy and the progress made warrants the opinion that in another year large quantities of helium will be produced in Canada at a low price and helium-filled airships will be in service. Helium is a non-inflammable gas, less buoyant than hydrogen, but much safer. Before the war it cost from $1,500 to $6,000 per cubic foot.

Named In "Best Seller."

Major James A. Annand of the 15th Battalion has been honored by having one of the most popular and widely selling books of the day, "The Secret City," dedicated to him by the author, Mr. Hugh Walpole. "The Secret City," which is a story of the upheaval in Russia, has now passed the 100,000 mark in sales in Great Britain, and is reported to be selling equally well in the United States, Canada and Australia.

Major Annand, who is a former Toronto newspaper man, was wounded at St. Julien, and was afterwards on special work for the British War Office.

Captain Clarinet's Encounter.

The sun was slowly sinking in the usual place. Clarinet Skipperhop, over whose youthful head scarce thirty-seven summers had lightly flown, sat in a regulation-size hammock, idly swinging her feet to the tune of "Keep the Home Lights Squirming," played on a Hottentot bagpipe 42 miles away.

Suddenly a thought seized her. She tried to scream and break its hold. She succeeded in both. Probably one and fifteen eight-millionths of a cubic second was allowed to elapse between [illegible] and [illegible] was cowering at her feet.

"Avaunt," she cried. "Don't you know this is my thoughtless day? Now, dagnose it, I'll have a jaudiache."

Then she went back to swing her feet and the hammock.

MINERAL OIL
For Chronic Constipation

By buying this product from us you can get the Highest in Quality that can be procured at an ESPECIALLY LOW PRICE.

There are many thin oils on the market that are not suitable for internal use; other oils have irritating qualities which render them also unsuitable. The one we are selling is guaranteed thick and entirely pure.

It is recognized that a good grade of Mineral Oil is one of the best remedies for CHRONIC CONSTIPATION that is being used. It acts mechanically and does not irritate the intestinal tract, nor does the dose have to be continually increased as is the case with ordinary purgatives.

It is much better and cheaper than Castor Oil as a laxative for Children, since Castor Oil has two effects, the first of which is purgative and the second or after effect, which is Constipating.

JEWS ARE PERSECUTED

MATTER WILL BE DISCUSSED AT THE PEACE CONFERENCE--FOREIGN EMBASSIES VIOLATED.

PEACE CONFERENCE

(Special to The Examiner.)

PARIS, July 8. — Deputies of the various parties have written to Stephen Pichon, the Foreign Minister, expressing great regret over the reports of the pogroms, massacres, boycots and persecution inflicted upon Jews in Eastern Europe. The letter concluded by asking M. Pichon to officially make known the attitude of France in the peace conference in favor of the Jews.

In replying Pichon assured the deputies that the French government took the initiative at the beginning of the conference to insure a thorough examination of the Jewish questions by the peace delegates.

ARCHIVES SEIZED.

(Special to The Examiner.)

HELSINGFORS, July 8. — It is reported that all foreign embassies, legations and consulates in Petrograd have been occupied by Bolshevik troops. The archives have been seized, it is said, and those in charge have been arrested and handed over to an extraordinary commission dealing with charges of espionage against the Soviet government.

A COMMITTEE.

(Special to The Examiner.)

PARIS, July 8. — A committee composed of four generals, representing Great Britain, France, Italy and the United States, has been appointed to investigate the recent incidents in Fiume. The Supreme Council of the Peace Conference has also decided to appoint a committee of four members to inquire into Norway's claims to Spitsbergen.

BRITISH WILL DEMAND TRIAL OF VON TIRPITZ

GRAND JURY TO TRY THE FORMER KAISER WILL SIT IN LONDON AND GIVE VERDICT TO THE WORLD.

CASE UNPRECEDENTED

(United Press.)

LONDON, July 8. — Great Britain will demand that Admiral Von Tirpitz, the author of Germany's submarine war, be brought to trial according to the Times. After sitting in London and hearing the evidence against the former Kaiser on his responsibility for the war, the allied statesmen may formally indict him in the same way that a grand jury operates in hearing a murder case.

This possibility was admitted today by a Cabinet minister who is in close touch with the plans for Wilhelm Hohenzollern's trial.

"The entire case is unprecedented. Every decision must be reached by means of a new international law," he said.

Mean Banishment.

The Cabinet Minister said it was highly probable that a grand jury would sit in London and return an indictment against the ex-Emperor, which would be given out to the world followed by a request to Holland for extradition. Perhaps Wilhelm may be given an opportunity to present a signed statement of his case before the "jury." If the indictment branded him as criminally responsible for the war, and Holland refused to give him up, the Grand Jury would let the idictment stand as its verdict, then sit back ready to pounce upon the Kaiser the moment he set foot outside of Holland.

In case he moved to another neutral country, the allied grand jury might again set in motion proceedings for extradition. Such a plan certainly would mean the banishment of the former Emperor from any belligerent country.

AFTER SIX HOUR DAY

WILL USE THE POLLS AS A MEANS OF ACHIEVING THIS RESULT.

AN INTERVIEW

WINNIPEG, July 8.— Leaders in the recent strike still hanker after a six hour day, according to J. L. McBride, the business agent of the Electricians' Union and leader of the Strike committee.

"I don't think it will take us as long as it did to get the eight hour day," he added. "People thought we were crazy when we started out to get an eight hour day, but the times are changing.

"The only thing to ascertain now is the best method of getting it," he went on. "Some favour methods which have been shown to be futile. If I run my head against the wall and it don't move I don't think I am liable to try it again," he said with a smile.

"Which way would you do it," queried the correspondent.

"At the polls next November, and in a constitutional way. When you start out to beat the law you simply can't do it, and some of us always know it," he continued.

Referring to the opposition which might meet the proposal of R. A. Rigg, ex-member of Parliament, to combat the One Big Union, McBride said that each union will take its vote and if they vote to secede from their International organization well and good. If not it may be taken that they are in favour of continuing to labour under present conditions.

MR. E. G. PATTERSON SAYS COUNTY HAS INVITED CO-OPERATION.

Mr. E. G. Patterson, in a letter to the Council last night, drew attention to a passage in Warden McIntosh's address to the County Council, in which he mentioned the desire of many residents of the county to have a suitable monument erected to the boys of Peterborough county who had given their lives in the war. Mr. Patterson pointed out that this was an invitation to the city to co-operate, and urged that a committee be formed to consider the matter. The cost of the memorial is estimated at $75,000.

TEAMSTERS WENT ON STRIKE TO-DAY

MEN WERE REFUSED A BOARD OF CONCILIATION.

(Special to The Examiner.)

TORONTO, July 8. — Four hundred teamster employees of five of the leading cartage companies of the city, having been refused a board of conciliation by the Minister of Labour, to settle the differences between themselves and their employers, went on strike this morning. The strike may mean the tieing up of the freight delivery from the railway sheds as occurred two years ago when the last teamsters' strike took place.

The organizers for the teamsters' union stated to-day that the men would have accepted any possible compromise but the cartage companies refused to recognize the union.

Yesterday the union employees of each of the firms waited upon representatives of their individual firms, but were unable to effect a solution of the trouble.

The reason given by the Minister of Labour for a refusal of a Board of Conciliation was that the teamsters did not rank as men engaged in public utilities. The men are demanding $25 a week minimum with consideration as to the hours of work.

BIG ESCORT TO MEET WOODROW

(Canadian Wress Despatch)

NEW YORK, July 8.—Four dreadnoughts and thirty-six destroyers from the Atlantic fleet formed the escort that met the United States naval transport "George Washington" with President Wilson aboard. Thirty miles east of Sandy Hook early to-day.

On duty for the President's arrival this afternoon were one hundred policemen from Jersey City and Hoboken forces. Immediately after welcoming exercises in Carnegie Hall, President Wilson will go to Pennsylvania station to take a special train for Washington.

FIRE PROTECTION FOR EAST CITY

MAY HAVE TO ESTABLISH TEMPORARY BRIGADE IN EAST CITY.

"What fire protection are we going to have in East City when they begin the construction of the new Hunter Street bridge?" asked a resident of Ashburnham this morning. Fire Chief Grange's men will be forced to go north to the Smith Street bridge and down Douro and Concession Streets to get to the scene of a fire in "Brooklyn," and by that time the fire would likely have made such headway that the firemen's chances to extinguish it are all but gone. The Chief states that from the standpoint of horseflesh the idea of running to Smith Street bridge in order to get over to East City is preposterous, as the horses could not make the run and return with the heavy hook and ladder. The fire at the Exhibition Grounds a few days ago, when the stalls were the horses are kept, caught fire, the horses were exhausted when they returned to the hall, yet it is not nearly so far as the round-about run to Ashburnham would be. Chief Grange is of the opinion that the city will be forced to establish a temporary brigade in East City until the present Hunter Street bridge is moved to London Street to maintain traffic as has been rumoured.

Two daring canoeists, J. Clarke, who hails from the Barbadoes Islands; and P. W. Bryant, an Amgri-LAEcan, on Saturday paddled from TORONTO, [illegible] to Niagara-on-the-Lake. So far WE[illegible], is known, this is the first time that [illegible] feat has been accomplished. The men used a sixteen foot Peterborough canoe and reported that it weathered the storm, which they encountered, some miles from their destination, in fine style.

The decision to make the attempt was the result of a friendly argument among several of the members of the Excelsior Club. J. Clarke maintained that he could make the trip, and with Bryant as his partner he made good his promise.

The canoeists left Toronto at 6 o'clock on Saturday morning and followed the course taken by the steamships. They lost sight of land shortly after 7 o'clock. At 10.30 the Chippewa passed within 80 feet of them, and Bryant exchanged greetings with his wife, who was aboard the steamer. Land was sighted at 1.30 p.m., and Niagara-on-the-Lake reached at 2.00.

The voyageurs reported that the trip was an uneventful one, with the exception of the last eight miles, when a gale sprang up behind them and hastened them on their journey.

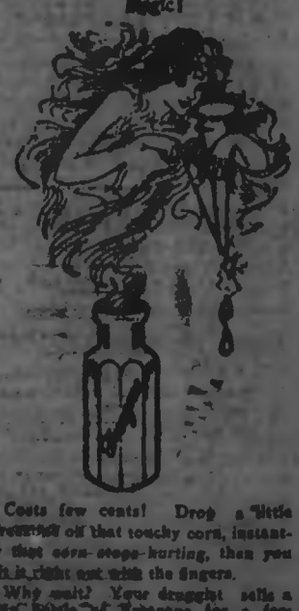
LIFT OFF CORNS!

Doesn't hurt a bit! Sore corns lift right off with fingers. Magic!



Costs few cents! Drop a little Freezone on that touchy corn, instantly that sore-stops-hurting, then you lift it right out with the fingers.

Why suffer? Your druggist sells a tiny bottle of Freezone for a few cents, sufficient to rid your feet of every hard corn, soft corn, or corn between the toes, and calluses, without soreness or irritation. Freezone is the magic discovery of the Cincinnati genius.

RADICAL CHANGES

French Government to Tackling H. C. of L.—Exportation of Foodstuffs Will Likely be Prohibited.

Canadian Press:

PARIS, July 8.—The French Government is considering the problem of the high cost of living, and the Cabinet will take up the question at a meeting to-day. According to the Echo de Paris, the Government is considering the issuance of a decree opening the frontiers immediately for the importation of necessary raw materials. The "Figaro" says the Government is discussing the prohibition of exportation of certain foodstuffs, such as butter, eggs and cheese. Other newspapers declare that the Government intends to propose a law inflicting very severe penalties on food speculators.

MRS. TURNER STUDYING BABY HYGIENE.

She Asks the Physician.

"My dear Mrs. Turner," said the family physician, "I can only repeat what I have said so many times—that not only must we see to it that the child properly assimilates its food, but equally important, that the waste products are properly eliminated. Infant—or child—hygiene plays an immense part at this day. The proper feeding of children is to-day an exact science, and it has brought with it the knowledge of how to keep the child's alimentary tract in the proper condition. Have you noticed how many physicians now specialise in children's diseases? Those men have at their command all the treatises on the maladies of infancy and childhood. Naturally they have the advantage over the general practitioner. But do you think the specialist has more success in treating the children than has the physician who brought them into the world; who day in and day out sees them, watches them, and notices all their little individual peculiarities? The specialist comes in as an outsider and has to learn of these things. The family physician knows them."

"One of the best known physicians in this country puts the matter of constitution of the alimentary canal in Hamiltonese sentence; 'Clean out, clean his vote to keep clean.' Surely what is true of grown-ups is still more oscillations. true of children. The grown-ups themselves. But

Ald. McIntyre's Explanation.

Ald McIntyre declined to vote, stating that he advocated a lump sum tender. The Canadian Engineering and Contracting Company's bid was on the cost plus basis, with a guarantee that the total cost would not exceed $268,000. If the cost was more than that sum the city hadn't sufficient money to pay for the work. On the other hand the Russell-Townsend Company offered only a cost plus estimate. Ald. Turner seconded it, and the ayes and nays were given as follows:

Aye — Aldermen Phelan, Edgar, Hamilton, Turner, Gainey and Garside.

Nay—Aldermen Taylor, McIntyre, Crowe, Morrison and Mayor Duncan.

"Garrison Finish" Checked.

It was then nearly midnight, but Ald. Edgar suggested that City Solicitor Widdifield hie himself to his office for the Russell-Townsend agreement and by-law, in order that the Council might free themselves like Sinbad from the old man of the sea, from the incubus that had made their lives miserable since the problem of reconstruction became acute far back in the winter.

Mayor Duncan counselled a breathing spell during which Mr. Widdifield could have time to properly prepare the by-law and provide for the minor alteration contained in the resolution that if the Council decides to build the long arch of steel that a proportional reduction be made from the contractors' fees.

Mr. Widdifield asked the Council for advice on this point, and it was agreed that should any dispute arise, in the event of the Council probably next year changing to a steel span, that City Engineer Parsons should make the decisions between the city and the contractors.

Mayor Duncan promised to call a meeting of the Council this week when the by-law and agreement authorizing the Russell-Townsend Company to construct the bridge should be at length "signed, sealed and delivered," unless—. There's such a thing as habit even with Councils.

ALD. HAMILTON'S VOTE GAVE HUNTER ST. BRIDGE CONTRACT TO RUSSELL-TOWNSEND CO'Y

COUNCIL REACHED A DECISION LAST NIGHT AFTER A DEADLOCK AND ALSO AFTER HAVING FIRST DEFEATED A RESOLUTION IN FAVOUR OF THE SUCCESSFUL TENDERS.

HOW THE COUNCIL VOTED

Although the Board of Works last week recommended the acceptance of the Canadian Engineering and Contracting Company's tender, the City Council last night by a vote of 6 to 5 let the contract for the Hunter street bridge to the Russell-Townsend Company. The vote in which the ayes and nays were recorded was taken on Ald. Edgar's awarding motion, seconded by Ald. Turner, as follows:

Ayes — Aldermen Phelan, Edgar, Hamilton, Turner, Garside and Gainey.

Nays — Aldermen Taylor, McIntyre, Crowe, Morrison and Mayor Duncan.

The decision and its developments ran true to the form that has characterized the months of discussion and adjournments, of the adopting and rescinding of resolutions, of progress and reaction, until it seemed that the problem disposing of the contract would never be settled.

Variety to the Last.

In the early part of last night's meeting the report of the Board of Works was presented, the Council reached a deadlock of five to five. The concluding clause embodied the recommendation that the Council accept the tender of the Canadian Engineering and Contracting Company for the cost of the bridge, plus a fixed sum of $30,000 for the company's engineering fees, with a guaranteed limit of $280,000. Ald. Phelan, who read the report moved, seconded by Ald. Garside, that this clause be amended, substituting the Russell-Townsend Company and their tender of cost, plus $30,000 with the estimated total of $220,000.

Ald. Morrison moved in amendment, seconded by Ald. Taylor, that the report be adopted as read, in other words that the contract be awarded to the Canadian Engineering and Contracting Company.

After an exchange of arguments and opinions that have long since become familiar, the vote resulted as follows:

For the amendment — Aldermen Taylor, Hamilton, Morrison, Crowe and Mayor Duncan.

Against—Aldermen Edgar, Turner, Phelan, Garside and Gainey.

Ald. McIntyre's Explanation.

Ald. McIntyre declined to vote, stating that he advocated a lump sum tender. The Canadian Engineering and Contracting Company's bid was on the cost plus basis, with a guarantee that the total cost would not exceed $280,000. If the cost was more than that sum the city hadn't sufficient money to pay for the work. On the other hand the Russell-Townsend Company offered only a cost plus estimate without a guarantee except the company's reputation. Ald. McIntyre said he couldn't vote for either of them.

The Council decided to pass the report with the impeding clause deleted, and to take another fling at the bridge contract in general business, when all the routine had been cleared away.

Ald. Hamilton Decided.

It was eleven o'clock when the stage was set for what probably every member hoped would be the finals to its long assertions.

Ald. Edgar submitted his motion that the contract be let to the Russell-Townsend Company, but there was a quarter of an hour's diversion while Mr. Towsend and Mr. Nevin, representing the company, were given a hearing at Ald. Garside's request. Ald. Morrison, Mayor Duncan and other members contended with them upon certain points which had nothing of novelty about them, principally emphasizing the company's refusal to offer some guarantee of the price of the bridge.

Was Defeated at First.

When the first vote was taken—not the one reported above—the Council actually defeated the motion by a vote of 6 to 5. Ald. McIntyre again declined to commit himself as between these two contracting companies, but Mayor Duncan stated that every member had to vote, since the ayes and nays had been requested by Ald. Taylor. Ald. Hamilton also hung back until the Council stood five all. Then he finally voted with the nays, against the motion. The register was as follows:

Ayes — Aldermen Phelan, Turner, Edgar, Garside and Gainey.

Nays—Aldermen Taylor, McIntyre, Crowe, Morrison, Hamilton and Mayor Duncan.

"A Flash in the Pan."

The gallery, and it was only a fairly numerous one, imagined that the decision was reached in the first round, but it soon became apparent that the decision was deferred, for when Ald. Morrison moved, seconded by Ald. Taylor, in favour of the Canadian Engineering and Contracting Company the best showing they could attract was a hesitating vote, as counted by the Mayor, first five to three, then five to four, and it was stated, five to five. There was nothing conclusive in that direction, and Ald. Hamilton remarked that he thought his vote would have put an end to the oscillations.

Day Labour Suggestion.

Ald. Gainey took advantage of the passing flurry to move, seconded by Ald. Crowe, that the bridge be built by day labour and that an early beginning be made on the approaches, but only Ald. McIntyre was thinking to that tune.

Ald. Hamilton Turned Scales Again.

Ald. Edgar's persistency brought him to his feet again with the resolution he knew by heart, backwards and forwards, that the contract be awarded to the Russell-Townsend Company. Ald. Turner seconded it, and the ayes and nays were given as follows:

Aye — Aldermen Phelan, Edgar, Hamilton, Turner, Gainey and Garside.

Nay—Aldermen Taylor, McIntyre, Crowe, Morrison and Mayor Duncan.

"Garrison Finish" Checked.

It was then nearly midnight, but Ald. Edgar suggested that City Solicitor Widdifield hie himself to his office for the Russell-Towsend agreement and by-law, in order that the Council might free themselves like Sinbad from the old man of the sea, from the incubus that had made their lives miserable since the problem of reconstruction became acute far back in the winter.

Mayor Duncan counselled a breathing spell during which Mr. Widdifield could have time to properly prepare the by-law and provide for the minor alteration contained in the resolution that if the Council decides to build the long arch of steel that a proportional reduction be made from the contractors' fees.

Mr. Widdifield asked the Council for advice on this point, and it was agreed that should any dispute arise, in the event of the Council probably next year changing to a steel span, that City Engineer Parsons should make the decisions between the city and the contractors.

Mayor Duncan promised to call a meeting of the Council this week when the by-law and agreement authorizing the Russell-Townsend Company to construct the bridge should be at length "signed, sealed and delivered," unless—. There's such a thing as habit even with Councils.

DARING VOYAGEURS CROSS LAKE ONTARIO IN SMALL CANOE

A PETERBOROUGH CANOE AGAIN IN EVIDENCE IN NOTABLE FEAT—TORONTO TO NIAGARA-ON-THE-LAKE BY CANOE.

Two daring canoeists, J. Clarke, [illegible] the Barbadoes Islands, and [illegible] Bryant, an American, [illegible] paddled from Toronto to Niagara-on-the-Lake. So far as is generally known it is the first time that [illegible] has been accomplished. The men used a sixteen foot Peterborough canoe and reported that it weathered the storm, which they encountered, some miles from their destination, in fine style.

The decision to make the attempt was the result of a friendly argument among several of the members of the Excelsior Club. J. Clarke maintained that he could make the trip, and with Bryant as his partner he made good his promise.

The canoeists left Toronto at 6 o'clock on Saturday morning and followed the course taken by the steamships. They lost sight of land shortly after 7 o'clock. At 10.30 the Chippewa passed within 50 feet of them, and Bryant exchanged greetings with his wife, who was aboard the steamer. Land was sighted at 1.30 p.m., and Niagara-on-the-Lake reached at 2.40.

The voyageurs reported that the trip was an uneventful one, with the exception of the last eight miles, when a gale sprang up behind them and hastened them on their journey.

THE COST OF LIVING.

The members of the Cost of Living committee of the House of Commons have evidently not a great deal of faith in the Board of Commerce they suggested should be formed, judging by the final report tabled in the House on Saturday, which set forth as the opinion of the committee that the only solution to the problem lay in getting the soldiers and war workers into productive activity and by urging the people generally to live as frugally and thriftily as possible. The removal of millions of workers from productive work for five years is regarded as the principal cause of the high cost of living, and therefore the committee adopts Sir Thomas White's advice to produce and save more as the only remedy. There is no question of the economic soundness of this finding, but at the same time the people of Canada have a right to know that when the poorer people are doing their best to work and save that they are not being made the victims of profiteering protected by the tariff. They would adapt themselves much more cheerfully to the high prices if they knew that the greed of some of their fellow men was not responsible for at least part of the increase. It is all very well to say that the only remedies are work and thrift; that may be true enough in a general sense, but in the meantime Canadians want to be assured that they are not being made the victims of exhortion at the hands of those who are taking advantage of the unusual conditions.

A TRUE BRITON.

"I am not worrying about the punishment they are planning for me now. The big thing is that I made that trip and here I am." In these words of W. W. Ballantine, a rigger in the Royal Air Force, who was a stowaway on the R-34 during the historic voyage across the Atlantic, is to be found the spirit of the true Briton. Ballantine had been a member of the crew of the big dirigible, but just before the airship was to sail it was found necessary to drop three of the crew, and he was one of the unlucky three. But Ballantine was not so easily disposed of; he was determined to sail with the R-34, and hiding himself in the rigging, he succeeded in escaping observation until the "blimp" was sixty miles out, and there was nothing to do but bring him along. In an interview with New York newspaper men he expressed his expectation of being punished for his breach of discipline, but citizens of the British Empire who admire the spirit which prompted him to become a stowaway in order to take part in the wonderful voyage, will hope that his punishment will be light. And from the opinion formed of Major Scott, who commands the R-34, Ballantine will escape a reprimand. His exploit is such a demonstration of the spirit of British valour that it would be a pity to have it marked by harsh terms for the central figure in the episode.

AFTER SENATOR LOUGHEED

The agitation for the removal of Sir James Lougheed from the position of Minister of the Department of Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment is being maintained. It is significant that the Dominion convention of the Great War Veterans' Association should pass a resolution asking the Premier to call for the resignation of the Minister. The convention was composed of leaders among the veterans from one end of Canada to the other and the action of the delegates in wiring such a resolution to Sir Robert Borden shows unmistakably that the great mass of the returned men are dissatisfied with the way in which the affairs of the Department are being handled. The Government's chief Ontario organ the Toronto Mail and Empire attempts to defend the administration of Sir James Lougheed but the laudatory words of its editorial on the subject fail to convince when contrasted with the statement of F. K. McCurdy M.P., in tendering his resignation from the position of Secretary of the Department of Soldiers' Civic Re-establishment and chairman of the Invalided Soldiers' Commission because as he said "I am unwilling to risk my reputation in being attached to an undertaking whose duties and responsibilities are so lightly regarded". The letter that Mr. McCurdy sent to the Prime Minister called attention to the "drift, delay and inaction", of the Department of which Sir James Lougheed is the head. That conditions have not improved since Mr. McCurdy resigned is shown by the ever-increasing chorus of complaints from returned soldiers and by the number of officials of the Department who have felt it necessary to give up their positions because of the manner in which the nation's debt to the soldiers of Canada was being discharged.

PROOFS ARE NEEDED

The Federal authorities have been promising for some time to give to the public information as to the proofs of an attempt to spread sedition and effect a social revolution in the west. Papers belonging to labour leaders have been forcibly seized, there have been raids made upon many labour headquarters and the impression has been given that definite evidence as to the "red" character of recent events has been located. The unusual nature of the activities of Federal agents can only be justified by disclosure of serious plots and unless proofs of these are given to the public, the Government already condemned in the eyes of many Canadians, will further lose public confidence. It is in the interests of all patriotic citizens that if the Government has the information available and can show that plots have been started the facts should be placed before the people. The present policy of keeping silent as to what discoveries have been made as to the result of recent raids, only tends to create an impression that this talk of Soviets and the social revolution are nothing more than red herrings dragged across the trail to blind the people to the real conditions. For the creation of this feeling the Government has only itself to blame. If the proofs are at hand, the people have a right to hear them.

Peace has been signed. Germany has submitted to the terms laid down by the Allied nations. The signing merely of an agreement of peace will not bring an actual condition of peace it will compel Germany to do all it can to repair the wrongs of war and every other nation must do the same.

"Fling away ambition" was the advice of Cardinal Wolsey to Cromwell, and there are many instances both in the national life, and in the individual life, where ambition has worked great wrong and havoc. The miser's ambition has resulted in greater injustice and wrong than any other ambition in the world's history. It was both a national and individual ambition.

There is still all the difference in the world between Europe and America. Life and opportunity in an old and new country are quite different. It is said one-fourth of the people in the United States are either German or have some German blood in them. Those in America have more opportunity to improve their position in life than those in Germany. This is true in comparison with all old countries.

Canada is even better than the United States. It is very like the United States, more like it than any other country, and is still a country to which a poor man can come with the certainty of success. That was the blessing of America to the world. Great as the crime of the war has been to the world America has been a greater blessing in which every country in the world has participated. Had Germany thought it had an outlet such has the United States was during the 19th century it is fair to hope its ambition to rule the world might have been allowed to sleep.

America (United States and Canada) is the living example to which European nations can at the present time be pointed. There is room for millions more to come and help to feed the world and clothe it too.

The corner-stones of freedom here are that "every man is entitled to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness," and that life is enjoyed on the basis of "liberty, equality and fraternity." It is a true conception of democracy.

America's part in the future will be to absorb many millions more from Europe, who will join with those here to feed and cloth the world. The United States will aid financially every other country, joining with Great Britain, still financial leader, in that task.

America can teach democratic principles as no other country can. It has had no "entangling alliances." It based its future on sound lines and, together Canada and United States form an island continent many times the size of Great Britain, and if the power they together possess is exercised for th common good of all mankind it will form a great portion of all that is needed to insure a happy future for the world.—London Advertiser.

NUMEROUS RAIL AND ROAD PORTS OF JUGO SLAVIA OTHER THAN FIUME

It has been stated repeatedly that Fiume is the only port of Jugo Slavia on the Adriatic and that if Fiume be given to Italy, the new Jugo Slav kingdom would be entirely cut off from an outlet on the Adriatic. The map shows how groundless has been the misrepresentation in making such statement.

From Dupont, six miles south of Fiume, to Albania, the eastern Adriatic coast is lined with numerous cities, towns and villages, all served by coastal vessels many of them possessing good harbours well improved and equipped, and served adequately with railroads and wagon roads from all parts of the interior.

It should be remembered in studying the Fiume question, and evidence of a fair and impartial judgment that these ports were used and considered adequate by the states of Austria-Hungary, Jugo Slavia, and further it should be remembered that these other ports were performed by those states who now so vociferously claim Fiume as their only outlet on the Adriatic. This is proven by the statistics of the shipments through Fiume into and out of those various states.

Only 12 per cent of the entire traffic—imports and exports, of Croatia, Bosnia-Herzegovinia, Serbia and Slavonia passed through Fiume before the war, and Croatia only used it for 7 per cent of her imports and exports.

One has but to consult one's own geography to prove the soundness of this map.

NEWPORT IS UNIQUE.

As a Watering Place It is in a Class All by Itself.

Newport is our greatest invention in watering places. There is nothing at all like it anywhere else in the world. At first glance Coney Island would appear to many people more characteristically American, and Newport, indeed, a mere snobbish imitation of Europe. But if there is anything like Newport in Europe it has escaped at least the present writer's notice, whereas something very like the admirable Coney, he could duplicate in several quarters of the globe.

Newport is the only watering place in the world where there are no hotels and no hotel life, no fashionable promenade, no scene of gayety accessible to the stranger for an admission fee. On ordinary mornings the tourist penetrating the Casino might see a few young people in bathing playing tennis and a scant dozen of their elders dropping in for a moment to say good morning or to deliver some message. He might with extra good luck observe one of the queens of fashion drinking an orangeade. That would be, with the single exception of tennis week, about all he would observe.

He would, of course, be free to walk the weary length of Bellevue avenue between clipped green hedges and see the pleasant Newport homes—only a few of them "palaces." But nobody would be stirring in the houses and no one walking in the avenue. An occasional motor would roll by, that is all. He could also take that pretty walk along the cliffs and see more pleasant houses—still only a few of them "palaces." He might, if the fates so incline, perhaps see a fashionable footman at the window; he could scarcely hope for the butler. He could see the avenue whirring at half past 8, the dinner hour. And strolling through the night he might here and there observe lines of motors waiting under the shadowy trees, and even hear dance music beating in the calm, soft darkness.

Newport presents, in fact, a singular impression of quietness, of distinction, of an existence not wholly in the public eye.—Harper's Magazine.

BLUFFED THE LION.

A Big Game Hunter Who Tested His Theory and Won.

In the American Magazine Stewart Edward White tells how in South Africa he bluffed a wounded lion and made him run away:

"Now, I am perfectly aware that a wounded lion always charges. Exceptions are so rare as only to prove the rule. But I have always cherished a theory that even a wounded lion can be bluffed out, provided the man does the charging first before the beast can gather his faculties. Here was a heaven given opportunity to try that out.

"So I took the 405, stepped out from our sapling, walked steadily toward him.

"If I had stood still in his sight for the instant necessary for him to see what I was he would have come in, for he was hurt and hungry. But he had not that instant. Holding my rifle ready for immediate action, I advanced on him at an even gait. He saw me at once and fixed on me his great yellow eyes.

"He sat there absolutely still while I covered about half the distance between us. In my mind I had fixed upon a certain little bush twenty yards or so from the top as the point at which I should begin to shoot. When I still had half a dozen yards to go the suspense of his game broke. He began to act exactly as a dog does when he is embarrassed, glancing down, right and left. At twenty-five yards the pressure became too great. He suddenly turned and bolted. And I missed a heavy shot at him as he ran."

WHY SNOW HEATS THE HANDS

The Brain Calls to the Blood to Help the Chilled Skin

It is very wonderful that our hands should become warm after playing with snow, for it must be perfectly certain that the cold snow takes heat away very quickly from our warm hands.

The warmth of our hands is derived entirely from the blood, except at times when something hot is actually shining upon them. Therefore, for some reason or other, a very much larger amount of blood than usual must be flowing through our hands. The blood is no warmer in itself, or the whole of the body would at once notice it, but what really happens is that the hands are getting richer and quicker supply of it.

The effect is just the same, really, as the delightful glow that we feel after a cold bath. The brain has the duty of taking care of the skin, as of every other part of the body. Now, when the skin has been chilled its life has been heavily taxed, and it will suffer unless it is compensated. So the brain orders the small blood vessels in the skin, wherever it has been chilled, to relax and widen so that the warm blood is able to circulate quickly through them.—"The Child's Book of Knowledge."

Pension.

"Pension" is among the numerous cases of words of Latin origin applialised to mean something which the original did not mean to the Romans. "Pension" signifies simply a payment in the broadest sense, and we are at liberty to draw the sound moral that a pension is not really something thrown in as a gratuity, but deferred pay. The word for a soldier's pay was "stipendium," and here we have another curious shift of meaning. Nobody speaks of a soldier's "stipend" now. It is a magistrate or a clergyman whose pay receives that name. The "stipendium" was paid in lumps three or four times a year, and the word came to be used to mean a year's term of service.—London Chronicle.

How the Trouble Began.

He had been reading the paper and occasionally reporting to her some item that seemed particularly interesting. Thus it happened he ran across an item about the invention of a machine for washing horses.

"They'll have machines for washing babies next," he suggested.

"Huh!" she exclaimed indignantly. "I'd just like to see my baby washed by a machine!"

"So would I," he retorted.

He afterward explained to some one at the club that it was an exhibition of the insincerity of woman, for, while he had done absolutely nothing but agree with her, she was so displeased that he found it impossible to read his paper in comfort.

A Stubborn Husband.

TRICKS OF LIGHTNING.

A Favorite Prank Seems to Be to Strip Its Victim Naked.

The antics played by lightning are sometimes almost beyond belief. A common trick is that of undressing its victims. In 1858 two girls and an elderly woman were standing by a reaping machine during a storm. A lightning flash struck the woman and killed her on the spot, while the two girls were stripped to the skin, even their boots being torn from their feet otherwise they were safe and sound but astonished.

In 1855 a man was struck by lightning near Vallerois, in France, and stripped naked. All that could be found afterward of his clothes was a shirt sleeve, a few other shreds and some pieces of his hobnailed boots. Ten minutes after he was struck he regained consciousness, opened his eyes, looked around him, and then, realizing his condition, he exclaimed, "Good heavens! How did I get here?"

Such instances have been recorded again and again. In one case a man and two oxen were struck simultaneously, and all three killed. The man was found stripped to the skin, and his boots had been carried thirty yards away.

"In other cases," says Camille Flammarion, the eminent French astronomer, "lightning has been known to split men in half, almost as with a huge ax. On June 20, 1868, this happened to a miller's assistant at a windmill near Croix. The lightning struck him and split him from his head downward in two."—Pearson's Weekly.

DRINK HOT WATER IF YOU DESIRE A ROSY COMPLEXION

Says we can't help but look better and feel better after an inside bath.

To look one's best and feel one's best is to enjoy an inside bath each morning to flush from the system the previous day's waste, sour fermentations and poisonous toxins before it is absorbed into the blood. Just as coal when it burns, leaves behind a certain amount of incombustible material in the form of ashes, so the food and drink taken each day leave in the alimentary organs a certain amount of indigestible material, which if not eliminated, form toxins and poisons which are then sucked into the blood through the very ducts which are intended to such in only nourishment to sustain the body.

If you want to see the glow of healthy bloom in your cheeks, to see your skin get clearer and clearer, you are told to drink every morning upon arising, a glass of hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it, which is a harmless means of washing the waste material and toxins from the stomach liver, kidneys and bowels, thus cleansing, sweetening and purifying the entire alimentary tract, before putting more food into the stomach.

Men and women with sallow skins, liver spots, pimples or pallid complexion, also those who wake up with a coated tongue, bad taste, nasty breath, others who are bothered with headaches, bilious spells, acid stomach or constipation should begin this phosphated hot water drinking and are assured of very pronounced results in one or two weeks.

A quarter pound of limestone phosphate costs very little at the drug store but is sufficient to demonstrate that just as soap and hot water cleanses purifies and freshens the skin on the outside, so hot water and limestone phosphate act on the inside organs. We must always consider that internal sanitation is vastly more important than outside cleanliness, because the skin pores do not absorb impurities into the blood, while the bowel pores do

The Promoter's Wife

BY JANE PHELPS

AT FIRST BARBARA THINKS HER HOME WONDERFUL

CHAPTER X.

Neil's face always held a look that puzzled me. It was the look of one who lived life eagerly—never thinking beyon dthe present; never finding it dull. And yet there was also another look, a sort of recklessness totally at variance with what I knew and thought of his character. That he was self-willed, temperamental to a degree, I had no way of knowing. Our courtship had been the quiet undisturbed intimacy of a small town, where there was nothing to bring out any unusual trait in either of us. That he was impatient of criticism I realized; but I had been in no critical mood. What he did was right in my eyes.

We were settled and had moved into the apartmnet. Oh, how happy I was. This wonderful home was mine—mine and Neil's. I loved him passionately and he seemed to return it with equal ardor. Not a single cloud could I see ahead of us.

When I said something of all this to Neil, he returned:

"This will do for a time but we'll soon have something better. I have a little deal on that may bring us money enough to live differently." Long afterwards I learned through knowing Neil that it had been a mortification to him that he could not live in the style in which the friends of his bachelor days lived.

Neil's was a firm which promoted mines, oils, etc., he explained. And he had said there was no need of perpetually struggling. Success, I soon learned is a characteristic women admire in men. The methods by which it is attained, however, are seldom understood, nor interesting to most women. I was no different.

We were scarcely settled before I realized something that was particularly galling to me; and that was that Neil would leave me at any time—stay away as long as he wished—to pursue any course that would advance him one hair's breadth in his business of making money or which held out a promise of reward.

Then, often when we were alone, he was inanimate from the extra labor, and I would feel irritated that he was so. Even the way he relaxed, scarcely speaking, unless I questioned him, annoyed me immeasurably.

I commenced to feel that I had a rival. I was miserably jealous of him. That my rival at this time was his work, and not another woman, detracted little from my bitterness of the rivalry. I was well aware that we needed money, must have a certain amount upon which to live. But his salary had seemed to me so adequate for our wants that I thought him foolish to want to earn more. I should have been wonderfully surprised had anyone told me that soon my every act, my whole mind, would rush him toward success—would urge upon him the necessity of financial increment because of my demands upon him, as well as because of his own extravagant tastes. Already I was willing to have nothing but the best.

We had been married about two months, in which I had been wonderfully, gloriously happy save when Neil came home too exhausted to talk with me. One night he came home to dinner jubilantly, full of high spirits. On his face was the look of a man who was triumphant, assured of success. He seized me in his arms and covered my face with kisses. He looked tenderly at me as he held my face in his hands.

Rapidly he explained to me that a deal upon which he had been working for months, was going through—that it meant money for him—for us.

I interspersed questions, words of praise and congratulation. But he was so engrossed in his own delight that he scarcely listened, and he did not reply.

"It is certain we will be rich and soon!" he executed another pas seul while the dinner cooled on the table.

During the meal he talked constantly. Once when he halted I asked him how much he would make. When he told me I gasped for breath. It was inconceivable that we, Neil and I, should have so much—we would not know what to do with it.

"Don't worry about that!" he laughed at my expression. "We will find ways to dispose of all can make."

To-morrow — Neil Praises Blanche Orton.

War Souvenirs.

A month ago a Canadian soldier in France cabled his father and mother in Toronto that he was returning home immediately with a Belgian girl. His father and mother, very prominent in the social life of Toronto, were somewhat embarrassed by the cablegram, for they thought their son of twenty-three, who had been three years at the front, had without notifying them married outside their social circle.

This particular Canadian soldier arrived home the other day, and with him was a Belgian girl four years old. His father and mother were much relieved when he told them how he was walking through the streets of Brussels one day and the little girl ran and caught hold of his hand and said to him, "I want you to take me home." He could not resist the child's request, and Canada is the richer by one little Belgian girl four years old, and she is richer by a foster father and mother to take the place of those she lost during the war.

A returned member of the Canadian Aviation Corps has a little French boy, whom he adopted under the laws of France, because the little chap was an orphan and had only his grandmother, dying of an incurable disease, to take care of him. The little nine-year-old French boy will grow up to be a worthy citizen of Canada.

The Air Lane

By RALPH HAMILTON

(Copyright, 1919, by Western Newspaper Union.)

"I've had too much experience with runaway couples, love sick swains and romantic demoiselles to take any risks with my own daughter, Elida," announced Judge Cyrus Barnes with a cocksure chuckle of confidence and superiority. "Remember, I am known as the marrying justice, and the name fits."

There was some basis to the boastful claims of the father of pretty Elida Barnes. Year in, year out for a full decade he had been elected and re-elected to the office of magistrate. He was not much of a legal luminary, but he was shrewd, had a smattering of court usage and brought revenue to the town. Speeders were his special prey, marriage licenses were easy of acquisition in Rockton, and for that quiet little burg Judge Barnes won the distinction of a veritable modern Gretna Green.

The judge had made money out of his office, and through fortunate investments had come to live at the edge of the village in an old mansion he had bought at a bargain. He was a widower and his sole care was his only child, Elida. Upon her he had lavished money freely. She was a charming young lady of eighteen with a will of her own, but respectful and obedient toward her father on all occasions. The judge had planned out her future and had made Elida aware of its details. He intended when she was twenty-one to give her a fortune and a husband. He had in view Rodney Parker, the son of his eldest friend, a young man, however, whom Elida not only disliked but despised.

With all his provision and prudence Judge Barnes had committed a capital mistake. It had been necessary to have witnesses to the marriages he performed, and Elida and the old housekeeper were often called in to perform that function. There is no love like the ardent, impetuous love of elopers when it first blazes forth, and an atmosphere of the most delicious romanticism enveloped these truant compacts. Elida saw genuine heroes and heroines in these runaway matches. All the brides were young and lovely, all the young men chevaliers and knights errant. Elida could not have had a more sentimental training in what to her was a delightful episode in human life, though to her father business, pure and simple.

The result was that when Elida began to go to parties like other girls, the first young man who aroused her interest became her idol forthwith. Vernon Clare well deserved her approbation. He was an aviator in training, not an ordinary aviator, but one who had been decorated for bravery in the air service. He was a handsome young man, and Elida was not long in succumbing to his charms.

Vernon Clare was a frequent visitor at the Barnes mansion, and Elida's father, who had designs on Rodney Parker, was blissfully unaware of the progress of the romance. Vernon Clare was a welcome guest, for he was a good conversationalist, and he had a fund of stories of his adventures in the air service. Elida's father was a bit deaf, and Vernon Clare would shout his stories into the judge's ear trumpet, while Elida would sit by and laugh at the humorous parts.

Vernon Clare was a daring young man, and he had a daring scheme to elope with his daughter, hedged in the way we've got her!" the judge congratulated himself, but devoted lovers have their ways, and somehow Vernon Clare got secret word to Elida, and one starlit night that happened which set Rockton aflame with excitement and delight.

Afterwards the man of all work insisted that a great bird flopped into view aloft. Aunt Tabitha, in the garden, descried a winged monster flopping overhead and fainted away. They found a part of the upper cornice broken away and a taint of gasoline in the atmosphere.

And sailing away against the full moon was a speeding speck. It bore to safety and bliss Vernon Clare, expert aviator, and Elida Barnes, romance charmed to the full, and two hours later Elida Barnes was Elida Clare.

SHARPS AND FLATS.

One of the novelties of the concert stage is a quartette of women trumpeters.

Sometimes the tenors take such a liking to a high note that they linger on it and then have to hurry unduly to catch up to the other parts. Tenors, don't do it.

Although Sunday is considered the church's day, the church is used and used to good advantage every day of the week. Why, then, should the church organ be heard so seldom apart from Sundays?

No matter how musical you are, never get into the habit of going to a concert to look for the performer's weaknesses. Go to enjoy the music. Remember the good things.

One reason why Chopin was so outstandingly successful in writing music for the piano was because he never tried to make the piano do an orchestra's work. Although he never attempted to force the piano beyond its own limited powers of expression, yet he developed the piano's latent possibilities as no other composer had done.

"I find it absolutely compulsory," says a prominent violin teacher, "that every serious violin student should study enough piano so that he may be able to play the piano part of the works he studies—not to master them necessarily, but enough so that he may get an idea of what goes on while he plays the violin part."

All musical instruments have three co-ordinating parts—a motor, a vibrator, and a resonator. The motor of the violin is the bow, the vibrator is the strings, the resonator is the body of the instrument. The motor of the piano is the hammers, the vibrator is the strings, the resonator is the soundingboard. The motor of the human voice is the respiratory apparatus; the vibrator is the vocal cords and larynx; the resonator is the throat, the mouth, and the nasal and head cavities. In addition, the human voice has what no other musical instrument possesses, an articulator, which consists of the tongue, palate, jaw, lips, and teeth. It is this articulator that enables us to express our thoughts audibly and so renders the human voice immeasurably the most eloquent of all musical instruments.

A few years ago a rather facetious young man was seated in one of the corridor compartments of the London North-Western Irish Mail from Euston to Holyhead. He noticed there was a fair sprinkling of young ladies accompanied by young lovers, and thought the approaching tunnel offered some fun, so shouted:

To the surprise of all the train dashed into daylight again in about 20 seconds, and the scene in the car was one for a painter. Seven young ladies were closely pressed by 14 pairs of masculine arms, 14 pairs of lips were glued together, and two dozen inverted whiskey flasks flashed in the air.

Even the Welsh hills smiled!

Sir Wilfrid Laurier Said

"After all, what a man does with his money is to invest, and there is no better way to invest it than in Life Insurance."
As an ESTATE BUILDER there is nothing to equal Life Insurance.

TAKE THE FOLLOWING ACTUAL RESULT—

A young man, sixteen years of age, took out a 15-year Endowment (No. 210380) in the Sun Life of Canada, which matured on the first of April. This young man paid annually $66.30 for fifteen years, and he has now, through that investment, an immediate estate of $1,235.00 in case of death.

DO YOU KNOW THAT THIS AMOUNTS TO ALMOST 15% COMPOUND INTEREST ON EVERY DOLLAR HE PAID?

No wonder Sir Wilfrid said (and he might have added, No better place than the Sun Life of Canada), "There is no better way to invest it than in LIFE INSURANCE."

THE CHAUTAUQUA WAS ENJOYED BY LARGE AUDIENCE

DR. ARTHUR EVANS GAVE A LECTURE ON DEMOCRACY—THE "OLD HOME SINGERS."

"What Western Democracy Has Done For Me," the lecture given last evening at the Chautauqua by the renowned Welsh speaker, Dr. Arthur Walwyn Evans, was heard by a large and enthusiastic audience.

The Doctor's lecture, while inspiring and instructive, was punctuated with a number of humorous and telling incidents, which kept his audience in good humour, and the hour and a half passed altogether too quickly.

Dr. Evan went to show that our text books and educational training are largely responsible for the narrow and restricted ideas and knowledge we have about other countries than our own. The British, the French and the American youths are taught to believe that their people were always victorious in war, and were the leaders in thought and that all other countries were inferior to their own. The great war, just brought to a close, has had the effect of opening the eyes of the average American, and the Fourth of July politician spouter, eagle screamer, flag-shouting American will become obsolete. Dr. Evans said that one of the hardest jobs he ever had in his life was to bring up his father and mother, in other words, he was engaged touring to get out some of the old fossilized ideas which the last generation were brought up on and to get the larger ideas of democracy and brotherhood.

Old Home Singers.

The Old Home Singers Quartette was a most enjoyable feature of the afternoon and evening entertainment and with the varied programme of vocal and instrumental numbers rendered, a great treat to the appreciative audience. The programmes included selections from Rigoletto, Faust, hymns and imitations of a darky service.

A New Blood Food Called Ferrozone Sure to Restore You Quickly.

Every day comes the good news of wonderful cures with Ferrozone.

In Peterboro it has worked marvels for Louis Meehan—put him right on his feet—made him entirely well.

"About three years ago," says Mr. Meehan, "I had the Grippe which left me in a very run-down condition that finally developed into Dyspepsia. I was unable to eat but a few things and had a craving for acid. I gave up treating with the doctors because they did not help me and on the advice of a friend used Ferrozone. It not only cured me of Dyspepsia and Biliousness, but has built up my strength to what it was before I had the Grippe. I can recommend Ferrozone as an ideal restorative."

Ferrozone gives you force, energy, vim.

It strengthens the stomach, cures indigestion, prevents headache—guarantees good health.

Thousands use Ferrozone—they all feel better; try it yourself—sold in 50c boxes, six for $2.50, at all dealers or direct from the Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ont.

CELEBRATED THEIR 50TH ANNIVERSARY

PETERBORO WAS REPRESENTED AT THE FESTIVITIES.

On July 6, 1869, Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Gunn, of West Ops, were married at the parish church, Downeyville, by the late Rev. Father Coyle, and on Sunday they celebrated the fiftieth anniversary of that happy event, surrounded by practically every member of their family.

Mr. Gunn was born in Cavan, Ireland, and was ten years of age when he came to Canada. Mrs. Gunn, whose maiden name was Sarah Atkinson, was born in Ops Township. The happy couple after marriage, started life's journey on the homestead in which they reside at present. To the union were born ten children, six boys and four girls, and all except two were present at the anniversary. About fifty relatives and friends sat down to dinner and during the day quite a number called and showered congratulations on the venerable couple. Congratulatory addresses were made by Senator McHugh, Robert Fitzpatrick, of Toronto, and Hugh Masterson of Haldimand County.

Mr. and Mrs. Gunn were the recipients of many presents from the family, other relatives, as well as friends including a collection of gold pieces.

Among the out-of-town friends were noticed; Messrs. Hugh Masterson and Walsh, of Haldimand County; Miss Catherine Masterson, Peterboro; Rev. Father Galvin and Miss Galvin, Downeyville; Mr. and Mrs. Robt. Fitzpatrick Toronto; Miss [illegible], of Detroit.

A ... in connection with the anniversary was the presence of three ... guests at the wedding forty years ago: Sarah Jane ... and Mr. ... Fitzpatrick, of Ops, and Mrs. John Florey, of Lindsay.

WINNIPEG, July 8. — The Winnipeg River Power Company, headed by the Mackenzie & Mann interests of Toronto, allied closely with the Winnipeg Electric Railway Company, has started constructing a huge power plant at the Du Bonnet falls on the Winnipeg River, 75 miles northeast of Winnipeg.

The ultimate capacity will be six units of 28,000 horse power each, or 168,000 horse power, and the project, which will be completed in three years will cost $7,000,000.

The capacity of the new plant, the engineers declare, will exceed the combined present power output of the city plant at Point Du Bois and that of the railway company at Pinawa Channel.

CALGARY IS THREATENED.

CALGARY, July 8.— Forest fires around Calgary are becoming serious. High winds are causing some alarm for the safety of the city.

WASHINGTON, July 8.— Washington, which ordinarily goes to bed about 9 p.m., will sit up to-night to welcome President Wilson. The police have made preparations to handle the big crowd when the Chief Executive arrives here at 10 o'clock.

Between 10 and 11 p.m. the Presidential party will pass through an arbor of flowers at the Union station, be greeted by two bands playing patriotic music and proceed along Pennsylvania avenue to the White House past a tableaux intended to demonstrate how glad the capital is to see its most prominent citizen once more.

Police and secret service agents have taken extraordinary precautions to safeguard the President. The railway line from New York to Washington will be patrolled. Throwing of flowers at the President and taking of flashlight photographs is forbidden. Major Pullman, Chief of the Washington Police and Secret Service heads will inspect the Union Station guards, and scores of plain clothes men along the route this evening to make sure every man is at his position and that no precaution has been overlooked.

THE GREAT PHYSICIAN.

Call upon me in the day of trouble. I will deliver thee, and thou shalt glorify me.—50th Psalm, 15th verse.

(BY MRS. A. F. CALDER.)

When life's beaming prospects all sink in decay,
And hope's pallid star sheds a far feeble ray,
When not from the ground, but by heaven's decree,
Troubles follow each other like waves of the sea,
And alone, hid in secret, unsolaced, you bear
A burden of sorrow no mortal may share,

Look aloft! Wherefore yield to weak, cowardly despair,
For the Father Almighty still reigns enthroned there.
Call only on Him in adversity's hour,
Whose love is unchanging, supreme is His power!
From the ills that beset thee, the cares that distress,
His love will release thee, His mercy will bless.

List divine revelation's sweet message of cheer,
Gently spoken in accents of comfort sincere:
"On Me cast thy burden of worries and woes,
And find on My bosom relief and repose."
As vapours of night, sorrow's shadows will fly,
And joy's sunshine illumine life's lowering sky.

His eye will safe guide thee, His arm be thy stay,
Aye sufficient thy strength for the toils of the way;
In death's gloomy valley no fear shalt thou know,
Nor Jordan's chill waters thy pathway o'erflow.
All the journey He'll lead thee, firm holding thy hand,
Till thou reach the bright shores of Emmanuel's Land.

So when storms have subsided and rude billows calm,
And the sore, wounded spirit has found soothing balm,
Let thy worn soul, released from all sadness, upraise
To thy gracious Deliverer anthems of praise.
As the captive bird, freed from imprisonment, pours
A jubilant song as far skyward it soars,
Thus, too, shalt thou sing, with love's grateful accord,
Glad hymns of thanksgiving and praise to the Lord.

PARISH CELEBRATES 100TH ANNIVERSARY

Bishop Sweeney Was Present For the Occasion.

In commemoration of the 100th anniversary of the founding of the parish of Cavan township, which was founded in July, 1819, by the late Rev. Joseph Thompson, special services were held in the churches in Millbrook on Sunday. In the morning His Lordship Bishop Sweeny, of Toronto, preached at St. John's church, the mother church of the parish, in the afternoon at Trinity church and in the evening at St. Thomas' church. Archdeacon Warren, who also attended the anniversary services, preached in the three churches. Further celebration of the event will be held on Thursday when a parochial garden party will be given.

Just One Application and the Hairs Vanish

(Modes of Today)

A harmless yet very effective, treatment is here given for the quick removal of hairy growths: Mix enough powdered delatone and water to cover the undesirable hairs, apply paste and after 2 or 3 minutes remove, wash the skin and the hairs have vanished. One application usually is sufficient, but to be certain of results, buy the delatone in an original package.

FARMERS' PICNIC AT OMEMEE ON SATURDAY

On Saturday the United Farmers of Emily held a picnic at Magee's Grove, Omemee, which was well attended. Unfortunately during the afternoon a rainfall set in which deterred a large number from being present.

During the afternoon, Mr. Morrison, a prominent official of the U.F.A., and Mr. H. B. Cowan, of Peterborough, delivered addresses. The different booths on the ground did a good business.

MEMORY IN DANGER.

Putwain, Who Was Shot at Agincourt, in Serious Condition.

TORONTO, July 8. — John Putwain, shot by manager Laing of the Agincourt branch of the Bank of Nova Scotia, which he attempted to rifle on May 20, is still in a serious condition in the general hospital. X-ray pictures have revealed the fact thata the bullets entered Putwain's brain, although without touching a vital centre, and is still in the man's head. Surgeons hesitate to operate, so precarious is the man's condition, and there is a possibility that if Putwain recovers, he may suffer from loss of memory.

RAILWAY BOARD FIND NEW STRIKE PROBLEMS IN WESTERN ONTARIO.

SECOND STRIKE

(Special to The Examiner.)

TORONTO, July 9.—Having washed its hands of the Toropto street railway and all that thereto pertains, the Ontario Railway and Municipal Board is now preparing to meet emergencies similar to the recent strike here which have arisen in London and Windsor. The Railway Company has assumed nearly all the expenses incurred by the Board during its tenure of office in control the railway.

The only expenditure which must be met by the Railway Board are the salaries of R. C. Harris, manager pro tem, Messrs. Clarkson and Bradshaw, auditors, and I. F. Helmuth, legal adviser. The salary to he received by Mr. Harris for his twelve days' services has not yet been determined, according to chairman D. M. McIntyre. Formal application from the Windsor City Council asking for assistance in restoring service on the Sandwhich, Windsor and Amherstburg Railway was received by the Board this morning and is now receiving consideration. Chairman McIntyre would give no intimation as to what decision might be reached. The request received by the Board was embodied in a telegram which explained also that the employees of the railway had struck for the second time after by-laws authorizing a straight five cent fair which would have permitted of increased salaries had been defeated by the municipality.

A GOLDEN WEDDING IN SMITH TOWNSHIP

On Monday Mr. and Mrs. John Tighe, of Smoth Township, celebrated their golden wedding. The day was fine, and a representative gathering of relatives and friends visited them during the day. Out of five living children, the following four were present: Rev. W. B. Tighe, of Hamilton, Mr. J. Howard Tighe, of Smith Township, Miss Susie Tighe at home, and Mrs. Charles Bullock, of Smith Township. Mrs. (Dr.) J. C. Whatley, of Melford, Saskatchewan, was unable to be present.

Supper was served in the evening, and was followed by a presentation in the form of a handsome lamp. It was a complete surprise to the recipients.

Mr. and Mrs. Tighe were married in Peterborough fifty years ago by the late Rev. Mark Burnham. For a number of years they resided near Warsaw, but for the past thirty years have resided in Smith Township.

Their home is situated on the 5th Concession on the east Communication Road.

Among those present were Mr. Walter Clifford, of Otonabee, brother of Mrs. Tighe, also Mrs. W. R. Darling, of Peterborough, a sister. Mr. and Mrs. Tighe have twelve grandchildren, a number of whom were present. Both Mr. and Mrs. Tighe are enjoying good health.

IRISH PEACE DELEGATES RETURN

(United Press.)

NEW YORK, July 9. — "The Irish race in Ireland and abroad intends to keep up the fight until the flag of the Irish Republic floats over every inch of Irish soil," was a statement given out by Edward Dunn, who with Frank P. Walsh returned from Europe yesterday on the liner "Lasovie."

Walsh declared that "Unless Ireland gets her freedom within the next few weeks, offers of help will be extended to her from all sides.

Dunn and Walsh represented the "Irish republic" at peace Conference and made a report on the alleged British atrocities in Ireland that created a sensation and brought forth an instant denial from the British government.

THE FARMERS' PARTY TO BE WELL REPRESENTED

PREDICTION OF H. M'KENZIE, VICE-PRESIDENT OF COUNCIL OF AGRICULTURE—"AS FOR REDS, WE WANT NONE OF THAT STUFF," HE ADDS.

EIGHTY FARMERS

WINNIPEG, July 9.—Eighty farmers members of the House of Commons, after the next general Federal election, was the prediction made by H. Mackenzie, vice-president of the Canadian Council of Agriculture, and one of the most powerful supporters of the movement to found a strong farmers' political party in Canada.

These eighty members will represent ridings scattered from coast to coast across the Dominion. Mr. MacKenzie said, and will be pledged to the farmers' platform.

"What is the basis plank of your platform?" Mr. MacKenzie was asked.

"A reduction and in some instances an elimination of the tariff," was the reply.

"Has the farmers' party a recognized leader?"

"No," was the answer, "but we will have the necessary qualifications for leadership."

Mr. MacKenzie admitted that Hon. T. A. Crerar, if he were to remain in public life, was a strong man. He also admitted that Dr. Michael Clark was in accord with the farmers' party, and that he was a strong man and an experienced Parliamentarian, as well as a farmer.

Mr. MacKenzie said that the farmers' party would not affiliate with organized labour, although he anticipated that there would be much co-operation between bona-fide unions and agriculturists.

"As for the Reds, we will have none of that stuff," said Mr. MacKenzie.

TRANSPORTATION PROBLEMS DEALT WITH BY THE COMMISSIONERS.

Transportation problems directly affecting Peterborough shippers were discussed yesterday at a session held in Ottawa before the Board of Railway Commissioners, at which Mr. W. S. Campbell, of this city, was present. Mr. Campbell is chairman of the Transportation Committee of the Peterborough Board of Trade. Discussing the subjects before the Commissioners and the results, Mr. Campbell had the following to say:

"The Canadian railways had applied to the Board of Railway Commissioners for permission to charge a car rental of $3 per car per day for detention of export traffic at tide water ports after the lapse of 20 days. It was shown [illegible] such was the case the Chief Commissioner stated that he did not feel disposed to issue an order that would penalize the shipping public for something for which they were not responsible.

"The railways were directed to consult exporters and endeavour to arrive at some scheme acceptable to both, and in the meantime judgment was reserved.

"The application for a reduction in the present car rental charges on domestic traffic, which was filed by the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, the Dominion Millers, the Toronto and Peterborough Boards of Trade, did not meet with favour from the Commissioners for the reason that 63 per cent. of the Canadian grain and grain product was annually exported through American ports. The United States Railway administration had given notice that no Canadian grain would be allowed to move through American ports this year, because all the available American ocean tonnage would be required.

"This action, taken suddenly, and knowing that we are allowed only 30 per cent. of our own ocean space for commercial export points us to the supreme need of our Government taking rigorous means to quickly increase the Canadian Merchant Marine in order that the products of Canada may not be isolated from the markets of the world. It also teaches us that in the past we have been altogether too dependent upon our neighbours. We all hope the day is not far distant when the Canadian ensign will float over all the high seas carrying Canadian products to the most distant markets of the world.

The Grain Crop.

"The railways are making a determined effort to increase the box car equipment to the Canadian West to take care of the grain movement, but up to the present they are several thousand cars short of what has been normally required in the past. No Canadian owned cars are allowed to leave the country.

"We are also shown by this the great need for the development of our inland waterways so that this grain may be hauled by water from Fort William and Port Arthur to our tide water ports of Montreal, Quebec, Halifax and St. John.

"In view of the above situation the Chief Commissioner did not deem it wise to alter the car rental rates this year. It is considered that our present sliding scale is preferable to the new rates just put into effect by the United States, and for the present we will have to be satisfied with them.

APPEAL TO GOVERNMENT

DISCRIMINATION CHARGED AGAINST OFFICIALS OF THE UNIONS IN WINNIPEG.

THE DELEGATES

(By J. J. Conklin.)

WINNIPEG, Man., July 9. — Six international Union Officials headed by R. A. Rigg, agent in Western Canada for the Dominion Trades Congress, made representations to the government and employers to effect a reinstatement of employees now jobless.

Discrimination against the officials of unions and workers active in the unions is charged. The delegation was in conference with Mayor Gray. It is composed of R. A. Rigg, J. Sometville, representing the International Machinists' organization; R. Hewitt, representing the Brotherhood of Railway Carmen of America; Wm. Varley, representing the American Federation of Locomotive Engineers; J. W. Bruce, representing the International Association of Plumbers; R. C. McCutcheon, vice-president of the International Association of Boiler Makers and International representative of the Freight Handlers' Association.

They also met Premier Norris last evening and will meet the employers of all workers who have not been reinstated.

Neither "strong arm" methods nor threats will be used by the Dominion Trades and Labor Congress in its work of organizing labor along conservative lines in Winnipeg and the west, said Rigg in an interview.

Vessel to Stick.

"I do not anticipate that any necessity will arise for taking any drastic action in [illegible] charters and I am confident that such a contingency will arise."

Rigg said that he believed the results of the strike had convinced the unions of the necessity of maintaining their international affiliations.

He appeared before the electrical workers' union and addressed members on the question of maintaining their international affiliations. At the conclusion of the meeting the union voted by an overwhelming majority to retain its connection with the international.

"I was given an excellent reception at the meeting," Rigg said. "The spirit in which I am conducting the negotiations is not threatening, and I am not in favor of "strong arm" mehodd. I do not want to find myself in the position of having to cancel any charters. I am of the opinion that the lessons learned in the recent strike have demonstrated the necessity of maintaining international affiliations and that the unions will see things in that light.

"While, there are faults with international organizations and while some changes are urgently needed I am confident that they can be remedied by propaganda within the organization.

FAVOURS U.S. AS MANDATORY

Nearly One-Tenth of Greek Race is Situated Without Greek Borders.

PARIS, July 9. — "Official Greece will heartily welcome the acceptance by the United States as a mandatory over Constantinople," Premier Venizelos said. In his interview he says had granted regarding the solution on the Near East problem since the Peace Conference decided to ask America to assume the mandatory.

"When I say official Greece will welcome the American mandatory," the Greek Premier continued, "I speak on behalf of the people most directly interested in Constantinople's future. Greece will have nearly three quarters of a million co-nationals within the environment of the new State. These are of the purest Greek descent. Thus, nearly one-tenth of the Greek race, which, unfortunately, is located outside the frontiers of its national State, would be able to live in security under the American flag."

ADDRESSED ASSEMBLY

INCOME FROM CAPITAL MUST BE TAXED MORE HEAVILY THAN INCOME FROM WORK.

NEW MEASURES

(Canadian Press.)

BERLIN, July 9.—Addressing the German National Assembly at Weimar to-day, Mathias Erzberger, Vice-Chancellor and Minister of Finance, said: "One of the first requirements relative to the restoration of life and labour is the re-establishment of orderly finances. I will have nothing to do with suggestions for annulment of war loans or a declaration of general bankruptcy. My highest aim is to establish justice in the entire taxation system. The income from capital must be taxed much more heavily than income from work. An inheritance tax and heavy tax levy on property will be the initial steps that will be taken. The Empire's income must be increased nine hundred per cent. and that of individual States and communes perhaps one hundred per cent:. Such enormous charges require fresh measures."

Hard Economy.

(Special to The Examiner.)

LONDON, July 9.—Germany's income must be increased nine hundred per cent., Mathias Erzberger, Minister of Finance, declared in a speech before the National Assembly, according to despatches received here to-day via Copenhagen.

In outlining Germany's post war financial programme, Erzberger said the country "must be resolved to pursue a policy of hard economy."

"The war finance systems must cease," he declared. There must be a return to the budget system. The year's expenditure must be seventeen and a half million marks."

The Finance Minister advocated a [illegible] property will be the first inaugurated steps. Others will follow. The empire's income must be increased nine hundred per cent."

A Note.

PARIS, July 9.—The peace conference received a note from the German government to-day relative to means of carrying out terms of the treaty.

The burdens of taxation will reach an absolutely terrible height, said Erzberger. A floating debt of 72,000,000,000 marks is in constant danger and the removal of this debt is one of our most urgent tasks. There are two ways in which to do it, either its conversion into funded loans or its extinction by big levies and a heavy property tax. It is the duty of propertied people not only to bow to the state of compulsion, but to achieve inward conviction as to the necessity of giving upa ll riches and all that is superfluous. Herr Erzberger concluded by asking that taxation bills be disposed of before recess is taken.

CHANGES IN THE TEACHING STAFF

SEVERAL MEMBERS RESIGN—COMMITTEE'S REPORT.

At the regular meeting of the Board of Education last night, Mr. A. A. Fowler, acting chairman of the Committee on Appointments, reported as follows:

That Miss Hazel J. G. Moffatt be appointed Household Science Instructor, to succeed Miss MacVannel, at an initial salary of $1000 with increase according to schedule, and duties to commence September 2nd next.

That the resignations of Miss Jenkins, Miss Butler, Miss Greaves and Mr. L. J. Colling of the Public School staff be accepted.

That in view of the long and efficient services rendered by Miss Jenkins, she be granted an honorarium of one year's salary, the same to be paid in monthly instalments and to date from the 1st of September next.

That the following applicants be appointed to the Public School staff at salaries according to schedule and duties to commence September 2nd next: Miss Thelma Paxman, Miss Helen Bounycastle and Miss C. M. Doughty

That in view of the efficient service rendered by Mr. O. M. Steer, acting Principle of the King George school and Miss Butler, acting Vice-Principal, up to the time of Mr. Park's return, they each be granted an honorarium of $50.

SCHOOL BOARD

The last meeting of the Board of Education before school re-opens in September was held last night, and after some difficulty in getting a quorum, business of an important nature was dealt with. Those present were R. Denne (chairman), Mr. J. M. Greene, Mr. A. A. Fowler, Mr. J. A. McKone, Dr. F. Neal, Mr. J. W. Worth, Mr. G. N. Gordon, Mr. H. E. H. Kenner, Principal of the Collegiate Institute, and Mr. A. Mowat, Inspector of Public Schools.

In a letter to the Board, Mr. Kenner predicted overcrowding in the Collegiate Institute under the present order, and suggested to the Board that non-residents of the city be excluded from the Collegiate. He was of the opinion that many more pupils would pass the entrance this year than last, because more wrote this year, and the examinations were easier than in former years. Last year the first forms of the Collegiate were overcrowded, Forms 1B and 1A having forty pupils each, and Commercial 1 with 45 pupils.

Mr. Gordon was of the opinion that Mr. Kenner should be given authority to exclude non-residents from the Collegiate next year if he found it necessary, and accordingly made a motion to that effect, which was seconded by Mr. J. W. Worth, and carried.

Mr. Kenner also asked that the public be restrained from trespassing on the Collegiate lawn [illegible] Park, cross the Collegiate grass. The path is now well beaten, and has become of quite respectable width, which makes the trespassers more numerous.

Wants to Resign.

Mr. S. Jethro Graham, B.A., teacher of literature, geography, and history at the Collegiate, sent his resignation into the Board. He stated frankly that the salary which he at present receives is not adequate. He receives $1,450, which, under the new minimum graduation of salaries for his position, would be increased to $1,500 in the autumn. He mentioned the fact that he has been teaching at the local Institute for the last three years, and if he is a success, as he has been told he is, he will only be receiving the minimum salary. If another teacher were engaged for the position, he would receive the same salary, although not having any previous experience in the city, and the Board would take a gamble whether he would be a success or not.

BRIDGE BY-LAW ALL SET FOR FINALE

CONTRACTRIAL AGREEMENT WILL DOUBTLESS BE SIGNED TO-NIGHT.

City Solicitor Widdifield has the bridge bylaw and agreement ready for the special meeting of the council to-night, and it the [illegible] pany may be excavating the approaches and foundatoin on Hunter street by Monday. The "expected" would be some fresh entanglement, adjournment and further delay, for the council has several times had the bylaw in its hands, with the pen, ink and corporation seal ready for the committing formatlities.

It is more than likely that there will be a final effort to-night to undo Monday night's work, but the Council gave every indication of having screwed its decision to the sticking point and it is probable that the majority for the Russell-Townsend Co. will gain several votes, should they be taken, that were negative on Monday night.

A CARETAKER WANTED FOR ISOLATION HOSPITAL

The position of caretaker of the Isolation Hospital is still open. The Board of Health aroused the interest of Mr. E. Lovell, 97 Park street, last night, but there were some features about it that did not appeal to him.

Dr. Amys and other members of the Board tried to reassure Mr. Lovell that the position was a desirable one, but when he failed to keep an appointment with the doctor this morning it was understood that he had decided to leave the opportunity for some other man and wife.

BRITISH EMPIRE WON THE WAR

(Special to The Examiner.)

LONDON, July 9. — "Don't forget it was the British Empire that won this war," Field Marshall Sir Douglas Haig declared in a speech at Newcastle.

"We talked a great deal about our allies," Haig said. "It was necessary and right that we should back them up all we could while the fighting was going on; but don't forget that it was the British Empire that won the war.

"I don't wish to particularize, but you know that our Russian friends let us down; and the Italians didn't do a very great deal then. Our French friends mdae the best of it, but then they really had a very hard job at the beginning. For the last two years England bore the brunt of the struggle."

FORWARD—AND REVERSE.

She did not dance. I taught her how,
And did it well, you must allow.
She didn't care to learn, 'tis true,
So shy was she. I urged her still.
At last I overcame her will,
And as a sweet consent I drew.

Ah, who can know a maiden's trays?
The glamour of the tripping maze
Her diffidence overcame.
It was for me a magic night,
And, oh, she danced so mighty light
She put the thistledown to shame!

With order then my spirit burned
The while with ecstasy she learned
The dreamy waltz's simple art.
She was demure, though full of glee—
I also learned—I learned that she
Had danced herself into my heart!

Alas, for there within my arms
So radiant with wondrous charms,
Into my heart she waltzed, and then
That girl, to my extreme surprise,
Looked up into another's eyes
And tangoed madly—out again!

INDUSTRIAL PEACE.

Plans Made by Government to Avoid Social Trouble.

More than once, during the past [illegible] Canada has given the lead to other countries in the matter of settling great questions, whilst on all the many issues of international concern, for the settlement of which the times are making demand, the Dominion is well in the van of progress. This is notably the case in regard to the labor situation. In Canada, as everywhere else, the labor world is in a state of flux, and the Dominion is very far from being exempt from the world agitation of the extremist, whether it be in the form of Bolshevism or One-Big-Unionism or any other form of revolutionary Socialism. Indeed, according to Mr. C. H. Cahan, head of the Canadian Department of Public Safety, the Bolshevist and Socialist element in Canada is of a peculiarly vicious type, and, only a few weeks ago, he made the statement that, in his opinion, it needed to be dealt with promptly and fearlessly.

In Canada, perhaps, more than in any other country, passing through a similar experience, Bolshevism in all its phases is seen to be largely parasitic on the life of the country. Its spread is almost entirely confined to alien elements, as is abundantly shown by the fact that the great mass of the Bolshevist literature, recently seized by the authorities, was printed in various languages other than English. Revolutionary Socialism, of course, attracts to its ranks a certain number of Canadians, but that the great bulk of Canadian labor is quite free from the taint, and genuinely desirous of coming to an understanding with capital is quite evident from the course of events since the signing of the armistice. Thus, speaking in the Canadian upper house, a short time ago, Senator Gideon Robertson, the Minister of Labor, was able to tell how the Government had recently conferred with representative employers and with representative labor leaders; how it had laid before these representatives the course of action it proposed to take, asking for expressions of opinion; and how, in both cases, the proposed Government action had won nothing but approval.

Senator Robertson then went on to explain that the Government proposed to appoint a small commission, of five or seven men, who would absolutely command the confidence of the public, and to ask them to proceed to all the centres of industry to survey the situation; to get all the facts; and, before May 15, to let the Government have their recommendations as to what should be done in the interests of both labor and capital. Upon that report, he said, and upon those recommendations, the Government proposed basing a Government policy for the promotion of greater harmony in the industrial and labor world.

The great aim of this joint commission will, of course, be to discover what are the possibilities of joint control, and it is in joint control that Senator Robertson quite evidently sees the solution of the problem. In his statement to the Senate he did not ignore the fact that it would be easier to bring about joint control in some industries than in others, but he was quite definite concerning the point that, wherever it was instituted, it would, at once, result in increased production. Employers, he declared, sometimes made the charge that increased wages brought no corresponding increased efficiency from the working man. That charge, he granted, was, in some measure, true, but he was of opinion that if there were joint control, if the employes were jointly interested with the employer in the success of the industry, the case would be very different. Such matters are, of course, all questions which the future will decide. But the fact that the Government is prepared to recognize that the great problem is being grappled with in this same spirit of understanding and good will has already gone a long way toward its solution.

FLAX-GROWING IN CANADA.

Remarkable Value of By-products of the Flax Crop.

The steady encouragement that is being offered by the Canadian Department of Agriculture to the Canadian farmer to engage increasingly in the growing of flax would seem to be a wise policy. During the war, the tremendous demand for linen for airplane wings and other war purposes made heavy calls on the linen production capabilities of the Allies, and, as Canadian flax was grown in increasing quantities to meet this demand, it came to be realized that flax-growing in the Dominion might be developed into a most productive industry. The area actually put down in flax, even last year, was only quite small, not amounting to more than 30,000 acres, but it showed 1,000 per cent. increase on the area sown five years earlier, whilst, as a result of the effort, the possibilities of flax-growing are certainly realized more fully to-day than ever before.

In order to offer the utmost inducement to the farmer to engage in the new industry, the Government has now promised a fixed price for the crop and a bounty, running from two cents to nine cents a pound, to the spinner for the production of the finished yarn. For the project is, of course, not only to encourage the cultivation of flax but to keep the flax in the country, and gradually to build up the complete trade. To this end, the Government recently directed Dr. Grisdale, director of the Dominion experimental farms, to investigate the whole question, and his report, submitted a short time ago, is of a most encouraging nature. Dr. Grisdale is, it would appear, much impressed with the possibilities of flax-growing in the Dominion, is in favor of every encouragement being extended to the farmer in the matter, and recommends the establishment, on the experimental farm in Ottawa, of a complete plant for all the operations in connection with the production of fibre for flax.

Not the least useful part of Dr. Grisdale's report is that in which he directs attention to the remarkable value of what may be called the by-products of the flax crop. In many industries, of course, the by-products have become the most profitable products, and however this may actually work out, nothing seems to be wasted.

With characteristic energy, the Canadian Government is permitting no delay in the matter of development. Already a complete plant has been equipped at Regina, Saskatchewan, by the federal authorities, and is now in operation, for the extraction of the fibres from the flax straw. After this treatment, according to the most recent reports, the material is to be sent, for experiments in spinning, to mills, selected for the purpose, in Kitchener, Ontario. Flax is not a difficult crop to raise, and it will do well in practically any soil that is suitable for other crops. The possibilities, therefore, before the industry in Canada are almost unlimited.

Sweet Assurance.

She (still blushing)—Am I the first girl you ever kissed?

He—No, darling; but you are the last.

She—Am I positive? Oh, both it makes me so happy to think of that.—San Francisco Chronicle.

TEAMSTERS ARE STILL ON STRIKE

Waiting For the Employers to Make the Next Move.

(Special to The Examiner.)

TORONTO, July 9.— No request has yet been made by the striking freight teamsters to the railway freight handlers that the latter cease work to assist the drivers in their fight. Mr. C. Wood, president of the teamsters' union, said to-day: "We still are maintaining our attitude of watchful waiting. We are merely tightening up our ranks and waiting for the employers to make the next move."

"Is the 44-hour week workable in the cartage business?" Mr. Wood was asked.

"Certainly," he replied. "There are very few, if any, lines of business in which the 8-hour day and 44 hour week cannot be established."

REGATTA ON PEACE DAY ON THE RIVER

AQUAPLANING WILL BE A FEATURE OF AQUATIC EVENTS.

Plans for a regatta on the river below, the locks on Peace Day, Saturday, July 19th, are under consideration by Mr. Harold Rye and others who have proposed the idea, and it is now practically assured that a big programme of aquatic sports will be provided. Paddling, rowing, swimming and motor launch races, and other specialties such as tub races, are proposed, and it is also intended to give an exhibition of aqua-planing, a water sport, that is comparatively unknown on the river.

Further details as to the course for the regatta events and a final programme will be announced later.

CRIMEA CLEARED OF BOLSHEVIKI

Gen. Denekine's Advance Cuts Off Bolsheviki From Main Force.

(Canadian Press.)

LONDON, July 9. — Crimea has been entirely cleared of Bolshevik as a result of the advance of General Denekin's troops west of the Dnieper river. The advance was over a front of seventy miles and deprived the Bolsheviki of their sole line of communication between their main forces and those in the Crimea.

FRANK CARVELL DENIES THE STORY

(Special to The Examiner.)

OTTAWA, July 9. — Hon. Frank Carvell, Minister of Public Works, denies that there is any truth in the story that he would be chairman of the Court of Commerce. He would say nothing about the often repeated story that he will leave the Cabinet this month. His friends vary from positive assertions that he will go out, to statements that he is greatly in doubt as to what he will do.

DIVORCEE WAS FOUND DEAD

(Canadian Press.)

LONDON, July 9. — Mrs. Arthur Eliot, better known as Mrs. Mabel Louise Atherton, divorced wife of Col. Thomas Atherton, was found shot this morning in her home in London. Mrs. Eliot, who was a sister of Sir Audrey Dean Paul, some years ago sued Baron Churston for breach of promise, and the case created considerable sensation at the time. Last April she married Capt. Arthur Eliot, a dramatist, grandson of the late Earl of St. Germans.

THE HUNTER STREET CAMPAIGN

HUNTER STREET CAMPAIGN

Last night's meeting in the Union Evangelistic Campaign being held in the big tent on Hunter Street afforded further evidence of the great change in the expression on the faces of the people who become converted at the meetings, mention of which was made in yesterday's issue. Frequently throughout the meetings Evangelist Kennedy has laid emphasis on the point that are many members on the church rolls of every church who are not real Christians in the sense of having been born again. These people have never come into personal contact with Christ and the His transforming power in their lives, nor have they got the assurance of salvation, the absolute certainty that when they die they will go to heaven because their sins have been forgiven in this life through faith in Christ, that every Christian should have. Such Christians when asked if they are Christians, reply that they hope they are, they try to be, or that they are doing the best they can. Mr. Kennedy pointed out that such replies are completely unsatisfactory. He states that if a man is a Christian he should know that he is by the change that has taken place in his spiritual condition and by the joy and happiness in Christ, and should ready outright that he is a Christian, and with the same assurance that he would answer questions as to his nationality or any other similar question. As a result of Mr. Kennedy's positive teaching on this line, a number of prominent church members have obtained an assurance of salvation that hitherto they have lacked. Last evening a church member of many years' standing, who has been attending the meetings quite regularly, saw the light for the first time, and made a profession of Christ before the whole meeting in a manner which showed that a wonderful change had taken place in his life. His face fairly radiated his new-found happiness. It is this change in the expression on the faces of the people who are finding Christ at these meetings, the burden of anxiety which is gone, has been rolled off their minds and their new-found happiness, which is impressing all who see them.

Another Convert.

Another convert last evening was a married woman who has been attending the meetings night after night. She has not been a Christian, but has been anxious over the spiritual welfare of certain members of her family. In a personal talk with one of the workers recently she said that she did not want to have anything to do with Christ, but she did want to see the members of her family reached by Christian influence. A worker pointed out to her that God's method of blessing is through individuals, that there was a possibility that God would not bless the members of her family until she completely resigned her life to Him, when He would use her as a channel of blessing for the members of her family. Last night she saw the light, accepted Christ, and showed the same change in countenance and new sense of happiness which has been such a marked feature of the conversions of so many others. There were a considerable number of conversions last night, bringing the total number of conversions now to over 80. At the close of the service, Mr. Kennedy invited all those who have found Christ in the meetings to stand in front of the platform, including last night's converts. He then invited all who had remained and who cared to do so to come forward and shake hands with these converts. A great many did so. The number of newly created Christians that were standing there bore testimony to the excellent results that have been attending the meetings.

Subject Last Night.

The subject of Mr. Kennedy's address last night was "The Man Jesus," the words being taken from John 9, 11. The message was a clear cut one, drawn from the case of the blind man who, through faith in Christ, found his sight and who began to testify immediately as to what Christ had done for him, with the result that the Scribes and Pharisees drove him out of their presence, and his own parents [illegible] knew who had healed him were afraid to bear testimony to the work. Mr. Kennedy [illegible] many Christians are afraid to bear testimony to the power of Christ in their lives for fear people will say things about them or that they may be ostracised by their friends. The real Christian, he said, will ever be willing to bear testimony to the power of Christ in his life. True happiness in Christian experience cannot be found until the Christian is willing to make public confession of Christ. "With the heart many believeth unto righteousness, and with the mouth confession is made unto salvation." Christ said that if we do not confess Him before men neither will He confess us before His Father in heaven. One of the reasons why professing Christians do not talk about Christ is because they do not know Him. Among the ministers who were present last evening were Rev. Messrs. Mallett, Gault, Cruickshanks, Webb, Thomas, and Pogue. The subject of to-night's address will be "Taking the Conceit Out of a Man." At to-morrow night's service the Salvation Army Songsters will be out in full uniform and direct the musical features. One of the surprising features of the services is the large percentage of unconverted people who attend, who are converted. It is evident from the composition of the audiences that on most nights the majority of those present are Christians. The responses among the small percentage who are not so is so large as to show the effectiveness of the messages that are being given.

SERMONETTES BY KENNEDY.

The reason Pilate crucified Jesus was because his job was at stake. The Devil always has a mob ready.

No man succeeds in anything if he deals in generalities.

Every Christian should make a definite effort to persuade a definite person to accept a definite Saviour, at a definite time.

Personal work may never get much praise from men, but it is sure to count with God.

It is only through Christians that God can win sinners back. How many have you won?

You expect the doctor or grocer to get busy when you call; so always expect you to be interested in their salvation. Just tell them you are.

We should not simply "Hold the fort." We should storm the fort.

When a pardon is sent to a prisoner in jail he don't want the messenger to talk about music and flowers; he wants the pardon.

A church is just on the corner just to decorate the corner. It is supposed to deliver the goods.

If you cannot win souls and have no power in your life, it is because there is sin in your life.

Some work six days a week for themselves and will not work one day for Christ.

The men who move the world are the men who do not let the world move them.

Heaven is the other side of where a Christian has done his best.

Every man should do his best — not his "bit."

The best way to get God to help you is to pitch in and help every one who needs you.

TRYING THE EX-KAISER

Although judging by the opinions that are heard the majority of people locally at least, favour the trial of the Ex-Kaiser, there is a strongly growing press opposition in England against the project of trying former German Emperor in London. Leading Liberal papers in the Old Country as well as a large section of the Unionist press are strongly opposed to the trial. The principal objection is that it would tend to make a martyr out of Wilhelm in the eyes of his fellow countrymen. One paper expresses the opinion that "there is an unpleasant suggestion of pagan triumph in the project" while another suggests that the best punishment for the ex-Kaiser would be to leave him in obscurity. In spite of these opinions there is no doubt that the trial is favoured by the majority of the men who helped to defeat Hohenzollern and his plans. The returned soldiers seem to be unanimous in the feeling that he as the principal instigator of the war should be brought to justice.

THE SMART CHARGES.

Brigadier-General Smart, whose charges against the Canadian overseas administration, and against Argyle House, aroused so much comment, is sticking to his guns. The accusations he preferred in the Quebec Legislature against the condition of affairs overseas, were so direct and serious that it was to be expected that the government would inquire closely into them, but the session has closed with no reference to the Smart charges, except denials of a general nature by Sir Thomas White and Major-General Mewburn. Under the circumstances General Smart is quite justified in repeating his charges and in his demand that a Royal Commission or some other form of enquiry, should be constituted to investigate his statements. Taken in conjunction with the serious allegations against the administration of the Canadian Army Medical Corps, made by Col. Herbert Bruce, in the book he recently published ,the complaints of General Smart furnish ample food for investigation. Charges of callousness and carelessness in the treatment of the Canadian wounded, when brought forward by men like General Smart, who is one of the few Conservative members in the Quebec Legislature, and Col. Bruce, one of the best known members of the Canadian medical fraternity, cannot be dismissed by a few words from Cabinet Ministers.

THE ANNUAL SCRAMBLE.

Once more Parliament has furnished the people of Canada with the spectacle of a body of men who for months have been wasting time in filling pages of Hansard with useless talk, wildly scrambling to get business through at the last moment — business that was of much more greater importance than some of the matters over which days were spent in the earlier part of the session. The last act was the speeding through of a $162,000,000 vote for supplies, almost without discussion, at a few minutes before midnight, on Saturday. Such a hurried passing of a money vote of this size would not be necessary if important business was handled properly, and time was not wasted on non-essential matters. Next to the repatriation of Canada's army and closely related to it, the two most important matters that should have engrossed the attention of Canada's legislators in the session that just closed, were the cost of living and the industrial unrest. These problems might reasonably have been expected to be among the first matters to come before the House. They are not new developments and there is no excuse for their having been left for consideration until the session was drawing to a close. The result was that the reports of the committees appointed to investigate the cost of living and that of the Committee on Industrial Relations, were brought in at the last moment, and received scant consideration from the membership. And as a further result of the failure of the House to get down to business at once when Parliament met, a special session may be called in the autumn—an autumn that could have been spent to better advantage in ordinary common sense and hard appeal to the intelligence of citizens during the session that has just passed.

GOVERNMENT INSURANCE.

Among the returned soldiers, as well as among all those who are interested in their welfare, and that should include everybody, there has been much interest in the suggestion made in the House of Commons recently by Major McGibbon, M. P., that a system of government insurance should be adopted for the benefit of ex-soldiers who by reason of disabilities sustained in the war, are unable to secure insurance from the regular companies. The matter is a serious one and deserves sincere consideration. It may not be generally known, but it is a fact nevertheless, that many returned soldiers injured at the front, gassed or otherwise disabled, are not regarded by the insurance companies as good risks, and these unfortunate men, many of them of course married, are unable to make any provision for the future of their families simply because the regular companies refuse to issue policies to them. Major McGibbon purposes that these men, having by their services to the state placed themselves in such a position that their dependents are liable to suffer, the state should step in and establish a government insurance system that would enable the Veterans to obtain the protection for their families that they would desire. The government should earnestly consider this matter which is of importance to thousands of the men who have fought for Canada.

CONSERVING WILD LIFE

That Canada, which once was nothing but a vast happy hunting ground for the Indian and teeming with game and fur-bearing animals, has now become a country where stringent restrictions are often necessary to preserve the wild life from actual extinction, is a fact of which the seriousness is not generally appreciated. Thes condition is casually dismissed as being due to the spread of settlement and civilization and as therefore inevitable, even if regrettable from certain.

It is not necessary, however, that our wild life be exterminated and there are many reasons tha precautions should be take to prevent this Let us remember that, in this respect we are trustees for posterity in a very special sense, since the injury we may do will be irreparable. We ought also to recognize that our wild life constitutes a natural resource of great present and future value.

Game is still a necessity for food purposes in certain frontier districts and for thousands of Indians. The fur-bearing animals constitute a resource which in the last fiscal year before the outbreak of the war, provided exports valued at $5,569,476, while even in 1916 the exports amounted to $4,778,337. In addition to the furs exported, large quantities are used in Canada and the severity of our winters makes it certain that this home demand will be permanent. Further, it will naturally increase with the growth of our population.

Mankind has other needs also than food to eat and clothes to wear. People need recreation. There is no healthier form of recreation than that which is carried on with rod or gun or camera along the streams, in the woods, across the plains or among the mighty mountain ranges. The attraction of game, big and little, is one of the most powerful lures that leads men into these healthful surroundings. Canada is famous as a sportsman's paradise. She must not lose that preminence. Her splendid stretches of unspoiled nature, still within easy reach of her largest cities are perhaps the greatest advantage she possesses over older lands.

The biggest difficulty in the way of wild life conservation is wholesale indiscriminate killing for commercial purposes or even, in some cases, from pure wanton lust of slaughter. Much complaint has been made that certain tribes of Indians are the greatest sinners in this respect, but white men are not free from blame. If this ignorant waste is stopped in time by well-enforced close seasons, the wild life can be preserved and there will still be enough for legitimate taking. New Brunswick is an example of a province where this has been done and where the number and value of the game has actually greatly increased in recent years. But in the Northwest the bighorn sheep and the wapiti and some other animals are as much in danger of extermination as the buffalo and beaver. It has, therefore, been found necessary to prohibit altogether, for an indefinite period, the killing of certain species.

One of the most effective methods of preserving at least a nucleus of the game and other wild creatures is to provide sanctuaries within which they shall never be molested. This has already been done in the Rocky Mountains, Waterton Lakes and Jasper parks and the increase of wild life has been astonishing.—"Conservation".

Voice Of The People

The Editor, Examiner.

Dear Sir,—I recently had a conversation with Mr. Tyrer, the Captain of the Boy Scouts, and am surprised to find from that gentleman that the "Boy Scouts" receive no financial aid from any source.

These little fellows did a good work at the Fair Grounds during the past week, acting as police, and serving in many ways, in a most creditable manner. And they are prepared to do all such useful public work at all times without remuneration. The work of these boys, besides being of the greatest value to the community intrinsically, is a great educational work, and calculated to be of the greatest service in the sense of training the minds of the boys in habits of honesty and manliness, which necessarily will make them good citizens.

I understand they pay out of their own pockets all their own expenses, even when they go to other centres to work with other bodies of scouts. Many of the boys are of poor parentage, and can ill afford to pay. Their uniforms cost about $10 a-piece, and camping outfits, etc., more. It is the boys of the workers that especially are benefited by the movement, and these are deterred from joining because of the expense entailed.

I cannot help thinking the community owes something to the Boy Scouts, but in these days, unless they are aggressive enough to have a "drive" or some such device to get money, nobody thinks of offering help, and Mr. Tyrer is too modest to ask for it. They need a fund if any movement for the social good ever needed it. They as much deserve it as the Y.M.C.A., for their work is even more valuable and their resources less. The Scoutmaster catches the boy at a younger age than does the Y.M.C.A., and does him that much more good.

I want to propose that the citizens of this city open a voluntary subscription list to make a fund for the Boy Scouts, that will lift a real burden from the shoulders of these little fellows, and let in a number more that would join but for the expense. It need not be a ten thousand dollar drive, a few hundreds would work wonders, and if anybody gives a dollar to this, it will be the best invested dollar he ever laid out.

If I were a wealthy man, I would open the list with $100, but I cannot afford it, still I will do my part if there is a response to this letter. Perhaps any of the public that take kindly to my suggestion will either communicate with Mr. Tyrer direct, or if they wish, I will place myself at their disposal to talk over the matter of forming a committee, appoint a treasurer (perhaps one of the bank managers would act), and form a fund for the boys.

I think it would be a good plan for those who, like myself, feel an interest in the Scouts, to make their subscriptions yearly, so that there would be a revenue coming in without any "drives" with or without an initial donation. The fund can be administered without a cent of expense by a public - spirited committee.—Yours truly,

J. O. Quinn-Bagley.

Americans In Canada.

"According to official figures the total number of Americans that have taken up residence in the Province of Alberta since 1905, including five months of the fiscal year 1918-19, reaches 275,093," observes the Argonaut, which continues:

"In 1905 the Province of Alberta was organized, and statistical information has been kept since that date of the immigration into the three provinces, Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta. Saskatchewan ranks second, with 236,320 immigrants, and Manitoba third, with only 78,286. The largest immigration into Alberta from the United States came in 1909-10 and numbered 34,563; the smallest, in 1918-19, numbered 5,618.

"The total population of Alberta in 1916 was given officially as 496,625.

"The British immigration during the thirteen years since the province was organized was 78,082, and other than British 40,282, making a total of 118,564, as compared with 275,093 immigrants of American nationality. The predominance of the American immigrant over all other nationalities is nearly 70 per cent. Assuming that the proportion of immigrants from the United States residing in Alberta prior to the organization of the province was about the same as is now existing, the total American population in Alberta today is probably 396,000 out of the entire 496,625 population, or about 65 per cent. Of course, hundreds of Americans have taken up government land and have become naturalized, and many hundreds of immigrants have left the United States before they have completed their naturalizing [illegible]. But the predominance of Americans in Alberta is very marked."

FRIEND FAILED TO RECOGNIZE HIM

FARMER LOOKS LIKE DIFFERENT MAN SINCE TANLAC BUILT HIM UP.

"There's been such a remarkable change in me that my friends who haven't seen me since I began taking Tanlac, don't know me on first sight," was the statement made by William Porter, a well known farmer of Hanna City, Illinois, R. F. D. No. 2, while in the Setliff & Case Drug Store at Peoria, recently.

"So many of my neighbours were telling me how well I'm looking these days," he continued, "that I got on the scales to see how much I had gained in weight and was surprised myself to see how much I had gained in weight and was surprised myself to find that I actually pull down forty-three pounds more than I did the day I started on Tanlac—going up from one hundred and seventeen pounds to one hundred ad sixty. Why, even my wife has been astonished and says she can't understand how a medicine could do what Tanlac has done for me.

"My stomach had been all out of whack for sixteen years and, as nothing ever helped me, I had about come to the place where I was ready to quit trying. Many a time after eating I have had such awful cramps in my stomach that I thought I would die. I would swell up with gas I would be so dizzy for hours that my head seemed to be spinning around like a top and I couldn't walk. I finally got so I was afraid to eat anything except something very light as anything the least bit heavy would bring on one of those terrible spells of cramps. I couldn't sleep but little at night, always felt worn out in the mornings, and what little work I did on the farm was a drag on me. I would be so weak and played out by the middle of the day that my knees would knock together as I walked. I was constipated all the time, had sick headaches, and was so nervous, weak and miserable that I just felt like giving up the fight.

"During those sixteen years I spent two to three thousand dollars for treatment and medicines, but nothing ever helped me until I got Tanlac. I was so discouraged that I couldn't see any hope of ever getting better. One day I said to my wife; 'Do you reckon this Tanlac, I read so much about, would help me?' So we talked it over and I got a bottle. "Well, what that bottle and nine others together have done for me has astonished everybody that knew my condition. Why, I don't feel like the same man and look so different that I have to stop my friends who haven't seen me in sometime and tell 'em who I am. Things that used to nearly kill me when I ate them don't hurt me now a particle. I sleep like a log every night—wake up when the birds begin singing around the house—and I feel like a boy again, full of life and energy. I hop out of bed in the mornings hungry as a bear eat more breakfast than I used to eat all day, and go to work feeling fine, and can do as big a day's work as I ever could in my life. I am now as strong and well as anybody and I believe Tanlac will do the same thing for anyone else in the same fix I was."

Tanlac is sold in Peterborough by W. B. Warne Drug Co., Ltd., in Havelock by A. C. Denike, in Lakefield by Tanner Drug Co., in Fowlers Corners by W. A. Hunter, in Gelert by A. J. Scott ,in Westwood by G. Pringle & Son.

Provincial Grants to Education.

During the session of the Ontario Legislature, just ended, votes were passed for the spending of additional sums of money in connection with public education. Among the more important items were:—

(1) To assist consolidated schools $100,000, to be used for transportation and to increase the grants to these schools, as well as paying for agricultural teachers.

(2) For medical and dental inspection in the Public and Separate School $30,000. This work, it is stated, will be carried on through the Women's Institutes.

(3) For technical education, the major portion of which is designated to be used for industrial and technical education, day and evening classes, grants and contingencies, $214,400. Of this amount $14,000 is for salaries of organizers.

(4) For each of the Normal Schools at Toronto, Ottawa, London, Hamilton, North Bay, Peterboro and Stratford, $7,000 for plant laboratories for the better studying of horticulture and botany.

(5) For Rural and Separate Schools general grants and contingencies, $250,000, largely with a view to the bettering of teachers' salaries.

(6) For academic courses for training returned soldiers for teachers, $10,000.

(7) For agricultural and horticultural grants for school boards, teachers and inspectors in Public and Separate Schools, $83,000. This is additional to the Dominion grant devoted to this purpose.

Bulls and Bears.

The Stock Exchange use of the term "bear" is with reference to the animals pulling down. The bear pulls down prices; up in the other direction the bull tosses them up. Originally the expression was "a bearskin jobber," applied to a person who sold a bearskin before he had caught his bear. The bearskin jobber was a person who sold stocks which he did not own. Of course he was interested by the fact of his sale to have prices come down and exhausted to pull them down. In that way he became called simply a bear without reference to the original proverb.—Philadelphia Press.

COTTON THREAD.

Its Invention Was a Case of Necessity Caused by War.

Curiously enough, it was a war that brought about the revolution in the manufacture of sewing thread. When Napoleon occupied north Germany in 1808 the supply of silk from Hamburg which was used in making heddles, or the loom harness, in Paisley, was cut off.

Unless some substitute could be found the weaving industry of Paisley would be ruined. Peter Clark experimented with cotton warp yarn and succeeded in making thread like the six cord sewing thread used today. It took the place of silk in the heddles, and the weaving business went on uninterrupted by the war.

Then it occurred to another man to use the cotton thread in place of linen for sewing, and he recommended it to the women of the town. It was so much smoother than the linen that the women liked it. The thread was sold in hanks and wound by the purchaser into little balls, but the merchant soon decided to wind the hank on a bobbin or spool for his customers as an added inducement to purchase it instead of the linen.

From this beginning the cotton thread trade has grown, and now silk and linen are used only for special work.—Philadelphia Record.

Hypnotic Power in Animals.

An interesting instance of the hypnotic power possessed by a good many animals is given by a correspondent of the Glasgow Herald. One morning outside Elgin a blackbird was observed to be standing by the roadside, paying no heed to the footsteps of the passerby. It was gazing fixedly at four young weasels under the hedge, which were approaching in a semicircle, apparently to surround it. Just then a warning cry was heard from behind, uttered presumably by the parent weasel, and the young ones disappeared in the hedge. The bird still remained powerless and immovable, and only after repeated urging did it fly to a tree near by, when it gave forth a weak, frightened sound, as though still under the influence of the terror which had arrested its faculties.

A Luxury.

Grown-ups hardly appreciate how deeply their talk of money sinks into the mind of a child. In the strenuous days of war and income taxes one small girl of six was told over and over again that she could not have this or that because they "couldn't afford it." Nothing she really wanted could be hers apparently, and all must be shared with the two younger brothers of the family. One morning she learned of the advent of a third brother. She received the news in thoughtful silence. Then grandma came into the nursery saying, "Jane, wouldn't you like to see baby brother?" An unattractive little pink creature lay in his basket. With a disapproving glance at brother number 3, Jane turned to ask severely: "Mamma, do you think we could afford this?"

The Allies.

The Allies included Great Britain, France, Italy, Belgium, Russia, Japan, United States, Montenegro, Serbia, China, Portugal, Roumania, Greece, Liberia, Panama, San Marino, Siam, Brazil, Bolivia, Costa Rica, Cuba, Egypt, Guatemala, Haiti, Honduras, Nicaragua, Peru and Ecuador.

What Caused the Change.

Minister's Wife—How did you come to change the text of your sermon from "Backsliding" to "Profanity?"

The Minister—My collar button rolled under the bureau as I was dressing for church.—Philadelphia Public Ledger.

Hutterites In Canada.

Unless the Dominion Government appoints a judicial royal commission to investigate all the circumstances of, and to fix the responsibility for, the Hutterite migration into Canada, the Winnipeg Great War Veterans will seek powers to form a delegation to go to Washington, District of Columbia, to find out just what "international complications" may ensue should Canada bar these aliens of German descent as undesirables.

This course of action was decided upon at a general meeting of the Winnipeg branch of the Great War Veterans, and the executive immediately approached the Dominion executive for powers to negotiate with the Canadian Club of Winnipeg and other representative patriotic bodies with a view to forming a delegation to Washington.

It was felt at the meeting that the Federal Government was merely "bluffing" on its statement that international complications would ensue if the large colony of Hutterites waiting at the border were obstructed. Yet it was felt that the association could not afford to adopt "force" methods in its determination to keep these people out of Canada as that might really cause complications. The objection to the Hutterites is based on the fact that they are of German extraction, conscientious objectors, and live in communities.

Such a Change

in feeling and look "After suffering pain, feeling nervous, dizzy, weak and dragged down by weaknesses of my sex—my eyes sunken, black circles and pale cheeks—I was restored to health by the Favorite Prescription of Dr. Pierce." So write many women. Changed too in looks, for after taking Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription the skin becomes clear, the eyes brighter, the cheeks plump.

Druggists sell it in tablets or liquid. It's a woman's best temperance tonic, made from wild roots.

HAMILTON, ONTARIO.—"Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription helped me greatly at the turn of life. I commenced to have heat flashes and dizzy spells and became nervous and run-down. These conditions very quickly left me after I commenced with the 'Favorite Prescription.' I took several bottles of it and truly believe that I owe my good health of to-day to the medicine I took and the care exercised at that trying time.—Mrs. ROSEN-METZ, 66 Bay Street, S.

The Promoter's Wife

BY JANE PHELPS

NEIL PRAISES BLANCHE ORTON

CHAPTER XI

That many men made quick fortunes in New York, I did not know. So it is not to be wondered at that I thought my Neil the most wonderful man because he could so quickly rise from comparative poverty to a position very nearly resembling affluence I was a bit frightened, more than a little disturbed, as well as very, happy Frightened because of the way it appeared to affect Neil—he could talk of nothing but his success, what it would mean to us. Disturbed for fear I, a simple country girl, would not be able to hold my own with the people with whom he said he could now mix.

In Huntington one had been almost, if not quite, on a social par with all the rest save only for a few in the laboring class. Now he had not thought we lived handsomely enough to even know his bachelor friends until he had made all this money. He had long ago explained that a bachelor could live for very little because of the demand of hostesses for single men; that we could not hope to keep up with them for the simple reason that our income would not allow us to entertain on the scale to which they were accustomed.

"If we can't do things right, Bab, we won't do them at all," he had said rather impatiently when I remarked that we might do a little entertaining in a simple way. Then when I expressed a fear of meeting any more of his grand friends, he had declared: "You are all right, Bab! You can hold your own with any of them—when you get the right sort of togs. It is like everything else. You play the part better when you are dressed for it. When you met Lorraine Morton you were embarrassed because of her clothes. Honest now, weren't you?"

"Of course I was. She was so stylish, and I looked so ordinary."

"Well, unless all signs fail, you can order all the clothes you want to in another week. And Bab, go to the best. I'm sick of staying at home. Get yourself togged out and we'll show the natives a trick or two."

Among the few women I had met in the year we had been married, was a Mrs. Orton, a handsome, rather bold-looking woman. She had made a remark in my hearing which had called my attention to her. She had said:

"What I want, I get—if not in one way in another. Don't you? You are foolish if you do not. There's always more than one way to manage."

I had repeated her little speech to Neil, and had replied:

"Blanche is right. It is easy to get what you want—if you want it badly enough."

"Blanche—do you know her well?"

"I have know her for a long time, two or three years. She's a peach, too! the kind of woman who would push a man on to success."

"What kind of a husband has she?"

"A nincompoop—he's a semi-invalid, so he claims."

"He has lots of money hasn't he?"

"No. She has, tho."

"Someway, I didn't like her very well."

"That's too bad, because I do."

"It makes me nervous to be with those women. They look so smart, and they talk about things of which I know absolutely nothing." I did not add that I had been happier not to know them. It would have displeased Neil.

It is said that it is in her own drawing-room that a woman is most certain of social success. That it is her battle-field upon which she prepares herself for victories. But with me it had proven almost a Gethsemane. Not that anyone was really aware of it; I had learned to cloak my feelings. But there was always the constant fear that I would do something to embarrass Neil—perhaps that I was not gowned to please him. I was so in love with my husband that the thought of displeasing him seemed to me terrible, and often made me self-conscious.

Neil had told me when we were first married that the secret of a woman's popularity lay in an unlimited ability to listen to what others were saying. I had tried to become a good listener, as a consequence. But often when I heard women like Blanche Orton chat and fling back gay repartee, I thought that it required something besides listening to be as popular as they were.

To-morrow—Blanche Orton Instills a Doubt in Barbara's Heart.

BETTER NOW THAN LATER.

Crafty Scotchman Had an Excellent Theory About Loans.

One of the shrewd birds of Lanarkshire had evidently experienced the difficulty of collecting money lent to friends.

"Laird," a neighbor accosted him one morning, "I need £20. If ye'll be guid enough to tak ma note ye'll hae yere money back ag'in in three months frae the day."

"Nae, Donald," replied the laird, "I canna do it."

"But, laird, ye hae often done the like for yere friends."

"Nae, mon. I canna obleege ye."

"But, laird"—

"Will ye listen to me, Donald? As soon as I took yer note ye'd draw the £20, would ye no?"

Donald could not deny that he would.

"I ken ye weel, Donald," the laird continued, "and I ken that in three months ye'd nae be ready to pay me ma money. Then, ye ken, we'd quarrel. But if we're to quarrel, Donald, I'd rather do it noo, when I hae ma £20 in ma pocket."—London Tit-Bits.

Finding a Verdict.

A trial took place recently before a negro jury. The twelve gentlemen of color were told by the judge to retire and "find a verdict."

They departed for the jury room. Then began the opening and shutting of drawers, the slamming of doors and other sounds of unusual commotion. Every one wondered what the trouble was.

At last the jury came back into the court, and the foreman arose and said: "We hab looked everywhar, in the drawers and behind the do', an' can't find no verdic'. It warn't in de room."—National Monthly.

Hard to Interest.

"My husband doesn't care for sightseeing."

"Then nothing interested him on your trip?"

"Only the spot where Washington threw a dollar across the Potomac. He spent several hours looking for the dollar and was quite happy for awhile, but even that ended in disappointment at last."—Kansas City Journal.

Tact.

"What makes you limit the weather forecast to the word 'fair' so frequently?"

"We want to show a little tact," replied the climate expert. "The word 'fair' is pleasant and reassuring, and we want to keep the idea of sunshine and skies of blue prominent without dwelling on the temperature."—Washington Star.

Reassuring.

The clang and clatter of falling iron plates startled an old gentleman who was waiting in the office of a foundry.

"What in the world was that?" he cried.

"Don't get excited," answered the office boy, "that's only the boss counting my salary."—Youngstown Telegram.

The Battle Royal.

"I shall never marry," remarked the girl of a certain age, but not specified.

"Never mind, dear," replied her best friend—they always travel together in jokes. "Everybody will know that you made a heroic fight against the inevitable."—Philadelphia Ledger.

Followed Directions.

Newedd—What's wrong with this pie crust? It doesn't half cover the pie!

Mrs. Newedd—Why, dearest, I asked your mother all about how to make them to suit you and she said to make the crust very short.—Boston Transcript.

Getting Spicey.

"Women are the spice of life."

"That's the time you said something."

"And life without spice would be"—

"Spice? I thought you said spies!" replied the man whose wife had found a poker chip in his pocket.—Houston Post.

The Wretch!

The general joker was watching a suffragette and aunt playing anagrams.

"Here is one woman should know how to use," said the genial joker, giving them the letters cisre.

"It's roses!" cried the suffragette.

"Goose again," said the aunt. "It's store."—Judge.

Politeness.

"How is it that a man can carry on matrimonial over another man's wife more satisfactorily than he can over his own wife?" "He cannot. He just thinks he can because the other man's wife is too polite to tell him what she thinks of his carelessness."—Houston Post.

There is a vast deal of vital wit in saving words.—Lauder.

It's better to PAINT than REPAIR

B-H PAINT

"DOMINION" 70% Pure White Lead

"ENGLISH" 50% Pure White Lead

It isn't the cost of a paint that counts—it's the value—its service per dollar. So even though B-H lowers cheap paint, still with most it is considered of the economy. We know of no other brand of paint so dependable—none other has the covering capacity or the durability that distinguish B-H. That's why we call it—you feel safe in urging its use because the makers guaranteed formula is stamped on every can, and that formula is the right formula for paint, namely: 70% pure white lead—30% pure white zinc.

You'll Like This Kink-Free Hose

Pulled around trees, dragged over gravel or cement walks, or thrown into a corner—ordinary hose quickly gives out under such treatment.

Knowing that you would buy a better hose if you could get it, and be sure it was right, we have worked out this problem. We offer you a hose that is efficient.

Now you can get Goodyear Cord Hose.

The layers of strong pliant cords, embedded in good rubber—seamlessly welded into one unit—give you a hose that can not kink, or tangle.

Because it is made of good rubber, it is protected against cracking and leaking.

You get more water delivery from your house service, because it is made oversize.

Let your hardware dealer explain further the merits of Goodyear Cord Hose, which is cheaper because of long wear.

Man for Whose Fall.

An amateur mission worker fluttered into one of the West side offices of the Associated Charities.

"Oh," she exclaimed, "I have the saddest case for you. Really, it is quite pathetic. A woman, who has been deserted by her husband, has five little children to support. She is too frail to work, and I'm sure there isn't enough in the house for their next meal."

"But what is to prevent you from taking charge of this case yourself?" asked the official.

"Oh," said the visitor, drawing herself up haughtily, "I couldn't think of it, you know. Why, I'm doing the Lord's work!"—Chicago American.

He Is Really Peaceful.

"They call me a hard guy back home," whanged the would-be tough individual.

"They do, do they?" hissed the sheriff of Lone Wolf county, shaking him by the coat collar.

"Yeyes, they just call me a hard guy back home," was the reply, "but really I am a soft proposition."

Dirty Patagonia.

"Patagonians are not giants, as some have supposed and as the geographies teach," said a man who has traveled. "They are large in comparison with the other South American natives; that is all. Everything is relative, you know. But they are very fat. That is why they can stand the cold so well. I have seen Patagonian men and boys running around naked while I was wrapped in warm garments, with the snow falling upon them in quantities and the wind blowing bitterly. They are kept warm by their fat and dirt. Patagonia is one of the dirtiest places imaginable. Don't go there if you hate dirt. That is my advice to all who contemplate a journey to the jumping off place of South America."

RICHARD HALL & SON LIMITED

GEN. SMUTS RECEIVES HONOR.

Tells of Work of "Lloyd George's Savages" in Paris.

LONDON, July 8. — Lieut.-General Smuts, receiving the honorary degree of Doctor of Laws of Manchester University, referred to the greatness of the British Empire which with itself is a league of nations. At the peace treaty in Paris he said, Premier Clemenceau referred to Britain's 34 representatives as "Lloyd George's savages," but they represented realities with no nonsense about them, and the British Empire, with its great political preponderance, was going to play an important part in the the world's future. It was for this country to put "Europe on its legs again.

OVER 134 MILLION FRY DEPOSITED.

Nearly Half Billion Since 1914 from The Thurlow Hatchery.

BELLEVILLE, July 8. — During the past season there has been distributed from the Government hatchery in Thurlow, just east of this city, the following fry.: White fish, 7,730,000; Salmon trout, 85,500,000; pickerel, 3,040,000; or a total of 134,300000 fry.

The whitefish fry were all distributed in the Bay of Quine, the salmon trout in Lake Ontario, in the vicinity of Presquile and the Eastern Gap, near Amherst Island and pickerel in the vicinity of the Shannonville and Napanee rivers.

Since the hatchery started in 1914, there have been distributed nearly a half billion fry. The catch of the whitefish and herring last season was the largest in the history of the Bay of Quinte.

GERMAN OFFICERS COMMIT SUICIDE

(Canadian Press.)

GENEVA, July 9.—Suicides among German officers are increasing alarmingly, especially in Prussia, where the number of suicides is very heavy since it became known that former Emperor William was to be placed on trial by the Allies. Wives of officers are also reported to be taking their own lives on account of loss of social standing.

JUNE WHEAT-CUTTING AWES OLD-TIMERS.

WABASH, July 8.—Farmers of this vicinity are right in the full swing of harvesting. In some cases wheat and hay were cut the same day, which makes the labour doubly hard.

Owing to the excessive heat wheat has ripened earlier than usual, and in some localities was cut during the last day or two of June. Old timers declare they never knew this to happen before.

Both wheat and hay are in fairly good condition, especially the latter, and large quantities have already been stored away. Although the weather is ideal for haymaking, it is too dry for growing purposes.

Small fruits and garden stuff are suffering from the drought. Corn, which can stand a great amount of heat, seems to be flourishing, especially on sandy soil.

YOUTHFUL COUPLE ARE UNITED WITH DIFFICULTY.

KINGSTON, July 7.—When you are young, it's hard to marry. This is the story of a love-sick pair who wandered from pillar to post to have a ceremony performed. A maiden of 17 and her swain, several years her elder, sought to be entered into that happy state of matrimony from which the traveller may return only by will and consent of the honourable Senate.

J. J. Johnston, a Methodist probationer was to have tied the knot, but he was incapacitated by reason of the fact that he had not been ordained to perform marriages.

Rev. W. H. Gregory, pastor of the Holiness Movement Church, was then sought by the amorous two, but he did not feel inclined to tie the knot, and shifted them to Rev. Mr. Stewart, of Harrowsmith, who sent the youthful couple home to their parents for consent to the marriage. This was obtained, and the ceremony was duly performed.

Girlish, Wrinkle Free Skin Easy to Have

Since its remarkable astringent and tonic properties became known, clever women all over the world have been using the saxolite face bath to "tone up" their faces, remove wrinkles and draw flabby cheeks and necks back to normal. Aftre using the solution, the face immediately feels much firmer. The skin tightens evenly all over the face, thus reducing lines and sagginess. The formula is: Powdered saxolite, one ounce, dissolved in with hazel, one-half pint.

This simple and harmless face bath is a splendid thing for the outdoor girl, since sun, wind and flying dust are so provocative of squinting and other contortions which cause wrinkles and crow's feet. Also it is fine to freshen up a tired face in hot, depressing weather.

A little widow with dimples is a dangerous thing.

MISS ALICE PRICE APPOINTED MATRON OF ISOLATION HOSP.

SUCCEED MISS BERTHA MOWRY WHO WAS PRESUMED TO RELINQUISH THE POSITION.

Miss Alice M. Price, acting-matron of the Queen Mary Isolation Hospital, was appointed Matron by the Board of Health last night, succeeding Miss Bertha Mowry, who had been given leave of absence to go to France as a nurse. It was stated by members that they had expected Miss Mowry to notify the Board upon her return whether or not she purposed returning to her position. Some time ago a letter was sent to her seeking information in that respect, but no reply had been received, the chairman, Mr. W. H. Buller, reported.

Mr. Morgan moved, seconded by Mayor Duncan, confirming the appointment of Miss Price, in full charge as Matron.

Names on Milk Waggons.

Sanitary Inspector Stapleton said that milk vendors were not complying as they should with the new bylaw which requires them to display their names on their delivery waggons. Some of the vendors were quite indifferent about this duty and others had the letters printed too small.

It was decided to publish in the press a notice giving the vendors until July 27th to fulfill the demands of the bylaw.

The June Report.

Miss Price's report of the Isolation Hospital's affairs for June showed the admission of one case each of scarlet fever and diphtheria, and two of small pox (?), the interrogation mark being in the original report. There were two scarlet fever and one diptheria patients in the hospital on June 1st and four patients were discharged during the month.

The expenses for June, excluding salaries, amouned tto $386.67, making a total of $3,108.71 since January 1st. The salaries for the month were $205.46.

Accounts Outstanding.

A statement of unpaid accounts dating from 1917 totalled $1015.65. It was recommended that they be referred to the City Solicitor and Mr. F. W. Miller, for collection; and that accounts for children from St. Vincent's Orphanage be charged to the municipalities from which the children had come.

DICTATED THE WAR POLICY OF STATES

WASHINGTON, July 8. — Seven men formed a "secret Government of the United States," which, working "behind closed doors," determined all of the so-called war legislation "weeks and even months" before war was declared against Germany, Chairman Graham of the House Committee investigating War Department expenditures charged to-day after reading into the record a digest of the minutes of the Council of National Defence.

Made Real Executive.

The seven men were named by Mr. Graham as Hollis Godfrey, Howard E. Coffin, Bernard M. Baruch, Samuel Gompers, Franklin H. Martin, Julius Rosenwald, and Daniel Willard, members of the Advisory Commission of the Council. This Commission, he added, was designed by law to act in purely an advisory capacity to the Council, composed of six Cabinet officers, but the President, he asserted, made them the real Executiv. e

HORSE CAUGHT IN A TREE TOP.

A horse hanging in the branches of a tree was the unusual sight witnessed near the house of the Baltimore Motor Club at Ferry Bay. The horse which had been grazing in the pasture, had got in its uncomfortable position by falling ten feet from a bank which overtopepd the tree. A man looking up, was startled to see four hoofs jutting through the leaves and swinging madly back and forth. A moment later the hoofs became still. The horse had wrapped his hind legs around the trees, clutching desperately to prevent further fall. He was finally lowered, uninjured, by unisnuheo by using a block and tackle.

OLD FOLKS NEED MILD BOWEL TONIC

And Should Avoid the Use of Harsh Pills and Drastic Purgatives.

Old people, no matter how sound and healthy, should avoid cathartic pills, purgative water, salts and all such temporary relief measures. They ease conditions to-day, but bind you up worse than ever to-morrow.

It is better to get the bowels into the habit of performing their needful function at a certain time each day and this can be done by strengthening the muscles of the stomach and bowels by the tonic action of Dr. Hamilton's Pills, a mild laxative that acts as close to nature's way as possible.

Thousands of people, old and young, prevent and cure habitual constipation by using Dr. Hamilton's Pills, a mild yet active medicine that is noted for its promptness in curing headaches, belching gas, sourness in the stomach, fullness after meals, liver soreness and muddy complexion. You'll have the best of health, feel good, eat well, digest and sleep well if you regulate the system by Dr. Hamilton's Pills of Mandrake and Butternut, 25c. per box at all dealers.

MILLION BOTTLES LAST SIX MONTHS

Half a Year of Conviviality at Coblenz Club by Americans

COBLENZ, July 8.—The American officers' club there closed its door after six months of conviviality. When the Americans took over the club from the Germans there was a stock of about a million bottles of wine; when the Americans gave up the club this million had been exhausted, and fresh supplies had been brought in.

This consumption by officers of the American army of occupation and their guests in their club is, of course, far from the total number of bottles emptied by them. A relatively sall number of the officers of the wiioe army gathered in the Coblenz Club. I heard an expert this morning estimate that the million bottles were perhaps one-sixth of what the army had drunk.

When I asked this officer for an estimate of the number of bottles of "Rhine sunshine" the whole army had consumed, including every one of the doughboys and sergeants' clubs and cafes, he threw up his hands in despair.

CHILDREN'S AID SOCIETY CONSIDER ADVISABILITY OF INSPECTING HOMES

MATTER WAS DISCUSSED BUT DECISION DEFERRED—CHILDREN WILL BE RESTORED—LIST OF ACCOUNTS.

A personal inspection by the agent of all homes into which wards of the Children's Aid Society are placed, was strongly advocated at yesterday's regular meeting of the society by Dr. D. C. King and Adjutant Buntin. The agent objected to such procedure on account of the expense which would be incurred. Mr. H. B. Cowan thought the matter should be adjusted according to the system of other counties. At present a ward is let out into a home upon a recommendation from a clergyman and two reliable residents. Mr. S. T. Medd thought that it would be wise to investigate a home before placing a child, as to have the subsequent expense of removing it should prove unsatisfatcory. Ald. Edgar was strongly in favour of a personal inspection of each home by the agent who, he thought, should interview the neighbours.

The matter was left over until next meeting when the agent will give a report on the number of children placed out during the past year, the number returned on account of unsatisfactory conditions and the expense which would have been incurred had the homes been inspected previous to allowing the children out.

Agent's Report.

Applications for children—8.
Children brought to the Shelter—1.
Children returned to parents (not wards)—1.
Wards placed out—2.
Wards visited—18.

A Donation.

A donation of $25 from the Woman Teachers' Guild was acknowledged by the Board.

Give Warning.

Upon receiving word of the continued absence of two of the children wards of the Society who are in a foster home in the country, and which absence has resulted in the children not passing, the agent was instructed to advise the foster parents that unless the children are sent regularly to school they will be removed from their home.

Two Mothers.

Two mothers of children who have been involved in the Children's Aid Society were present, the first to obtain information about a bill remitted to her, the second to make application for the return of her four children. In the second case a favourable reort was given of the home to which the mother wishes her children restored. It was decided to allow her to have one child returned immediately, the others in a short time if circmstances are favourable.

CAVALRY DISPERSE THE FOOD RIOTERS

Stores Compelled to Keep Open During Prescribed Hours.

(United Press.)
(By Camillo Cianfaro.)

ROME, July 9. — Cavalry was patrolling the streets to-day, dispersing the groups of food rioters in front of the stores. There were few cases of looting.

Most of the stores were closed and the authorities announced that they would use the utmost force to reopen them. Under a new ordinance penalties ranging from 500 to 5,000 francs in fines and imprisonment of from one to thirty months will be imposed on traders refusing to keep their stores open during the prescribed hours.

Government representatives received a delegation from the Chamber of Labour to-day and promised a reduction in prices, but refused to authorize the Chamber to supervise the enforcement of the laws.

THE SACRED HEART SOCIAL

Two hundred and fifty assistants at the Sacred Heart lawn social last evening found it a lively task to keep everyone served but with the splendid organization which annually characterizes the event no one was overlooked and every one of the thirty five hundred present agreed the affair was a bigger success than ever before.

The Supper

The grounds were beautifully and artistically decorated with hundreds of Chinese lanterns and pennants which were strung from booth to booth and at the west end of the lawn close by the Church eight enormous tables were lavishly spread with good things to eat. Salads, cakes sandwiches and practically every thing good to eat was served most of which had an added charm of being home-made. With the ever changing patrons at the tables it is estimated that at least three thousand people partook of the splendid supper.

Attractive Booths

Booths in which the daintiest of hand made goods, ice cream and soft drinks were to be had were arranged at intervals on the lawns and, to the delight of every child and many a grown up, a band played and worked over time all evening. After supper, Mr. George Lynch the ever popular auctioneer at all such occasions attended to the duty of raffling the contents of the fancy goods booth and as usual kept the crowd in roars especially as some lucky or luckless youth blushingly stepped forward to claim some dainty piece of hand embroidery or a mauve boudoir cap. "The Glee Club" where selections on gramaphones were in constant demand kept a large portion of the crowd busy. At 8 o'clock the 57th band arrived and proved a wonderful attraction with the excellent programme rendered.

Clergy Attended

The clergy present besides Father John O'Brien, who proved an ideal host and appeared to be everywhere at all times and his curate Father Gorman, were His Lordship Bishop O'Brien, Dean McColl, Fathers Peter McGuire, Frank O'Sullivan, Port Hope, O'Leary of Lindsay, Mr. Aulley of Ennismore, Moher of Lake field, M. O'Brien, Cairy and Galvin of Downeyville.

A considerable percentage of those present came from outside the city.

AN INTERESTING LECTURE ON THE BRITISH PREMIER

LARGE ATTENDANCE AT SECOND CHAUTAUQUA CONCERT.

The lecture on Lloyd George given by Dr. Geo. Adam, of Montreal, at the Chautauqua gathering last night, consisted largely of a description of the circumstances of the birth education and struggle against poverty in his early life up to the time when King George sent for him to form a Government after Asquith, Balfour and others had failed or refused the honor.

When Lloyd George nailed a little brass plate outisde a building in Carnarvon to let the people know that he was ready for business as a lawyer, he went up two flights of stairs and there waited for business. His first case was a fight for the rights of the people.

Dr. Adams began by saying that we have been taught that the greatest thing in life, in the commercial world in the industrial world, or in finance was efficiency and organization. Now we have the spectacle of the downfall and defeat of the most efficient and most thoroughly organized nation in the world, orgagized for war and world conquest, only to find themselves bumbled in the dust and ostracized by nearly every other nation in the world.

There are men to-day who did not believe in Providence before the war, but when atheists like Clemenceau now believe in a Providence, when the editor of the paper known as "John Bull," an avowed atheist, visited the front lines in France, came back and was asked by the Society of Atheists to become their president, he declined, saying: "I have seen God in France."

Speaking of the poor educational advantages when Lloyd George was a boy, Dr. Adams scored the people for the niggardly treatment and meagre salary of the school teacher and the preacher. Scotland, with the best school system of the world, was generous to its teachers.

Was Sold Out

Lloyd George was hated by the aristocracy and loved by the working classes. When war broke out, at a meeting of the bankers and leading financiers, Lloyd George's ideas on finance were accepted and carried.

When only four years old, just after the death of his father, when all the furniture was sold to meet the rent, and Lloyd George saw his little bed sold for a dollar, when that auctioneer brought down the hammer it went through his soul and he vowed then that when he grew up he would fight for the rights of the poor and outcast. Dr. Adams, before leaving England, in conversation with Lloyd George, asked him what would be the outcome, what were the prospects for the future, what was going to save the world. The answer was plain and simple. Nothing but the ushering in of the Kingdom of God; that which Christ told His disciples to pray for and watch and work for.

The Charles Edward Clarke Co gave a delightful musical programme of the same high-class standard as was the offering of the afternoon, when Lieut. Jean A. Picard gave an inspiring address on "The Spirit of France."

RETURN TRIP IS DELAYED

(Canadian Press.)

MINEOLA N.Y., July 9.— Again to-day unfavourable winds from the east prevented the giant dirigible from starting her return trip to England. British officers in charge of R-34 announced that there was no prospect that the big airship would get away before dawn to-morrow. It was made clear, however, that the start would be made at daybreak to-morrow or on Friday. The airship is ready to sail into the air to the east at any time that her commander, Major G. H. Scott, decides that weather reports presage a successful return voyage.

THROW STONES AT PASSING TRAINS

Conductor had a Valuable Watch Broken Yesterday.

A number of small boys residing in the west end of the city in order to break the monotony of the long summer vacation amused themselves by throwing stones at the C. P. R. trains which pass the William Hamilton foundry. They were in the habit of standing in the Downie street creek, and letting loose a fusilade of boulders and sticks at the passing trains, and no difference was made in freight or passenger trains. Only yesterday a lad threw a stone at the passing train, which broke a valuable railroad watch in the pocket of the conductor who was passing from one coach to another. The matter is being investigated.

WOMAN HAD A STIRRING CAREER

(Canadian Press.)

LONDON, July 9.—Mrs. Eliot, who was found dead here, was Mabel Louise, third daughter of Sir Edward Dean Paul. She was married to Col. Thomas Atherton in 1889. Her husband divorced here in 1907. Mrs. Atherton then sued Churston for breach of promise and won the case. In 1909 Mrs. Atherton, who was a noted beauty in English society, was one of four principals in the sensational Stirling divorce case in Edinburgh. John A. Stirling, Lord of Kippendaire, sued his wife for divorce, and Mrs. Stirling filed a cross suit naming Mrs. Atherton the cause, which occupied the Scottish court for several months, and was decided in favour of the husband. Mrs. Atherton in 1911 brought suit for slander against her sister-in-law and was granted damages in the sum of one farthing.

A SUCCESSOR TO SIR THOMAS WHITE

Liberal Side of Cabinet Will Likely Get a New Member—Hon. A. K. McLean Was Acting Finance Minister Before.

(Special to The Examiner.)

OTTAWA, July 9.—The only member of the Cabinet thought likely to succeed Sir Thomas White is Hon. A. K. MacLean, who was financial critic when in the Opposition ranks and delivered the budget speech a year ago in the absence of Sir Thomas White. He was highly commended for the way in which he presented the budget on that occasion.

PETERBORO MAN LAUNCHES TRAINED ANIMAL CIRCUS ON PACIFIC COAST

ROBERT BULLER TURNS FROM HIS SUCCESS IN BUSINESS TO ESTABLISH TRAVELLING SHOW—IS A BROTHER OF MR. W. H. BULLER.

BIG TENT HOLDS 2,000

A former Peterboro boy, Mr. Robt. Buller, brother of Mr. William H. Buller, of Victoria, B. C., recently opened in Victoria a dog and pony show, playing to large crowds at its first engagements. Mr. Buller has largely business interests on the Pacific Coast, especially at Victoria and elsewhere on Vancouver Island, and also has a big stock farm on San Juan island.

On the latter farm during the past three years he has been building up his circus. Experienced showmen from the Ringling circus and other animal trainers were engaged. They have over one hundred animals, including sixty trained Shetland ponies, twenty performing dogs, monkeys and other features. Acrobats, clowns and other regular circus features complete a bill which the newspaper stories highly commended. The "big top" has seating capacity for 2,000 persons, and the circus began its tour with every promise of success. Mr. Buller may be realizing in this enterprise the desires that linger in most men from their boyhood, and if he wins the success that has marked his career in other lines of business the Robert Buller shows may yet become as popular a household name as those of Ringling, Barnum and Bailey and the other names that are haloed with sawdust rings.

PRESENTATION TO RETURNED MEN AT LANG WAS LARGELY ATTENDED

LIEUT.-COL. T. J. JOHNSTON WAS PRESENT—FOBS AND LOCKETS PRESENTED.

On Friday evening, July 4, a very large gathering took place at Lang to fittingly express their appreciation of the service of the soldiers of that district and cordially welcome them back again. Col. Johnston acted as chairman in his customary capable manner. Short interesting addresses were given by Rev. Honey and Mr. Eacher nof Keene, also Rev. Wight of Cannington, former popular pastor of Keene. Pleasing musical numbers were interspersed. Duets by Miss Messrs. Weir and Moore and an Bryce, and Mrs. McEachern also by Messrs. Weir and Moore and an instrumental number of The Graham and Miller Orchestra.

Lieut.-Col. T. J. Johnston then asked the following boys to the platform—Pte. Amos Edwards, Pte. Wesley Edwards, Pte. Eric Kimble Corp. Adam Stack, Corp. Stuart Davidson, Pte. Jas. Edwards, Pte. Nelson Spiers, Pte. David Knox, Pte. Oscar Weiss, Sergt. Fred Moore and Gunner Stanley Johnston.

The Address

Mrs. Cameron then read the following address and each was presented by Miss M. Miller with a fob with locket suitably engraved.

Lang, Ontario
July 4, 1919.

Mr. Chairman, Returned Soldiers, Ladies and Gentlemen:—

Eight months ago, all but a week, the last hostile shot was fired on the Western front, and a week ago the terms of peace were dictated at Versailles, but not until 7,000,000 men were buried in Europe and 20,000,000 more marked with wounds and disease.

Out of such a struggle you have had the good fortune to return home alive and as a community we welcome you with heartfelt thanks to God for your home coming and to you for the part you played in the most terrible conflict ever waged on behalf of the world's liberty.

Generation after generation of school children, not only those of Ontario and the rest of Canada but in every part of the earth will be taught to admire the discipline, valour and innate worth of the victors of Ypres, Vimy Ridge, Passchendaele and Cambrai.

Perhaps we at home do not fully realize all that is meant by war—the monotonous training the heart breaking delays, the first experience of the trenches, the rain, the mud, the cold, the strain of long bombardments, and patrolling in No Man's Land, reliefs on dark rainy nights harassed by machine-gun fire. High explosive and gas shells, the dreary, desolate bullets in barns, ruined houses and cellars—the feeling that existence will never be any different until one gets a "blighty" or "goes west". This was a part of your life. This was in part what war meant. Through those experiences you so bore yourselves that you share in the untarnished fame of the Canadian Corps which never lost a trench, never lost a gun and never failed in the assault.

From war you have come to peace. The same qualities that made you foremost among the fighting men of the world will enable you to succeed in civil life. As you have already succeeded under conditions infinitely more trying.

The gathering this evening is the third of its kind held in this hall but the feelings of those present are distinctly different from what they were on those former occasions. Then, as now we rejoiced: then, as now, we marvelled that our hero of the evening had returned to us alive from "over there," and then, as now, we tried to show him our gratitude for playing his part among those who were fighting for us in France and Belgium; but then, we met with hearts torn between joy and fear,—joy at the return of the one, fear for the fate of the many still in the ranks. It is not always easy to "rejoice with them that do rejoice", when the fear for loved ones lies like lead on the heart. But since that time Peace and Victory have crowned our arms.

To-night we hold our heads high and our laughter comes from light hearts eased of their burden of long months.

Do not think we forget your fallen comrades. When our meeting was one of memorial for one who was not to come home, We were sad and we sympathized with those bereaved but so long as our country still had great efforts to make, we felt we must think only of the glory of the passing of those who died for their country that she might live. It was their work to help Canada find her soul. Now perhaps the feeling changes a little and when some of the boys come home we at last understand that others are not coming and lonesomeness creeps upon us. But their example is ever clearly before us as a beacon and the best in us reaches out in reverence for and gratitude to them.

So now, we have great pleasure in presenting you with these little gifts, hoping that they will convey to you our thanks for the past and best wishes for the future.

Signed on behalf of the community
Alex Neitel,
T. S. Elson,
Edith Armstrong.

Each soldier expressed his gratitude for gift received. In the absence of Pte. David Knox and Sergt. Fred Moore their mothers were asked to accept their gifts n their behalf.

Homing Instinct of Bees.

In the fortnightly Review Henri Fabre, the naturalist, tells a characteristic story about Darwin and himself. Darwin wished to explain the homing instinct of bees, and he induced Fabre to begin a series of experiments with that purpose in view. A regular plan of campaign was drawn up. Marked bees were placed in a dark box and were carried away from the hive in an opposite direction from that in which they were finally liberated. The box was repeatedly turned about, so that the inmates should lose all sense of direction. Every possible means was taken to render useless any known or conceivable method of obtaining their bearings. The bees were even placed within an induction coil in the effort to confuse them. The long and elaborate series of tests was without value, so far as getting any explanation of the homing power was concerned. In every case from 30 to 40 per cent of the bees found their way home without apparent trouble, no matter how confusing the trip away from home had been made.

Plant Leaves.

It is a fact that, to the casual observer, all trees look pretty much the same, in some respects at least. But if one looks carefully at the twigs of almost any tree, or, still better, at the young shoots of some rapidly growing plant, they are pretty certain to discover that no two leaves occupy the same position.

The fact is, however, that a leaf does not keep always in one position. Everybody knows that they will droop and stand erect again, and that some plants sleep at certain times of the day. A house plant, moreover, grows toward the light, and if the pots are turned about so that the leaves face away from the window, it takes only a day or so for them to resume their old positions.

If now one looks carefully for the joints where this bending is done one can see at once that nearly all the leaves have two.—Harbinger.

The Faithful Horse.

I don't know who wrote this toast to the horse, but I'd rather read it than Vest's dog speech:

"Here's to that bundle of sentient nerves, with the heart of a woman, the eye of a gazelle, the courage of a gladiator, the docility of a slave, the proud carriage of a king and the blind obedience of a soldier; the companion of the desert plain that turns the sable furrows in the spring in order that all the world may have abundant harvest, that furnishes the sport of kings, that with blazing eye and distended nostril furiously leads our greatest generals through carnage and renown, whose blood forms one of the ingredients that go to make the ink in which all history is written and who finally, in blank scrippage, pulls the bankbook of us to the newly oxidized threshold of eternity.".

Grit Always Wins.

Grit is the thing that counts. We all know young men who are hanging around waiting for rather to step out of his old shoes. As if a pair of old shoes ever made a man out of a loafer! Why, father's shoes are too slow for any man that thinks money somebody else has earned will make him a gentleman!

Grit is what those young chaps need, whether they know it or not. The day will come when the only man the world will count worthy of its respect will be the man who does things, even if he is forced to shut his teeth hard to keep back the groan of pain.

Folks used to think that the only real soldier was the man who marched away to the sound of fife and drum, to shoot and kill and destroy. It is not so.—E. L. Vincent in Farm Life.

Cigarette Saved Chaunsi's Life.

"Cigarettes have done their bit in the war in more ways than one," says a returned soldier living in Goderich, Ont. "On the morning of September 3, 1918, 'B' Company of the 47th Battalion, to which I belonged, marched from Arras up the line to our jumping-off place outside a little village. Finding no trenches, we took to shell holes and from them we jumped off behind our beautiful barrage and entered the Hun lines.

"But in about 15 minutes I was hit badly in the leg. I handed over my Lewis gun to my 'No. Two,' and crawled into a deep shell hole for shelter. A Fritz stretcher-bearer tied up my wounds and just completed the job when a great big Fritz leaped into the shell hole and raised his rifle to shoot me.

"I had a few Player's cigarettes with me, and as the Fritz took aim, I tossed him a cigarette. As he stooped to pick it up, another wounded lad near me got in a fast shot.

"And I fancy that Fritz is still escaping if a burial party has not found him.

"Each time I smoke a cigarette I devote full credit to the thing that allowed me to come home to Canada."

Two ocean-going tugboats recently succeeded in towing a raft containing 4,500,000 feet of sawed lumber from Finland to Copenhagen.

A Bright Prospect.

"For five years," said the commercial traveler, "I had called upon a certain draper in Scotland and never got an order. I mentioned it to the head of the firm. 'We are deal wi' R. & Co.,' he said. 'Their traivler an'd for twenty years before he took an order, and if ye'll continue to call for twenty years I'll no say but ye may get one.'"—Manchester Guardian.

Firedamp.

Firedamp is the ordinary name for the carburetted hydrogen which issues from "blowers" or fissures in coal seams. It is inflammable and when mixed with air in certain proportions is highly explosive. Its ignition is attended by the danger of an attendant explosion of coal dust.

Of Course.

"With people quoting with electricity, one can no longer keep cools of fire."

"Never fear. Assuredly they will perfect an electrical apparatus which will convert the same property."

PACKERS WIN SLUGGING BEE FROM THE ORIENTALS

LEAGUE LEADERS TIGHTEN THEIR HOLD ON THE CHAMPIONSHIP POSITION BY BEATING SECOND PLACE TEAM BY 11 TO 9 IN EXCITING BATTLE—HITS GALORE, A TRIPLE PLAY AND OTHER FEATURES KEEP FANS ON THEIR TOES.

By defeating the Orientals by 11 runs to 9 last night in the most exciting game of the season, the Matthews-Blackwell team took a commanding lead in the City League race and can hardly be headed off from the pennant. Instead of the expected pitchers' battle between Kirn and Frost, it was a slugging bee in which both pitchers were hit hard and often. Kirn had nothing but a sore arm, and although Frost struck out ten men, the Orientals got to him for fourteen healthy swats, the same number as the Packers nicked off Kirn. It was a great old night for fattening batting averages, with the League's two best pitchers at their worst, and the batters had a fine time, especially Walter Jackson, the League's leading hitter, who helped himself to two doubles and two singles in five trips to the plate. Jackson is on his honeymoon to-day and the Orientals undoubtedly wished he had been twenty-four hours sooner in his choice of a wedding day, for his hard-hitting sure helped to crimp the championship aspirations of Manager Solomon's outfit.

The fielding as well as the pitching was loose and it was the easiest matter in the world to get on bases. There were no fewer than twenty-one men left on the sacks, half a dozen more got out on the runways, and still there were twenty runs scored, which figures give some idea of the free and easy nature of the battle.

At that the game was featured by some brilliant fielding stunts, of which the most notable were a triple play started by Cherrett and finished by Murray and McLeod, a fast and smartly executed play that cut short a Matthews' batting bee, and a sensational pick-up by McLeod, the Oriental second baseman that also saved a couple of runs. The triple killing was pulled off in the second innings. With Frost on third and Adams on second, Lowe hit a liner which Cherrett grabbed smartly. The runners had started with the crack of the bat, and Cherrett threw to Murray, nailing Frost, and the third baseman relayed the ball to McLeod, Adams being the third victim. McLeod's stop in the first innings was the most brilliant individual feature of the game, however. The Packers had the bases full with two out when Hagerman larruped a vicious grass cutter near second base. It looked like a sure hit and a couple of runs, but McLeod came over fast and scooped the drive in with his bare hand, tossing the ball to Cherrett for a force out.

Thanks to timely hitting and loose fielding by the Orientals, the Packers took an early lead and at the end of their half of the third were 5 to 0 to the good. The Orientals then steadied down and began to cut down the lead. They were still 6 to 8 down when they went to bat in the eighth, but a batting rally that included a triple and two doubles, gave them five runs and the lead by 8 to 6. The Packers came right back in the ninth, scoring five runs on four hits, a couple of errors and good base-running, and although the losers tried to stage another rally, one run was the best they could do, and that was three runs short of being good enough to win.

First Innings.

Matthews.—Adams popped to Cherrett. Butcher was safe on Cherrett's fumble. Lowe singled over third. Corrin got a life on McLeod's miss, filling the bases. Swanston flied to Heenan, the runners being held. McLeod made a great stop of Hagerman's grass cutter, throwing to Cherrett in time to force Corrin. No runs, one hit, two errors.

Orientals. — Cherrett fanned. Kennedy rolled to Hagerman. Clancy singled to left and stole second. McLeod was called out on strikes. No runs, one hit, no errors.

Second Innings.

Matthews.—Jackson doubled to left centre. Holyman hit to Murray and Jackson was caught between bases, but eventually got back to second. Frost drew a pass, filling the bases. Jackson scored on Adams' tap to Phelan, the runner being safe. Holyman scored on McLeod's fumble of Butcher's grounder. Lowe drove a liner into Cherrett's hands and the short-stop's peg caught Frost off third, while Murray shot the ball to McLeod in time to get Adams, making a fast triple play. Two runs, one hit, two errors.

Orientals.— Kirn fanned. Heenan was safe on Hagerman's miss, but was out stealing. Murray struck out. No runs or hits, one error.

Third Innings.

Matthews. — Corrin singled over second. Swanston hit to Murray, who threw to second too late to get Corrin. The runners advanced on a wild pitch and both scored on Hagerman's double to right. Jackson doubled to left, scoring Hagerman. Holyman lined into Murray's hands and Jackson was doubled off second. Frost singled to centre, but Adams popped to Murray. Three runs, four hits, no errors.

Orientals. — Phelan was safe on Jackson's miss of Hagerman's throw. Head hit to Holyman, forcing Phelan at second, but Hagerman made a wild throw to first, the batter going to second, Cherrett's double to centre scored Head. Cherrett stole third. Kennedy popped to Butcher. Clancy struck out. One run, one hit, two errors.

Fourth Innings.

Matthews.—Butcher died on a top to Phelan, McLeod covering the bag. Lowe grounded to McLeod and Corrin went out the same way. No runs, hits or errors.

Orientals.—McLeod rolled to Hagerman. Kirn hit to Holyman and took second on the shortstop's low peg. Heenan rolled to Frost. Murray singled to second to score Kirn. Phelan grounded to Butcher. One run, one hit, one error.

Fifth Innings.

Matthews. — Swanston hoisted to McLeod. Murray threw out Hagerman. Jackson singled to right and stole second and third. Holyman fanned. No runs, one hit, no errors.

Orientals.— Head was thrown out by Hagerman. Cherrett beat out a bunt and stole second. Kennedy fanned. Clancy hoisted to Frost. No runs, one hit, no errors.

Sixth Innings.

Matthews—Frost took second when Kennedy missed his fly. Adams singled past McLeod to score Frost. Butcher beat out a slow one to Murray. Lowe lifted to Murray. Corrin hit to Kirn, and when Butcher ran Adams off third the latter was out at the plate. Swanston rolled to Kirn. One run, two hits, one error.

Orientals. — McLeod grounded to Holyman. Kirn singled to right. Heenan hit safely to centre. Swanston threw to Jackson to catch Heenan off first and Kirn dashed for home. He scored finally after running up and down the line, on Swanston's toss, while Heenan went to third. Murray flied to Lowe. Phelan struck out. One run, two hits, one error.

Seventh Innings.

Matthews. — Cherrett tossed out Hagerman. Jackson was safe on Murray's fumble, but was doubled off first on Holyman's fly to Phelan. No runs or hits, one error.

Orientals.—Head struck out. Cherrett rolled to Jackson. Kennedy singled over second. Clancy hit on a line to left and McLeod walked, filling the bases. Kirn hit to Butcher and was out at first. No runs, two hits, no errors.

Eighth Innings.

Matthews.—Frost singled over second and advanced on Adams' sacrifice bunt. Butcher hit to Cherrett and Frost was caught between the bases but eventually got back to second. Jackson was caught between bases, Murray to Lowe. Lowe grounded to Kirn. No runs, one hit, no errors.

Orientals.— Heenan grounded to Frost. Murray was hit. Phelan singled back of first and both advanced on a passed ball. Head doubled to centre to score the pair. Cherrett walked. Solomon, batting for Kennedy, fanned with the count three and two on him. Clancy hit to the shed in left for three bases, scoring Head and Cherrett. McLeod singled through third to score Clancy. Kirn doubled to left, but McLeod was out at the plate, Corrin to Butcher to Swanston, when he tried to score on the hit. Five runs, five hits, no errors.

Ninth Innings.

Matthews.—Corrin hoisted to Murray. Swanston doubled to left. Hagerman walked. Jackson singled to right, filling the bases. Holyman hit through short, scoring Swanston and Hagerman also came in on Clancy's high throw. Frost hit to Kirn, who threw to first, but Phelan was off the bag and the batter was safe, while both Jackson and Holyman scored. The runners advanced on Butcher's sacrifice and Frost counted on a wild pitch. Lowe flied to McCarley. Five runs, four hits, two errors.

Orientals.—Heenan singled to centre. Murray was safe on Hagerman's error, Heenan going to third. Holyman made a nice play on Phelan's slow grounder, getting the runner at first, while Heenan scored. Adams nailed Head's fly to right centre. Cherrett fanned. One run, one hit, one error.

TOO MUCH MUSCLE HE BREAKS HIS ARM

ANOTHER BASEBALL PITCHER BREAKS HIS ARM WHILE DELIVERING A BALL.

GUELPH, July 8.—A peculiar accident occurred to J. George, a young man who was engaged in pitching a game of baseball here on Saturday. He was going along well, when suddenly his arm fell to his side in a helpless manner, and it was seen that something was wrong.

It was found on examination that he had suffered a clean fracture of the upper arm, caused by muscular action. The fracture was reduced, and he is doing well.

UNFORTUNATE ACCIDENT AT BASEBALL GAME

Hewson and Ware Collided at the Plate and Former Had His Leg Broken.

A very unfortunate accident occurred during the progress of a town league baseball match. Miss Hewson, the Beavers, tried to beat a throw to the plate and in doing so collided with Roy Ware, catcher for St. Mary's. Both players went down in a heap and Ware was knocked out for several minutes ,but his injuries were not serious. Hewson managed to hobble across to the catch, when it was discovered that his left shin bone had been broken. He was taken to the hospital and is resting quite comfortably.—Port Hope Guide.

WILL NOT FIGHT THE FRENCHMAN

Dempsey Plans to Hook Up With a Circus.

NEW YORK, July 8.—Jack Dempsey will not go to Europe to box Georges Carpentier, according to a message received to-day from Jack Kearns, his manager. An alleged offer has been received, it was said, but it will not be accepted. Kearns stated Dempsey will leave in a few days for Salt Lake City, where he will visit his mother. He is now in Cincinnati. Returning east the champion will join a circus.

BASEBALL NOTES

There will be a practice of the Peterborough Central League team tonight at Riverside Park. All players are asked to be out in preparation for Saturday's game with Port Hope.

Walter Jackson, member of the Peterborough Central League team and the Matthews-Blackwell City League club, was married this morning. The wedding gifts included a fine reading lamp from the officers and players of the Peterboorugh team, and a handsome chair from the Matthews-Blackwell club.

Mr. Gordon was somewhat exercised that such a letter should be written to the Board, although the time for resignations to be received had expired.

Mr. Worth: We raised the minimum salary on purpose to help the teachers, and I think we are being penalized for doing so.

Mr. Kenner stated he thought Mr. Graham was entitled to an increase for [illegible] Mr. Gordon moved that the letter be received, and that in addition Mr. G. O. Cameron, chairman of the Committee on Appointments, interview Mr. Graham.

Was Re-Appointed.

Dr. Frank Neal asked if Miss Mae Jory, the acting public school nurse, is to be appointed for next year to the same position. Miss Jory was appointed temporarily to the position in the absence of Miss Kennedy, who went overseas with the Red Cross and is still in England. The Board have received a number of letters to Miss Kennedy, asking her if she intends to return to the city to resume her old position, but no reply has been received. According to Dr Neal, Mrs. Kennedy, the nurse's mother, says that she will not return to her work in the city, but Miss Jory wishes to know if she will be appointed so that she may look for other employment next year.

The Board thought that Miss Jory should know her standing. As Miss Kennedy has not replied to queries sent by the Board, Mr. Gordon moved that Miss Jory be appointed to the position of school nurse for one year dating from September, 1919, with salary according to schedule.

The motion was carried after being seconded by Mr. Greene.

Mr. Worth asked if the Board were willing to sell the house on Cedar Street, which was acquired when the property of the old West Ward School was purchased, saying that a resident of Cedar Street who lives next door to the property is willing to buy the house at the price the Board paid for it.

"That is giving it away," commented the chairman.

WHEN YOU LAY YOUR PAPER ASIDE

After you've read the news, have you gotten all the valuable information out of it? Not until you have read the advertisements.

Reading the advertisements should be as much a part of your day as reading the news columns.

The advertisements in your favorite newspaper are a daily record of what your local merchants have laid in store to meet your needs and add to your comfort.

They tell you what the manufacturers of these goods, who are constantly striving to please the public, have done to add to your advantages and comforts. The news, while always interesting, may often concern you only in a general way.

The advertisements are almost certain to tell you something that may mean a great deal to your home life or your business and social welfare.

PORT HOPE AND PETES TO CLASH ON SATURDAY

The Port Hope team, who are tied with Peterborough for second place in the Central League standing, will be the adversaries of the Petes at Riverside Park on Saturday in what should be one of the season's best games. The Ontarios have a hard-hitting outfit and the Petes will have to be on their toes all the time to earn the decision over them. The local outfit must win to stay in the running and the same applies to Port Hope, so that that the game is one of the most important that has been staged here. Belleville are a game ahead in the League race so that the Peterborough gang cannot hope to tie the leaders unless they win all their home games at least.

The game is called for 3 o'clock on Saturday afternoon and a big crowd is expected.

SHE COULD NOT STAND OR WORK

But Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Restored Her Health and Stopped Her Pains.

Portland, Ind.—"I had a displacement and suffered so badly from it that at times I could not be on my feet at all. I was all run down and so weak I could not do my housework, was nervous and could not lie down at night. I took treatments from a physician but they did not help me. My Aunt recommended Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I tried it and now I am strong and well again and do my own work and I give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound the credit."—Mrs. Josephine Kimble, 905 West Race St., Portland, Ind.

Thousands of American women give this famous root and herb remedy the credit for health restored as did Mrs. Kimble.

For helpful suggestions in regard to such ailments women are asked to write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass. The result of its long experience is at your service.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

Love's Faithful Haven

To Its Shelter Came the Erring One.

By MARIA CLIFFWORTH.

Mrs. Ferry sat upright in her favorite rocketless chair sewing a strand of braided rugs into a rug. Braided rugs were Mrs. Ferry's hobby.

To be sure, she and Anna Jane were the only people in the house, and visitors came very seldom, but to Mrs. Ferry that was no reason why she should keep her carpets covered.

The room was growing dim, for night fell early. This having to light up at half past 4 was a great drain on the oil can, but there are times when one cannot see even with two pairs of spectacles astride one's nose. She leaned forward and called:

"Anna Jane!"

Anna Jane came scurrying downstairs, stumbling over the braided rug at the top of the flight and almost losing her balance and tumbling over the braided rug at the foot.

"What have you been doing upstairs all this time?" Mrs. Ferry demanded, looking at her sharply. She had a notion that Anna Jane had been crying. "You'd better go to the postoffice right away if you're going."

Anna Jane took down her faded old jacket and limp hat. "Shall I light the lamp before I go?" she asked timidly.

"I guess not. I ain't in such a terrible hurry as you be to burn up the last bit of oil there is in the house. That's because I have to buy it, may be."

She set her old mouth grimly. Anna Jane hurried into her things without another word.

There was really nothing to go to the postoffice for. She had gone four days now in succession without receiving anything from the hands of the impatient clerk. Yet, rain or shine, Anna Jane must make her daily pilgrimage to the postoffice.

It never occurred to her to rebel against this or any other task Aunt Hulda set her. Aunt Hulda had been very good, she thought, to take her in when she was left a little helpless girl without parents or friends.

She had a childish memory of the time Aunt Hulda came to get her. She believed Aunt Hulda had favored her sister Tilly more, for Tilly was older and far prettier.

Tilly married early and well. When she had been married five years she suddenly remembered Anna Jane and sent for her to visit her. Anna Jane went and had the time of her life. Tilly was very good to her, but inclined to make fun of her old fashioned ways of dress and manner.

"Anna Jane," she said, "you've got to do your hair different and wear something besides that made over black dress of Aunt Hulda's. I'm going to get you a pink lawn, and when it's made I'll give you a party."

Anna Jane gasped with delight. The evening of that party and the first wearing of the pink lawn was the most memorable of her life, for that evening she met him. No man had ever before paid her any attention, and her little head was quite turned. He came to call the next evening, and the next, and the next. Of a sudden he had grown wonderfully friendly with the Martins, and Tilly understood. She worked with might and main to make the match, and when Anna Jane went home she was engaged.

Anna Jane was to be married from Aunt Hulda's house, and she set to work upon her simple trousseau. Aunt Hulda, grown suddenly generous, helped her, and Tilly sent $10 to buy the wedding dress. Anna Jane lived in a heavenly dream. He wrote every week, and she wrote back every week.

Then his letters began to lag, and at last came silence. Anna Jane wept and wondered. She could do nothing. Even Tilly could not for a long time find out what was the trouble. But when she did she wrote her sister.

"He's married!" she raged. "He married that Convers girl that was here at your party. She always wanted him, and now she's got him. They went to the justice a month ago and were married on the sly. I wouldn't believe it till I had it right from her own mouth, the impudent thing!"

Poor Anna Jane! She packed away her wedding things with a dazed look in her eyes that never after left them. Aunt Hulda sighed and sighed.

She seemed to feel that Anna Jane was all to blame and treated her accordingly.

But there were times when the burden pressed more heavily upon her than at others, and tonight was one of them. Her voice trembled as she stood at the general delivery window and put the worn question:

"Any mail for Mrs. Hulda Ferry, please?"

The clerk snatched a package of letters from a pigeonhole and thumbed them hurriedly. Then he shook his head, and Anna Jane, with fresh humiliation upon her, turned away.

The storm had increased, and in the faint light the sidewalk was slippery. A big man with an umbrella, whose hat brim was turned down and whose coat collar was turned up, saw her.

"Look out!" he cried gruffly. He caught her by the arm and helped her. Anna Jane dropped her head, with a gasp of thanks. He held the umbrella over her and walked silently at her side, shielding her generously from the raging storm.

Then she turned the corner and parted with her. It was a most unusual proceeding. Anna Jane was not used to receiving such courtesies. She wondered who he was, but she did not dare look into his face to see. Presently he spoke again gruffly:

"I'm looking for Mrs. Hulda Ferry. Can you tell me where she lives?"

Anna Jane jumped. "Why, yes, I can," she said. "I'm going right to her house now. I live with her."

"Oh, do you?" said the man. "Then I'll accompany you home."

He did not speak again, nor did Anna Jane. When they reached Mrs. Ferry's little low house Anna Jane went up the steps, and he followed.

He tore open his long ulster and threw off his hat.

"Anna Jane," he said, "don't you know me?"

Anna Jane tipped uncertainly, and he caught her and put her in a chair.

"I've scared you most to death, and I didn't mean to," he said regretfully. "Anna Jane," he went on earnestly, "my wife's dead. I did a foolish thing by myself and a wicked one by you when I married her, but that's bygones and can't be helped now. I'm ten years older and a good deal wiser. And I've come to see if—if you won't forgive me and let me have another chance. It's the only thing that's of any account to me now on earth, for, Anna Jane, I love you."

He knelt down before her and put his head in her lap. Anna Jane sat like a stiff little statue. She looked down at the big head in her lap and the big man kneeling before her who asked her forgiveness and said he loved her.

She lifted her hand and let it fall upon his hair. He felt the touch and looked up.

"Anna Jane," he said, "if you don't believe me, if you can't trust me, I'm willing to pass the rest of my life trying to make you—if you'll only give me a chance."

A wan little smile went over Anna Jane's face, but it was like the first spring sunshine, and life and joy followed it.

"Anna Jane"— he began again.

Slow footsteps crunked over the floor of the next room. The door opened, and Aunt Hulda, standing there, saw the strange spectacle of her niece in the arms of a stranger who seemed to have just been kissing her. Anna Jane's face was alight. She was no longer afraid of Aunt Hulda or of anything in the world. Her voice rang out with a glad little cry:

"Oh, Aunt Hulda, Joe's come! Joe's come!"

But it was left for Joe to make the necessary explanations.

PRACTICAL HEALTH HINT.

Marasmus.

Marasmus is a wasting disease that occurs in babies, generally in their first year. Without any discoverable cause a child with marasmus not only fails to gain, but begins to lose weight slowly, but steadily. At the same time the bones continue to grow, and the teeth come at the usual time. The poor child takes on a distressing appearance; it becomes almost a living skeleton, although sometimes the abdomen is distended.

The child is always hungry because it is starving. It cannot assimilate any food and is as hungry a few minutes after eating as it was before. It cries most of the time, with a fretful, whining cry. Sometimes a very small baby will sleep incessantly instead of crying. Each case of marasmus must be carefully studied, for treatment that cures one child quickly often has no effect on another. Parents should seek the best of medical advice.

Apart from its feeding, the marasmic child needs the greatest care. Owing to its extreme emaciation, bedsores often form; consequently the baby's position should be changed frequently, and it should be kept perfectly clean. The child must be kept warm, but it also needs a great deal of fresh air both day and night, and it is a good plan to keep it in the open air all the time and let it sleep on a balcony if possible. Be careful to avoid chilling the little body, however. After the daily bath it is helpful to rub warmed olive oil gently into the skin all over the body.

Lucky Photographer.

It is not always that things turn out so happily for the rash person who ventures to take snapshots on the east coast of England, as they did in the case of a young lady in the following story: She was seen photographing on a point of the coast, and was promptly approached by a special, who informed her of the enormity of her offense, took her name and address, and removed her camera. She heard nothing more of the matter for some time, but one morning she was amazed at receiving a check running into three figures, and a letter from headquarters informing her that her photographs were not only very good, but resulted in the capture of an enemy submarine.

Confidence in the Cause.

The champion optimist of America is private B——, now on active duty with his regiment somewhere in France. The regiment, after a turn in the trenches, was whiling away its time in a rest camp, and the officers were seeking to get the men to use some of their spare minutes in the study of French. The men did not take very kindly to the idea, and one of the officers sought to chide them for their lack of interest. Private B—— cut him off with the following query:

"What in h— do I want to learn French for? They don't speak that in Berlin, do they?"

Pickling Olives.

A new method of pickling ripe olives which, it is claimed, will increase the capacities of the factories over 200 per cent has been discovered by the University of California. Heretofore it has taken 15 days to pickle ripe olives. By this new method it can be done in six days or less. The process is a result of four years of experiments.

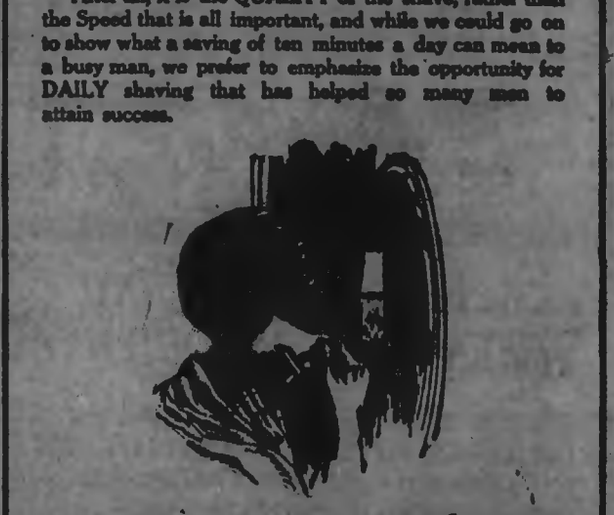
His Opinion.

Willie—What do you think of this plan of turning all the clocks ahead an hour each day?

Gillie—Just another foxy scheme of the bankers to make a man's notes come due sooner, I think.—Judge.

When Chest Thumping Began.

For fifteen years Dr. Jean Nicolas de Corvisart practiced chest tapping in diagnosing disease, getting little but abuse from his fellow practitioners. Along came Napoleon and made Dr. Corvisart his physician. Dr. Corvisart somewhat surprised Napoleon when he thumped his chest by way of examination. Napoleon, with his characteristic shrewdness, recognized the advantage of a scientific test over guesswork and engaged Corvisart to be his regular adviser. The method of chest tapping now came into immediate vogue.—Kansas City Star.



Save 10 Minutes a Day

How long does it take you to shave? You can reduce the time to 5 minutes with a Gillette Safety Razor, and every morning enjoy the coolest, cleanest and most satisfactory shave you could wish for.

After all, it is the QUALITY of the shave, rather than the Speed that is all important, and while we could go on to show what a saving of ten minutes a day can mean to a busy man, we prefer to emphasize the opportunity for DAILY shaving that has helped so many men to attain success.

A DRIVING FORCE
BEHIND KEEN SUCCESSFUL MEN AND WOMEN

When you think of the successful men and women you know—people who are doing things worth while—you will find that they possess force, vim and energy—the kind that simply bring over when the blood is filled with iron. Nuxated Iron by enriching the blood and creating new red blood cells, strengthens the nerves, rebuilds the weakened tissues and helps to instill renewed force and energy into the whole system. Three million people use it annually as a tonic, strength and blood-builder.

MAKE THIS TEST

See how long you can work or how far you can walk without becoming tired; next take two five-grain tablets of Nuxated Iron three times per day after meals for two weeks. Then test your strength again and see how much you have gained. Numbers of nervous, run-down people who were ailing all the time have most astonishingly increased their strength and endurance simply by taking iron in the proper form.

GLASS OF SALTS CLEANS KIDNEYS

If your Back is aching or Bladder bothers, drink lots of water and eat less meat.

When your kidneys hurt and your back feels sore, don't get scared and proceed to load your stomach with a lot of drugs that excite the kidneys and irritate the entire urinary tract. Keep your kidneys clean like you keep your bowels clean, by flushing them with a mild, harmless salts which removes the body's urinous waste, and stimulates them to their normal activity. The function of the kidneys is to filter the blood. In 24 hours they strain from it 500 grains of acid and waste so we can readily understand the vital importance of keeping the kidneys active.

Drink lots of water—you can't drink too much; also get from any pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast each morning for a few days and your kidneys will act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean and stimulate clogged kidneys; also to neutralize the acids in urine so it no longer is a source of irritation, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everyone should take now and then to keep their kidneys clean and active. Try this, also keep up the water drinking, and no doubt you will wonder what became of your kidney trouble and backache.

Use Cocoanut Oil For Washing Hair

If you want to keep your hair in good condition, be careful what you wash it with.

Don't use prepared shampoos or anything else, that contains too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and is very harmful. Just plain mulsified cocoanut oil (which is pure and entirely greaseless), is much better than anything else you can use for shampooing, as this can't possibly injure the hair.

Simply moisten your hair with water and rub it in. One or two teaspoonfuls will make an abundance of rich, creamy, lather, and cleanses the hair and scalp thoroughly. The lather rinses out easily, and removes every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves it fine and silky, bright, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get mulsified cocoanut oil at most any drug store. It is very cheap and a few ounces is enough to last everyone in the family for months.

Are You Tied Up Indoors?

If so, your whole system naturally gets tied up too. A lazy liver and constipated bowels are bad things, dangerous things. Exercise as much as you can—but keep your liver and bowels up to the mark all the time. Take one pill regularly—until you are sure you are all right again.

DISMANTLE PAGE MACHINE.

Admiral Kerr States He Doesn't Know What Will Happen Now.

PARRSBORO, N.S., July 8.—Work of dismantling the Handley-Page machine, which crashed here on Saturday while on a trip from Newfoundland to New York, will begin to-day. Vice-Admiral Kerr stated to-day that as yet no definite plans had been made as to the disposition of the plane and the ultimate destination of himself and party.

LADIES! DARKEN YOUR GRAY HAIR

Use Grandma's Sage Tea and Sulphur Recipe and Nobody Will Know.

The use of Sage and Sulphur for restoring faded, gray hair to its natural colour dates back to grandmother's time. She used it to keep her hair beautifully dark, glossy and attractive. Whenever her hair took on that dull, faded or streaked appearance, this simple mixture was applied with wonderful effect.

But brewing at home is mussy and out-of-date. Nowadays, by asking at any drug store for a 50-cent bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," you will get this famous old preparation, improved by the addition of other ingredients, which can be depended upon to restore natural colour and beauty to the hair.

A well-known downtown druggist says it darkens the hair so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied. You simply dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, it becomes beautifully dark and glossy.

Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound is a delightful toilet requisite for those who desire a more youthful appearance. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.

HUNS SET QUALIFICATIONS.

WEIMAR, July 8.—The German National Assembly is still debating the new constitution, and has endorsed the article qualifying any male citizen, native or naturalised, who has attained the age of 35, for the office of president.

The naturalisation provision was included owing to the realignment of the German frontiers, depriving many former German subjects of their nationality. The constitution provides that the president shall be chosen by popular vote.

FILTRATION PLANT TO PURIFY CITY'S WATER IS RECOMMENDED TO THE UTILITIES COMMISSION

DR. AMYS REPORTED TO BOARD OF HEALTH THAT THIS IMPROVEMENT IS NEEDED—EXAMINATION OF WATER SHOWS IMPURITIES—CONDITION UNSATISFACTORY.

TRIBUTE TO DR. AMYS

That steps be immediately taken to establish a filtration plant in connection with the city's water service was the Board of Health's recommendation last night to the Utilities Commission, conveyed in a resolution by Dr. Amys seconded by Mr. Harry Morgan.

Dr. Amys proposed that the Board should go on record as advocating the filtering of the city's water for the reason that at no season was it pure, and that recent reports emphasized the advisability and the need of action as soon as the Utilities Commission could undertake the work. The property has already been bought in anticiption of this request, and Dr. Amys ventured the opinion that a filtration plant could be built without seriously increasing the consumers' rates.

He had received numerous comcomplaints from citizens of leeches and dirt coming through their taps, and the examination of the water disclosed a condition far from purity.

Other members of the Board corroborated Dr. Amy's statements, and the resolution was passed unanimously.

Tribute to the M. O. H.

Mr. W. H. Buller, chairman, referred to the resignation of Dr. Amys as Medical Officer of Health. Dr. A. W. McPherson was ready to resume the position from which he had obtained leave of absence to go overseas, and Dr. Amys considered it his duty to resign at once.

"He has saved the citizens many dollars by the ability with which he handled the epidemic of influenza last year," Mr. Buller said, "and also in the outbreak of what was said to be smallpox a short time ago. He has worked hard at all times and has proved a valuable member of this Board."

Mayor Duncan spoke of the appreciation expressed by the Council on Monday in recognition of the services of Dr. Amys; and of the grant of $100 to him not as a reward but as a token of his highly satisfatcory work.

Mr. Morgan remarked that the Council might have attended to its task of letting the bridge contract and have left to the Board the privilege of suggesting a gratuity to Dr. Amys. He moved, seconded by Mr. Buller, a request to the Council that the honorarium be increased from $100 to $200.

"Nothing will repay me more than the appreciation that has been expressed," Dr. Amys replied. "It is a thankless task to have to take children from their parents, and especially to contend with their mothers. However, after they came to your way of thinking and notice that we take the children of rich as well as poor, the work becomes pleasant. If I may say so I did work hard during the influenza epidemic. I was out both night and day. It has been said that the doctors made a fortune. It may be true, but certainly they didn't get it."

Dr. Amys mentioned that he had provided his own automobile and telephone in this public work, and remarked that he hoped the Board would use its Medical Officer of Health better than it had during his experience. He thanked the Board and the Council for their kind recognition.

Afterwards, Mr. Morgan suggested that it was desirble to retain Dr. Amys as a member of the Board.

WORDS THAT ARE ACCURSED.

To Use Them Before the Yezidees is to Invite Death.

The Yezidees, a peculiar Turkish sect, are perhaps the only people in the world who consider certain letters, words and phrases as being cursed and the person who pronounces them a worthy subject for immediate destruction.

They attach no value to human life and to these ordinary dangers are added those arising from the embarrassing etiquette of conversational intercourse with them, for if any one inadvertently speaks the word "devil," "Satan" or anything with the same meaning he commits a mortal offense and to cut off his head is a God pleasing act, a sacred duty of the Yezidee the fulfillment of which will insure him a place in paradise.

In a like manner several letters are wholly banished from their language, chiefly those which contain the sound of "shaa." The Arabian word "nallat," "Thou art damned," is also expunged because it is believed by the Yezidees to have been the word uttered by God when the fallen angels were thrown into hell.

These and similar words and phrases are set aside and combinations which do not belong to any language used instead.—London Spectator.

Not Always Suppressed.

"Times have changed for the better. Torture, for instance, is no longer allowed."

"I don't know about that. There are four families in this apartment whose children take music lessons." — Baltimore American.

The Duke Struck It.

"The duke was about bankrupt when he married Miss Millions."

"Then you don't think it was a love match?"

"No; it was a shifty match from the duke's point of view." — New York Globe.

PRACTICAL HEALTH HINT.

Hardening of the Arteries.

"Arteriosclerosis no longer holds any terrors," said Dr. Julius Pick of Germany. "This 'premature old age' is easily treated. The method I have followed with success—and I have cured thousands—is to have the patient inhale air containing emanations of radium and to drink water containing similar emanations. I prepare this air by passing oxygen over a preparation of radium. By inhalation the radium emanation enters the lungs and thence the arterial system, whence it finally reaches the blood in the veins. Through the means of the drinking water the radium emanation gets into the stomach and the intestines, being thence absorbed by the venous system. That is the main feature of the treatment.

"While arteriosclerosis is the disease of the day in most countries, I believe it is more prevalent in the United States than elsewhere because of the speed with which everything is done over here and the consequent neglect of certain precautions. There is little reason to apprehend hardening of the arteries prematurely if one practices this rule: Be moderate in eating and drinking. Rest after daily work to prevent injuring the nervous system and be careful of gout, whether inherited or acquired. Do not forget to breathe accurately, for proper breathing is as essential to health as proper feeding."

A "BATTALION MURDERER."

Odd Nickname Enjoyed by a Canadian Tommy.

"The Battalion Murderer" is the peculiar name bestowed upon "Buck" Hutchinson, of East Caledon, sergeant in the Fourth Battalion, by his admiring comrades. Hutchinson is an "Original," holding the D.C.M. and the M.M., and he has the reputation of having killed more Germans than any other man in the regiment. To meet him one would find it hard to believe, for anyone less like a "murderer" would be hard to find. A young fellow, tall and solidly built, he is an athlete all over. He has a slow smile and speaks very quietly. He is very popular.

"I'm sorry I haven't any story I can give you," he said when interviewed recently. He was perfectly willing to talk, but "really couldn't think of anything of interest."

It was from some of his officers that the story of certain of his exploits was finally secured. "We never kept track of his record, but I do know that in two days he killed, single-handed, thirty-one Germans," said a lieutenant. On September 27 he killed 17, and on October 1 he killed 14. When I saw him he was blood from head to foot. He had used up all his own ammunition, and was carrying two German automatics he had taken."

"Do you know the story about Hutchinson telling a man to move his head?"

"That occurred at a time when we were in a tight corner and had received orders to take no prisoners," replied the officer. "Buck" saw one of our boys talking to a German. He walked up behind our man, putting his hand on his head said: 'Move your head.' Then he put his revolver in the German's face and blew out his brains. 'You should never talk to a German unless he is dead,' he admonished our man, who was covered with the German's blood."

The story of how Hutchinson won his D.C.M. was told by Col. Nelles. While the fight was raging round Abancourt at the end of last September, Hutchinson found two German "75" field guns. He had used guns fired, but there his knowledge of them ended. Lugging them round, he pointed them at the town of Abancourt. He did not know how to sight them, so propping up the trail, he looked down the barrel until he had them trained on the mark.

Then he opened fire. At first, thinking the Canadians were going to enter the town, he did not fire any gas shells, but later when he discovered that they were not going to attack, he opened fire with some gas shells which the Germans had left near the guns. One hundred and fifty shells, at a range of 1,200 yards, were sent by Hutchinson into the town. So great was the damage done that the Germans opened up a barrage all round him, but he went on firing as if nothing had happened. "And he only came away when a company commander forced him to, because he was drawing so much fire on our men," said Col. Nelles. "Our guns were firing very badly that day, and I honestly think that 'Buck' Jones did more damage than all our batteries did together."

An American and a Scotchman were walking in the Highlands, and the Scot produced a famous echo. When the echo returned clearly after nearly four minutes, the proud native, turning to the Yankee, exclaimed:

"There, mon, ye canna show anything like that in your country."

"Oh, I don't know," said the American. "I guess we can better that. Why, in my camp in the Rockies, when I go to bed, I just lean out of my window and call out, 'Time to get up! Wake up!' and eight hours afterwards the echo comes back and wakes me."

Why You Should be Interested in Pulleys

The Dodge Wood-Split Pulley is indispensable to industrial life in the sense that it is indispensable to economy in power transmission.

Metal pulleys will do the work of Dodge Wood-Split Pulleys, but their cost of operation averages $8.00 more per pulley per year.

The more economical operation of Dodge Wood-Split Pulleys is due to light, well-balanced construction, which eliminates weight friction, and to greater surface adhesion, which prevents belt slippage.

Our local stockers carry all Standard sizes, and will phone or wire orders to us for pulleys of special dimensions.

CAPTAIN PEARSON HOME FOR FUNERAL

Capt. Bob. Pearson, who has been connected with the Y. M. C. A. work overseas ever since the commencement of war, was on the ocean when the terrible accident that occurred at Omemee which took the life of his young brother, Mr. Frank Pearson, M.M. [illegible] was notuntil he reached Quebec, however, that he received word of the fatality. He was able to secure a train to Peterborough, from which city he motored to Lindsay Monday afternoon, too late for the funeral, but in time to see the remains at the cemetery before interment took plac.

A brother, Capt. Al Pearson, also connected with the Y.M.C.A., is at present at Vancouver, and was unable to get home for the funeral.

WEDDING BELLS

JACKSON—DAWSON.

The home of George Dawson, 'The Maples," South Monaghan, was the scene of a pretty wedding at high noon on Wednesday, July 2nd, when his only daughter, Myrtle C., became the bride of Joseph Oscar Jackson, also of South Monaghan. The ceremoney was conducted by Rev. M. W. Leigh, B.A., in the presence of a few of the immediate relatives of the contracting parties.

The wedding march was played by the bride's cousin, Mrs. Rev. M. W. Leigh, and little Mildred Dawson, niece of the bride, was flower girl. The bride was attired in a dainty gown of white and carried a shower bolquet of white Canterbury bells and roses. The couple were unattended, but the groom's brother, Alfred, and Miss Maye Dawson, of Grace Hospital, Toronto, were witnesses during the signing of the register. A very tasty wedding dinner was served and after a few hours' pleasant fellowship the happy couple motored to Fraserville, where they took the train for Toronto and Niagara.

On Wednesday of the preceding week a large number of friends of the bride assembled at her home and by a miscellaneous shower and address expressed their good wishes and the esteem in which she was held because of the endearing work accomplished in the church, the Sunday school and the W.M.S., of which she was a life member. Other friends left useful gifts on the wedding day and all wished Mr. and Mrs. Jackson a very happy married life.

Rev. Father Phelan officiated at the grave. The pall-bearers, all distinguished members of the medical profession, were Dr. Frank P. McNulty, Dr. James V. Gallivan, Dr. Frank C. Neal, Dr. D. C. King and Doctors Silverthorne and Buck of Toronto.

MR. JAMES J. McGILL.

The death occurred early this morning at 1 a.m. of Mr. James J. McGill at his residence, 88 Aylmer street. The late Mr. McGill was a retired farmer, having farmed in Janetville, Ontario. Besides a sorrowing wife, he leaves to mourn his loss five daughters, Mrs. D. Dunlop, of Peterborough, Mrs. J. Lytle of Victoria Road, Mrs. W. Lowes, of Emily, Mrs. W. Huschum, of Mount Pleasant, and Mrs. E. Sanderson of Mount Pleasant.

The funeral takes place on Friday morning at 10 a.m. from the family residence, 88 Aylmer street, to Janetville cemetery, Rev. J. F. Chapman, of St. James' Methodist church, and Rev. Benjamin Greatrix officiating.

JACKSON—ATKINSON.

At 11 o'clock this morning at the home of the bride's parents, No. 529 Bolivar street, in the presence of only the immediate relatives and friends of the family, the wedding was solemnized of Mary Gilmour Atkinson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. F. Atkinson, to Mr. Walter A. Jackson, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Jackson, Bolivar street.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. J. A. MacKenzie in the drawing room, which was a gay bower of lilies, roses and other summer flowers. The bride looking very pretty in a taupe satin and crepe de chine dress with coral embroidery and coral and Copenhagen hat, was unattended, and was given away by her father. As she entered the room Mendelsshon's wedding march was played by Miss Skuce. After the ceremony luncheon was served in the dining room from a table faily decorated in summer flowers.

Mr. and Mrs. Jackson left by the 3.40 C.P.R. for a honeymoon to be spent in the west, Mrs Jackson travelling in a Copenhagen silk suit and hat to match.

The out of town visitors who attended the wedding were Mrs. Atkinson, Mr. and Mrs. Tom Atkinson, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Atkinson of Campbellford, the Misses Russell of Belleville; Mr and Mrs. David Russell and daughter Irene, of Foxboro; and Mrs. Gordon Stayzier of Hamilton.

Including in the many and beautiful gifts received by the happy couple, were a reading lamp from the Central Ontario Baseball League, and a leather arm chair from the Matthews-Blackwell team of both of which the groom is a member.

PRINCE OF WALES TO VISIT CANADA

Took a Slight Cold and Duke of Connaught is Ordered to Take a Rest.

(Canadian Press.)

LONDON, July 9.—The Canadian Associated Press is informed that there is no likelihood that tha indisposition of the Prince of Wales will interfere with his Canadian visit.

The Prince has been especially busy lately, and a chill, from which he is now suffering, is partly due to exhaustion.

The Duke of Connaught has also been ordered to take things more easily for the time being.

PRESENTING THE TREATY

WOODROW WILL PRESENT THE PEACE TREATY TO THE SENATE TO-DAY.

MAJORITY DOUBTFUL

(Canadian Press.)

WASHINGTON, July 10.— President Wilson takes the peace treaty to the Senate to-day. It will be the first time the President has presented the treaty in person, and the first time the message of presentation has been received with the Senate's door open to the public.

The Senate situation confronting the President is one of many possibilities variously estimated by leaders for and against the League of Nations. With every Senator present or paired when the final ratification roll call is taken, the treaty, with its League covenant, must receive a two-thirds majority, sixty-four votes. This total the President's supporters declared, is assured, while Opposition leaders assert it can never be attained without the inclusion of material reservations in the ratification resolution. The first test will come with the attempt to write in various reservations. For this only a simple majority, 49 votes, will be required.

SITUATION IS CALMER

GUSTAV NOSKE ADOPTS DRASTIC MEASURES TO RESTORE ORDER IN BERLIN

By Carl D. Groat.

(United Press.)

BERLIN, July 10.— The situation in Germany is calmer, under the control of Gustav Noske, Minister of Defence, and his armed guards. How long this state of affairs will last none can safely predict. In some quarters it is felt that a military dictatorship under Noske will be the outcome, but the Foreign Office scoffs at this, saying such a development is most unlikely.

The past few days have seen the Berlin transportation system in a crippled condition, but the railway strike has crumped now. Leaders of the strikers assigned as the reason for returning to work their desire to avoid bringing in coal and food famines at this critical ttime, but they assert they have not abandoned their idea of a general strike, especially if the government does not increase their pay and reimburse them for the period of the strike.

Hols the Reigns.

In the meantime Noske has spread his guards over Berlin like a blanket. Some of the streets are barred off with barbed wire entanglements and some of the alleys are choked with heavy trucks bearing machine guns. There is sufficient personnel to man these guns.

All the higher authorities agree that for the moment Noske holds the fate of Berlin and Germany in the palm of his hand and that he is succeeding, at least temporarily, in keeping order at a time whe nthere is vast unrest, much agitation for a change of government and a demand for altered economic conditions.

CHANGES IN THE AUSTRIAN TREATY

By Fred S. Ferguson.

(United Press.)

PARIS, July 10.— An Allied note replying to Austrian observations on the economic clauses of the treaty, makes modifications by the addition of clauses eliminating some of the objectionable features. The changes were made, it was pointed out today, to protect Austrian property in new States formed from the former dual monarchy, or in territory acquired by existing States.

FORTY YEARS' MARCH ACROSS DESERT

GERMAN FOREIGN MINISTER'S CHARACTERIZATION OF THE PDACE OF THE PEACE TREATY—ALLIED COMMISSIONERS WILL SIT IN BERLIN.

(United Press.)

BERLIN, July 10. — The National Assembly at Weimar passed a resolution to-day ratifying the peace treaty, but not until every speaker had protested against its terms. The vote was 208 to 115.

"We are about to enter upon a forty years' march across a desert," said Herman Mueller, the Foreign Minister, addressing the Assembly. "I cannot find any other term for the path of suffering which the fulfillment of the treaty prescribes."

NOTIFIED THE ALLIES.

Herr Von Lersner of the German peace delegation, officially notified Colonel Henry, the French liaison officer at ten a.m. to-day, that Germany had ratified the treaty yesterday.

The superior economic council meeting at 3 o'clock this afternoon was expected to take action for the immediate lifting of the blockade.

Von Lersner also announced that the German reparations commission, numbering eighteen, would arrive this evening and begin its session in Versailles to-morrow.

WILL SIT IN BERLIN.

President Ebert signed the peace treaty at 10 o'clock last night and immediately sent the document to Versailles by courier, according to the "Berliner Vorwaerts."

The "big five" has approved the establishment of military, naval and air commissions for supervising the carrying out of the peace treaty. All committees will sit in Berlin.

The military commission will be headed by a French general, the naval commission by a British admiral, and the air commission by a British brigadier. The commission will comprise two hundred officers and numerous attaches. They will be maintained at the expense of the Germans.

INSPECTED THE BATHING HOUSE

MAYOR DUNCAN TURNED UP AN HOUR LATE—WILL MAKE SOME IMPROVEMENTS.

Last evening at a meeting of the City Council, Mayor Duncan took exception to a number of the aldermen being eight minutes late, and threatened to leave the meeting and as a result endanger the passing of the Hunter street bridge bylaw. During the course of the meeting it was agreed that Mayor Duncan and Ald. McIntyre would visit the city's new bathing house this morning at nine o'clock, for the purpose of inspecting it. Alderman McIntyre turned up at nine o'clock, and Mayor Duncan arrived on the scene at ten o'clock, or one hour later than the time agreed upon.

The bathing house which was inspected is 28 x 40 feet, according to the specifications, and is painted buff, trimmed with green. There are two compartments, one for the boys and the other for the girls, each with 16 dressing rooms. The girls' department is next to the water and the boys at the rear with the caretaker's office communicating with both departments by means of wickets. The house is finished in pine on the outside and spruce and hemlock on the inside. There are two windows on each side of the French colonial style. Each of the dressing rooms has a lock with a key on the outside and when the bather leaves his room he leaves the key in the care of the caretaker at the wicket. On the inside of the doors are hooks, so that the door may be fastened when the rooms are occupied. There are four doors, two on the south side and two on the north.

Will Add Partitions.

The plans called for single seats running down the middle of the compartments for the youngsters to undress but Contractor Charlie Huff... suggested to the Mayor and Ald. McIntyre that there would be no place to hang the clothes, and that they would be piled on the seat, which should be used for the convenience of the bathers, or they would be piled on the floor, which would be wet. The seats will also be directly in the gaze of any person passing the doors and he suggested that inside partitions be constructed for each of the compartments.

The beach at present is full of weeds and tin cans which will have to be removed and the banks on both sides of the house will be cut away by Street Commissioner Evans' men, and as it is fine sand, placed on the beach to make the slope more gradual and thus safer for the youngsters. On the north side a partition will be built from the bathing house to the fence, beween the girls' and the boys' compartments and the boys will be forced to go out the south door in order to reach the beach. Another feature of the bathing house is the overhanging roof (18 inches) with eaves, which is not called for in the specifications.

The house cost the city the neat sum of $1135 and is similar to the bathing house in Banff, Alberta.

Lavatories will be built on the north side of the house, each four feet square.

Question of Caretaker.

Sergt. John Cooper, who was caretaker at Inverlea Park bathing place last year, applied for the same position at the civic bathing beach at a meeting of the Special Bathing committee held in the City Clerk's office this morning at 11.30 o'clock under

WILL NOT DECLARE A HOLIDAY HERE

MAYOR DUNCAN SAYS PETERBORO HAS ALREADY CELEBRATED.

Peterboro has celebrated the signing of peace and the Council passed a resolution last night deprecating another holiday on Saturday, July 19th, the day chosen by the Government for the nation's celebration.

Ald. Turner moved at the Council meeting last night that there be no local holiday because of the celebration here on June 30th. It would be a hardship upon merchants and other citizens, Ald. Turner said. He proposed that Peterboro ignore the national occasion.

Ald. Edgar—"I think we should leave this to the people. If they want to avail themselves of the national celebration itis quite all right, but I understand the Mayor has no intention of declaring a holiday here.

Mayor—"No, we have already had one."

Ald. Garside seconded the motion which carried.

In the region of Ingermanland Lakes, south-west of Petrograd, the Bolsevik are developing successfully an advance in the direction of Pskov and Narva.

THE RETURN JOURNEY

APPROACHING [illegible] HASTENED DEPARTURE OF [illegible] BRITISH DIRIGIBLE [illegible] SAILED OVER NEW YORK.

THRILLING SIGHT

By W. K. Hargraves.

(Special to The Examiner.)

MINEOLA, L.I., July 10. — The British dirigible R-34, which left on her return voyage to England at midnight was about 1900 miles out at 7.10 this morning, New York time. A message from the airship received at the naval radio station here at that hour gave her position as 40.15 north latitude and 65.50 west longitude. That would locate her at a point about 880 miles south-west of Sydney, N.S., and 500 miles directly east of Mineola.

Shortly after the R-34 got away she reported a speed of 55 miles an hour. Her location at 12.10 a.m. Greenwich time, 7.10 a.m. (New York time), indicated her speed had been increased to about 60 miles an hour.

The decision to start last night instead of waiting till this morning, as announced yesterday afternoon, was reached by Major G. H. Scott, commander at 10.15 p.m. It was occasioned by the receipt of an official weather bureau bulletin reporting the approach of a storm. [illegible] o'clock the officers and crew had donned their flying clothes of [illegible], and everything was in readiness. Brigadier-General Maitland, the only one of the British officers [illegible] from the Roosevelt field, was [illegible] summoned by telephone. A [illegible] pound sack of mail was [illegible]. Maitland had come aboard [illegible].30, and Lieut. J. J. Quinn, [illegible] of the departure, gave the [illegible] to the 300 men clinging to the ropes and gondolas to swing [illegible] head into the wind. [illegible] was slowly turned until she pointed directly toward New York city. At 11.40 "all clear" was signalled, and the hydrogen gas, which has been flowing into the balloonettes through a ten-inch hose, was cut off. At 11.50 bells tinkled throughout the length of the aircraft—"let go."

Last Tie Severed.

The R-34's last tie to America was severed and she slowly rose to a height of about 250 feet, then rose again to fully 800 feet. The engiens were started and she moved majestically toward Manhattan. When the airship passed over Brooklyn at a height of 2,000 feet she was picked out of the darkness by a number of searchlights from the Sperry building. The R-34 passed over the Brooklyn and Manhattan bridges, then turned to the left and passed over Broadway, giving thousands of persons a thrill. She proceeded as far as the Times Square, then turned about and headed south-eastward. At 1.20 the dirigible passed over the Roosevelt field and put out to sea.

The R-34 will take the so-called "southern route" on her return to East Fortune, Scotland. The total distance is about 3,500 miles, 2,000 of which will be over open sea. With the wind aiding instead of retarding the craft, Commander Scott hoped to complete the voyage in seventy hours.

In her westward flight the R-34 required 108 hours and 10 minutes to make the 3,300 miles, 2,000 of which were over open sea.

Flying Low.

(Canadian Press.)

BOSTON, July 10.—The R-34 was reported 25 miles south of Marthas Vineyard Island at four a.m. in a radio message received here. The Marthas Vineyard is off the southern coast of Massachusetts.

(Canadian Press.)

NEW YORK, July 10.—The British dirigible R-34 to-day is well on her way toward home after a stay in America of eighty-six hours, following the first non-stop trans-Atlantic flight of a lighter-than-air ship. Taking the air at 11.56 o'clock last night at the Roosevelt field, Mineola, Long Island, the big dirigible passed over New York city, circled over the Times building tower at 12.05, remaining in sight of a dense Broadway crowd for five minutes before heading south over Lower Manahttan, and disappeared in an easterly direction at 1.16 a.m. The announcement by Major Scott, commander of R-34 of his intention to sail over the city was made in the theatres and restaurants, with the result that thousands of persons crowded in Broadway for a glimpse of the airship as she passed through shafts of light which shot skyward from scores of searchlights. She flew quite low over Broadway, not being much over eight hundred feet in the air, and proceeding at low speed. She was plainly discernible from the open spaces and roofs of buildings throughout the lower section of the city. The gigantic Sperry gyroscope in Brooklyn, and searchlights with penetrating power, kept the big gas bag in view until she passed out of range.

TROUBLE PURSUED BRIDGE PROBLEM TO THE MEETING AT WHICH BY-LAW PASSED

INFLUENCE OF FRUSTRATING JINX SEEN IN RATHER UNPLEASANT INCIDENT LAST NIGHT—MAYOR AND SEVERAL ALDERMEN LEFT BECAUSE OTHERS SLOW IN COMING.

WORK TO BEGIN SOON

Tossed about for months by varying winds of discussion, the Hunter Street bridge contract was snubbed fast and secure to a by-law, passed at a special meeting of the Council last night which authorised Mayor Duncan and City Clerk Armstrong to sign the contractual agreement with the Russell-Townsend Company covering the specifications and other details of construction.

The influence of the jinx that had so often frustrated the Council's attempts to solve satisfactorily this very serious problem was discerned in a marring little incident that occurred at the very opening of the meeting, in fact before the majority of the members had taken their places.

In fact, it was the tardiness of these members that contributed to the embarassing situation. At a minute or two after eight o'clock, Mayor Duncan and Aldermen Morrison, Turner and Taylor had the Council Chamber to themselves. Three or four minutes passed and the Mayor asked whether the other members were coming upstairs or not. At eight minutes after His Worship declared that he did not propose to wait patiently until the Aldermen straggled in to the meeting. Just then someone brought the information that the Aldermen were not ready, and the jinx with the mischievous spirit of Puck must have felt satisfied that another delay was about to ensue, for the Mayor and Aldermen Morrison and Taylor arose together, declaring that they would wait no longer.

Could Not Adjourn.

When an adjournment was suggested, City Clerk Armstrong remarked that the members could not adjourn for the simple reason that there wasn't a quorum present.

"You can only leave," the Clerk explained, and in a moment Ald. Turner found himself the sole occupant of the seats of the mighty, and to all appearances he seemed but little perturbed by the incident, for he continued to read his copy of the committee reports that were to be presented.

The eight-day clock in the Chamber stood at three minutes after eight, but the watches of Ald. Turner and City Clerk Armstrong showed 8.08 o'clock.

In a few minutes the dilatory members stumped upstairs, the sudden and strange departure of their colleagues evidently having told them that something was wrong. With their aldermanic dignity slightly graver than usual, they proceeded without further delay to the business of awarding the bridge contract to the Russell-Townsend Company.

Ald. Turner was proposed as presiding officer by Ald. Edgar, but he declined, moving instead that Ald. Phelan be appointed. Ald. Edgar seconded the motion, and the eight aldermen prepared to carry on.

Board of Health's [illegible]

A recommendation from the Board of Health requested that [illegible] to Dr. Amys be increased [illegible] to $300.

MERCHANTS WILL REMAIN OPEN

At a meeting of the Retail Merchants of the city held last evening in the Board of Trade rooms it was unanimously decided to remain open on July 19th unless that day was declared a statutory holiday.

VETERANS UPHOLD CANADIAN SENATE

LOCAL VETERANS OPPOSE EXTENSION OF PROHIBITION FOR ONE YEAR AFTER WAR.

At a meeting of the Great War Veterans' Association, it was resolved: "That we, the members of the Peterborough branch of the Great War Veterans, in regular session assembled, do hereby highly commend the action of the Senate of the Dominion of Canada in opposing an extension of prohibition for one year after the war, as we consider their action is a true sense of justice to the soldier who fought for the great cause of Democracy."

CARS ARE WORKING OUT SATISFACTORILY

STREET RAILWAY COMPANY WELL PLEASED WITH RESULT.

It has been stated that two new one-man cars were to be purchased by the Street Railway Company to be placed, within the course of two months, on the Canadian General Electric line. This would greatly facilitate traffic, as it took one man no less than half an hour to journey from Smith Street to Perry Street. The yellow car stopped at the north-end switch, between Antrim and Smith Streets, for seven minutes, he confided, and after a long stop in front of the Town Clock, the car slowly proceeded south, after stopping at the Wharf for three or four minutes.

"We need a little more Jack McCann stuff just now."

Denies Rumour.

Asked this morning if there were any grounds for the statement that the two additional one-man cars would be placed on the Canadian General Electric line, Mr. J. H. Ferguson stated that the company had no idea of making such a change as far as he knows. "There is no need for them," he said, "and the only way we will get them is through taking off two of the old cars. This we would be glad to do, as we are all anxious to go ahead."

Pleased With Cars.

Mr. Ferguson stated that the company is well pleased with the service of the new cars, which, besides being in a class away ahead of the old ones, are slightly less expensive.

WANTS A FIXED PRICE FOR WHEAT

(Special to The Examiner.)

WINNIPEG, Man., July 10. — The Canadian Council of Agriculture, which is attended by delegates from all over the Dominion, has been engaged on thorny political topics, chief among which is the price and marketing of the present crops.

The western delegates seem pretty much a unit in desiring that the Dominion government should get into line with the United States and other governments in fixing the prices of 1919 wheat. They fear that if this is not done they will be liable to exploitation by a nearer market that will be controlled from Winnipeg, for practically the Winnipeg Exchange will be the only wheat market in the world, if the price is not

WARNING TO THE ITALIANS

PEOPLE URGED TO BEGIN IMMEDIATELY THEIR TASK OF RECONSTRUCTION.

PREMIER'S ADDRESS

(By Camillo Ciantara.)

ROME, July 10. — Premier Nitti, addressing Parliament to-day, admonished the Italian people against the dnager of revolutionary talk and urged them to begin immediately their task of reconstruction. He told also of Italy's difficulties at the peace conference and of the obstacles which the country must overcome to re-establish her economic structure.

Speaking lengthily on the recent food agitation, the Premier declared it was absurd to demand a reduction in prices below the cost of production. The solution, he said, would be found in increased agricultural production, especially of cereals.

"Whoever talks of revolution in Italy must be considered an enemy to the people," Nitti asserted. "In self-supporting countries revolution is an evil, in a country which must purchase raw materials and food from abroad revolution is tantamount to suicide. The causes of disorders must be eliminated."

THE "GRAMPION" IN A COLLISION

ALLAN LINER STRUCK AN ICEBERG—TWO STEWARDS MISSING.

ST. JOHNS, Nfld., July 10.— Her bows stove in by a collision with an iceberg off the Newfoundland coast, the steamship "Grampian" put in here to-day for repairs. She was leaking badly in the forepeak. Eight hundred passengers, bound from Montreal to Liverpool, were aboard.

Two stewards were missing and were believed to have been killed by the crash. The ship's hull was smashed in thirty feet from the water line to the upper deck. Officers said there was no panic.

The Grampian is an Allan vessel of 10,000 tons and registered at Glasgow.

Struck Head On.

The killed and injured were members of the crew were asleep in the bo wthe ship when she struck. Virtually all passengers were awake, but although there were more than five hundred women and children aboard there was little excitement and no panic.

That the Grampian did not suffer the fate of the Titantic with considerable loss of life is believed to have been due to the decision of the captain to strike the iceberg bow on instead of taking a glancing blow on the side. The berg, which was very large, was encountered forty-five miles off Cape Race in the early evening. When it was sighted through the fog it was too late to clear it, although the ship was proceedingly slowly. The captain said he realized that a glancing blow, which would tear through the ship's side, would sink her. The course was changed, and the Grampian struck the ice mountain squarely head on. The entire forepart of the ship was smashed in above the water line, the stem being driven back forty feet. The vessel was undamaged below the water line, however, as a portion of the berg which struck proved to be an overhanging shelf.

A TRIP UP THE TRENT CANAL

What a change! In days of old with early spring, Montreal and Quebec saw the hard coureur-de-bois start on his long journey for furs in canoes up the Ottawa River, then issuing on the Georgian Bay from the French River. Skirling along the north shore of the Bay behind Manitoulin Island, Sault Ste. Marie was reached and the inter-change of goods took place for the splendid furs trapped by the Indians. Think of the long days of arduous paddling the carrying over long portages and the well-earned nights of repose, stretching the trip both ways into months.

To-day, how different the splendid and swift motor boat can leave Montreal and run up to Lake Ontario through the charming Thousand Islands and entering the Trent Valley Canal in a short time, find itself on Lake Simcoe. Verily doth time work wonders. A committee of senators and members interested in the route are campaigning for the publicity of the route and with the following inducements ask motor boat enthusiasts to blaze the way this season.

Take the Trent Valley Canal at Trenton on the north side of Lake Ontario, thence to Lake Simcoe.

Least draft of water—6 feet.

Locks open on Sundays at certain hours.

Length of locks between hollow quoins, 134 feet; width 33 feet.

Telephone, telegraph system, good hotels along the route.

Take your party by automobile to Lake Simcoe, let another party proceed by motor boat to Lake Simcoe, then change and each party have the two trips.

From Lake Simcoe, south side run into Toronto by Radial and see this fine city.

The route for the swell yacht, the medium-sized, and fine for the husky boys who can camp along the way.

See at Peterborough the highest lift locks in the world— 65 feet.

See fine progressive towns and beautiful farms en route.

Good fishing on the way.

In 1920 your motor will be able to go through to Georgian Bay.

See immense electrical power plants on the way and the industrial results with large manufacturing concerns.

Come up from Quebec over this grand water system with your boats and stir up a reciprocity from Ontario with your brother motor boat enthusiasts to go down and see the beauties of the magnificent St. Lawrence River and your cities.—Montreal Gazette.

BELMONT WANTED TO JOIN SYSTEM

Reeve Griffith Refused To Go In, Despite Instructions Of His Council.

(Havelock Standard.)

The township of Belmont will not be in the Good Roads System this year, despite the fact that the Council unanimously passed a resolution instructing Reeve Griffith to do so at the special meeting of the County Council, called to consider the question.

The public meeting of the ratepayers of the township on the evening of the 27th ult., a resolution was passed unanimously, calling upon the Council to adopt the Good Roads System, and designating the same roads as the Council did on the following day, at their regular June meeting. Reeve Griffith was entirely in favour of the move at the public meeting and also at the Council meeting, and it was at his request that the motion of the Council was made.

It is exceedingly difficult to understand just why he refused to obey the Council's instructions when he went up to the County meeting, and no doubt he will have a hard job to explain to the members of the Council and the ratepayers of the township, why he acted as he did.

The Standard has been reliably informed that he informed the members of the County Council that "his opponents in Belmont were trying to force him into the system, and that he would not vote for it."

North Monaghan, Otonabee and Asphodel are the three townships that are in on the Good Roads programme, and a superintnedent will be engaged and the necessary machinery purchased at once.

LINEN MART CORNERED BY YOUNG BRITISHER

(Canadian Press.)

LONDON, July 9.— Leonard J. Martin, a young English business man who deals in agricultural machinery, has bought for $20,000,000 from the British Government about forty million yards of linen which was intended for making airplanes. He knows nothing about linen, but bought it for speculation.

Martin is 37 years old and began his career, he says, with a capital of about $500. The stock of material Martin now controls represents three years' normal supply. He is reckoning on a profit of about $5,000,000. Of that amount $2,000,000 would go to the British Treasury in excess profits and another $1,250,000 in supertax.

"Belfast people," said Martin, "imagined they had the stuff between their two fingers. After the armistice the Belfast mill-owners refused to allow their contracts to be cancelled. They went on making linen by millions of yards at 40c to 75c a yard. Then they offered the Government 7c a yard to take it back. Their price later went up to about 25c a yard, and it was still hoped by the monopoly to sell it to the public at three shillings. They could have re-equipped all the mills in Ulster out of the profits. I have got the linen at about double the final Belfast offer."

MOBILIZE CHILDREN TO BUILD TRENCHES

HELSINGFORS, July 9. — According to trustworthy information received the Bolshevists shot 750 workmen on the Petrograd front between June 10 and 21.

The rising at the Putiloff works resulted in 212 executions. The Bolshevist front line is composed of workmen and behind them are the Letts and Chinese ready to turn machine guns on them should they refuse to advance.

A decree is published by the Petrograd press of the 20th ordering the mobilizing of 10,000 children under 17 to dig trenches.

REGULAR MONTHLY MEETING OF DUMMER TOWNSHIP COUNCIL

REPAIRS TO THE ROADS—LIST OF ACCOUNTS PASSED.

The regular monthly meeting of the Council of the Township of Dummer for the year 1919 was held in the Town Hall, Warsaw, on Friday, 4th July, at 10.30 a.m., the Reeve and Councillors all being present.

The minutes of last meeting were read over and confirmed. On motion, a special grant of $20.00 was made to be expended on the side road between Lots 5 and 6 across Con. 8, and also a special grant of $10.00 was made to be expended by T. Hull on the road around the head of Stoney Lake in the Township of Dummer. A by-law was passed to authorise the Reeve and treasurer to borrow certain sums of money from the Union Bank, not to exceed the amount of $3,000.00, as may be required for current expenditure until the taxes are levied and collceted.

On motion, the Reeve was authorised to attend to the matter of having the bridge over the mill raceway at Lot J, in the village of Warsaw, rebuilt if it is possible to get the work done at the resent time.

On motion, the following accounts were passed for payment: G. Lonsberry, for expenditure of statute labour taxes collectable under By-law No. 763, for the village of Warsaw, $173; James Hawthorne, for special grant expended on road sub-division No. 42, $35.75.

Council adjourned to meet on Friday, 8th August, 1919, at 10.30 in the forenoon.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier Said

"After all, what a man does with his money is to invest, and there is no better way to invest it than in Life Insurance."

As an ESTATE BUILDER there is nothing to equal Life Insurance.

TAKE THE FOLLOWING ACTUAL RESULT

A young man, sixteen years of age, took out a 15-year Endowment (No. 210,980) in the Sun Life of Canada, which matured on the first of April. This young man paid annually $66.30 for fifteen years, and he has now, through that investment, an immediate estate of $3,425.00 in case of death.

DO YOU KNOW THAT THIS AMOUNTS TO ALMOST 15% COMPOUND INTEREST ON EVERY DOLLAR HE PAID?

No wonder Sir Wilfrid said (and he might have added, No better place than the Sun Life of Canada), "There is no better way to invest it than in LIFE INSURANCE."

AND THE SUN LIFE OF CANADA GIVES THIS RESULT.

Embarrassing Hairs Can Be Quickly Removed

(Beauty Culture.)

Hairs can be easily banished from the skin by this quick, painless method: Mix into a stiff paste some powdered delatone and water, spread on hairy surface, and in 2 or 3 minutes rub off, wash the skin, and it will be free from hair or blemish. Excepting in very stubborn growths, one application is sufficient. To avoid disappointment, buy the delatone in an original package.

WAR MEMORIAL FOR NORWOOD

MATTER WAS DISCUSSED AT A REPRESENTATIVE MEETING.

NORWOOD, July 9. — A very large and enthusiastic meeting was held in the town hall on Friday night, when representatives of the churches, societies, etc., met to discuss the subject of a war memorial.

There was a comittee appointed to inquire into the cost of the different suggestions and as to the form this should take. The parents of some of the fallen heroes seemed very much in favor of a monument, while others seemed to think a memorial building of some kind would be better. This will be decided at a future public meeting of the villagers and people fro mthe surrounding country.

SOMETHING THEY NEED IN PETERBORO

The Government arbitrator, J. B. White of Toronto, was in Trenton on Friday conducting an arbitration to fixe the value of some seventy lots expropriated by the Trenton Housing Commission. The commission has obtained $800,000 from the Government for the purpose of building modern homes for the citizens of Trenton, who desire to take advantage of the Government's liberal policy of enabling people to become owners of up-to-date homes at moderate prices and on easp payments. The lots expropriated are high and dry and located on one of the most beautiful spots on the west hill, having a view of the Bay and being near the Trenton Park. The Trenton council is to be congratulated on its progressive spirit in this matter. W. C. Mikel, K.C., acted for the owner and A. Abbott for the Trenton Housing Commission.

ACCIDENTAL DEATH WAS THE VERDICT

The adjourned inquest inquiring into the death of the late Frank Pearson, who was fatally injured on the Grand Trunk near Omemee on Friday, July 5, was held in the Lindsay Town Hall last night, and was presided over by Coroner Dr. Blanchard.

The evidence of the train crew was heard, after which the jury brought in a verdict of accidental death, exonerating the G.T.R.

DISORDERS PLAYED UP BY ENGLISH PAPERS

IF THEY HAPPEN IN CANADIAN CAMPS—DON'T PAY ATTENTION TO OTHERS.

LONDON, July 10. — Present in London on private affairs, yet as a Canadian newspaper man, I have made it my business to visit camps Witley and Epsom, in order to ascertain the facts at first hand regarding the recent riots.

Within the last ten days Canadian soldiers concentrated from a dozen brigades at Witley Camp, thirty-five miles from London, and convalescent Canadian soldiers at Epsom Hospital Camp, twenty miles from London, have rioted, destroyed property and, in the case of the Epsom convalescents, killed a police sergeant during a successful jail delivery.

It may be said at once that riots in soldiers' concentration camps are not unusual even among the English troops, the Australian, or others. Yet it is said by those who should know that since the armistice every disorderly episode among the Canadians is played up in the British newspapers while similar disorders among British or Australian soldiers are either not mentioned or made light of.

What has happened in Canadian camps, with the exception of the killing of the Epsom policeman, has happened in a greater or less degree in British camps, and it is a matter of keen regret to Canadians that their delinquencies should be proclaimed while those of their fellow-fighters in Flanders should be touched lightly, if at all.

I was at Epsom yesterday. Police-Sergt. Green was given a large funeral. They are selling his memorial card on the street. That card bore this inscription: "In loving remembrance of Police-Sergt Thomas Green, aged 51 years, who died on Wednesday, June 18, 1919, in the infirmary at Epsom from injuries received while defending the police station at Epsom against an attack by Canadian soldiers." The memorial was not a fair or generous statement of the case, but that can be forgiven because it was the expression of local pride in the police force.

The Ministry of the overseas military forces of Canada has promised speedy home-goings and intimated that owing to the seriousness of the Epsom episode that all future infraections of Canadian camp discipline will be dealt with without palliation.

REMOVE SPURS AT DANCES; GIRLS' STOCKINGS ARE TORN

FRENCH RESTAURANTS INSIST THAT WAR EQUIPMENT MUST GO—AMERICAN MILITARY POLICE CLEAN UP PARIS.

PARIS, July 9.—The American military police of Paris have received orders for cleaning up the town, and they are enforcing them fully.

Yesterday afternoon a military cop stopped a taxicab on the boulevards in which an American Lieutenant, who had been drinking, was hugging and kissing a French girl.

The military cop pulled the Lieutenant out of the taxi despite his protests, and then told the chauffeur to drive on with the girl. She protested, saying: "Who will pay my fare?" So the military cop dug down, paid the taxi fare, and then arrested the Lieutenant. Several American civilians standing by complimented the military cop, asserting a few American officers had been giving the entire A.E. F. a bad name through such actions, as the French police are loath to interfere with anyone wearing an American uniform, no matter what his conduct.

All restaurants having dance floors now are insisting that American officers remove their spurs when fox-trotting, owing to the fact that Parisiennes, threaten to boycott places where the officers are permitted to wear spurs.

The girls say their ankles frequently are cut on the crowded dance floors, and silk stockings, costing from $8 up a pair, were torn and ruined.

HONOUR FOR PETERBORO GIRL

Miss Margaret Davidson, who is a daughter of Mr. J. I. Davidson, George street, and who formerly was a teacher here, has met with new success in the teaching profession in Toronto. The Times of that city has the following:

Honour has been paid to Miss Margaret Davidson and public recognition made of her work in the Technical school by the decision which has been reached by the Board of Education to offer her the post of Supervisor of Domestic Science and Art in the Toronto Public Schools. The work Miss Davidson has done in the Technical School has been not merely practical but also idealistic, for she has overlooked no opportunity of planting highest ideals of home life in the minds of the girls who have passed through her department. The newest things in household science have been tried out, and if satisfactory, adopted, and the classes kept abreast of the times in every way. Miss Davidson has kept in touch with every phase of women's work, and from one of her classes in the Technical School there was organized the Canadian Business Women's Club, one of the most flourishing women's associations in Toronto to-day.

A New Program

The Public Schools once had a Supervisor of Domestic Science and Art, Miss Hunter, who left the staff eight years ago, and whose place has never been filled. The women on the Board of Education now feel that a change is necessary in the program, as it affects the teaching of Domestic Science, and that little headway can be made without a leader. At present the subject is taught in the schools in one room, with individual burners and little opportunity for anything but cookery. It is rather fragmentary instruction and does not teach household management. The new plan is to introduce home-like equipment with, in the one room, sections providing for teaching various branches of housework such as those involved in bedroom, laundry and kitchen. Such a scheme has been tried out in Lee School with such a degree of success that it is to be carried on into Williamson road, Elginton avenue and Huron street schools. Miss Davidson will have to play a double part in making the best she can of what still must go on for a time in the old way and at the same time developing the new along the best and most practical lines.

Dr. A. C. McKay has expressed to Mrs. A. C. Courtice and Mrs. W. E. Groves his willingness to lend Miss Davidson to the Public Schools for a year and also to facilitate her return to the Technical School at the end of that time if her work for the schools shall have been completed.

CANADA IS BEATEN IN TIMBER MARKET

OWING TO HIGH RATES, DOMINION HAS NO CHANCE OF COMPETING IN ENGLAND.

LONDON, July 10. — Despite the urgent need of timber for the huge house building program of the Government and municipalities here, Canadians see little chance of supplying the market in competition with Scandmavians. The chief difficulty is shipping. Before the war, Canadian rates were nearly double those from lower Scandinavia. Today they are almost trebled, thus helping the Scandinavian intention to control the British market, especially now that the large Russian competition is quiescent.

Maubert, the Ontario Timber Commissioner informs me that until the British Government's economic policy is announced and the Government stocks of timber distributed, individual purchases from Canada or elsewhere are bound to be deferred, moreover, the present freights make all privat timber importation very hazardous unless for a definitely arranged outlet. Canada must devise home means of controlling transportation as well as producing the wares. It is incongruous to expect Canada to compete successfully with Sweden and Norway in timber products, and at the same time look to these countries for a large proportion of bottoms to carry Canadian goods.

The huge building program now being formulated in all parts of Britain needs large supplies of white pine. The quality of Ontario's product is well recognized, but the price bears a prominent part in the introductory stages of any extension in its use here. Everything, says Maubert, depends on shipping facilities and prices announced. French and British timber merchants have together agreed to put the demands of practically all importers of Baltic timber in England and France into the hands of a central chartering bureau at Great St. Helen's, London City. This alliance is designed to reduce the freighters and encourage Baltic trade.

FIRE TRUCK WILL HAUL HOSE WAGON

Fire Chief Beadle, of Lindsay, appeared before the Council and outlined a scheme whereby the hose wagon could be hooked up with the auto fire truck and taken to fires where a considerable length of hose was required. He instanced the experience at the recent fire at Carew's box factory, when a team had to be borrowed to have the hose wagon brought to the fire.

Chief Beadle's plan commended itself to the Council, and he was instructed to put it into effect.—Lindsay Post.

Stuffed Head Cleared Of Catarrh Germs

To catarrh victims we have just one word of advice—cure it now. The remedy is "Catarrhozone." That it will cure permanently you cannot doubt. Catarrhozone has cured thousands; it will cure you, too.

It acts in two ways: First, it destroys the germ—that checks the progress of the disease. Its second action is to heal the sore places the germs caused. Nice to think of breathing little drops of healing to every part of the lungs, bronchial tubes and nasal passages. It is such absolute throughness that makes Catarrhozone so effective in grippe, catarrh, and colds. Then by its sedative influence upon the mucous surface it clears away the cough and throat tenderness very quickly. We owe something to a science that has given us Catarrhozone—that wonderful remedy which so surely enables us to permanently cure disease of the breathing apparatus. We all know that stomach dosing is useless, and this departure in the mode of treatment is an advance in medical science that everybody can appreciate and value. Complete outfit of Catarrhozone, which is guaranteed to cure any case of catarrh, asthma, bronchial, or throat troubles, lasts three months, price $1.00; smaller size, 50c; trial size, 25c. Sold everywhere.

KEEP POLITICS OUT.

The resolution passed by the Perth Temperance Alliance urging that the Provincial Government recognize the importance of keeping the temperance referendum entirely free from political issues, echoes a fear that is found among temperance advocates throughout the province. The reports that the Government is contemplating an appeal to the electors at the same time as the referendum is being taken, are disquieting to say the least to all friends of temperance, who realize that in the midst of a hot political fight, the real merits of the temperance issue would be lost sight of. There would be no justification for the introduction of an election campaign in connection with the prohibition vote. By all means the referendum must be taken first if the cause of temperance is to receive justice. Other temperance organizations should lose no time in following the example of the Perth Alliance in pressing upon the government the desirability of announcing at once that there will be no political campaign in connection with the referendum.

A MIDDLE-CLASS UNION.

Reports from Vancouver in connection with the industrial disturbances there, hint at a possible development of the situation in the form of a middle-class union, composed of the salaried men and women [illegible] not included in the existing unions. This idea is being [illegible] in England and now that Vancouver has experienced the discomfort and annoyance of a general strike there is a tendency on the part of the thousands of people who cannot be classed either as employers or trades unionists to organize for their own protection. The Vancouver press in strongly favouring the plan point out that the employers and union labour men together do not comprise more than ten per cent. of the population and yet when there is a difference of opinion and a strike follows, the other ninety per cent. of the population are put to great loss, suffering and inconvenience. In Vancouver at present there is a Citizens' League comprising 4,000 members banded together to protect the public during the general strike and the proposal is made that the League, after the present trouble is over, should form the nucleus of a union to represent the general public. There is much to be said in favour of the plan.

SHOULD APPOINT VETERANS

The resolution of the Peterboro Branch of the Great War Veterans' Association, that returned soldiers should be appointed to act as enumerators in connection with the temperance referendum to be taken in Ontario, seems a reasonable one and should receive consideration from the Provincial Government. There are thousands of ex-service men who are qualified to perform the duties of enumerators satisfactorily, who are at present out of employment and with scant prospects of securing a position. The temporary assistance that would be derived from their being appointed to prepare the voters' lists for the coming referendum would be a benefit to these men and their families, and there is no reason why they should not be selected for this work unless the Government looks upon the appointment as political patronage and desires to divide it among friends of the party. The request of the local Veterans will undoubtedly be strongly endorsed by other associations of returned men throughout the province.

Public bodies are careless over this matter of appointing returned soldiers There has been an instance of this in Peterboro in the past few days in the appointment of a special policeman at Inverlea Park. The salary of $15 per week which goes with this berth, would have been acceptable to many a returned soldier and the work is of a character that it could have been performed by a man not in the best of health. Last year a returned soldier gave every satisfaction as caretaker of the park, but for some reason or other a veteran was not selected on this occasion.

It is never safe to judge a woman's [illegible] by the way she [illegible] in [illegible] with a parcel.

LEAVING THE SHIP.

The decision of Sir Thomas White to retire from the Borden government, removes one of the most able members of the Cabinet and leaves the administration already weak and inefficient, in a hopelessly impotent condition. The government's chief organ in Ontario, the Mail and Empire, in announcing the retirement of the Finance Minister, declares that "there is no difference of opinion on policy or administration between he and his colleagues and it is only the strongest private reason that has forced him to arrive at the decision." From the stories of dissension in government circles the Mail's version of the exit from public life of Sir Thomas White will undoubtedly be taken with a grain of salt. It is stated on good authority that there was a movement on foot favoured by the high protectionists of the Tory party to have the Finance Minister succeed Sir Robert Borden as Premier, and the member for West Peterborough rather let this particular cat out of the bag in a recent interview with his local newspaper supporter. The resignation of Sir Thomas at this particular stage undoubtedly gives colour to the report.

The Finance Minister leaves a heavy task to his successor. The problems that he himself had to face during the war years were enormous, but the man who steps into his shoes now will find that he has been bequeathed a burden of even greater proportions. The providing of finances for the repatriation and pensioning of Canadian soldiers and for the ordinary business of the country will be a task that will require the ability and talent of the most capable financier that Canada can produce. Another domestic loan must be floated, there are further loans to be obtained in the United States, and in addition there will have to be a revision of the tariff. It is a fine heritage Sir Thomas leaves to his successor.

DOMINION DAY REFLECTIONS

This week Canada passed her fifty-second birthday. The first of July was the occasion, as is customary and fitting, for celebrations and speech-makings in all parts of the country. Who has not listened with rapt attention to the First of July orator as he takes the spell-bound listener from the fishing grounds of Nova Scotia, sweeps him across the country with a mighty outpouring of noble words and dumps him exhausted into the cool and beautiful waters of the Gulf of Georgia? Who has not thrilled while being dragged thunderously from the Forty-ninth parallel, which marks the northern limit of "That Great Republic to the South of Us," to the igloo of the squat Eskimo in the land where the sun never sets in the summer and the North Pole wags dismally in the icy winter breeze?

On Dominion Day we celebrate the welding of this immense territory into a whole, and it is right that we should celebrate and that spellbinderic should spellbind the school-children, and the newspapers cry aloud that we are fifty-two years old. For the welding of the scattered colonies which now make up the Dominion was a good deed well done. There is nothing the matter with Confederation, and it is always with pleasure that I listen to the orators speak of the grandeur of Canada and fan the fat-tailed beaver with a marvelously colored Maple Leaf. And the beauty of the orators is that they always carefully confine their remarks to the physical aspect of the subject in hand. In this they have ample scope, for Canada is truly a wonderful theme. Canada, the part that God made, is something beyond words to express. One wonders sometimes that the orators do not falter. The storm-swept, saw-edged coast of Nova Scotia; the tumultous forests of New Brunswick (bad name that—ought to be changed to New Wales or New Ayrshire); the St. Lawrence, spouting into the Atlantic the waters of half a continent; the ancient mountains and cosy villages of Quebec; the impressive strength of Quebec City; the wooded valley of the Ottawa; the peaceful beauty of Ontario; the wonder of the Great Lakes; the spruce-spread of the North Shore; the modern Babel of Winnipeg; the magic wonder of the prairies; the feverish cities of the plain, springing from a sprawling progeny of booms and bombast into substantial youths of great commercial promise; the Rockies in all their splendour, the ragged, glorious spine of North America; the mirror-like lakes and the silent valleys; Vancouver, the port of the Empire; Vancouver Island, an empire in itself; Canada, the land of promise — no wonder the orators thump their tables and wave their arms.

Canadians have heard all this and many of them have seen it. They know that their country is a marvel of beauty, and that its wealth is past computation. All Canadians honor those men who gathered in London fifty-two years ago and conducted the negotiations which made Confederation possible. They were men with brains and vision, and men who left behind them a trust and a legacy.

When the time comes around each year for us to do honor to these men—and, in fact, at all times in all years — Canadians should consider how they have handled this trust. They should ask themselves whether they have made it pay a dividend. They know that God's part of Canada is marvellous and complete and that the Fathers of Confederation welded it into a [illegible] [illegible] so that Canadians coming after them could dwell advantageously in it; become a great race and live in history. Now, the question is: Can Canadians look back with complaisance on these fifty-two years of Confederation? What has been done by men with the country prepared so wonderfully by Nature? What great triumphs have been achieved? What substantial progress has been made? Have we dealt wisely with the trust left in our hands?

In answering these questions, one fact stands out clearly. The race is good. In the terrible test of the world-war Canadians showed themselves to be of good quality. Morally and physically, they showed that they were the equal of any of the nations of the earth. Canada has no call to feel ashamed of those who dwell therein.

But in giving future answer to the questions, it must be admitted that there is cause for sorrow. The men who have held political power in Canada since the time of Confederation have played fast and loose with her assets. The mines and forests have been alienated; the land has been allowed to fall into the hands of speculators, and not users; the greed for surface progress and unhealthy growth have brought into the Dominion thousands and thousands of undesirable citizens; great railways have been built for base political ends; the people's money squandered in projects designs to fill the purses of the already rich; the comfortable classes have been coddled into greater comfort, while the conditions of the working classes have been allowed to right themselves; the acquisition of money has been made the stamp of merit; titles have been bestowed only on those who have succeeded in amassing wealth in any manner whatever; statesmanship has been measured by the ability of the politician to purchase the support of the electors; newspapers are held successful on the size of their advertising columns; power has been used for profit; profit for greater profit; commercialism has been made the creed of the country; no working man holds place in the councils of the Dominion; no honor is accorded the man who fails to die in luxury; God's part of Canada is still a suitable theme for the orators, for it is amazingly beautiful and fine; it is well that the orator hesitates to expand on man's contribution since Confederation.

All this may seem dismal when I started out by saying that the race, morally and physically, was good. The difficulty has been that the men in power have not been of the type that made Canada's name known throughout the world during the war. The party politician has done his best to despoil Canada; but the race at heart is strong and good.

On the birthday of our country we should take stock of what we have been doing. We have left our estate in the hands of crooked agents. We can next year more heartily celebrate our birthday if we can show ourselves that we are resolved to guard well our heritage from the men who dissipate our future. — Turner's Weekly.

NO SUGAR, SO THE FRUIT IS SPOILING

Not a Pound Brought in to Ogdensburg by Wholesalers During June.

OGDENSBURG, July 10. — The shortage of sugar in this city is now acute. There is less sugar here than at any time during the war. Not a pound was received by any of the wholesale houses during the month of June. Fruit of all kinds have proved to be a drug on the market, as the householders have no sugar with which to can any of the fruits.

A carload of sugar is promised one of the wholesalers some time this week, but as this will be distributed among all their customers throughout the country, the individual allotments will of necessity be small.

Canada has plenty of sugar but the customs regulations of the United States forbids the bringing in of sugar to this country. Many of the people, however, are taking a chance and bringing small amounts over. It seems to be another case where the people of this country get the worst of it.

CHANNEL TUNNEL AS PEACE PROGRAM

Movement is Endorsed at Meeting of British House of Commons

LONDON, July 9—The channel tunnel, connecting France with England, is looming in the foreground as a post peace programme.

At a meeting of Members of Parliament held in the House of Commons to discuss a report on the tunnel, Sir Arthur Yapp, who presided, moved that a letter be sent to Premier Clemenceau congratulating him on the peace treaty and expressing the hope that it would be immediately followed by the construction of the channel tunnel.

A resolution asking for the support of the movement as the best proof of our desire to maintain and improve our friendship and alliance with France was submitted by the Chairman, Mr. Bonar Law. He said he asked them to wait till peace was signed. The resolution was carried unanimously and a deputation was appointed to approach Premier Lloyd George upon the matter.

WAR SUGAR TO BE THROWN ON UNITED STATES MARKET

WASHINGTON, July 9.—Sale of 21,000,000 pounds of surplus sugar now held by the War Department has been authorized, it was announced to-day, at a minimum price to be fixed by the United States Sugar Equalization Board to cover the cost to the Government. The only condition of sale will be that none of this stock may be exported. Investigation having shown that the principal shortage at present is in States east of the Mississippi, efforts will be made to find purchasers in that [illegible]

HINTS ON COOLING MILK

Three Essentials in Cooling Explained.

Make That Spring on Your Farm a Profit Question — It Should Be Enlarged, Cleaned Out Well and Curbed in an Efficient Way.

(Contributed by Ontario Department of Agriculture, Toronto.)

BACTERIA is larger or smaller numbers are always present in freshly drawn milk. At temperatures between 60 deg. F. and 98 deg. F. (blood heat) they grow and multiply rapidly, causing the milk to become quickly spoiled. As the temperature falls below 60 deg. F., the bacteria become less active, the changes caused by them are less marked, so the milk keeps sweet and in good condition for a longer time.

Growth of bacteria in milk in 24 hours (136,000 per c.c. when freshly drawn):

Temp. held.	Bacteria Per C.C. (10 drops) after 24 hours.
40 deg. F.	280,000
50 deg. F.	1,170,000
60 deg. F.	24,000,000

The above table shows how low temperatures check bacterial multiplication in milk. This is the scientific fact upon which the practice of milk cooling is founded.

In practice a dairyman should bear in mind three things in connection with the cooling of milk. First—cool milk with as little delay as possible after it comes from the cow. Second—cool milk to as low a temperature as possible, say somewhere between 40 deg. F. and 50 deg. F. Third—cool milk with as little contamination as possible from outside sources, such as dust, dirty utensils, water splashings, etc. If these three points were regularly attended to by all dairies a marked improvement in the general quality of our milk supplies would be noticeable right away.

The quickest way to cool milk is to run it over some form of tubular or surface cooler, pail by pail, immediately it is drawn from the cow. In this way milk may be rapidly cooled to within two or three degrees of the temperature of the water used. The objections to this method are the extra work involved in washing the cooler twice a day, the difficulty of keeping it properly clean, and the danger of contaminating the milk with dust, barn odours, etc., unless the cooler is used in a clean and separate milk room.

The other alternative is to place the cans of milk in a tank of running cold water at the earliest opportunity, or in an insulated tank of water into which some chopped-up ice is thrown. If the milk is stirred once every ten minutes during the first hour, cooling will take place more rapidly than where milk is left unstirred. If cold running water is not available all summer, enough ice should be put up during the winter to ensure the milk being brought to a sufficiently low temperature during the warmer portions of the year.

The importance of prompt and thorough cooling of milk is still insufficiently appreciated by many milk producers. There is no cheaper and simpler method by which milk quality may be improved.—T. H. Lund, B.S.A., O. A. College, Guelph.

Making the Farm Spring More Serviceable.

Fortunately a great many farmers of Canada can boast of a good spring of water on their farms. In some cases it is the only reliable and perennial source of water, and when this is the case it usually receives proper care. Probably, however, in general, the spring is a secondary consideration as a water supply, particularly domestic, and consequently is let "run wild" more or less, and is not, therefore, rendering the service it might if it were properly equipped. The object of this short article is to make a few suggestions for the improvement of springs in general.

In the first place the spring should be enlarged, deepened and cleaned out well and then cribbed up in some efficient way. Probably the best method is to get a large concrete or sewer pipe tile or two, about 2½ feet in diameter, and put them down in the spring, cementing the joints well. Put an overflow pipe through the wall of the upper tile close to the high water mark of the spring, and connect the overflow pipe to a tile drain that leads down to a good outlet some distance away. If it is not connected to a drain the open end should be screened. If the spring be in the pasture it should be fenced in and the overflow pipe referred to extended horizontally to a trough outside the fence. The top should be provided with a tight cover made of concrete or heavy plank.

The spring becomes particularly serviceable if it happens to be located on an elevation considerably greater than the house and barns, for then the water can be piped down under the first line to storage tanks in the buildings. From the tanks the water flows by gravity to the points of service. Or if the supply is great enough and a fall of a few feet can be secured within a short distance, say 30 or 40 feet of the spring, a hydraulic ram may be installed for pumping the water of a spring to the house and barns. Usually it is pumped into a storage tank in the attic of the house or loft of barn, and from these gravitates to the various plumbing fixtures in the house and the troughs and drinking basins in the stables. If you are particularly interested in this subject of the farm spring and how to make it more serviceable write the Department of Agriculture, Toronto, for a copy of Bulletin 207, which tells you all about it. It costs you nothing for the information except a postal card and a two-cent postage stamp.—R. R. Graham, B.S.A., O. A. College, Guelph.

HASTINGS CORRESPONDENCE

HASTINGS, July 9.—The congregation of the Bethel church held a social evening on Thursday last as a farewell to Rev. and Mrs. Snell, was presented with an autograph quilt and Mr. Snell with a purse containing $30.00. Following is the address:

Dear Mr. and Mrs. Snell—We, your friends of Bethel church have met here to night to spend a social evening with you before you enter your new field of work. We regret very much that you have to leave us, for we have always known that we had your sympathy in every phase of work we have undertaken.

Your sojourn amongst us has been marked by kindness and helpfulness and has gained for you the confidence and appreciation of your congregation. These few words but tamely express the respect in which you are held and thus we ask you to accept these gifts not merely for their value but as a remembrance of the esteem in which you are held by us.

As you go from our midst to your new field of labor, our united prayers go with you and we wish you God's protection and strength in all your undertakings.

Signed on behalf of the the Bethel congregation.

A large crowd collected in the Methodist church here on Monday evening to say farewell to Rev. and Mrs. Snell, who left on Tuesday for their new charge in Frankford. A good programme of readings and music was given after which Mr. and Mrs. Snell were presented with an address and a purse. Following is the address:—

Dear Mr. and Mrs Snell—The time has come when as a congregation we must say good-bye to you and as a pastor and it is with mingled sorrow and gladness that we have assembled to bid you farewell.

We dislike to think of losing you as ur pastor and friend, the thought of which is grievous unto us.

During the four years of your pastorate here, we have come not only to appreciate the value of your work among us, but to love you as a man. So that it is with heavy hearts that we separate from you.

On the other hand we are glad that we have been privileged to have had you as our pastor, glad to have had you in our midst, glad to have come in tduch with you from day to day. In a quiet unassuming inoffensive way, you have preached to us the Gospel, and the light of the Christ life has been so reflected by you, that it has [illegible]ed itself among us, permeating [illegible]inds and hearts, so that we be[illegible] that through you we have been [illegible]en nearer unto Him. Our only regret is that we have not supported you as we might have done.

No one in Hastings, be they of denomination or otherwise, be they Protestant or Roman Catholic, but hold you in the highest respect and as congregation we feel that we were never more united than now. Your good influence will continue to live, and rest assured that you will not be forgotten.

We beg you, therefore to accept this gift from the congregation as a token of our esteem, and we wish for you both the highest material prosperity and the blessing of God in your new field of labor.

In behalf of the congregation.

Council Meeting

At the regular meeting of the town Council held on Friday evening, a communication was read from the county clerk asking the council to try and collect the following—County rate, $30.56; debenture and sinking fund rate, $22.17; Public and Separate School rate, $40.68.

Several accounts were read and it was moved by Mr. Doyose, seconded by Mr Plant that orders be drawn on the Treasurer for the several amounts.—Carried.

Moved by Mr. Plant seconded by Dr. Wilson, that the request of Mr. T. Whitred be left in the hands of the Street Committee with power to act.

Moved by Mr. Chapman, seconded by Mr. Doyose ,that the Reeve and Treasurer be empowered to borrow by way of overdraft from the Union Bank, the sum of $2000.00 and a by-law be passed confirming the same.

Moved by Dr. Wilson, seconded by Mr. Chapman that cement sidewalks four feet wide be built on Wellington street from Albert to Division street on the west side, and on the west side of Bridge street, where the wooden side walk now is, and on the north side of Division street, where the wooden side walk is in a dangerous condition.

The Council adjourned.

MAY ALLISON IN "ALMOST MARRIED" AT THE GRAND TO-DAY, FRIDAY AND SATURDAY

In a remote [illegible], high in the Swiss Alps, Adrienne Le Blanc lives with her parents. Although her life has been spent in the mountains, the fame of her beautiful voice has penetrated to the outer world and attracts many tourists to the little inn.

One of these is Carrington O'Connell, a young American millionaire, who falls in love with the girl and wishes to marry her. He is discouraged however, by Hastings — Hastings' mission in life being to see that young O'Connell avoids the pitfalls that "are not being dug,"—and he considers marriage with Adrienne quite out of the question.

O'Connell weakly consents to follow Hastings' advice. They leave while the household is asleep and Adrienne wakes to find herself bodily deserted.

Another visitor at the inn is Manny Morrison, an American vaudeville agent, who has lingered in the mountains in the hope of persuading Adrienne to come to America, where, he tells her, she can win fame and fortune with her rare voice. Up to the present she has persisted in her refusal but the unhappy end of her love affair changes her views and she agrees to go.

It is not long before her golden voice wins all that Manny has predicted, and Adrienne becomes the leading favorite of a famous New York midnight revue.

In the meantime Michael O'Connell, father to Carrington, feels that he has kept his nose to the grindstone of commerce long enough and decides to taste the pleasures and amusements of the Great White Way. He meets Adrienne whom he greatly admires. His son visits the girl with him and the father is startled to find that they already know each other.

Adrienne later tells the old man of his son's faithlessness. Michael is disgusted that an O'Connell should prove so base and decides with the help of Adrienne, to give the young man a lesson in jealousy he will never forget, for it is evident that Carrington still loves her.

When their plans are perfected Adrienne announces that she is to marry O'Connell senior. Carrington is frantic at the news and pleads with Adrienne to marry him, which of course she refuses to do. Then [illegible]oell is added to injury and he is invited to his father's country home to visit the couple and be "matronized" by the girl he loves.

It soon dawns on the young man that the joke is on him and he determines to play the same trick on Adrienne. Consequently he arranges with the fiancee of his cousin that they will announce their engagement. He is unprepared at the calmness with which Adrienne takes it.

Things go on getting more deeply tangled and the situation is almost unbearable to the young man. It is not until Adrienne and Michael believe that Carrington has fully learned his lesson that she at last decides to drop the farce and accept his ardently protested love.

INSPECTED THE BATHING HOUSE

the chairmanship of Ald. McIntyre. The Mayor suggested to Mr. Cooper that in lieu of a salary he have the right to rent sewers and bathing suits to the bathers, with a refreshment booth. Mr. Cooper was not enthusiastic over this plan as he thought he should devote himself exclusively to the bathers.

Mayor Duncan—"The Playgrounds Association have appointed committees for the bathers."

Mr. Cooper thought that as many towels would be carried away as returned. He received 800 at Jubilee Park last year from the Nicholls Park Commission, but when he was informed that two other returned soldiers had applications in for the position he suggested that another meeting of the committee be called so that the other applicants could be on hand and be on equal terms with him in their bid for the position. The chairman called another meeting to be held to-morrow evening at 8 o'clock.

The bathing house was to be formally handed over to the Playgrounds Association this afternoon, but a number of alterations and additions which have been proposed has delayed this.

INFLAMED GUMS— THE CAUSE OF TOOTH-BASE DECAY

Just as the strength of a building is dependent upon its foundations, so are healthy teeth dependent upon healthy gums, or sockets.

Protect the gums to become inflamed or tender and you weaken the foundation of the teeth. This condition is called Pyorrhea (Pigor' Disease). Loosening of teeth is a direct result. And spongy, receding gums during period teeth often decay. Very few, too, as so many dentists do, realize germs to enter the system through the gums or tender—or receding gum pockets.

Pyorrhea (Pigor' Disease) attacks four out of five people who are over forty. And many under that age, also. It first appears in tender gums. So your dentist looks to your gums! Use Forhan's, which positively prevents Pyorrhea if used in time and used consistently. It also effectively cleans the teeth, keeps them white and sound. Brush your teeth with it.

If your dentist has already cut in, start using Forhan's and consult a dentist immediately for special treatment.

BLANCHE ORTON INSTILLS DOUBT IN BARBARA'S HEART

CHAPTER XII

Once when Neil had been very free with Blanche Orton, when I had sensed something—or thought I had—about his teasing — his caressing manner with her that was especially annoying, I said something of it to him. He laughingly told me that he treated other women the same way; so if I were going to be jealous of his manner with Blanche, I should be kept busy. I felt a little contemptuous, but I had long ago, although only married a little over a year, realized that Neil was Neil, and that I must love him, faults and all, if I were to love him at all.

I now knew that men weren't perfect any more than were women. When I was married I had thought Neil absolutely perfect. I could see no faults, no flaws. To be truthful, I saw very few even after living with him a year. Yet I often wondered where his lack of responsibility would lead him.

Often I was worried, too, about what Neil drank. Not that I would infer that he was a drunkard; but several times after we commenced going with his old friends he had taken more than was good for him.

Neil would laugh at me, tell me I was peeved because it made me ill, and a lot of other nonsense which quieted my fears for a time, but in no wise prevented their recurrence.

I had lunched with Blanche Orton one day, and she had grown quite confidential — without in the least meaning to, I am sure. She called my husband "Neil" in the kind of way that only a certain amount of intimacy would warrant. She talked of the good times they had before he was married, and said that had she not already had a husband, she would have taken him.

I was in no way jealous for myself. I was sure Neil loved me, and I was quite apart from the petty suspicions that are the Nemesis of so many married women. It was for Neil I was jealous. I wanted him to be so fine, so far superior to other men, that people would look up to him instead of—well—imagining him a flirt.

"Neil is wonderful," she had said. "He will be a very wealthy man some day. He knows how to take advantage of things. And he hasn't any foolish notions about its not being right to do so."

I didn't quite understand her and said so. She laughed and replied:

"Oh, nothing! only some men are such cranks, they never get on."

That night we talked together. Neil and I. I told him how much I loved him, that it wasn't for what he gave me, either. I recall that, among other things, I said:

"I want you to remember, Neil, that I think you the best man in the world. Nothing matters, nothing counts to me but you—and our happiness together. I am going to keep you always, against anybody or anything." Then I asked for money to buy a dinner gown.

"Why so much emphasis tonight?" he asked as he drew me to him and kissed me, telling me to get the gown and charge it.

"No special reason, only what I have said is true," I did not tell him of the sickening foreboding Blanche Orton's half confidence about his business ability, had left in my heart.

I did not realize what it meant to have Fortune bring lavish gifts in one hand, while she carried a drawn sword in the other.

Yet, for the first time, I had a suspicion that perhaps Neil, in the anxiety for money, his desire to "get on," as he called it, might perhaps do things that other men, men of strict integrity, might frown upon. Father had always been so absolutely honest; he had had no patience with men who, for material advantage, would quibble with honesty. So I had ingrained in me a sort of horror of anything approaching laxity.

But I was young, I loved my indulgent, irresponsible husband dearly, and I soon forgot to worry about the remark Blanche Orton had made. Or if I thought of it at all, it was to shrug it away with the thought that I had attached a meaning to her words which she had not meant to convey.

Then, too, I also loved the luxury Neil's money made possible — the dainty things to wear, and the things for my home; the food and servants. All I soon learned to take as a matter of course and to care about, more and more.

NO fruit tree disease this year has been so conspicuous and so injurious as the Leaf Curl of Peaches. In early June more than half of the peach orchards between Beamsville and St. Catharines and many orchards in other localities were so badly affected that almost every leaf was distorted, swollen and turning a brownish color. Most of these trees will not enter winter nearly so healthy nor bear so large a crop next year as if they had not been attacked by the Leaf Curl.

Control.

This year's experience, though a hard one, will doubtless be of much value to the fruit grower, for it has shown us perhaps seldom before the great importance of early spraying of peaches to prevent Leaf Curl. By early we mean before the leaf buds have begun to swell. Sometimes late spraying, that is spraying after the buds have begun to swell, will control the disease, but it will only do so where the wet weather does not come until after the spraying. A single day's rain would not of course be sufficient to start the disease. It takes several days of moist weather. There is good evidence that even fall spraying after the leaves have dropped will also control it.

The best mixture to use is lime-sulphur about 1 gallon to 7 gallons of water. Soluble sulphur 12½ pounds to 40 gallons of water will also control the disease, but is not so popular with the growers as the lime-sulphur. — L. Caesar, B.S.A., O. A. College, Guelph.

Fly Remedies.

The fly, like the poor, is always with us in summer-time. In spite of many campaigns having for their slogan, "Swat the fly," he is still with us, and likely to be until the end of time.

Flies are a terrible nuisance in the home, in the dairy and in the stable. They torment the very life out of cows. It is strange that man with all his inventive genius, has not yet been able to overcome his agile enemy, the fly.

Up to the present, no very satisfactory remedy for cow-flies has been worked out. The most we can do is to apply something which keeps them off the cows for a time. The numbers of fly remedies is legion. There are several very good patent remedies.

A good home-made mixture consists of two quarts of fish-oil or any kind of cheap oil or grease, one-half pint coal-oil, and four tablespoonfuls of crude carbolic acid, thoroughly mixed and applied to all parts of the cow except udder and teats, by means of a cloth or brush. This quantity will coat twenty-five cows, and unless there be rain soon after applying, one coating will last a week. (Leave out the coal-oil for calves.)

Lighter mixtures, containing creosol, napoleum, etc., may be sprayed on daily. If done before milking, great care is needed, else the milk will become tainted. — Prof. H. H. Dean, O. A. College, Guelph.

"Protecting Pigs From Sunscald."

Now that the hot summer weather has come those who own light colored pigs are beginning to complain of sunburn or sunscald. This condition of the hide of the animal is similar to that of people, it gives the same [illegible] pig and is caused in the same manner. Consequently, the same method of prevention and treatment may be carried out.

In the first place, "an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure," and the prevention is shelter. No matter what kind of stock is in the pasture, shade is essential, and much more so is it for pigs on account of the thin coating of hair on their bodies. If the pasture for pigs is so situated that there are no trees to afford shade to the animals it would be just as well to keep them shut up during the hottest parts of the day and allow them to run out during the evening, night and early morning hours. By keeping them in a pen that is somewhat darkened, they miss both the hot rays of the sun and the flies that are always so bad around a stable of any kind, during the hot weather.

Some people provide a "hog wallow" in their pasture which is a very good thing, but the location should be some place in the shade, as it is a well-known fact that the hide will blister far quicker when wet than when dry. A pig seems to think that a wallow is an essential thing, and if he persuades the farmer into thinking the same, the farmer should lead him to believe that during the heat of the day it is the best time to keep out of it.

If the pigs have become sunburned at all, it is well to keep them inside for a few days and thoroughly grease their bodies, with some nice smooth grease such as vaseline. The grease tends to keep the air from the irritated skin and ease the uncomfortableness of the animal. Vaseline also has a wonderful healing and curative property which makes it preferable in such cases. — J. C. McBeath, B.S.A., O. A. College, Guelph.

POULTRY MEN HELD A MEETING LAST EVENING

REPORT ON THE BIG CONFERENCE AT GUELPH.

At the regular monthly meeting of the Peterborough Poultry Association last night the chief item of interest was the report of Mr. Joseph Kelly on the poultry conference at Guelph. His report stated that it was one of the most instructive and entertaining meetings he had ever had the pleasure of attending, and plans were adopted which, it is believed, will have a very beneficial effect on the poultry industry.

A permanent committee was formed to promote an egg-laying and breeding contest, but it is intended to go a step further than any previous affair of this kind, and test the breeding as well as the laying qualities of the birds entered in the competition, and no visible results may be anticipated until 1920.

Interesting addresses were given by several speakers, among others, Mr. Brown, who had been sent to Europe by the Canadian Government, who gave his report on market conditions in Europe, in which he stated that there was a good opening over there for Canadian products at present.

White Wyandottes were on exhibition last evening, and it was decided to bring this year's produce to the next meeting on the second Wednesday in August.

EMMY WEHLEN IN "HIS BONDED WIFE" AT THE GRAND TO-NIGHT

Be sure to remember that Emmy Wehlen in "His Bonded Wife" will be at the Grand Theatre to-day Friday and Saturday. This is an attraction which you cannot afford to miss as it is a comedy of unusual smartness and fascination.

It tells the story of a beautiful and wealthy New York girl who wishes to be loved for herself and not for her wealth. For this reason she leaves home and goes to live in an unpretentious way by herself. Her many adventures—both amusing and dramatic—and cleverly shown by Miss Wehlen and her brilliant and supporting company. How she meets and falls in love with a young architect, and the many complications which arise through her harmless deception, are incidents which will be appreciated by everyone.

No man or woman is ever good just for the fun of the thing.

He who wears a long face doesn't necessarily live the longest.

Lucky is the man whose troubles don't bother him any ore than they do his friends.

PRINCE OF WALES WILL BE INVITED TO PETERBORO

EXHIBITION BOARD EAGER TO HAVE HIS ROYAL HIGHNESS OPEN THIS YEAR'S FAIR—REQUEST TO LEGISLATURE TO PERMIT STREET CARS TO OPERATE ON SUNDAY.

WORK AT SPECIAL MEETING

After Mayor Duncan had cracked the whip over the Council last night business flowed more smoothly than at many a regular session.

Ald. Phelan moved seconded by Ald. McIntyre, that the Mayor and Ald. Turner extend an invitation to the Prince of Wales to visit Peterboro during his tour of Canada this summer.

The Mayor stated that the Exhibition Board were trying to secure the Prince to open the Peterboro Exhibition, and Mr. J. H. Burnham had already forwarded an invitation to the authorities in their behalf.

A Familiar Division

Ald. Crowe moved that the Council urge the Government to give effect to the recommendotions of the Industrial Commission of the House of Commons.

Ald. Edgar—"I think that's a matter for the Trades and Labour Council.

Several Councils have already done this.

Ald. Gainey seconded the motion which was supported only by Aldermen Garside and McIntyre.

Ald. Crowe declared that this was the report of the Government's commission. Its report favored the eight hour day, minimum wage, living wage, employees' voice in factory management.

"In fact", said Ald. Crowe, "the report is practically the charter of any Labour Union." The motion was defeated.

For Sunday Cars

Ald Gainey moved seconded by Ald. Crowe that the Council petition the Ontario Government to amend the statute, which allows citiese of 10,000 and over to run street cars on Sundays, and to substitute a clause permitting all cities to have Sunday streets cars providing the majority of the ratepayers in any city vote in favour of it. Copies of this resolution will be sent to many Ontario cities in which there are similar movements to broaden this statute.

Tax Collector's Salary.

Instead of a $2,000 salary from which he should pay all the expenses of his office, Tax Collector Green was granted $450 in addition to his present salary of $1,550, the additional sum providing for extra help and postage. The motion embodying this change was submitted by Ald. Crowe and seconded by Ald. Gainey.

RESTRICT EMPLOYMENT ALIENS IN BRITAIN

(Canadian Press.)

LONDON, July 10.—Despite strong opposition by the Government the House of Commons committee to-day passed by a vote of 15 to 12 the clause in the Alien Bill restricting the employment of aliens in Great Britain. The Under Secretary of the Home Office had argued before the committee that the inclusion of the clauses in the bill would wreck the influence of the United Kingdom in the Empire.

TROUBLE PURSUED BRIDGE PROBLEM

Ald. Edgar moved, seconded by Ald. McIntyre, that no action be taken, and the Council assented.

The next business was the bridge by-law. Word was brought that there were no signs of the absent Alderman.

"I want to be fair to these members," said His Worship. "They went away in good faith."

Ald. Turner suggested that some one go after them in an automobile.

Mayor Duncan: No, I don't think we should run after them, but I told them there was no meeting, and that's why they're not here.

Ald. Gainey remarked that there was no hurry, and that the Council might wait for a short time.

In a few minutes, however, the reading of the by-law was begun, and Aldermen Morrison and Taylor didn't return.

The Company Represented.

Messrs. John E. Russell, Chas. H. Townsend, and F. H. Navin, the principals of the Russell-Townsend Company, arrived after the little cloud had lifted, and were present when the agreement was read.

Ald. Crow pointed out that the wages of labour were not specifically stated in the contract. The prevailing rate of wages seemed somewhat indefinite to him.

Ald. Garside: The labourers said they would stay with the bridge until it was finished at 45 cents an hour.

Ald. Edgar was inclined to agree with Ald. Crowe. He said he had heard a rumour that the men were going to strike for higher wages as soon as the bridge work got under way.

Ald. Garside: When the men set their rate for one year, their constitution requires them to stand by it.

Ald. Gainey: Carpenters are offered 70 cents an hour in Oshawa. The contractor may not be able to hire men here at 67½ cents.

Ald. Turner: It would not be worth the difference for them to move and keep two houses.

Ald. Edgar: I feel that we should state in the contract that the rates now in force should be paid. It might be changed next year.

Ald. Phelan: I thought the wage question was all settled.

Ald. McIntyre: It's a good suggestion.

Ald. Edgar: Next year the rate may be more or less as the Council sees fit, depending upon conditions.

City Solicitor Widdifield made the amendment as suggested.

Two Members Opposed.

The vote on the by-law showed the following members in favour:

Aldermen Phelan, Edgar, Hamilton, Turner, Crowe, Garside, and Gainey.

Against: Mayor Duncan and Alderman McIntyre.

Aldermen Morrison and Taylor had opposed the Russell-Townsend tender at previous meetings.

City Engineer to Decide.

Another question upon which there had always been lack of agreement was the providing of small tools. Mr. Russell stated that the city should pay for the perishable plant, such as rubber hose, picks, etc., and in the event of dispute he would abide by the decision of City Engineer Parsons. This understanding was accepted by the Council.

Will Begin At Once.

At the close of the meeting Ald. Phelan said that, speaking for the Bridge Committee and himself, he was delighted that the contract had been settled at last.

"I hope that the company will go on with the work satisfactorily, and that we will have a good bridge," he said.

Mr. Townsend told him that the preparatory work would be begun "to-morrow."

Ald. Turner: Is everything ready for the signing of the contract?

Mr. Widdifield: I could have it ready to-morrow, but it is a half-holiday. It will be ready some time on Friday.

Replying to another question, Mr. Russell stated that concrete arch would not be built until next July and August in order that the most favourable weather possible could be secured for the setting of the cement.

And with feelings of school boys entering upon their midsummer vacations, the Council closed one of the longest, one of the most important, and probably one of the most interesting chapters that have ever been written into the municipal records of Peterborough.

CHEERING WAS PUNCTUATED WITH "REBEL YELLS"

Two O'clock Despatch:

WASHINGTON, July 10.— President Wilson, in presenting the peace treaty with Germany to the Senate to-day, declared that a league of free nations had become a practical necessity, to which the framers of the treaty felt obliged to turn as an indispensible instrument for the maintenance of the new order it has been their purpose to set up in the world. The most skeptical of the peace conferees at Paris, the President said, had turned more and more to the league as the discussion progressed in nothing a solution of the problems that arise in the framing of the terms of the treaty itself.

When the President entered the Senate chamber, escorted by a committee of senators, crowded galleries rose and cheered for a minute in disregard of the Senate rule. The President, mounting to the Vice-President's seat, spoke briefly when Vice-Pres. Marshall as the cheering ceased, punctuated with "rebel" yells.

THE HUNTER STREET CAMPAIGN

"How to Take the Conceit Out of a Man" was the subject of Evangelist H. D. Kennedy's address last evening in the big tan on Hunter Street. He based it on the story of Naaman, the great Syrian general, who was afflicted with leprosy, and who, by going to Elisha, the Prophet of Israel, was cleansed from the disease. Mr. Kennedy showed that through the faith of a little Israelitish maid that had been taken captive by the Syrians, and who told her mistress of the prophet Elisha in Israel, the great general Naaman was induced to go to Israel in search of a cure. All through the Scriptures leprosy stands for sin. It is incurable. Sin, like leprosy, is a disease. It puts everything out of gear. It does not belong on earth, and is here only through the agency of Satan. Just as Naaman, the Syrian general, was absolutely helpless to cure himself of his leprosy, although he longed to be clean, so the sinner is unable through anything he can do to rid himself of his load of sin. Even Naaman's king and all his wealth could not purchase or obtain the healing that he desired. So to-day neither riches nor power are sufficient to find a cure from sin apart from the method offered by God through Christ.

Rich Gifts.

When the general sought Elisha he took with him rich gifts and a great company. He expected that his greatness would be recognised and that he would be honoured by Elisha. Owing to his proudness of heart, Elisha did not even go to the door to meet him, but sent word to him that he should go and wash himself seven times in the River Jordan. This treatment greatly enraged Naaman, and he asked haughtily, "Are not Abana and Pharpar, rivers of Damascus, better than all the waters of Israel?" (2nd Kings, 5, 12.) The great general felt he had been humiliated. While he wanted to be cleansed, he desired to be cleansed in his own way. He was willing to pay Elisha a big sum to heal him. In all of this he is the type of the sinner to-day who does not like to come to God by the simple way of the cross, but would prefer to obtain salvation by giving big gifts to the churches or missions, engaging in social service, assisting the poor, or in other similar ways. Mr. Kennedy said that there is a great difference between being a servant of God and a child of God. Many professing Christians are willing to serve God without obeying Him and approaching Him in the God-ordained way. It is possible for such people to serve God all their lives and yet lose their souls. On the other hand, it is also impossible to find salvation by gifts to missions, the helping of the poor and needy, engaging in church work, and in other similar ways. God has ordained that first of all comes faith and the acceptance of Christ as a personal Savior and only then will good deeds done in the name of Christ count. It was not until Naaman, the Syrian, humbled himself and relinquished his false pride by consenting to bathe seven times in the River Jordan that he was cleansed. So to-day the sinner must come to Christ in all humbleness, conscious of his need, confessing his helplessness and trusting only in Christ for salvation before he can be saved and find God. Mr. Kennedy pointed out that the fault with Unitarianism, Christian Science, and Spiritualism and other such teachings is that they deny the diety of Christ and the need of the atonement, and thereby set aside the God-appointed method of finding salvation. At the close of the service, several more conversions were recorded.

Subject To-night.

The subject of to-night's address will be "The Biggest Fool in Peterborough," and to-morrow night "How Country People Live in Town." On Sunday night Mr. Kennedy will speak on "The Handwriting on the Wall." Word has been received that home people in Oshawa, where Mr Kennedy conducted a campaign some months ago, intend visiting Peterborough on Sunday night to hear Mr Kennedy. In the course of the song service last evening a duet was sung most effectively by Miss Ida Lynn and Mr. H. J. McKeown, of the St Paul's Church choir. This evening the service will start sharp on time. The singing will be led by the Salvation Army Songsters, a large number of whom, it is expected, will be present.

No man gets a right conception of sin till he gets a right conception of God.

Jesus thought there was nothing terrible in the world but sin.

Sin was awful to cause the agony of the garden and the suffering of the cross.

Sin is suicide in the end, if not checked.

"The soul that sinneth it shall die."

Sin is an anarchist in the realm of the soul.

The guilt of sin is the first divine lesson that every man must learn.

Sin weakens the body and enslaves the will.

It's an awful thing to commit the smallest sin.

Talking about becoming a Christian is not becoming one.

Reading about water in a book does not quench your thirst.

The only way to move some things when house-cleaning is to get them edgeways.

The only way to get some folks to think about their salvation is to make them angry.

You have to wound before you heal. You do not put on the court plaster until the wonnd is made.

There is a big difference between being a servant of God and a child of God—servants do not become heirs.

oN Sunday school teacher should be allowed to teach until they know Christ as their personal saviour, any more than a teacher in a day school to teach Greek, who does not know Greek.

How can the blind lead the blind?

It is said a politician once said "These are my sentiments, if you do not like them I will change them." We need men of conviction to-day.

Some sermons have a subject but no object.

When a mother says her boy tevears old is not old enough to be a Christian, someone should look after the mother.

When a man is converted you have a unit. When a child is converted you have a multiplication table. In one case only a soul is saved, in the other a life as well.

Better have a whole day's work done than only one hour before sunset.

A few flashes of silence would often improve some folks' conversation.

Subject Thursday night: "The Biggest Fool in Peterboro."

Subject Friday night: "How Country People Live In Town."

IS MOTHER-IN-LAW OF STEP-DAUGHTER

A tangle in relationship was discovered to Mr. F. W. Miller yesterday, in the affairs of a charity appeal that came to his attention. Briefly, the husband was 71 years old, and the wife 32. They have a son 15 years old who is married to the old man's daughter by a former wife.

STREET RAILWAYS ARE TAKEN OVER

Employees on Strike Have Increased Their Demands.

(Canadian Press.)

WINDSOR, July 10.—Windsor, Ontario Railway Board have now taken over the Sandwich, Windsor and Amherstburg Railway, with Vice-Chairman Ingram as manager. This was done after the Board had conferred ten minutes on arriving here to-day.

Employees now on strike have increased their demands. They first asked for a scale of from forty to fifty cents an hour, but now demand 50 to 60, saying the cost of living has increased during the last three weeks.

FIGHTING CONTINUES

(Canadian Press.)

BUCHAREST, Roumania, July 10.—Hungarian Bolshevist troops which were withdrawn from the Czecho-Slovak front on orders from peace conference, have attacked Roumanian forces on the Theis river, according to reports from Transylvania, which says that the fighting continues.

RECITAL BY PUPILS OF MISS LONERGAN

The pianoforte students of Miss Mary Lonergan gave an interesting and entertaining recital last night at the studio of the J. M. Greene Music Company. The hall was crowded by relatives and friends of the performers who, without exception, acquitted themselves splendidly. They were assisted by Miss Ernestine McManus and Miss Regina Hill. The programme was as follows:

Piano solo, "Song of the Sea Shell" Krogmann)—Clyde Ashby.

Piano solo, "Evening Song" (Krogmann)—Doreen Sheehy.

Piano solo, "Rainbow Chase" (Sawyer)—Olive Goselin.

Piano duet, "Chariot Race" (Powell)—Marion Timm, Mary Timm.

Piano solo, "Chase of the Butterflies" (Dennee)—Greta Welbourn.

Piano solo, "By the Sea" (Fisher)—Voilet Bennett.

Piano solo, "Regimental March"—Margaret McIntyre.

Vocal solo, "Fleeting Days" (Bailey)—Miss Ernestine McManus.

Piano solo, "Falling Waters" (Truax)—Muriel Goselin.

Piano solo, "Morceaux Caracteresiques" (Wallenhaupt)—Mary Timm.

Piano duet, "Caprice Polka" (Haenen)—Mildred Greene, Muriel Goselin.

Piano solo, "Valse Etude" (Walenhaupt)—Clara Allen.

Piano solo, "Spring Song" (Merkel)—Mildred Greene.

Piano duet, "Luspiel Overture" Keler Bela)—Martha Baumer, Clara Allen.

Violin solo, "Souvenir" (Drdla" —Miss Regina Hill.

Rondo Brilliante in E Flat (Weber)—Martha Baumer.

BATHER HAD A NARROW ESCAPE

Leith Bartley Made a Timely Rescue.

A young lad, nine years of age, whose name is unknown, but who resides in the west-end of the city, had a narrow escape from drowning at Laverlea Park yesterday afternoon at four o'clock. Out in the current he went down for the first time, when Leith Bartley, a young man, jumped in and swam towards the spot where the boy disappeared.

The boy came up and clutched Bartley by the neck and nearly strangled him. After several vain attempts, Bartley managed to secure a hold on the boy's waist, and slowly brought him into the shore.

Bartley was exhausted when he landed, and both the rescuer and the rescued disappeared before any more particulars could be gained.

MOULDERS GET AN EIGHT HOUR DAY

(Special to The Examiner.)

GUELPH, July 10.— After carrying on negotiations for over a month, the Guelph International Iron Moulders' Union, No. 212, has succeeded in establishing an 8-hour day in two of the large iron shops in the city. With the 8-hour day, which went into effect this morning, comes an increase in wages to $5.75 per day, to date back from July 1st. The two shops that signed the agreement, which runs for one year, are Crowe's Iron Works and Griffin's Foundry. The other shops in the city are expected to sign up to-day.

SPOKE ON FOURTH LINE OF DEFENCE AT CHAUTAUQUA

INTERESTING MUSICAL PROGRAMME AT THE EVENING MEETING.

Education of children, reconstruction, Prohibition, and almost every national question was dealt with by Fred G. Bale, who lectured last evening at the Chautauqua on "The Fourth Line of Defence."

In speaking of reconstruction, the speaker asked how an ideal reconstruction can ever be hoped for when people are living in the squalid circumstances thousands live in in the congested parts of the big cities. He instanced a case where in New York, in one small room three relays of 30 persons slept. Of these thirty the maximum salary received was $4 per week and the minimum $2.50. In dealing with the educational system, he said that were he at the head of affairs, disregarding all schools, he would make a study of what each child was best suited for, and put him at it.

As Judge in the Juvenile Court in the United States, Mr. Bale made some startling deisloures of how drunkenness amongst juveniles is fostered and bred. He stated that given a chance he thought every child drunkard could be reformed.

BOARD OF TRADE WILL DEAL WITH THE HOUSING PROBLEM

WELCOME RELIEF IN PROSPECT FOR THE WEARY HOUSE HUNTER--THOMAS L. ADAMS WILL VISIT PETERBORO AGAIN.

The Board of Trade and allied bodies are busy planning active work to follow the holiday season. A lot of civic issues are to have attention.

The high rate for gas service and excessive meter tax are to be looked into and correspondence opened with the Hydro Electric Commission to find out why excessive rates are imposed upon the people who use the city gas service.

The Committee on Agriculture is seeking cooperation between the farmers and the business men because they have common interests. This committee is planning at an early date to have the farmers as guests of the Board when the farmers' and the city's standpoints will be discussed. The problems to be worked out are those affecting production and marketing. Peterborough is to be made a dependable, attractive and profitable market for all products of the farm, and the farmer must do his part in making this happen. If business goes outside the reason must be discovered, and the remedy supplied.

WILL VISIT CITY

The City Plan Committee has a big field to cover. Bathing beaches, parks, parkways, street signs, tree planting form generally a comprehensive plan for the shaping of the city as it grows. Improvement means increase in business and land values. If a parkway is built from the centre of the city to Jackson Park, following the course of the creek, the value of adjacent property goes up; the whole city benefits. The outlay may be small but the profit is large. The City Council and the Board will have the help of the Government Town Planner, Thomas L. Adams, Esq., a specialist of world-wide distinction. Mr. Adams is to visit the city to confer with the City Plan Committee as soon as the committee has a matured proposal to submit to Mr. Adams.

The name of the Housing and Neighborhoods Committee gives an idea of the scope of its work. Housing problems in growing cities are real problems. Peterborough has fortunately not developed any huge problem either in the matter of housing or neighborhoods, but prevention is better than cure. The housing plan will be evolved, by which citizens may build under better conditions with provincial and federal assistance. An effort will be made to prevent class sections. Rental problems will also be studied with a view to establishing fair rentals and conditions.

CIVIC EDUCATION.

The Committee on Civic Education is setting out to get the ratepayers posted on the principles of sound local government. The business conduct of city business is the affair of the individual and by teaching the older as well as the younger people, by facts, by graphic and visual methods of education, in public meetings and through the Press, a new and necessary sense of responsibility about community affairs should result.

Investigation of many problems of community development will be made by the Committee on Research and Recommendation. It may suggest and seek private bequests to the city for educational benevolent and public purposes. They will exercise innitiative and envolve plans for the benefit of the city. They will often be able to ascertain what is needed to attain an object and may outline the methods of accomplishment.

The whole work of the Board is carried on through its committees chosen from the membership and these report their recommendations to the Council of the Board and to the Board itself. An active season of public work is promised.

BETHEL CHURCH GAVE A DINNER

THE RECEIPTS EXCEED ONE HUNDRED DOLLARS.

WARSAW, July 9. — The dinner given by eBthel church last Tuesday evening was one of the best affairs of the kind ever held in this vicinity. The evening was perfect; the day was a double holiday, and the people of the church had made every preparation.

There was a football match, Warsaw vs. Lakefield. Warsaw won 5 to 0.

Dinner was served in the sheds, which were nicel yprepared. The tables seated one hundred, and were beautifully decorated with wild orchids. There was abundance of food and the cooking was of the best. One wonders what a European would think at the sight of so many delicious viands.

Evidently much hard work had been spent in the preparation of the programme. The Warsaw orchestra was larger than usual having been supplemented by Mrs. Graham, Miss Julia Choate and Mr. Richard Choate. The young epople of Bethel did themselves credit. Rev. Mr. Frost was welcomed as a former friend. The following programme was rendered:

Congregational singing of the opening hymn.
Prayer, Rev. Hugh Brown.
Chairman's address, Mr. Clare.
Solo, Only a Rose; No Man's Land, Miss Hamilton.
Medley, Bethel Young People.
Cantata, Mortgage the Farm, Beth-Young People.
Addrtss, Rev. H. A. Frost.
Selection, Warsaw Orchestra.
Dialogue, The New Spring Bonnet.
Motion Cantata, The Old Maids' Tea Party.
Selection, Warsaw Orchestra.
God Save the King.

The receipts were over $400, and over $300 will be clear.

The Bethel people had quite a nice little social on Wednesday evening.

EVERY WOMAN'S AMBITION
FOR ROSY CHEEKS
NOW EASILY SATISFIED

Hollow cheeks with dark lines under the eyes, how a woman hates them!

But rosy cheeks, clear skin, and bright eyes, give them to a woman, and she is happy.

The woman who attracts, whose fresh, dainty complexion compels admiration, is always careful of her health, particularly of her blood condition. Bad complexion always means bad blood.

Girls, don't let your blood grow thin or watery. To do so brings on haggard looks and declining strength.

Many a woman who has allowed herself to run-down, to develop that tired, worried look has built up again in this simple way. Why don't you try it?

At the close of every meal, just take two small chocolate-coated Ferrozone Tablets—any person can do this in a minute. The action of Ferrozone is apparent at once. It sets you up, makes you feel good, starts up your appetite, aids digestion, brings that old-time feeling of youth into the system again.

Ferrozone puts you on the right road—the one leading to health.

Not a man, woman, or child needing blood, vigour, endurance—not a person who is weak, nervous, or sickly, not a person in ill-health, who won't receive immediate help from Ferrozone.

As a tonic and restorative, as a health-bringer and body-builder, Ferrozone is unrivalled. It cures because it feeds and nourishes, because it contains the elements that build up and strengthen. For better looks and better health try Ferrozone yourself. Sold everywhere, 50c per box, 6 boxes for $2.50, or by mail from The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ont.

STREET RAILWAY EXTENSIONS WILL BE URGED AGAIN

RAILWAY COMMITTEE OF THE COUNCIL WILL IMPRESS UPON HYDRO COMMISSION LOCAL TRAFFIC NEEDS.

Aldermen Edgar and Morrison were appointed by the Railway Committee of the Council last night to accompany Mr. G. N. Gordon and the Hydro-Electric Commission's engineer in the survey of the route of the proposed electric railway from Peterboro to Kinmount.

The committee decided to renew its request to the Hydro-Electric Commission for the extension of the street railway on Park street from Albert street to Lansdowne street, and on Lansdowne street to Lock street; and on the Monaghan Road from Patterson street to Byersville.

Ald. Morrison moved, seconded by Ald. Taylor, that the committee go to Toronto as a deputation and urge upon the commission the desirability of these extensions.

The Trades and Labour Council's recommendation that the parks be better lighted, particularly Central Park, was laid over.

The several complaints of citizens against the night noises of shunting engines on the G. T. R., were discussed briefly. The committee will interview Mr. A. McNab, the local agent, in reference to the alleged nuisance.

Ald. Edgar reported that he had purchased thirty-five chairs for the King Edward Park band stand. This action was aproved, on a motion by Ald. Turner, seconded by Ald. Morrison.

Ald. Taylor moved that the tools used in Victoria and Central Parks be purchased from the Horticultural Society for $60.

AN OPPORTUNITY TO EARN A DIAMOND RING

A NUMBER OF YOUNG LADIES DESIRED TO ENTER POPULARITY--CONTEST FOR GOOD PRIZES.

The Central Exhibition Board has arranged for the appearance here of the largest and finest summer carnival on the continent during the week of July 21st to July 26th, inclusive. It is now playing in Montreal after a week in Ottawa, where they pleased the Ottawa people immensely.

In connection with the appearance of the organization in a city, is conducted a Popularity Contest for young ladies, for three valuable prizes as follows:

1 — Diamond ring.
3 — Choice of three Laviolins.

Those desirous of enterise the contest are requested to mail in their names and addresses to Mr. J. A. Hall, secretary of the Fair Board. Sent in your name to-night.

PEACE YEAR PRIZE LIST FOR THE "EX"

ATTRACTIVE BOOKLET OF 86 PAGES BEING DISTRIBUTED.

The peace year prize list of the Central Canada Exhibition has been printed and is now being distributed by Manager J. K. Paisley. It is an attractive booklet of 86 pages, containing in addition to the classifications, conditions and prizes in the various departments, practically all the information anyone, especially exhibitors, can desire regarding the exhibition. It is decorated with photographs of directors and chairmen of committees, and with scenes on the exhibition grounds.

The booklet points out that the exhibition is under the patronage of His Excellency the Duke of Devonshire and the Honorary Presidents are given as follows: Sir Robert Borden, Mr. William Hutchison, Sir William Hearst, Mr. T. Cameron Bate, Sir Lomer Gouin, and Hon. T. A. Crerar. Controller Joseph Kent, of course, is president. Dr. J. H. Grisdale and Mr. W. P. Hurdman, vice-presidents, Mr. J. K. Paisley, manager and secretary, and Mr. H. L. Corbett, treasurer.

Live Stock Gets Big Share.

Of the prizes, live stock draws the largest share, in all $25,000 being provided in prizes for this department, apportioned among the many classes of horses, cattle, sheep and swine. This amount allows for very attractive prizes for all classes. In the case of horses for example, the first prize in the more important classes are around forty and sixty dollars. In the case of cattle the corresponding prizes are around twenty and thirty dollars.

The other departments, including poultry, agricultural products, horticultural exhibits, dairy products, are work, etc., are provided for in the same generous manner. Succeeding the special war time garden products department, is the peace time garden products class in which special prizes totally a large amount are offered. All exhibitors in this class must be members of the Ottawa Horticultural Society, the Ottawa Vacant Lot Association, or other recognized garden club.

BIG CARNIVAL TO VISIT PETERBORO

The La Rose Electric Fountain is an electric fire and water production, in which three ladies' present numbers of statuary poses and spot light dances in which beautiful colors are blended upon the white costumes. The unusual display of fire-works at the finale is indeed another noteworthy link in the chain of features.

The days of the famous Buffalo Bill Shows are recalled by the appearance of Colonel Lenders (Buffalo Jack) and Princess Wenona, world's champion lady crack shot. In this wild west exhibition cowboys bring to light fancy and trick riding upon horses, rope spinning, revolver and rifle shooting, lassooing, add in fact the sports of the early frontier days.

Elizabeth, who is billed as the living doll lady, is indeed an attraction that seems to please the majority then, too, the Underground Chinatown also proves to be a novel entertainment for many.

Fat people, tall and small, appear in the Congress of Fat People, a pleasing show in which Benny Reeves, a handcuff artist, also entertains by releasing himself from straight-jackets, handcuffs, rope, etc.

La Pearle, the lady of serpents, Gentleman "Joe" Kramer of Barnum fame, George Mulligan, the oldest tatoo man in the country, and Dejno Fritz, sword swallower, are some of the old times that were recognized in the big circus side show, in which fourteen of so other attractions are upon exhibition beneath the one canvass.

A great surprise is due everybody in "Over the Falls," an amusement device which can only be appreciated by trying it.

The best of the tom tom and the flageolet issues the call to the Arabian Nights, where customs and entertaining features of the Far East are disclosed.

The Polack Shows presents a clean entertaining and amusing midway, with many new and novel features that have never before been seen in these parts. The Polack Bros. Mammoth Midway will exhibit in Peterboro the entire week of July 21, at the exhibition grounds. Benefit Peterboro Industrial Exhibition Board.

WEST HARD HIT IN WHEAT CROP

MANITOBA PROSPECTS BRIGHT BUT CONDITIONS ARE SERIOUS FARTHER WEST.

WINNIPEG, July 10. — With wheat generally in head, and oats headed in many sections, present crop prospects in Manitoba leave little to be desired. The latest bulletin of the Provincial Department of Agriculture shows only one week spot on the crop map of the Province.

Vere Brown, Superintendent of the Western Branches of the Bank of Commerce, puts the condition of the Manitoba wheat at from 111 to 130 per cent. in all parts of the province, save the northwest corner, where he places it at 80 per cent. In the section of Manitoba where the condition is lowest comparatively little wheat is grown.

Prospects Poor Westward.

In the portion of Saskatchewan immediately adjoining Manitoba conditions are also fairly good. But from that point westward conditions steadily grow worse. Save in one part, where very little wheat is grown, the most optimistic do not look for more than a 75 per cent. crop. Some who cannot be classed as pessimists describe the condition beyond Regina as "rotten."

Near Pasqua, west of Regina, one farmer plowed up 125 acres of wheat to sow flax. About Swift Current wheat headed when only a foot high. In Saskatchewan district the hard winds in the spring blew a lot of the crop out of the ground and a parching June burned up a lot more.

ITEMS OF INTEREST FROM WARSAW

VISITORS TO THE VILLAGE—LOCAL MEETINGS.

WARSAW, July 9.—Miss Myrtle Brown, Peterborough, spent the holiday with her friend, Miss Bessie Aitkens.

Mrs. Clements is spending a few weeks with her daughter, Mrs. Ellen Brown, Peterborough.

Miss Marjorie Choate left last Tuesday for Ottawa. Miss Choate is in the offices of the Soldier Settlement Board.

Mrs. Graham, who has been visiting her parents at Warsaw, left on Thursday with her little son and daughter for a three weeks' visit in Lindsay.

Pte. Hilliard McCracken returned home last Friday.

Miss Edith Tedford, Norwood, is spending a few weeks with her grandmother, Mrs. Tedford, near Warsaw.

Mrs. John L. Kidd and daughter, Mrs. Richard Tedford, are visiting relatives in the West.

Miss Dewart, senior teacher in Warsaw School, left for Toronto this morning, where she will take a course in Domestic Science in connection with rural school work.

Miss Coleman returned to Toronto this morning.

Pte. Rufus Payne reached home last Friday noon.

Pte. Thomas Russel came home on Friday, also Pte. Effie Dunford.

Miss Clara Dewart, of Brantford Business College staff, is spending the summer holidays at the home of her mother, Mrs. John Dewart.

Mr. Cecil Wasson is with Mr. A. F. Choate at McCracken's Landing.

The Misses Jean and Rita Dinsdale are visiting with their cousin, Miss Olive Clements.

Mrs. Robert Tighe is visiting her mother, Mrs. Jackson.

Bethel Choir and Mrs. George Taylor's Bible Class went to Peterborough on Monday and sat for group photographs.

Missionary Society.

On Thursday afternoon the Methodist Women's Missionary Society held its regular meeting in the basement of the church. The ladies of the other churches were invited. Mrs. Clare had been at the missionary meeting of all the branches in the Conference. In her report she said all the work of their Church had been touched upon, and that perhaps methods of raising money had been emphasised. The advantage of tithing or proportionate giving over special efforts was very strongly brought out. There was not quite so large an attendance as should have been, probably because of the intense heat.

Sunday Services.

In the Methodist Church on Sunday evening Rev. Mr. Clare preached. The service was a dual one, as it was the Orangemen's annual church parade and Mr. Clare's farewell.

Mr. Clare spoke of the difficulties when he first came, and of the difficulties all along, especially that of having to contend with other denominations, but he had a lot of splendid officers. Things had happened that he had to select many new officers, and he thought he had good ones. He thanked the people for their many kindnesses. There were reasons which made it especially hard for him to leave Warsaw. The place where he is going is new to him.

In the address to the Orangemen, he told them to remember their vows. Go to their own church.

Peace Service.

In the Presbyterian Church on Sunday, there was a thanksgiving service for the signing of Peace, followed by a communion service. Rev. Jordan Crowe read the 103rd Psalm, and led in the Lord's Prayer. In the address, Rev. Brown spoke very feelingly of the members of his own congregation who were returning and of those who would never return. "We in our land have much reason to be thankful to Almighty God for saving us from devastation and pillage, to come to others, and might have come to us."

There will be service in the Anglican Church next Sunday, 13th July.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

His Atonement

(Copyright, Wheeler Newspaper Union.)

"Thieves, blackguards! Out with that fellow there!"

"Let me at him!"

"That's enough, Ishe—the man who touches Warren Marsh goes down with the heaviest my fist can give."

Thus in three howling sentences a crowding pasasie-faced coterie of rough working men spoke. They were met by the rugged dissent of Big Jim Evans, foreman of the Midville Steel mills. He was a very giant in build, twice the size of the ordinary man, and as he stood in front of the one he defended the sight of his knotted hand held the others at bay.

The man he championed was pale, palpably perturbed, but not with fear. He said: "Thank you," to mammoth Jim. He faced the odd-fifty men and remarked quietly: "Mates, I've come back to tell you a story."

"And you shall have your hearing, as is the right of every man," pronounced Big Jim.

The scene was a large hall where the poorer classes of Midville held parties, dances and debates. There, to the unbounded astonishment of its denizens, Warren Marsh had suddenly appeared. Jim helped him to mount a chair and sang out stentoriously:

"Attention!"

"I've called you, mates," began Warren Marsh, "because I wish to come among you as a fellow workman. Most of you have known me since I was a boy. Many of you knew my father when he started the mill here 30 years ago. He was a working man like yourselves, made his way with the plant, and became your boss. I served an apprenticeship at hard work and he left the business to me. I ran it until six months ago, when the crash came. You swore by me in the good days, don't curse me now, in the bad ones.

"You all know what has happened. I never had my 'fling,' as you call it, and when I got into company of shrewd, scheming scoundrels whom I took for friends, it was with eyes blinded to the manners and selfishness of the world. Let us make the story short. I was led to drink, to gambling. The group into whose clutches I fell wound about me coils that made me helpless. At the end of two months, my true friends forgotten, my business neglected, I was abandoned by the shammy who had fleeced me of all I possessed, my money or credit, caused my creditors, the present operators of the mills, to close me out. You people found yourselves out of work for a month, and your old wages repudiated. It took me four months to get out of my system the dope my despoilers had scarcely given me. Then I realized how greatly I had wronged you. I have come back poor as the poorest of you, but the new management has hired me as superintendent at $2,500 a year. I can live on $900. Mates, the $2,600 will be distributed among you as it comes in until you have received the pay you lost when the crash came. It may take me ten years to repay you all, but it shall be done to the last penny, with interest."

That was how Warren Marsh came back to his native town. Thenceforward he became the idol of the men, as he had been before his mad "fling" had transpired. He was mate, friend, helper. He took up modest quarters in the village, and at the end of each month apportioned pro rata four fifths of his salary. His influence and energy so advanced the business that its management doubled his income at the end of six months.

Cheerful, optimistic, genial in public, when he was alone a strange sadness came over his fame. There was a care in his mind he had hidden from all. His "bad break" had cost him more than fortune, business, and position. It had cost him Adele Farlow.

Just before Marsh had fallen by the wayside she had left for a two years' health trip in behalf of her brother, Ardmore. Marsh had known both for about a year, had learned to love the sister and had all but told her so. He and Ardmore had been close friends, and a month after his departure Ardmore had written him that he had settled in California, had an opportunity to buy a piece of property that looked like a paying speculation, and Marsh had advanced part of the investment capital. With his downfall Marsh felt he had forfeited all right to renew the old friendship with Adele.

He worked day and night. He became guide and leader of the men of the mills. He was friend and nurse to the unfortunates and invalids. He had not answered the last letter Ardmore Farlow had written him, sorrowfully regarding that friendship as a closed chapter.

Then upon his birthday a letter came that thrilled him. It was from young Ardmore, and it told of the land investment turning out so grandly that his share meant more than he had lost in the business.

"It was not until a few days since that Adele and I learned all the story of your trials and triumph," the letter ran. "She wept over the former—dear, pitying soul that she is!—and her heart brightened when she realized that through your own noble heroism and sacrifice you had redeemed the past, a man among men. We are coming home next month. Adele and I—"

She was coming home! Her heart had been with him all through the dark days. And the brighter ones had dawned.

SIR HALL CAINE DEFENDS CANADA

Empire Conscious of Debt She Owes the Dominion.

LONDON, July 9.—Sir Hall Caine, the well-known novelist, occupies over a column of the Daily Telegraph with a defence of the Canadian troops against a "small but powerful section of the British press, now doing its best, or worst, willingly or unwillingly, to separate Canada from the Mother Country."

He deplores certain excesses and recalls numerous reports of outrages, which were manifest falsehoods. For reprehensible exceptions to good behaviour, he pleads extenuating circumstances, chiefly the bitter disappointment of delayed repatriation, losses to business and the mischief of idleness. Everything considered, he thinks we must be thankful that the conduct of the overseas troops has been so good. He pays a glowing tribute to Canada's devotion to the Empire, and to her splendid achievements in the war, and declares that the British press and public as a whole are profoundly conscious of the Empire's debt to Canada, and have given to these unfortunate incidents only their proper value.

A SUMMARY OF FARM CONDITIONS

FARM LABOURERS ARE GETTING GOOD WAGES.

The following is a summary of reports made by Agricultural Representatives to the Ontario Department of Agriculture:—

Fall wheat harvesting was started in a few counties last week, and will be general in a few days. Owing to the length of straw some of the crop has been knocked down, which will render cutting rather difficult. The average yield per acre is expected to be large although some fears have been expressed that the grain is ripening too fast for best quality.

Winter rye is also ready to cut and a good return is expected.

Spring grains on the whole look disappointing, owing to the effects of the June drouth. Many fields, more especially oats and barley, are beginning to head with only a foot of stalk.

Early potatoes promise a fair yield but those planted late are not doing well. Roots generally are looking thin and backward, owing to the hot dry weather since the time of sowing. Complaints come from Peel of injury to mangels and turnips by the flea beetle.

Haying is in full swing, and an average yield per acre is looked for taking the Province over. Clover has done relatively better than timothy. At present rain is very much needed for all kinds of pasture crops.

Corn Looking Well

Corn and beans are looking well, having withstood the drouth better than any other of the field crops. The first named has a larger area than usual in most sections, while beans, owing to the slump in prices last year, have a greatly restricted acreage.

Cattle, for beef, are being marketed at from 11c to 14 3-4c a lb., according to quality. Lambton reports recent shipments of grass cattle to Buffalo.

The milk flow has fallen off perceptibly during the week. Haldimand states that dairy cows bring from $125 to $135.

Hogs are selling at from $21 to $22.50 a cwt. Farmers' Clubs in Halton are shipping a considerable number of pigs, one club averaging a car a week.

Farm laborers as a class are getting from $40 to $50 a month, with board, for the summer, but in some cases $60 and even higher has been offered for more experienced hands. The Lambton representative reports having placed six returned soldiers on farms during the last two weeks.

KING'S BOUNTY

It is understood that steps are being taken by the friends of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Doris, of Peterborough, to secure the King's bounty for the triplets which came to their home in that city a few weeks ago.

Mrs. Doris' maiden name was Byrne. She is a former resident of Somerville Township, Victoria Co., and friends here are interesting themselves in the matter of the bounty.

Warden Morrison, of Somerville Township, as well as Sir Sam Hughes, will, it is understood, be requested to interest themselves in the case.

Peterborough is quite proud of the bouncing trio, but as the mother came from Victoria County, her friends here naturally claim her as their own. —Lindsay Warder.

LEMON JUICE FOR FRECKLES

Girls! Make beauty lotion for a few cents—Try It!

Squeeze the juice of two lemons into a bottle containing three ounces of orchard white, shake well, and you have a quarter pint of the best freckle and tan lotion, and complexion beautifier, at very, very small cost.

Your grocer has the lemons and any drug store or toilet counter will supply three ounces of orchard white for a few cents. Massage this sweetly fragrant lotion into the face neck, arms and hands each day and see how freckles and blemishes disappear and how clear, soft and rosy-white the skin becomes. Yes! It is harmless and never irritates.

Mr. Edward Cronk, son William, and daughter Elsie have returned to their home at Toronto after a few days' pleasant visit the past week at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Kempt.

Mrs. Henry Lane, of Lakefield, visited her sister, Mrs. William Nelson, a few days the past week.

Messrs. Earl and Fred Dorris, Mervin Mather, and Hugh Wrenwick have returned from overseas.

Mr. Wilfred Fletcher purchased a new motor cycle during the past week.

The congregation of the Presbyterian Church have very kindly offered the parlours of their church to the congregation of the Methodist Church to hold their services during the decorating of the Methodist Church, which has been accepted, beginning next Sabbath evening at 7. Sunday School will be held at the usual hour at the Methodist parsonage.

Miss Viola Cronk has returned to her home at Toronto after a pleasant visit with Keene friends.

Mrs. Mara, who has been visiting her sister, Miss Lumsden, has returned to her home at Lakefield.

Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Byers are spending two weeks' holidays with friends at Oakville and other points.

Mrs. H. McLachlan spent the week-end at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Weir at Norwood.

Scarlet fever has again broken out at the home of Mr. Robert Nelson.

A class of 23 pupils tried the Entrance the past week, 18 girls and four boys. Mr. Hanna, Principal of Norwood Public School, presided.

Mrs. T. B. Sharpe and family, of Ottawa, are guests of Mrs. Sharpe's parents, Dr. and Mrs. Harrison.

A very enjoyable evening is reported by those attending the social held at Villiers last Friday.

Mr. John Mollison, of Niagara, is spending two weeks' holidays with his mother, Mrs. Thomas Mollison.

Mrs. William Wheeler was in Peterborough last Friday.

Mr. Charlie Nelson returned from overseas during the past week.

While working at the Manning Garage at Peterborough, where he is employed, Mr. Lewis Roche met with a very serious accident by being burned with gasoline. Mr. Roche spent the past week at his home in Keene, but was able to return to his work on Monday.

Mr. Walter Bryce's family, of Toronto, are at their summer home on Main Street.

The infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Levi Fife was badly burned last Thursday morning by pulling a pan of boiling water off the stove, scalding his shoulder and right arm. The little fellow is doing as well as can be expected.

A FAREWELL TO WARSAW PASTOR

WARSAW, July 9.—On Monday evening the Methodist Sunday School of Warsaw gave a garden party on the church lawn. Refreshments were served from 7 to 9, after which a good programme was given. Talent from all the churches in the circuit—Warsaw, Bethel, Zion, and Carmel, also Mr. and Mrs. Stark—assisted with the entertainment. One item on the programme was the presentation of a parting gift to Rev. and Mrs. Clare. The party was got up to say goodbye to Rev. and Mrs. Clare.

About $35 was made over and above expenses.

THIN, NERVOUS PEOPLE NEED BITRO-PHOSPHATE

What It Is and How It Increases Weight, Strength and Nerve Force in Many Instances

SHOULD BE PRESCRIBED BY EVERY DOCTOR AND USED IN EVERY HOSPITAL

Says Editor of "Physicians' Who's Who"

Take plain bitro-phosphate is the advice of these physicians to thin, delicate, nervous people who lack vim, energy and nerve force, and there seems to be ample proof of the efficacy of this preparation. Moreover, if we judge from the countless preparations and treatments which are continually being advertised for the purpose of making thin people fleshy, developing arms, neck and bust, and replacing ugly hollows and angles by the soft curved lines of health and beauty, there are evidently thousands of men and women who keenly feel their excessive thinness.

Thinness and weakness are often due to starved nerves. Our bodies need more phosphate than is contained in modern foods. Physicians claim there is nothing that will supply this deficiency so well as the organic phosphate known among druggists as bitro-phosphate, which is inexpensive and is sold by McDermid & Jury in Peterborough and most all druggists under a guarantee of satisfaction or money back. By feeding the nerves directly and by supplying the body cells with the necessary phosphoric food elements, bitro-phosphate should produce a welcome transformation in the appearance; the increase in weight frequently being astonishing.

Clinical tests made in St. Catherine's Hospital, N. Y. C., showed that two patients gained in weight 23 and 27 pounds, respectively, through the administration of organic phosphate; both patients claim they have not felt as strong and well for the past twelve years.

Increase in weight also carries with it a general improvement in the health. Nervousness, sleeplessness and lack of energy, which nearly always accompany excessive thinness, should soon disappear, dull eyes ought to brighten and pale cheeks glow with the bloom of perfect health.

Physicians and hospitals everywhere are now recognizing its merits by its use in ever increasing quantities. Frederick Kolle, M.D., editor of New York Physicians' "Who's Who," says: "Bitro-Phosphate should be prescribed by every doctor and used in every hospital to increase strength and nerve force and to enrich the blood."

Joseph D. Harrigan, Former Visiting Specialist to North Eastern Dispensatory, says: "Let those who are weak, thin nervous, anaemic, or run-down, take a natural, unadulterated substance such as bitro-phosphate and you will soon see some astonishing results in the increase of nerve energy, strength of body and mind and power of endurance."

Bitro-Phosphate is made entirely of the organic phosphate compound referred to in the National Standard Dispensatory as being an excellent tonic and nervine and a preparation which has recently acquired considerable reputation in the treatment of neurasthenia. The standard of excellence, strength and purity of its substance is beyond question, for every Bitro-Phosphate tablet is manufactured in strict accordance with the U. S. Pharmacopoeia test requirements. Bitro-Phosphate is therefore not a patent medicine and should not be confused with any of the secret nostrums, so-called tonics or widely advertised "cure-alls."

CAUTION: — Although Bitro-Phosphate is unsurpassed for relieving nervousness, sleeplessness and general weakness, owing to its tendency to increase weight it should not be used by anyone who does not desire to put on flesh.

MAYOR WILL SIGN BRIDGE AGREEMENT

DENIES RUMOUR THAT HE WOULD REFUSE.

Mayor Duncan flatly denied a rumour that gained some circulation this morning to the effect that he would not sign the agreement between the city and the Russell-Townsend Company.

"Not a word of truth in it," he said. I have protected myself by voting against the bylaw but it is my duty to carry out the wishes of the majority of the Council, and I will sign the agreement as soon as it is ready."

His Worship appeared anxious that public opinion of last night's contretemps should understand his position. He said that Ald. Edgar had admitted that it was 8.15 o'clock when the Railway Committee completed its business. When he went downstairs on his way out of the City Hall, he saw Ald. Turner telephoning for Ald. Hamilton. His Worship remarked that the Russell-Townsend group were waiting until they had gathered their forces before going to the Council Chamber up-stairs.

There seemed to be no after-effects this morning to the incident. The Russell-Townsend bylaw had a convincing finish, for Ald. Crowe turned his support to it last night. His attitude was one of indifference to the successful contractor. He could not find much difference between them, but his concern was to get the work started before the summer was hopelessly wasted. Hence it was easy for him to vote with the majority.

Signed To-Morrow.

City Solicitor Widdifield told the Examiner that he would have the agreement ready to be forwarded to the Russell-Townsend Company this afternoon, and it will be signed for the city by Mayor Duncan and City Clerk Armstrong to-morrow.

DICK BUTLER IS TO UMPIRE SATURDAY'S GAME

The fans should not underestimate this Port Hope team which will clash with the Petes in a Central League game at Riverside Park on Saturday afternoon. The Ontarios are on even terms with the Petes and they are a snappy crew who will take a lot of beating. They claim the best shortstop in the League in Moice, a returned soldier, while Finnegan Hills is a clever pitcher, and Chalk is well known here as a capable backstop. The team are fast in the field and dangerous with the bat, and the Petes will have to be at their best to beat them.

The Peterborough team will be without the services of Jackson, who is on his honeymoon, but otherwise should be at full strength for Saturday's game, which is called at three o'clock, with Dickie Butler, of Lindsay, umpiring.

VETERANS VERSUS DE LAVAL TO-NIGHT

The War Veterans are going to make a big effort to break into the win column to-night when they clash with the De Laval team in a City League fixture at Riverside Park. The two teams had a great battle the last time out and to-night's go should be just as exciting.

RESULTS OF THE CHURCH LEAGUE

On Tuesday evening Knox team of the Church Senior Baseball League won from George street by two runs in the semi-finals. Knox team are now on top of the heap. To-night St. Paul's team play All Saints' and the winner contends with the Knox team for the championship of the league.

Proclaimed Intention of Anarchists as Read to U. S. Government Overturned

NEW YORK, July 9.—The arrest of President Wilson and John D. Rockefeller, the opening of all jails and the formation of Soviet organizations throughout the country to take over the Government were advocated in The Anarchist Soviet Bulletin, according to Archibald E. Stevenson, who produced a copy of the Bulletin at the hearing of the Lusk Investigating Committee today in the City Hall.

The copy of The Bulletin was identified by Glenn Finnell, an attendant at the New York Public Library, as being one of the 150 he had picked up on July 3 in the corridors of the library.

ASK GOVERNMENT AID TO IRON MINES.

TORONTO, July 9. — Asking government assistance in the development of iron mines in the north of Hastings county, a deputation composed of representatives of the Belleville city council and the board of trade, waited on the Prime Minister, Sir William Hearst. One suggestion they made was that the government might find it possible to assist them in getting cheaper power. They pointed out that at present power costs $17 a horse power in that locality. If it were $10 a horse power they believed it would be possible to go ahead with the development. However they made no request for a definite amount to be set aside for the purpose, leaving it to the government to decide as to the best way to give assistance.

Sir William Hearst promised to have the matter investigated.

FIRST IMPRESSIONS

ARE SOMETIMES MISLEADING

And therefore the "UNITED" are desirous that every CANADIAN shall KNOW who they are dealing with when in a UNITED CIGAR STORE — The following clipping we believe will prove of sufficient interest to the public to warrant careful reading.

United Cigar Stores, Limited, of Canada

AN impression seems to have gotten abroad in some manner or other that the United Cigar Stores, Limited, of Canada is in some way connected with the United Cigar Stores, of the United States, and is controlled by the same interests. This is entirely wrong, and we are anxious to correct it. While our aim of BIGGER AND BETTER SERVICE, coincides with that of the American Company, we are in no manner, shape or form a part of their organization, but an entirely Canadian corporation, all of our Directors having been born under the "Grand old British Flag," and our Company registered in Great Britain, and her Colonies. An interesting fact in connection with the name, is, that it was first used in Canada, and the first United Cigar Store, located in Toronto, near the corner of Queen and Yonge Streets.

The idea of the United Cigar Stores, Limited, of Canada, originated in the mind of our President, Mr. W. B. Reid, who is a Scotchman by birth, and a staunch Canadian by adoption. Mr. Reid came to Canada from Rothes, Scotland, in 1883, and immediately identified himself with the tobacco business, being the first man in the Province of Ontario to place Canadian-grown leaf tobacco on the market. Possessed of acute perceptive powers, keen foresight, and a knowledge of existing conditions in the retail tobacco trade, gleaned on his trips throughout the country, he foresaw the great opening there was for a chain of stores, operated on strictly up-to-date methods, with satisfactory service as their first consideration. At that time the designating mark of a tobacconist's shop was a "Wooden Indian," with upraised tomahawk, placed outside the doorway, and the methods generally employed inside the store were not much in advance of the civilization depicted by the sign. No attention was paid to the care of stock, and same was allowed to become dry and mouldy. The store was usually dirty, and dingy—the camping ground for all the loafers in the immediate vicinity, and the service deplorable. If you were a regular customer, perhaps you would be greeted by a mutttered, "Good Day"; if a transient you would receive a grunt. The words "Thank you" were never heard.

The idea gradually gained ground, and in 1887 Mr. Reid formed W. B. Reid & Company, the nucleus of the present organization. In 1906 the company was incorporated under the name of the United Cigar Stores, Limited, with a capital of $60,000, and several branch stores opened in Toronto. In 1914 the Company's capital stock was increased to $250,000, and more branches opened, including stores in London, Hamilton, Brantford, St. Thomas, Kitchener, and Guelph. In May, 1915, the United Cigar Stores, Limited, Canada, assumed control of the business, and increased the capitalization to $3,250,000, with Mr. Reid as President and Managing Director. Since that time, despite the abnormal conditions created by the world war, development has gone rapidly ahead, and at the present time we have 160 stores, located in most of the principal cities and towns of Ontario, and in Montreal and Quebec City, and now have plans under contemplation whereby we expect to spread our operations, and have a "UNITED" store in all the principal cities of the Dominion from Coast to Coast.

We thank all our readers for their patronage and support in the past, and trust that the foregoing may remove any element of doubt in the mind of any one of them regarding our British origin, and take this opportunity of assuring them that they will always receive the UTMOST IN SERVICE at the "SIGN OF THE SHIELD."—Editor.

Leader McKenzie Asks a Quiet Time Among His Own Folk.

SYDNEY, N.S., July 10. — D. D. McKenzie, leader of the Opposition, will shortly arrive at his home in North Sydney to remain until he returns to the Liberal National Convention at Ottawa.

He has written to several of his friends in the north riding, asking them to forego the proposed demonstration on his arrival.

He wishes to thank those who determined to show their appreciation of his work at Ottawa, but considers tha ny putblic demonstration would be quite inopportune, in view of the fact that his name will probably go before the convention for the post of permante Leader.

LOCAL BANK TELLER TRANSFERRED TO LINDSAY.

Mr. B. C. McKay, teller in the local branch of the Royal Bank for the past year, has been transferred to act as accountant in the new branch of the bank which was opened for business this morning in Lindsay.

The new branch, which is in the Smyth Building, will be managed by Captain Clare Sootheran, son of Mr. J. H. Sootheran, who comes with a banking experience of over seventeen years in the United States and Canada.

LOTS OF APPLICATIONS FOR HUMAN FLY JOBS

CHATHAM, July 10.— One hundred applications have been received by the Canadian Des Moines Steel Co. for positions in France. The applicants must be human flies, as the work they are required to do is eight hundred and twenty feet in the air. The company has the contract of erecting eight wireless stations.

FRENCH WON'T RAISE THE SIEGE

PARIS, July 10. — The Chamber of Deputies rejected a bill providing for the immediate raising of the state of siege and the suppression of the censorship, the vote being 356 to 202. The Government opposed the measure. Foreign Minister Pichon declared that the step was impossible before the treaty of peace becomes effective.

WASTE WAR MONEY ON PRINTING BILLS

Millions of Copies of Pamphlets Ordered by the Ministry Were Thrown Away.

LONDON, July 9th. — The wastage of war is revealed in the British Government's printing bills.

In one instance the Food Ministry ordered six million copies of a certain pamphlet, and when they had been printed it was discovered that an error had been made not by the printer, but by the Food Ministry official, and so the whole lot went to the scrap heap.

Another instance is that of a certain Ministry, which ordered 1,000,000 copies of a large document of which only 20,000 copies have been used, or are ever likely to be used.

STORES WILL NOT BE CLOSED IN PETERBORO ON SATURDAY, JULY 19

CELEBRATION OF THE SIGNING OF THE PEACE TREATY WILL BE FITTINGLY OBSERVED ON PETERBORO'S CIVIC HOLIDAY.

At a meeting of the Retail Merchants of Peterborough yesterday afternoon, it was decided that owing to the short space of time allowed in which to get up a fitting celebration for Peace Day, which has been called for July 19th, the stores would keep open on this day, and would join with Peterborough Central Exhibition to make a real celebration on Peterbrough's Civic Holiday.

Peterborough has already celebrated the signing of Peace, when Monday, June 30th was declared a holiday and observed in the City; and in order that the demonstration may be a fitting one, the following committee composed of Mr. W. E. Conway of Grafton Co., Mr. H. E. Hodgins of the J. C. Turnbull Co., Mr. H. W. Cressman of the Cressman Co., Mr. W. S. Merrill of Merrill & Meredith and Mr. H. Dahn of the Grand Opera House, were appointed at the meeting yesterday to confer with the Fair Board in getting up one of the very best celebrations that Peterborough has had in recent years.

OTTAWA, July 10. — Saturday, July 19, has been officially fixed as a public holiday for the celebration of peace. The date coincides with Peace Day throughout the Empire.

WHISKEY LEAVES FOR OLD GLASGOW

Load of 1100 Tons Leaves Walkerville for Glasgow.

Canadian Press.

WINDSOR, Ont., July 10. — When the steamship Lake Norden of the Emergency Fleet Corporation of Detroit, weighed anchor at Walkerville, outward bound for Glasgow, according to Captain Loughin, she had on board 1,100 tons of whiskey from the distillery of Hiram Walker and Sons.

This is but one of several shipments to be made to Scotland, the temperance laws of Canada, forcing the company to find markets overseas. The value of the shipment is estimated at over $1,000,000.

FIREMEN PASS THOROUGH TEST

Inspector Wilson In Belleville Yesterday.

Belleville Fire Department yesterday underwent a test at the hands of Inspector Wilson of the Underwriters' Association. The alarm was sent in by the police at the request of Ald. Ostrom, fire chairman, calling the firemen to the city hall shortly after nine o'clock. The companies were on the scene in short order. No. 1 arriving in less than one minute. Mr. Wilson tested the water pressure also.

The inspector with Ald. Ostrom looked over two sites proposed for the new fire hall—at the corner of Front and Dundas streets and on Upper Front street near the Kyle House.

GIVES DEFINITION OF NEW DEMOCRACY

DR. GIDDINGS SAYS IT MUST EMBRACE ENTIRE PEOPLE.

NEW YORK. — Dr. Franklin H. Giddings, Professor of Sociology at Columbia University, speaking on the "New Democracy" at the Church of the Ascension, Fifth Avenue, embodied the fact that it must be a political organization, an industrial, religious and educational organization, of the entire people and not of any one class.

"Those people who talk about a social revolution have no hesitation in saying that the tables are to be turned; that the capitalists must go; and that all men who work with their brains must go, unless they will agree to perform a part of the lowlier duties of life; and the rule of the world has to pass into the hands of the manual workers.

"That sort of thing is not democracy, but on the contrary, it is wholly antagonistic to democracy. Democracy has never been rightly defined by anyone except Abraham Lincoln; it is 'of the people, for the people, and by the people.' It is not government 'by' one class, 'for the same class,' and 'of' all the other classes.

"In the socialist world it is said that there will be only one class. They say that there will not be any privileged class, nor any capitalistic class, nor a favored class of any sort. I contend, however, that there will be two classes at least. The first one will be the larger, the one whose motto will be 'Let George do it.' The The second one will consist of those who will do it, and will do us. You will never get rid of these two classes.

"In the book by Lenine called 'Soviets at Work,' he says that the Bolshevists must have the services of the best of the bourgeois experts, and says further, 'If the transformation of human society into a socialistic one is to be a success, we must have the specialized knowledge and experience of the best products of the capitalistic classes.'

"He means that after he gets the machine running the Soviet Socialism will produce its own experts Grant it. But when the experts have been produced and put to work and are obviously engaged upon a different job and doing the job in a different way, do you think that this will please the other members of the Socialistic democracy? You know it will not. The first thing they will do is to cut down the wages and increase the hours of the objective workers. And this means oligarchy without discussion.

"Democracy does not necessarily give us liberty; it is the majority rule and the majority may hate liberty. I am not at all sure that the people of the United States desire liberty for if they did they would not have enacted the eighteenth amendment to the Constitution. I don't believe that it is consistent with anything that this country has ever stood for."

WOULD LEAVE THE KAISER TO WORLD'S CONTEMPT

LONDON, July 10. — In the long list of prominent Britishers opposed to the trial of the ex-Kaiser is Lord Beresford, who says:

"It would revive support for him in his own country. At the present moment the whole world regards him as a discredited and contemptible coward who deserted his troops in the face of the enemy when the critical moment arrived. The trial would land us in countless difficulties, with the chance that the ex-Kaiser might suffer no adequate punishment.

CHERRIES GOING TO WASTE

WOODSTOCK, July 10. — Cherries are a great crop in this neighborhood. Many of the farmers are allowing them to go to waste, not being in a position to have them picked at the price offered by the storekeepers of $1 for the large baskets.

MINERAL OIL For Chronic Constipation

By buying this product from us you can get the Highest in Quality that can be procured at an ESPECIALLY LOW PRICE.

There are many thin oils on the market that are not suitable for internal use; other oils have irritating qualities which render them also unsuitable. The one we are selling is guaranteed thick and entirely pure.

It is recognized that a good grade of Mineral Oil is one of the best remedies for CHRONIC CONSTIPATION that is being used. It acts mechanically and does not irritate the intestinal tract, nor does the dose have to be continually increased as is the case with ordinary purgatives.

It is much better and cheaper than Castor Oil as a laxative for Children, since Castor Oil has two effects, the first of which is purgative and the second or after effect, which is Constipating.

19,650 PAID ATTENDANCE AT DEMPSEY FIGHT

TOLEDO, O., July 8.—Exactly 19,650 person paid their way into the Bayview Park Arena on July 4 to see the heavyweight championship bout between Jess Willard and Jack Dempsey.

Official figures as to attendance and receipts were announced to-day by Frank B. Flournoy, Tex Rickard's associate in the venture.

The receipts after the Government tax of $41,788.86 had been deducted were $410,788.16.

The 7 per cent. charity fund for the City of Toledo was slightly under $28,000. There were 202 policemen in the stadium, 75 firemen, 200 ushers, 20 ticket takers, 20 ticket sellers and 484 press representatives.

The principal expenses of the promoters were as follows: Willard, $120,000; Dempsey, $27,500; aren construction, $120,000; City of Toledo charity fund, $28,000; total, $297,500.

Other charges probably will make the cost approximately $320,000, leaving the promoters' profits somewhat below $100,000, Mr. Flournoy said.

The arena was constructed to seat 97,000. Flournoy announced this afternoon that it would be sold to the American House Wrecking Company, of Chicago, for $20,000, being disposed of to the highest bidder.

There is nearly 2,000,000 feet of lumber in the plant. Work of tearing it down will begin at once, it was said.

CELEBRATES 100TH ANNIVERSARY

INTERESTING EVENT IN THE HISTORY OF CAVAN TOWNSHIP—MANY PETERBORO CITIZENS PRESENT—BRITISH HISTORY.

Continuing the celebration of the one hundredth anniversary of the establishment of the Parish of Cavan, which celebration commenced on Sunday, by special services, conducted by His Lordship Bishop Sweeney, a unique entertainment in the form of an interdenominational garden party was held yesterday at the home of Rev. W. C. Allen, Millbrook.

The beautiful grounds surrounding the house were most attractively decorated for the occasion with flags, lanterns, pennants and flowers, and at the entrance a huge pennant bearing the date of the foundation of the parish and the present date — 1819—1919. At the rear of the house prettily decorated tables were set for tea.

Those Present.

From early in the afternoon the visitors, who numbered about four hundred, began to arrive from the town of Millbrook and the surrounding country and towns.

The guests from out of town included Judge Ward and the Misses Ward of Port Hope; Col. and Mrs. Stuart, and their daughter, who motored down from Toronto; Canon and Mrs. Marsh, Lindsay; Rev. and Mrs. Fenning of Newcastle; Miss Cathrine Campbell, of Toronto; Miss Armour, Toronto; Miss Edith Curry, Omemee; Rev. and Mrs. James, Omemee; Mr. D. Robinson and Mr. T. W. Williamson of Rochester; Mr. A. E. Moore, Peterboro, and Mr .W. H. Lough, of Ida. Visitors from the parish included, Rev. W. Lee, D.D., Mr. and [illegible] J. R. Eakins, Mr. J G Pengelly, [illegible] A. J. Mulligan, Mr. J. E. Needler, Mrs. Albert Brown, Mr. and [illegible] Mr. T. [illegible] and Mr. [illegible] Mrs. Orillia; [illegible] Steele, [illegible] Mr. John Russell, Mrs. J. E. Kells, Miss Margaret Christie, Mr. J. H. Vadie, Rev. C. B. Spencer, Mrs. Wesley Hutchinson, Miss A. L. Kells, Mr. and Mrs. L. H. Winslow, Miss Audrey Winslow, Mr. and Mrs. S. B. Perrin, Mrs. William W. Crocker, Mr. A. A. Smith, Mr. and Mrs. R. Armstrong, Mr Robert McCamus, Mrs. Rupert Winslow, Mrs. J. Reynolds, the Misses Lough, Mrs. W. J. E. Gillett, Mr. Charles Needler, Mr. Eric B. Lefroy, Mr. George E. Burnham, Mrs. C. H. Winslow, Mrs. C. Turner, Mrs W. E. Russell.

Parish History.

After tea Canon Allen in welcoming the guests, called upon some of the gentlemen present for addresses. Mr. A. A. Smith read an interesting history of the parish, in which he gave all the principal events leading to the present flourishing condition of the church. Cavan, he said, was founded in 1819, Rev. Jos. Thompson being the first incumbent. He was succeeded by Rev. Samuel Armour, grandfather of Mr. E. A. Peck, in 1832. His successor was the late Rev. T. W. Allen, who became Rector in 1863, and at whose death Rev. Wm. Cartwright Allen was appointed Rector in 1905, making in all only four rectors in one hundred years.

Mr. Smith referred in eulogistic terms to the work done by the late Rev T. W. Allen and to the way in which his son, Canon Allen, has continued the work.

After wishing Mr. and Mrs. Allen many years in which to continue the good work which they have started, Mr. Smith on behalf of the parishioners of Christ Church, St. Thomas, St. John's and Trinity Church presented Canon Allen with a purse containing $200 in gold.

In replying, to the presentation Canon Allen said he hoped to live to justify all Mr. Smith had said about him and concluded by remarking that in a great measure his success was due to the cooperation of his parishioners, from whom he had always had the most loyal support. He also spoke of the great factor Mr. Allen has always been in aiding him in church work.

Short Speeches.

Short addresses all expressing the same thought, the appreciation felt for the work of Canon Allen, were made by Judge Ward of Port Hope, who also referred to the new feeling which is springing up between the denominations evidenced by the non-sectarian gathering present, and concluded by wishing Canon and Mrs. Allen long and successful lives; Col. Stuart, who spoke of the fact that the rectorship has been in the family for over half a century, concluding by expressing his assurance that the good example set by Ven. Archdeacon Allen will always be maintained by Canon Allen; Canon Marsh, who hoped that the good work done by the four Rectors would long be carried on by Canon Allen; Rev. Mr. James, who brought the greetings of the people of Omemee to the Cavan parish; and Rev. Mr. Fenning of Newcastle, who spoke of his happy connection with the parish during the time that he was curate.

Rev. Dr. Lee.

Rev. Dr. Lee, pastor of the Presbyterian Church in Millbrook, conveyed the greetings of the Ministerial Association, and said that the garden party was not only an auspicious event but an historical event in the history of the community.

Sent Regrets.

Prof. Young, of Trinity, Rev. Mr. Vance of Vancouver, Mr. R. Douglas Armour, K.C., of Toronto, and Canon Davidson of Peterboro, were amongst the senders of these messages.

Old Records.

Some records of the Parish of Cavan supplied by Mr. Armour, K.C., through His Lordship Bishop Sweeney contained the following interesting items:

Dated 1827: "An interesting event took place in the village three weeks ago when about 35 Indians came to Church, which is conducted in the log school house, it being used for Church of England services by Rev. Mr. Armour. The Indians behaved very well during the services, and were attentive and anxious to understand."

Dated 1828: "A large congregation, numbering fully one hundred, attended service on Sunday, twenty of whom remained for sacrament. This was an unexpected and delightful sight, as when Mr. Armour first came many violently opposed the church, and prevented the building, not long ago when we were collecting for it."

Oldest Parishioner.

The oldest parishioner present was Mr. Joseph Clark of South Monaghan, who remembers the church's history from the days of the Rev. Mr. Armour. Mr. Clark celebrates his 94th birthday in October of this year.

A Programme.

During the evening a splendid programme of music interspersed the speeches. This was given by the Millbrook band. Some much appreciated solos by Mrs. Waterman were also contributed.

HARDEN FOR THE STATES

WELL KNOWN GERMAN EDITOR IS SPOKEN OF FOR WASHINGTON POST.

HOUSECLEANING

By Carl D. Groat.
(United Press.)

BERLIN, July 11. — Maximilian Harden, editor of Die Zukunft, an opponent of German autocracy, is being discussed at the new Ambassador who will wrestle with the German's post-war problems in America. Count Bernstorff, who has played a leading role in the counsels of the government for along time, regards Harden as a favourable man for the Washington post, especially as he entertains liberal views and is believed to be highly regarded in the United States through his editorial work.

The Berlin government is eager to have diplomatic relations restored with the United States, France and Great Britain.

Incidentally, the Foreign Office is undergoing a cleaning-out process. "Dead wood" is being weeded out, and officials say room is being made for real merit. For instance, it is declared that men who have made good in the consular field hereafter will have a chance to enter diplomatic positions.

Germany's revised interest in business affairs is indicated by the fact that the Foreign Office has established a business news agency, which will quickly assemble data about exports and imports and trade conditions in foreign lands. This service will be at the disposal of German business men.

W. J. KEARNS NOTIFIES COUNCIL OF APPLICATION RE SIGNING OF [illegible] CONTRACT.

A few minutes after Mayor Duncan signed the Hunter street bridge by-law this afternoon, Mr. [illegible] G. Guise-Bagley presented him with the notice of an application for an injunction to restrain the corporation and its officers from signing the agreement with the Russell-Townsend Company.

The application, Mr. Bagley afterwards announced, was in behalf of W. J. Kearns and other citizens. The affidavit upon which the injunction is sought, declares that the Engineer's estimate of the cost of the bridge is $200,000, to which must be added [illegible] fees and land damages, and that the estimated cost of actual construction is $80,000 in excess of the money voted by the ratepayers. It also alleged that no steps have been made to determine the amount of the land claims. The application therefore asks for an injunction to restrain the city's officers from signing the agreement until a new by-law increasing the appropriation to cover the estimated cost of the bridge, together with the engineer's fees and [illegible] has been approved by the [illegible]

SENATORS OPPOSING LEAGUE OF NATIONS SEIZE ON SIX WORDS OF WILSON'S SPEECH.

TEST OF STRENGTH

(By United Press)
By L. C. Martin.

WASHINGTON, July 11.—Senators opposing the League of Nations to-day seized on six words from President Wilson's speech to the Senate as proof of their contention that the ratification of the league will rob the United States of its independence of action.

The six words are "At whatever cost of independent action."

The President used them in declaring that the world demanded a new order of International Politics, founded on freedom and justice. Thus the President anti-leagues argued today, demands that the United States commit itself to giving up its independence to whatever extent the league may deem necessary.

"This statement ,taken with the President's assertion that the United States is legally bound to accept the advice of the League Council, proves absolutely what the proponents of the league have denied," said Senator Borah". They have insisted that we will be under no legal obligation to act on the leagues advice unless we feel honor compells us to. But the President clearly views the situation differently."

MASONS HAD ENJOYABLE OUTING DOWN THE RIVER

LIST OF SPORTS PULLED OFF IN THE PRESENCE OF [illegible]—THE LANDING PARTY.

POLICE COURT

(By F. H. DOBBIN.)

The annual afternoon assembly of the Masonic Order was held, as annually usual, yesterday to Idylwild. The day, the weather, the arrangements, the provender, and entertainment were all that could be wished for. Under such gracious auspices, nothing less than complete success could be expected. Nothing less was realised.

In fact, for this special occasion the Masonic Order might be said to be self-contained. The Island of Idylwild belongs to Bro. Thomas Hooper, himself a valued member of the Craft. That fact settles the question of occupancy, for so to speak, the key is always found hanging outside the door. The Craft has a perpetual franchise, which is a desirable acquisition. Then again, Bro. Hooper is the hereditary caterer to the Craft. That of itself would be enough fame for most men, but Hooper wears his honours easily and efficiently. If he would only acquire the steamboat, then, as will be quite evident to any discerning person, there would be no use for committees or past masters or delegates. All that would be required would be for Hooper to say the word go. All this explains, why so many respects the afternoons down the river are what Walter Sinclair calls "a whale of a success."

The [illegible] the usual wharf, and had to go around to a [illegible] shore to make a landing. In fact, it was the freight that had to achieve the landing, while the boat rested quite securely on the bottom of the lake. Chris. Graham headed an exclusive deputation of venturesome spirits that went ashore hand over hand along the first and only [illegible] rope, assisted, of course, by public criticism and comment in the aerial flight, with observations as to individual styles of wriggling and contortion while the suspension act was going on. Others had to walk the gang plank. Amidst cheers of encouragement and infinite direction, Walter builded a pier of rocks to hold the other end of the plank, fetched a door from the old and exclusive bar building, and presently the congregation was rescued and ashore. Facetious people who made the trip, stood on the bank and saw that those crossing the Bridge of Sighs were properly splashed by heaving debris into the lake. The only want not filled was for a clothes pressing establishment convenient. But let us give and take. Most took, exclusively.

In the Jungle.

Amidst the tall grass and high wind the sports went on. A series of foot races for those under thirty and over resulted in remarkable bursts of speed and many falls. Velocity takes along with it momentum, and this means weight in motion. So when an obstacle on the ground interfered, a fall followed. Watch your step was disregarded, wholly. Most of the races were a wild scramble, each. Still, they got there in good shape. Heavyweight races and speed contests for all over eighty had numerous entries with numerous results.

The tug-of-war was a concussion,

THE CELTIC DOCKED THIS MORNING

HALIFAX, July 11. — The White Star Liner Celtic docked this morning after an uneventful passage of seven days from Liverpool. She brought 189 officers and nursing sisters, one cadet, thirteen other ranks and fifty sailors. The Celtic is the first ship to arrive here since the return movement began, without a full complement of soldiers. She sailed for New York at noon.

IMPROVEMENTS AT INVERLEA

LOCAL FIRMS DONATE THE MATERIAL RAFTS AND SPRINGBOARDS

The hundreds of bathers who visit Inverlea Park have been delighted with the improvements in the bathing facilities there, including spring boards and two rafts ,which have been installed through the enterprise and energy of Mr. A. G. Roberts, of the Playgrounds Association and the kindness of a number of local firms who donated the materials.

Thanks is due to the De Laval Company and the Dickson Company for timber for the rafts, Fitzgerald and [illegible] for spring boards, J. E. A. [illegible] old for raft, J. J. Turner and [illegible] for signs and matting, the Hig[illegible] Hardware Company and Mr. K. DEVOTION TO THE CITY'S BUSINESS

What it means to be the chief magistrate of the city must be realized to be appreciated. There is no such thing as a union connected with the office and a day's work only ends with the day itself. Yesterday it was pointed out that Mayor Duncan was an hour late reaching the new bathing house on Lake street but Ald. McIntyre, who was at the Bathing house on schedule time apparently was unaware that the Mayor was waiting at the City Hall for delinquent aldermen who owing to unforseen circumstances were unable to be present. The Mayor arrived at the City Hall before eight o'clock in the morning and it was twelve o'clock noon when he left. The Mayor's devotion to civic business is in a class with that of Ex-Ald. G. Walter Green There were a few days in the municipal career of ex-Ald. Green that he did not spend at least the first half of the day in consultation with City Engineer Parsons and other departmental heads relative to civic work.

SEVERAL KILLED IN A TORNADO

5 DOZEN ARE MISSING---CLOUD BURST AND HIGH WINDS.

(Special to The Examiner.)

PITTSBURG, PA., July 11. — Five persons were dead to-day, a dozen others are missing, and more than a score injured, as a result of a severe electric storm, accompanied by high winds and a cloud burst, which swept this vicinity of the state late yesterday.

The most serious damage done was at Bradford, where a tornado killed two persons, injured three others and demolished 75 houses.

Lightning killed two campers near Clinton and a farmer at Greensburg. Property damage will run into many thousands of dollars.

DROPPED DEAD WHILE PLOUGHING

SUDDEN DEATH OF CAVAN TOWNSHIP FARMER.

Alarmed by his failure to return to the house, Mr. J. C. Crow last evening set out to look for Thomas Lawson, lot 23, concession 14, Cavan, and found him dead behind the plough, which a few minutes previously he had been using. Mr. Lawson at noon had eaten a hearty meal and took his tea into the field, where he wished to finish some ploughing. At the latter meal he seemed to be in his usual good health and returned to work. Dr. Harvey, who was summoned directly the body was found, pronounced death due to heart failure and stated that he had died about half an hour previously, which was at 8 o'clock. The horses had remained standing in exactly the position they had been when Mr. Lawson dropped.

He was born in Ireland 60 years ago and came to Canada 40 years ago. He resided a number of years in Otonabee township, and only moved to Cavan last year. He leaves of the immediate family one brother, Mr. D. Lawson of Haliburton, and one sister, Mrs. W. Lawson, of Cavan township.

The funeral will take place on Sunday at 1.30 to the Zion cemetery in Otonabee from the family residence.

ST. JOHN'S BIBLE CLASS EXCURSION

The members of St. John's Women's Bible Class held their annual outing yesterday in Jackson Park. Tables were set in the pavilion, owing to the cold high wind which prevailed at the time. The refreshments which were provided in a happy cooperative manner by the members, were spread out in bountiful qualities and varieties, to the full enjoyment of all. Rev. Canon Davidson and Mrs. Davidson were present and added to the pleasure of the occasion by their presence and sociability.

FORD COMPANY IS REORGANIZED

A NEW MINIMUM WAGE OBOUT TO BE INTRODUCED.

(Canadian Press.)

DETROIT, Mich., July 11.— The re-organization of the Ford Motor Co. is being completed, whereby Edsel B. Ford, the twenty-five year old President of the Company becomes, with the exception of one other stock holder, the sole partner with his father, Henry Ford, in the corporation.

It was estimated in financial circles that $100,00,000 is involved in this deal.

Up to the present Henry Ford has held fifty-eight and a half per cent. of the Ford motor stock. To-day's announcement comes as a complete surprise in motor and financial circles, as it had been rumoured for some weeks that another large automobile corporation was seeking the minority holdings.

MOUNT CLEMENS, Mich., July 11.—It was learned on authority here to-day that Henry Ford has decided to increase the minimum wage of Ford Motor Co. employees to $7 a day. It is believed the new minimum will be put in effect soon, probably by August first, or thereabouts.

EMPLOYEES HAD ENJOYABLE OUTING

The employees of the Merrill and Meredith store together with their friends had an enjoyable outing yesterday afternoon when a party of sixteen journeyed to the first bridge a distance of nine miles, in Mr. Allen Sharpe's motor launch. A stop was made at the T. A. S. park where everybody introduced themselves all over again in bathing suits. After a refreshing swim the party motored down to first bridge where capacious hampers were produced. Mr. Merrill and Mr. Meredith were accompanied by Mrs. Merrill and Meredith who acted as chaperons for the party.

They returned to the city at 9.30 in the evening and unanimously voted the occasion an entire success.

THE WHEEL WITH THE VACUUM CLEANER

Observing Mr. Wm. Coulthard riding by the G.T.R. Station a noon yesterday on his bicycle with motor attachment behind, a woman, evidently hailing from the rural district, afforded considerable amusement when she remarked, "Would you look at the bicycle with the vacuum cleaner attached." Nobody presumed to enlighten the lady.

AT THE GRAND

"ALMOST MARRIED" IS A LAUGHABLE COMEDY—OTHER FEATURES.

"Almost Married", is the title of a well developed comedy which opened at the Grand last evening for a three night run. May Allison, the well known picture star plays the title role and is seen at her best in one of the best and most successful picture plays of the season.

In addition to his, there is Emmy Whelen in "His Bonded Wife", a wonderful story of a society butterfly who sought adventure and found tragedy. This is a five act drama with lots of action and includes a galaxy of well known picture stars.

A film depicting the manufacture of a well known household product is worth the price of admission for the amount of educational interest it contains.

A feature of the performance is the work of the orchestra which has been augmented by several pieces. It provides a good brand of music and is a feature that will be appreciated by the patrons of the Grand. The programme will be shown again to-night and to-morrow.

...C.P.R. LOOKS IN WEST FOR SETTLER

COMPANY HAS BEGUN A CAMPAIGN TO EMPHASIZE POSSIBILITIES.

The C. P. R. has launched a vigorous campaign to promote the sale of its western farm lands. During the war there was a steady demand and sale for these properties, especially from United States farmers, but the company did not actively engage in attracting the attention of Eastern farmers and other prospective settlers to the inducements which are provided to make their first years as successful as possible.

Non-irrigated land sells all the way from $12 to $30 an acre, and irrigated parcels at $50 and $55 an acre. The average farm is of 300 acres.

The terms offered to the settler for easy payment are as follows: one tenth of the purchase price down, and no payments on the principal for four years. If the purchaser improves the land he pays 2 p.c. interest the first and second years, 6 p.c. in the third and in the fourth he begins the payment on the principal. Thus, he has a chance of raising at least three crops before he has any large payment after the first deposit of one-tenth of the cost.

HOW IT WORKS IUT.

A 320 acre farm at $18 an acre is worth $5,760. Therefore, the settler is required to pay $576 down in purchasing this farm. The interest in the first year amounts to $103. The same sum is due in the second year. In the third it is three times greater or $309 and at the end of the fourth year he pays the regular interest of six percent and one-twentieth, of the principal. The payments are extended over 20 years.

M. C. L. Norwood, land agent for the company, was in Peterboro this week for the purpose of securing a local representative to interest prospective farmers in the C. P. R. lands. He stated that one or two good crops are sufficient to pay off the entire cost of a farm. Every possible help is given to settlers by the company and the Government. In view of the great demand for foodstuffs and because of the richness of the land in the Canadian west this opportunity of acquiring a farm in the greatest agricultural country in the world, will be fully explained to any persons who are interested in the advantages the company hold out to ambitious easterners.

RETURNED SOLDIERS

The C. P. R. has improved one hundred farms, providing them with buildings, fences, wells, etc., which it offers to returned soldiers who have had agricultural experience. No cash payment is required and there is no interest charged for three years. Besides the company furnishes a small working outfit and machinery. Seed is supplied and every possible inducement is extended to attract returned men who desire to establish themselves.

Persons who may be interested in this opportunity are directed to write to Mr. Norwood, in care of the C. P. R., Montreal. He also expects to appoint a district representative here through whom all the detailed information will be obtainable.

East of Calgary the C. P. R. has a three million acre block of land of which 600,000 acres are irrigated. Booklets tell the stories of men who in a few years have made fortunes for themselves on farms bought upon the C. P. R. terms. The possibilities are not solely for grain raising, but also for mixed farming, which is becoming more general every year.

ROMANS RETURN TO CAVES.

Exorbitant Rents Drive Italians to Prehistoric Apartments.

ROME. — "Cave-men," relics of pre-historic days of human housing, live in Rome side by side with institutions of art and learning.

The caves are under the very shadow of the British art school and the Italian College of Modern Arts, within a short distance of the National Stadium. On the other side of them is the Porta del Popula, through which before the day of railways, all pilgrims to Rome passed.

The reversion of Romans to the caves is not retrogression it is evasion. Rents in Rome have been so extortionately high that these Romans have sought refuge in the Tufo rocks of Rome. All efforts of the municipal police to eject the tenants from the caves have failed. The "cavemen" would go away, but return as soon as the eyes of the police were in another direction.

THE HUNTER STREET CAMPAIGN

"The Bigest Fool in Peterboro," according to Evangelist H. D. Kenedy, is the person who admits that he believes in God, that he understands the method of salvation outlined in the Bible, that he is a sinner and that he needs Christ, but refuses to accept the pardon for sin that is offered without money and without price. Such persons turn their back on all that is good and show that they prefer to continue in sin. They are worse than infidels inasmuch as an infidel does not believe in the Bible.

Speaking from the text, "What shall it profit a man if he gain the whole world and lose his own soul?" Mark 8:36, Mr. Kennedy dealt at some length last night with the subject of covetousness and the love of earthly fame and honour. More is said in the Scriptures against the sin of covetousness than all other sins together. Covetousness is the first step in stealing. If allowed to continue in the disposition it develops into all manner of sin because the love of money is the root of all evil. Mr .Kennedy said that when Christ was on earth he did not judge men according to their rank, wealth and influence, but by what they were. He spent much of His time among the poor and lowly.

The speaker said that wealth does not necessarily mean happiness and mentioned well known men of great wealth who in spite of all their money are unable to overcome bodily ailments. He showed that Solomon, the wisest man that ever lived, admitted that all worldly things are nothing but vanity, that Napoleon became the greatest general that ever lived, but died at St .Helena; that Alexander the Great conquered the then known world, only to weep because there were no more world to conquer. The chase after pleasure can never bring peace or permanent profit.

Some people think that when they get money it is their chance to lord it over their neighbors by living in better houses, dressing better, driving a more expensive car and in other similar ways. The true Christian will lay his wealth out before the Lord and ask for divine guidance as to how it shall be spent. The best way to judge men is not by how much they are worth but by the use they make of the money they have. The advice to get all you can, save all you can and spend all you can, if properly interpreted, is wise. Money is not tainted but the men who mishandle money are.

A Natural Thing.

It is as natural for a man to want happiness as it is for a fish to want water. Yet peace and happiness can never permanently enter into hearts apart from Christ. The thing that stands between any person and God is that thing whatever it may be that they are not willing to give up for God. It is that thing which is stealing the soul of the person who chaves to it. What will it profit such a person if they gain what they desire but lose their soul. Mr. Kennedy said that scarcely any person would consent to having their right arm chopped off even to receive a large sum of money, yet every day men and women sell their souls for things which they value less than they do their arms. In closing the speaker showed the great value that Christ set on a soul in that he was willing to give his life that our souls might be redeemed. He pressed home the Scriptural questions, "How shall ye escape if ye reject so great salvation, and what shall a man give in exchange for his soul?"

As has been the case every night now for some two weeks or more conversions were recorded at the close of the meeting.

Among the ministers present last evening, were Rev. Messrs. Pogue, Chapman, Gault, Thomas and Webb, as well as Adjt. Buntin of the Salvation Army. The features of the singing last evening were several choruses by the Salvation Army Songsters, who appeared in uniform, and sang the various numbers with a sympathy and expression that was appreciated by the audience.

To-night Mr. Kennedy will speak on "How Country People Live in Town," and on Sunday evening, on "The Handwriting on the Wall."

There will be a meeting Saturday evening as usual, when the subject will be, "The Judge before the Prisoner."

Our thoughts are only good, as they are true to God's thoughts.

Genuine Christianity is love in action. It is setting the ten commandments tomusic in the soul.

Generally when a fellow gives something to charity, he gets caught in the act.

Some never let the right hand know what the left gives, out of respect for the left hand.

The quickest way of making a crowd quit is to ask them for money.

It's usually the fellow that never gives anything that complains about being asked for money.

A man once complained that his wife was always asking for money. When asked how much he had given her, he answered, "nothing yet."

When a man gives money to missions, gotten from the burdens laid on the back of others, he is not a Christian—that does not go with Christ.

It's all right to get all the money you can, but you should not can all you get. Get all you can and give all you can.

It's as wicked for the rich to be idle as the poor.

The earth is the Lord's not the Kaiser's or any other man's

Man is only God's trustee on the earth. All money was God's first. Man should be glad of the privilege of using God's gift for the good of humanity, and for God's glory.

Some men have had a funeral in their souls.

No matter what a man gains in this world, be it wealth, honor, fame or pleasure, if at last his soul is lost, all is lost.

Did your church ever send a missionary to a foreign land?

A lost soul is awful to comtemplate. A soul is God's highest gift. One soul returning makes the angels sing.

In every soul is lodged the possibilities of the highest heaven or the deepest hell and that is what Jesus came to save.

Jesus never said "Peace! Peace!" whne there was no peace.

Swinging a red lantern at the right time has often saved a wreck.

Most people who are born die before twenty years of age.

The story of the rich man and Lazarus is as much a love story as John 3-16.

Sometimes the worst tasting medicine brings the best results.

Is it cruel of the doctor to tell you exactly what is wrong with you?

You cannot make a thing less true because you dislike it.

Crime would cease if every man felt the penalty of the law fall on him.

"Depart ye cursed," was said by the one who came to save.

Christ was the Lamb of God, also the Lion of Judah.

God is faithful who has promised, also faithful who has threatened.

The fact that Jesus did so much to keep men out, proves that there is a hell.

Some believe in a second probation. A man would look well going into heaven as an ex-convict of hell.

Subject Friday night: "How Country People Live in Town."

(This sermon is claimed to be the most interesting sermon Mr. Kennedy preaches. Don't miss it. A large crowd is looked for.)

Subject Saturday night: "A Judge Before a Prisoner."

Subject Sunday night: "Handwriting on the Wall."

MASONS HAD AN ENJOYABLE OUTING

almost a cataclysm. A sort of three-handed game, for Peterborough, Corinthian, and Royal Arthur Lodges had on the ground men of great physical prowess. So one team had to pull twice. The ground about the scene of hostilities will need to be rolled and re-turfed, so prolonged and desperate was the struggle. It was a marvellous thing to see men work so hard. And without any thought of going on strike for better conditions or higher pay. That same crowd, if efficiently directed, could build the Hunter Street bridge in no time at all. It seemed a real pity to see so much perfectly good energy going to waste. Amidst much excitement and clamour Royal Arthur carried off the palm; and the scalps of the defeated will hang in the lodge room for another twelve months.

The Ration Waggon.

Lunch was the prevailing impression immediately afterwards. An impression that merged into reality. It was the intention to serve the viands out on the grass, and to some extent this idea was carried out. Things were cut and sliced, boiled and heated in the old hotel kitchen, and when ready, everybody sailed in. A window was opened and a bread line presented itself amidst shouts of "no crowding" and "keep off my corns." Other remarks, explosive but convincing. Heaped plates were passed out and presently real coffee was jugged and poured. There were difficulties, of course. The wind was so strong that it blew the bread and butter off the plates. Fact, so help me, Jeff Davis. The second helping, for such was needed, developed feats of acrobatic food distribution that beat Bannigar all hollow. The handiest thing to dispense turned out to be doughnuts, those with a hole in the middle. Chris. Graham, being an expert catcher and pitcher, was set at the job. Presently the brown edible was flying all over the place, sailing through the air and being caught more or less expertly in caps, hats, and in the hands. If not caught, then chased in the tall grass until run down and stepped on. Many were thus broken and perfectly extinct as a viand. But it was all in the game.

The baseball match was a corker, so long as it lasted. No one won, and it wasn't intended that they should. There were only four rounds, and the referee stopped the match to take to the boat on the return trip.

On the way home prizes were presented. Opening the bag disclosed that it must have been bargain day at Woolworth's. Prizes were numerous, but not costly. The assortment was a lesson in purchasing economy. Clearly the appropriation was not exceeded.

The Police Court.

Presently, for the entertainment of the gathering on the boat a Police Court was organised, under the superintendence of Bro. Thompson. Men were arrested and brought before the Court on heinous allegations. Chris. Graham was the Double-barrelled Deputy Dictator and Arrester, and played no favorites. Others assisted. In fact, the Police Force was overmanned. Men were fined for shaving on Sunday and for not shaving at all. Another was mulcted in a dollar for being late at his meals. attendance at the Hunter Street revival services. One whose wife had presented him with a daughter was severely fined because it was not twins. And so the fun went on, the Court, d'ye understand, being wholly a court of expediency and not one of law. Presentation of the prizes was a hilarious few minutes. Following is the list of the alleged winners:

75 yards race—1st, Douglas Carlisle; 2nd, W. M. Crothers.

50 yards race (over 45 years)—1st, Walter Stocker; 2nd, H. R. Murray.

50 yards race (backward)—1st, Ira Moore; 2nd, F. C. Webber.

Hop race—W. M. Crothers.

All-four race—1st, Ross Dobbin; 2nd, Dr. E. R. Wood.

Boot race (45 yards)—1st, Douglas Carlisle; 2nd, Dr. E. R. Wood.

Tug-of-war (open to three lodges), picked teams from Peterborough, Corinthian, and Royal Arthur Lodges—Won by Royal Arthur.

HOSELESS LEGS

PARIS.— Parisian modistes have evidently reached the end of their creative resources in dressing the feminine world. Now they are turning to the less laborious task of undressing them artistically. Enter the hoseless leg.

Nothing below the knee is the first ediet of the new order, consequently Paris Mannequins have appeared in the paddock of the fashionable Longchamps race track without stockings.

For the ultra-chic the shadow stockings is, figuratively speaking, on its last legs, at least during the coming summer. Working girls welcome the change. Less expensive.

For plain, undecorated, flimsy, sea-all, silk sox now sell at $10 a pair in Paris. Wear 'em a few days and "blooie," full of ladders. In any event they were designed to give the bare leg illusion and now they are getting down to the real facts.

So the modiste's arrayed their Mannequins in abbreviated frocks and sent them to Longchamps with the breezes blowing about the knees.

Mifi white calves shared interest honours with the ponies, with the ponies on the small end of the interest. Short dresses were worn as if to ensure the wearer her exhibition would receive the proper amount of attention. They got it.

The shoes are said to be worn in low cut with leather doo-dads running criss-cross around the ankles. girls ewre either silver or gold bracelets about the ankle. They were very narrow— the bands —and some of them had bells attached which tinkled as they walked—placed the,r no doubt "to guard against attracting the gaze of men."

But one demure little Mannerquin had 'em all beat for maintaining a modesty front; she had little mirrors inset in the bracelets which shot rays of sunshine in all directions.

Scallops and fringe change a plain bathing suit into an affair of charm.

MISS HEADLEY DIES AS A RESULT OF SHOCK

BROCKVILLE, July 11. — Miss Flossy Headley, daughter of John E. Headley, Smith's Falls, succumbed last night in the local hospital to injuries received yesterday afternoon when struck by a westbound G.T.R. passenger train, when the other occupants of the buggy, Rev. John Osborne of Elizabethtown and Miss Irene Weatherton, of Ottawa, her cousin, were killed. Miss Headley's death was due to shock.

Proves the Value of Good Eyesight

THERE is no part of the army regulation that is more severe than that covering good eyesight. This fixes the importance of this sense above all others and is the result of experience, careful study, and good judgment, without prejudice.

What is true of the army is no less true of the great army following commercial pursuits. If you are trying to make your way in the world, either to become a captain of industry or simply to provide for yourself and your family, do not allow yourself to become inefficient in seeing power. It is not only unnecessary, but likewise unprofitable.

WHO WON THE WAR?

Canadians generally will hail with satisfaction, Field Marshal Sir Douglas Haig's statement in regard to the share of the British army in the winning of the war. There has been a tendency to deprecate, or a failure to understand, just how great a part was played by the armies of the Empire and this has been influenced by the usual reticence on the part of the British leaders to tell the real facts. They have been content to know that Britain did her share and to rest satisfied that the world would understand and appreciate that share. For the Britton is a poor advertiser. While other countries were shouting about the work of their soldiers in the war, the people of the Motherland have, for the most part, kept silent. Sir Douglas Haig, whose splendid stand on behalf of his men in the matter of pension, has endeared him to every soldier, will gain further popularity because he has seen fit to break the code of silence and to come out bluntly and declare: "It is all right to speak of our allies, but it was the British army that won the war; it was Britain that bore the brunt of the fighting in the last two years." We can believe it with the head of Britain's army. Sir Douglas Haig knows.

A CANADIAN AIR FORCE.

There are many who will agree with the opinion of Brig.-General Victor Odlum, of the 4th Can. Division, that the government has made a serious mistake in refusing to form a Canadian air force. General Odlum points out that there were no better flyers in the war than the Canadian airmen, and that they are an asset that should not be lost. The opportunity to act came when Great Britain on demobilization offered Canada one hundred aeroplanes. It will be remembered that the same offer was made to Australia and was eagerly accepted. General Odlum believes that Canada should have taken advantage of the chance to organize an air force and to make use of the trained aviators developed by the war. Otherwise these men will either go to countries where their services will be appreciated or drift back into civil life, as a number of Peterborough flyers have already done, and speedily forget all the training they have received.

EQUALITY OF PENSIONS.

The pressure on the part of returned men for an equalization of pensions is not as strong as it might be, principally because many of the veterans seem more eagerly concerned in agitating for the Calgary $2,000 gratuity scheme than they are of of righting the obvious injustice of the pension regulations. Public opinion is not with the returned men in this matter of a big cash gratuity. There are many who do not believe that the country is in a financial position to provide the grants that are asked for; there are many others who do not believe in the principle of the proposal. These people think that the associations of returned men are wasting time in pressing for the Calgary plan that might much more profitably be employed in starting a coast to coast agitation for equality of pensions. The people generally would be solidly with them in the demand that there should be no distinction between officers and enlisted men, once they get back into civilian life. The government itself has admitted that no such distinction should be made by arranging the new pension bonus so that a private will receive as much as a sergeant. But why not as much as a lieutenant or captain? For everybody knows the the majority of the non-commissioned officers held their positions because of merit and fitness, while it is almost equally as well known that many officers obtained their commissions because of "pull," either personal or political. In a democratic country there should be no difference made, and if the Veterans were to concentrate their influence on this matter for a while they would have the sentiment of the people with them to an extent that would compel action.

THE CIVIL SERVICE.

While there will not be much objection registered against the bonuses to be provided for members of the civil service, a vote of $10,000,000 for which was passed among the supplementary estimates just before parliament adjourned, there is likely to be a demand for the reformation of the civil service to such an extent that the people of Canada will get value for the money that is being spent. The report of the committee which investigated conditions in the Inside Civil Service, with a view to a possible reduction of the staffs, was a revelation even to those who had reason to know that the service is top-heavy with officials. Not only is this the case, but it is evident that many of those employed in the civil service have not endeavoured to give full value for their wages. This is shown by the figures in regard to leave of absence among civil servants. It is surprising to find that during a year the total days of absence were 94,688 days, an average of 12.7 days for each civil servant. In this connection it must be remembered that these holidays, at the public expense, are in addition to the usual vacation and to the regular statutory holidays which are enjoyed by the civil servants. The figures will cause considerable comment; it is certainly not a proof of efficient public service to know that employees of the government have been averaging nearly two weeks of stolen holidays each year in addition to the three weeks' vacation most of them are given.

The bonuses that have been granted may be necessary to meet the increase in the cost of living, but if the conditions are as they appear on the surface, it is time to warn some of these civil servants that they are paid to serve the public.

THE HIGH COST OF LIVING

The committee of the House of Commons set to inquire into the high cost of living has failed, as we supposed it would, to discover the cause or suggest the remedy. It reports that, although it has discovered some cases of great profits, the cost of manufacture and distribution has on the whole not been unreasonable, considering the business ability of those who have made profits. The public indignation, which blazes out against the profiteers is not, we should say, wholly sincere.. Profit making has been pretty general and the laboring classes have apparently been as ready as the capitalists to make the most of their genius during the piping times of war. Although labor was not interrogated its responsibility is as clear as that of capital. Labor has raised the cost of railway transportation as well as the cost of producing what it consumes. Money has probably depreciated. Free marketing has been long interrupted. A large part of the world has long been unable to market its products. Shipping has failed and shipping costs have been very high. Labor has been withdrawn from production and conditions have been created, which encouraged hoarding and speculation. It will probably appear later that the efforts of [illegible] to check price [illegible] of raising [illegible] events of preventing a fall, when prices had risen. Canadian wheat of 1918 has been kept in store, while the price has been held at $2.24 and the Government, we read, is peddling its store in south eastern Europe. Three and a half million bushels have just been sold to Greece.

The only remedies which the committee suggests are frugality and more production. Frugality, however, is a virtue which develops best during hard times and Governments of all kinds seem to be doing their best to avoid hard times. As long as governments provide employment at very high wages the public will not adopt the suggestion of reducing prices by using only goods of poor quality. Nor is more production likely to result quickly, as long as the interference of government operates to prevent the turn of labor to the essential industries. In this country a serious disturbance of credit may possibly diminish employment, reduce wages and compel saving or prices of food at least may be broken this fall by the accumulation of stores in excess of the demand. The point cannot be far distant where saving of necessity will affect the demands of Europe for what Canada has to sell.—Farmers' Sun.

IN MEMORY OF ILLUSTROUS DEAD

PARIS, July 11. — In connection with the fetes of victory which are now engrossing Paris, a group of French veterans has suggested that from some point on the old Marne battlefield nearest Paris the remains of a French soldier whose identity is unknown should be exhumed and entombed with appropriate ceremonies in the Pantheon where lie many of France's illustrious dead. This unknown soldier would serve as a symbol of the poilus and of all the obscure heroism and devotion from which has come victory. A more fitting memorial to the courage and devotion of the common soldiers could hardly be imagined.

BOY HURT BY PRINCE'S CAR.

Royal Driver Exonerated — Spends Hours at the Hospital.

LONDON, July 11.—Prince Albert, driving a car from the Croydon aerodrome, knocked down a boy named Joseph Emmeo, who darted from behind another vehicle. The boy's injuries include both arms andone leg broken, a fractured skull, and severe abdominal injuries. The doctors state that at this stage it is impracticable to say anything regarding his chances for recovery. The prince, to whom no blame can be apportioned, is greatly distressed over the accident and is spending hours at the hospital awaiting reports.

The Promoter's Wife

BY JANE PHELPS

BAB OVERHEARS A DISTURBING CONVERSATION

CHAPTER XIII.

We still kept the apartment we had rented when we were first married. But we kept two servants, and when we entertained, Neil always sent a man from the club to wait. We had a small car also, and I had—at Neil's suggestion — bought many new and expensive things for the house. But Neil constantly talked of the "deal" which soon would be "put thru" and then we would give up our little apartment and go to one of the handsome new ones just built on the fashionable East side of town.

"It is silly to keep buying things if we intend to move," I said to him. "You know they never look the same in another place."

"We want to have things decent while we are here. We'll make a bon-fire of them when we go," he reutrned.

Of course I knew he did not mean that he would burn them, but that they would amount to so little when he had made the money he expected to, that they wouldn't count. So I went on buying beautiful things for the house and handsome clothes at the most expensive modiste's.

Often when I looked into the glass I would wonder if I were the same girl, who, only a little over a year ago, was satisfied to dress in muslins and ginghams. Now nothing was too ultra for me to wear. I had acquired a certain style which seemed to call for extreme fashions, and as Neil never grumbled about the bills which were always sent to him, I had gradually grown more and more extravagant in my spending.

Not that I yet bought like some women we knew. I had neither expensive jewels or furs. But it costs a great deal for a woman to wear handsome evening and afternoon gowns, and to be correctly tailored for the street. Hats, boots, and underwear all were of a kind I never had dreamed of possessing—very unlike the plain practical things I had in my simple trousseau.

Neil was becoming very uncertain in his hours. It annoyed me and I spoke of it to him:

"You are getting later and later for dinner, Neil. If you keep this up I soon shall not see you at all."

He made no reply. During dinner I tried to get him to talk of what he was doing, but instead of this he talked of trivial matters.

He seemed to be regarding me critically, carefully. I had an impression that he was holding something back; that he was weighing every word he spoke.

The next day I recalled his manner at dinner when I overheard two men speak of him. I had gone into the Waldorf to wait for Lorraine Morton with whom I had agreed to lunch. I waited in the writing room, and as I was a little ahead of time I busied myself by writing mother. On a settee near me were two men.

"I saw young Forbes this morning He stopped me, and I must say he had two very peculiar men with him. Not his sort at all."

"Forbes' friends are not all distinguished, by any means," the other replied. "It seems a pity that some young men think that to be successful in business they have to do shady things or be intimate with those who do. In time they all go under together. Forbes comes of good stock. It's too bad. I wonder what kind of a wife he has."

Just then Lorraine came in and I heard no more. I called her attention to the two men and asked her if she knew them.

"Never saw them before, why?"

"Do you know any other Forbes besides Neil?" I then asked.

"No—why again?"

"They were talking of some man named Forbes, and said he was of good stock. It seemed odd that I should hear them." I had no slightest intention of confiding in Lorraine Morton. But once more I had that sensation of forboding that I had experienced the day I lunched with Blanche Orton.

Lorraine shot a keen glance at me. It seemed to me there was some sort of meaning in her look. Then she asked:

"Does Neil—Mr. Forbes tell you about his business? Some men are very secretive I know. I should want to know every blessed thing about a man's business if I were married."

LEVEL CROSSING ACCIDENT ON G.T.R.

BROCKVILLE. — July 9th. — As the result of a level crossing accident this afternoon on the G.T.R., just east of the town, Rev. John Osborne, aged 72, and Miss Irene Weatherton, aged 18, daughter of Jas. Weatherton, 281 Bronson avenue, Ottawa, were instantly killed by the Montreal-Toronto express. Miss Flossie Headly, daughter of John W. Headly, 'Smith's Falls, lies in the St. Vincent de Paul Hospital, with severe injuries to the head and body, but the doctors hold out hopes for her recovery.

Mr. Osborne and Miss Weatherton were carried for more than 100 feet, the body of the latter being the most terribly mangled of the two. Miss Headly was thrown clear of the rails. The horse was killed and the buggy reduced to kindling wood.

Mr. Osborne was a well known clergyman. For many years he was stationed at Fitzroy Harbor and also had charges at points in the Ottawa valley and Leeds County. A coroner's jury is investigating the tragedy.

"Just can't work any more." The faded, jaded, over-worked woman, with pains here or there should ask her neighbor for advice. Ten-to-one she was dragged down by the pains and ailments of her sex, and was completely cured by that temperance tonic made from wild herbs and roots, and known for 50 years as Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. When a woman complains of backache, dizziness or pain—when everything looks black before her eyes—a dragging feeling, or bearing-down, with nervousness, she should turn to this "temperance" herbal tonic, known as Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It can be obtained in almost every drug store in the land and the ingredients are printed in plain English on the wrapper. Put up in tablets or liquid. Dr. Pierce, of Invalids' Hotel, Buffalo, N. Y., will send a trial size for 10 cents.

Tamworth, Ont.—"Dr. Pierce's Medicine has been a wonderful help to me and I recommend it to keep that others may be benefited by its use. When I was a girl I was always delicate so mother thought she could never raise me as I got older I grew worse; doctors said I would have to have an operation. I suffered at times untold agony. My mother started giving me 'Favorite Prescription,' and it finally cured me of all my troubles. After I married I used it again. My children are all healthy and strong. This medicine did wonders for me, saved me much suffering, and I can highly recommend it to my women or those wishing a family."—Mrs. A. W. Acum, 122 Thirteenth Street.

Few People Know This

Large doses of pills for the liver are not as efficient as small doses.

The big dose purges its way through the system fast, but does not cleanse thoroughly.

The small dose (if right) acts gently on the liver, and gives it just the slight help it needs to do its own work, and do it well.

Take one pill regularly, until you know you are all right.

GRAIN MARKET

The government's bearish report on corn issued yesterday was apparently the dominatin factor in the corn market esterday ,despite the present scarcity of supplies and the inherent strength of the cash market. There was a break at the close of 1 3-4c below Wednesday's close on the July option ,and on the distant months the break was 2 3-4c to 3 1-4c. Oats went the other way, closing strong and higher at both Winnipeg and Chicago. There is but little business doing in the local cash grain market. No quotations on Manitoba oats and barley were given out to-day by the Market Commitee of the Board of Trade yestreday. In the mill feeds bran and shorts are a little firmer.

Hay—Baled, track, Toronto, car lots, No. 1, $21 to $22; No. 2 mixed, $18 to $19 per ton; straw, car lots, $10 to $11.

CATTLE MARKET

Union Stock Yards—Receipts, 1294 cattle, 127 calves, 1060 hogs, and 229 sheep and lambs.

There was a slight halt in the demand for butcher cattle and the market yesterday was rather slow in comparison with the active markets of the earlier part of the week. There was little material change in the general price situation though small concessions were forced here and there for a quicker clean up. For the medium butcher lots prices were barely steady. Anything real choice was steady to firm.

Calves good and firm with an active demand for the Buffalo market.

Sheep and hogs were slightly easier.

To Ward Off Summer Complexion Ills

To keep the face smooth, white and beautiful all summer, there's nothing quite so good as ordinary mercolized wax. Discoloured or freckled skin, so common at this season, is gentliy, gradually absorbed by the wax and replaced by the newer, fresher skin beneath. The face exhibits no trace of the wax, which is applied at bedtime and washed off mornings. Greasy creams, powders and rouges, on the other hands, are apt to appear more conspicuous than usual these days of excessive perspiration. Just get an ounce of mercolized wax at any drug store and use it like cold cream. This will help any skin at once and in a week or so the complexion will look remarkably clear, young and healthy.

SAGE TEA TURNS GRAY HAIR DARK

It's Grandmother's Recipe to Bring Back Colour and Lustre to Hair.

That beautiful, even shade of dark glossy hair can only be had by brewing a mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Your hair is your charm. It makes or mars the face. When it fades, turns gray or streaked, just an application or two of Sage and Sulphur enhances its appearance a hundred fold.

Don't bother to prepare the mixture; you can get this famous old recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients for 50 cents a large bottle all ready for us. It is called Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound. This can always be depended upon to bring back the natural color and lustre of your hair.

Everybody uses "Wyeth's" Sage and Sulphur Compound now because it darkens so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied. You simply dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through the hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair has disappeared, and after another application it becomes beautifully dark and appears glossy and lustrous. This ready-to-use preparation is a delightful toilet requisite for those who desire dark hair and a youthful appearance. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.

RICHARD HALL & SON LIMITED

COUNCIL HAS PROVIDED FOR A STEEL ARCH SHOULD CONCRETE WORK THREATEN TO EXCEED APPROPRIATION

ARE HOPEFUL THAT THE RUSSELL-TOWNSEND COMPANY CAN MAKE GOOD THEIR ASSURANCES, BUT INTEND TO SAFEGUARD THEMPELVES BY ALTERNATIVE.

CHEAPNESS OF STEEL DISPUTED

A condition in the Hunter street bridge by-law permits the Council to obtain plans and estimates for a steel arch over the river, and if the Russell-Townsend Company hope to enhance their reputation by constructing the longest concrete arch in Canada it will be to their interest to keep the final cost within the appropriation. The Council has shown its preference for a bridge entirely of concrete, but they have tried to safeguard themselves against liability for any expenditure in excess of the money that has been granted for the work.

It is likely that plans for a steel arch, together with an estimate of its cost, and probable tenders, too, may be secured before next spring, when the contractors will be ready to proceed with the building of the long arch over the river. Although engineers have expressed contradictory opinions as to the comparative costs of the arch in steel and concrete, the belief has prevailed with the Council that the steel arch with a concrete deck would be the cheaper. Hence, if the work on the approaches, piers and foundations consumes such a portion of the appropriation that the Council is convinced the concrete arch cannot be constructed for the remaining money, they will have the alternative steel plans to substitute.

This forehandedness contemplates complete action during the winter months, depending of course upon the costs of the work accomplished this year. It has been proposed that the steel arch plans will be obtained early enough for examination and approval by Government boards, and also to avoid any delay in the continuance of the work next summer should the substitution of steel for concrete be found necessary. There is a general feeling of confidence in the Council that the Russell-Townsend Company can fulfill promises to the effect that the bridge can be built entirely of concrete within its own tendered estimate, and the Council will be more than gratified if the final cost does not exceed $200,000, but the threats of injunctions and the desire to avoid any embarrassing aftermath prompted the provision in the by-law that allows the choice of a steel arch if it is deemed advisable for financial and "safety first" reasons.

WATCH YOUR PHONE BILL!

Toronto Legal Department Advises Citizens to Pay the New Rate Under Protest Pending Appeal.

The civic legal department has asked that warning be given to citizens respecting the increased telephone rates.

The new bills are out and they call for ten per cent. increase. Most telephone contracts are for one year, terminable on ten days' notice. The company has not served this notice in any case, it was said, and the claim is that it cannot increase the rates under the present contracts.

Citizens are advised to scrutinize their contracts carefully. If they decide to pay the bill, they should do so under protest, as the city will probably bring the matter of the increase before the Ontario Railway Board.—Toronto Telegram.

VICTORY DAY CELEBRATION

Large Sums are Being Paid for Balconies and Windows along the Route.

PARIS, July 11. — Plans for the celebration of Victory Day, July 14th, are nearing completion. It promises to be the greatest day in the history of Paris. Fabulous prices are being asked for windows and balcony seats along the Champs Elysees and for hotel accommodations in the city. In the vicinity of the Arc de Triomphe, especially, the prices paid for the rental of a window for two hours would provide homes for indigent families for years. For a single window or balcony seat from $200 to $600 will be paid and the price of a balcony situated midway between the Place de La Concorde and the Arc de Triomphe is advertised at $3,000.

There are accommodations on that balcony for about twenty persons.

Hotel keepers are raising their prices from fifty to one hundred per cent. for the week of July 10-17, and turning out guests of long standing to make room for prospective visitors.

The work of decorating the Champs Elysee is being pushed with the greatest haste, 120 painters and 30 sculptors working in shifts. The city is already beflagged with banners. Six hundred carpenters and a thousand laborers are working in eight hour shifts, according to the new eight-hour law, in erecting stands along the course where the parade will pass. More than 3,000 men are actually at work preparing for the celebration.

GERMAN NAVY LOST 400 SHIPS; HAD 29,695 MEN KILLED

WASHINGTON, July 11. — Details of the loss of nearly 200 U-boats are contained in an article in the Vossische Zeitung of Berlin, quoted in an official report received here to-day.

Of the U-boats, 82 were lost in the North Sea or in the Atlantic and 72 off the coast of Flanders. Fourteen were blown up by their own crews.

Other naval losses were 1 battleship 1 battle cruiser, 6 armored cruisers, 8 modern and 10 older smaller cruisers, 7 gunboats, 3 river gun boats, 49 destroyers, 20 large and 41 small torpedo boats, 28 mine sweepers and 122 trawlers and auxiliary vessels — a total of 490 warcraft.

According to the newspaper, the number of men of the naval forces killed was 29,685.

PACKERS GET A STRANGLE HOLD ON THE MEAT MARKET

REPORT OF THE FEDERAL TRADE COMMISSION—GROWTH OF POWER.

(Canadian Press.)

WASHINGTON, July 11.—An approaching packer domination of all important foods in the United States and an international control of meat products with foreign companies, seems certain unless fundamental action is made to safeguard it. Federal Trade Commission disclosed to-day in part one of its report to President Wilson on the "control and growth of power of the five packers in meat and other industries."

After consideration of the report the Senate have followed with the packers they have already investigated in their report.

sion that they threaten the freedom of the market of country's food industries and of the by-product industries linked therewith. The meat packers' control of other foods will not require long in developing."

Declaring history of the packers' growth is interwoven with illegal combinations, rebates and with undisclosed control of corporations, the report urged the importance of full publicatory of corporate ownership for all industries, alleging that the "big five" packers, Swift & Co., Armour & Co., Wilson & Co., Morris & Co., and Cudahy Co. jointly or separately will be the controlling interests in 676 companies, the minority interest in 88 others and the undetermined interest in 30, a total of 782 companies, and that they produce or deal in some 176 commodities largely food products. The report gives a graphic picture of the growing packer invasion into related and unrelated industries.

DIPLOMAS PRESENTED TO FOUR NURSES AT ST. JOSEPH'S HOSPITAL

GRADUATING EXERCISES WERE HELD YESTERDAY EVENING ON THE LAWN OF THE HOSPITAL—ADDRESS BY HIS LORDSHIP BISHOP O'BRIEN—CLERGY AND DOCTORS PRESENT.

A MUSICAL PROGRAMME

Devotion to duty always brings its reward. After three years service as nurses in St. Joseph's Hospital, Miss Margaret Le Claire, Miss Elizabeth Hanlan, Miss Julia Hickey and Miss Kathleen Hickey, received their diplomas as trained nurses from the hands of His Lordship Bishop M. J. O'Brien last evening. The graduation exercises were held on the lawn immediately south of the hospital in front of the ivy-covered verandah, which was draped with numerous British flags and tri-colored bunting.

Dr. James V. Gallivan was the chairman of the evening, and with him were Bishop O'Brien, Rev. Dean McColl, Rev. Father P. McGuire, Rev. Father Guiry, Rev. Father Michael O'Brien, Rev. Father Ferguson, of Wooler, and Dr. Frank Neal.

To the strains of a piano duet the five graduates, led by six probationers, marched slowly from the front door of the hospital and took their places immediately in front of His Lordship and the chairman. The graduates were distinguished from the probationers by a black band on the cap and each carried a large bouquet of red and white roses. Dr. Gallivan wished the graduates every success in their career as nurses, and spoke of their constancy and devotion while in training.

After a piano solo by Miss F. Giroux, His Lordship congratulated the nurses on their attaining their graduation, which calls for a life of service to our fellow men. He spoke touchingly of the late Dr. J. W. Hayes, whose funeral took place only this week, and of the eminence which he attained in the medical world.

Bishop O'Brien reminded the nurses that nursing was the right hand of the medical profession and admonished them to live up to the ideals of their great profession. He further asked them to carry on their work in the spirit of religion for the honour and glory of God.

Each of the nurses was then presented with their diplomas tied with the colors of St. Joseph's Hospital. Rev. Father McGuire read the names of the graduates.

Dr. Neal heartily congratulated the nurses on their success and wished them every success in their life's work.

Miss Ernestine McManus sang a beautiful solo after which Dean McColl spoke of the virtues which go to make up an ideal nurse.

One of the finest numbers on the programe was a musicale by Miss E. McCabe (piano), Mr. Vincent McCabe, (1st violin), and Mr. J. McCabe, 2nd violin), rendering "Iris."

The programme was closed by the singing of the National Anthem after which all repaired to the assembly hall in the hospital where refreshments were served.

Don't Spoil Your Hair By Washing It

When you wash your hair, be careful what you use. Don't use prepared shampoos or anything else, that contains too much alkali, for this is very injurious, as it dries the scalp and makes the hair brittle.

The best thing to use is just plain mulsified cocoanut oil, for this is pure and entirely greaseless. It's very cheap, and beats anything else all to pieces. You can get this at any drug store, and a few ounces will last the whole family for months.

Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in, about a teaspoonful is all that is required. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, cleanses thoroughly, and rinses out easily. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and is soft, fresh looking, bright, fluffy, wavy and easy to handle. Besides, it loosens and takes out every particle of dust, dirt and dandruff.

STRONG HAND.

DUBLIN, July 11. — The government will now use strong means to suppress the Sinn Fein movement in Ireland.

DR. FRANK BOHN. GAVE FINE ADDRESS LAST EVENING

THE NEXT WAR BETWEEN WHITE AND COLOURED RACES—THE DE MILLE QUARTETTE.

Dr. Frank Bohn—C

The big Chautauqua tent was taxed to capacity last night to accommodate the crowd present to hear the concert given by the De Mille quartette and the lecture on "Revolutionary Europe," given by Dr. Frank Bohn.

The program of music was one of very high order. The solo and quartette selections being probably better than any heard in Peterbrough for some time. The numbers were varied and well chosen. The quartette were heard to advantage in the "Pilgrim's Chorus," as well as the lighter numbers.

Dr. Bohn, who was well received at last year's Chautauqua, was given a hearty reception and his lecture certinly placed him on a still higher pinnacle of appreciation in the minds of Peterborough people, who were fortunate enough to be present last night. His personal observations and intimate knowledge of the great war in all its diplomatic ramifications, gives him an advantage that belongs to few men on this side of the Atlantic. His ability to add that personal touch and the manner in which he played up the human side of the great struggle; its meaning results, and its great lessons impressed the minds of the audience indelibly.

Tracing the underlying causes and condition in various countries involved, the speaker took his audience through the four years of strife down to the signing of peace. The peace terms were discussed in their relation to humanity. Dr. Bohn pointed out how such terms were benefitting the industrial and labor classes; because they were all made with a view to the progress of democracy throughut the world.

The Next War.

"The next great war," said Dr. Bohn, "will be between the white and colored races. It will be fought in the air and will be so terrible that the war which we have just come through will seem like a "tea party." He outlined the development of aerial transportation and the invention of explosives. The United States Government can manufacture gas seventy-two times as strong as any gas used in the war. The smallest particle coming in contact with the human body will cause death in twenty minutes. Experiments would be continued by the different nations of the world and he had no doubt that the gas would be produced sufficiently strong to wipe out whole countries. It would be a case of which country commanded the supremacy of the air. It was our duty, however, to see to it that no such war would ever occur.

Referring to the threatened struggle between the white and colored races Dr. Bohn stated that it would be caused by economic conditions. The capitalists in America and Europe are exploiting labor in the tropical countries for their own gain. These large interests are attempting to control the industrial activities of South America, China, India, etc. The day will come when a mighty attempt will be made to throw off the yoke and in that struggle Japan will probably be looked upon as the champion of the colored races in the world. To prevent this is our plain duty. We must see to it that the inhabitants of these countries receive everything to which they are justly entitled to ,including the control of their own water pwer, their oils and other natural resources.

In conclusion the speaker urged a greater sense of fairness and a sincere effort on the part of everyone to advance the Kingdm of God on earth. At the close of his address Dr. Bohn received a volume of applause that has seldom been accorded any speaker that has ever graced the public platform of Peterborough.

ROUTED I.W.W., OLE HANSON INCREASES WAGES IN SEATTLE

SAYS IT IS BAD BUSINESS TO UNDERPAY EMPLOYEES---INVESTIGATED COST OF LIVING.

SEATTLE, WASH. — As Mayor of Seattle, I ordered the Board of Public Works, who are the executive heads of the city department, to ascertain how much the cost of living has advanced since the siging of the armistice and to increase the wages of our 5,000 employees in proportion.

When I became Mayor fifteen months ago minimum wages were $3.50 for an eight-hour day. Living costs increased, and we increased wages from $3.50 to $4, and later from $4 to $4.50.

Upon my return from New York I made a careful investigation and found that, instead of stopping when the armistice was signed, every needful thing had continued climbing in price—rent, food, clothing, and all other necessities, except light, water, and street car fare, all of which are municipally owned and furnished at cost.

Our employees must and shall be paid enough to live in decency and comfort. It is neither good business nor good morals to underpay anyone. The number of dollars one receives for work is not the true measure. The question is—how much flour, beef, beans, rent, shoes, etc., these dollars will purchase.

Ready-made men's suits sold for from $15 to $45 four years ago. These same suits, of poorer quality—and I take the word of the clothiers themselves—now sell for from $35 to $75.

Shoes that sold for $6 now sell for $15; houses and flats that rented for from $20 to$40 now rent for from $35 to $80.

I am informed that the wholesale price of clothing was increased from 10 to 20 per cent. in the last sixty days.

Seattle officials cannot regulate the cost of living. I do not know who can, but it is my plain duty to see to it that our employees receive sufficient to care for themselves and their families. Of course raising wages generally will again shoot up the cost of production and make another raise necessary unless something happens or something is done. It looks as though we were all flies on a great wheel, powerless to stop and compelled to go on.

No concerted demand has been made by city employees, nor should employers wait until forced by threats of strikes, etc., to do justice to their employees. If the workmen are entitled to better wages and living condition give it to them without asking and without pressure. To hesitate in right doing gives every radical a text and every Red an argument.

Our workmen are not responsible for the increased cost of necessities and should not suffer because of it. Wages must continue going up as long as living costs rise. I wonder if the Federal Trade Commission has assembled the many reasons for the continuous increase? Have they done anything to check it? Is there any concerted movement in Washington?

If not, there ought to be. After the civil war, from 1864 to 1874, the prices of forty-eight needed commodities declined but 6 per cent. per annum, with just about an average decline each year.

Peace is now signed. Let us now give our best efforts to understand if possible to solve, this great problem. When this problem is solved the greatest cause of unrest is wiped out.

SHOOTING SENTENCE ONE HOUR IN JAIL.

N. S. Prisoner Lives on Water After Jumping Bail.

(Canadian Press.)

TRURO, N.S., July 11.—R. B. Lovely, charged with shooting and wounding Harry Blair, who, it is alleged, paid too much attention to his wife, was given one hour in jail by Judge Webster at the Assizes here.

Lovely, after the shooting, was arrested and bailed out on $2,000. When his case was called he did not appear and a search was made for him. He was found in a cellar under a factory and had lived on water from a faucet from 30th May to 21st June, and was in an emaciated condition.

NOT A "BLIND" PIG.

A few days ago Mr. H. B. Lawson, of the Township of Hope, sold several young pigs, five weeks old, to one of his neighbours. The pigs were placed in a bag and taken away at dark a distance of a mile and a half. Next morning one of the pigs was missing, and the buyer at once went to Mr. Lawson to report his loss. To the surprise of both Mr. Lawson and the buyer, the missing pig was found resting comfortably in its own stall. This is a very remarkable incident—a pig to be removed in a bag after dark and then manage to find its way back home a distance of nearly two miles.

TACOMA WOMAN GAINS 25 POUNDS

MRS. PERRY WILL PRAISE TANLAC FOR THE REMAINDER OF HER LIFE, SHE SAYS.

"I will certainly praise Tanlac the remainder of my life," said Mrs. George Perry, residing at 1920 North Stevens street, Tacoma, Washington, recently, for the medicine has really and truly made me feel like a new woman and in just about two months time after I began taking it my weight had increased twenty-five pounds.

"Seven or eight years ago," she continued, "my stomach began to act in a very peculiar manner. Things I had always been eating failed to agree with me and I had no relish for my food any more. Then my appetite left me entirely and what I ate seemed to do me harm instead of good, as I would bloat up so with sour gas that I was miserable all the time. My whole body, even to my face would bloat terribly and this would press on my heart, causing to jump and palpitate fearfully. I suffered so with shortness of breath that I could not walk a block without having to stop several times to get my breath, and was completely exhausted by the time I had walked that far. I felt absolutely worn-out all the time, although I did very little work, being physically unable to do much, and was so nervous and restless that I would lay awake night after night. My eyes just seemed to be propped open—and there was no sleep for me. I often had raging headaches, my kidneys were in bad shape, too, and there was such awful cutting pains in my back that I could hardly bend over to put my shoes on. My limbs and feet got so they would often swell until I could not get my shoes on and sometimes I could not walk at all.

"I was paying out money all the time for treatment and medicine, but only got worse, and at last reached the point where life did not seem worth living. My mother finally persuaded me to take Tanlac and the results are I am a well and happy woman. My appetite is splendid and I eat just anything I want at any time without suffering the least bit afterwards. Since the gas has stopped forming on my stomach I can walk any distance, in fact, I am walking nearly all the time every day and never suffer any more from palpitation or shortness of breath. I have also gotten entirely rid of the headaches, as well as the pain in my back, and my kidneys are in fine shape. I sleep like a child every night, and I never have that tired feeling any more, although I am going all the time. To put it all in a few words, I was never in better health than I am right now and words cannot express the gratitude I really feel for what Tanlac has done for me. It has been a Godsend to me."

Tanlac is sold in Peterborough by W. B. Warne Drug Co., Ltd., in Havelock by A. C. Denike, in Lakefield by Tanner Drug Co., in Fowlers Corners by W. A. Hunter, in Gelert by A. J. Scott, in Westwood by G. Pringle & Son.

ITALIAN STORES SOLD OUT WHEN PRICES WERE CUT

FLORENCE, — All the business houses of the city were overrun this morning with bargain hunters who sought to take advantage of the price reduction decreed here. Many stores had completely sold out their stocks beofre noon. The correspondent visited thickly settled sections of the city today and saw the violent eagerness of men ,women and children, seeking to secure food, clothing and shoes. These articles were sold only on the presentation of a card from the Prefect's office, so that only residnets of Florence will be able to benefit from the price reduction.

It was learned today that workingmen's committees deliberatetly chose the stores they wished to have ransacked. These included places which were alleged to have violated Governmental regulations and war restrictions in selling prohibited articles of food at exhorbitant prices, thereby making fabulous profits.

The King's Commissioner for Florence issued a proclamation today placing the population on rations and decreeing reductions in prices approximating 50 per cent in food. Restaurants and cafes were ordered tolower their rates 30 per cent.

The civil authorities have admitted that they were unable to cope with the disorders during the last few days and the merchants, seeing it was impossible to prevent enforced sales, placed their stocks at th disposal of the workingmen's committees to the best advantage possible. They say that the arbitarary reductions of prices which have been decreed are certain to cause enormous losses.

A super-police force was organized today to keep order. It is made up of demobilized soldiers and workingmen. There is apparently no really constituted authority here, although control is nominally retained by the Prefect. There have been on Governamental protests against the commandering of private stocks of food belonging to householders in violation of the rights of domicile.

The Workingmen's Committee yesterday commandeered the household supplies of Edward Self, an American living here, leaving just enough for the subsistence of the family. The proceeding was in line with the policy of the laborites, who have been making arbitrary requisitions. The Prefect has assured Mr. Self that his losses will be made good by the Government if the Workingmen's Committee does not repay him.

There was comparative calm in Florence yesterday, the storekeepers using Sunday as a pretext to close their stores, rather than to run the risk of having their stocks commandeered. There was no business activity except for the barbers and a few cab drivers.

WAR VETERANS BREAK INTO WIN COLUMN

MANAGER LEBARR'S TEAM DEFEAT DE LAVAL IN CITY LEAGUE FIXTURE BY 11 TO 9, GETTING THE WINNING RUNS IN THE NINTH INNINGS --FIRST VICTORY FOR THE VETS AND THIRD SUCCESSFUL DEFEAT FOR DE LAVAL.

The War Veterans did last night what they have threatened to do all season—won a ball game. The De Laval outfit were the victims, being beaten 11 to 9 after a game that was always exciting. The Separators could not hold a 4 to 0 lead which they gained in the second innings. The Vets caught and passed them in the seventh, and although the De Laval crew tied them in the eighth, Manager Lebarr's outfit had the punch left for the final innings and won out by sending two runs over.

The score was bigger than the hitting warranted and was made possible by loose fielding. None of the pitchers were hit hard enough to yield all the runs that came over the counting station. Prest, for the losers, struck out twelve men and kept the Vets' eight hits well scattered except for one innings, but the Separators kicked in with eleven errors, most of them costly. At that two catches by Ernie Legon, the young left fielder of the losers, were the fielding features, while Murphy did some nice work at short for the Vets. Alan Wade, who pitched the first six innings for the Vets, hurt his wrist in sliding into the plate in the seventh, and Daynard finished the game. The southpaw struck out five men and only allowed one scratch hit while he was on the rubber, but the win is credited to Wade, his team being ahead when he left the box.

De Laval started the scoring in the second. Legon went to second on Eano's bad throw to first. Barrie singled. Cavanah flied to Murphy. Lipsett walked, filling the bases. Fitzgerald hit to Murphy, whose throw to the plate hit Legon, and both Legon and Barrie scored. Lipsett scored on Dugan's grounder to Eano, a nice, stop by the second baseman. Fitzgerald came in on A. Wade's wild throw to third. Bergoine singled to right, but Prest grounded to Murphy.

The Vets got one back with two out in the third. Cupoli started with a single and tSan Wade was safe on Prest's fumble. Alan Wade's single scored Cupoli, but Stan Wade was out at the plate when he tried to score.

In the fourth, Daynard was safe when Bergoine missed his fly, Dugan dropped Prest's throw and Foley got a life. Morrow struck out and Eano also missed three, the last one getting away from Bergoine, Daynard scoring and the batter being safe. Cobb hit to Rose, who threw Foley out at the plate. Rose also tossed out Murphy.

In the fifth the Vets got another. Cupoli doubled to right to start with and scored when Stan Wade hit to Rose and Cavanah lost the latter's throw. A. Wade grounded to Prest, and S. Wade was caught between bases, while Daynard and Foley fanned.

De Laval got two in their half. With two out, Cavanah singled to short and stole second and third. Lipsett walked and stole second, and Fitzgerald scored the pair with a single to centre.

In the sixth the Vets carved one run off the lead, when Morrow was safe on Rose's error, stole second and third and scored on a wild pitch.

The seventh saw the ultimate winners go to the front. Cupoli was safe on Barrie's error. Stan Wade singled to right. Alan Wade singled to centre, Legon making a nice try for the drive. Daynard fanned, but Cupoli scored while Rose was throwing out Foley. Morrow came through with a single over short, scoring the Wade brothers and putting the Vets in the lead. Eano struck out to retire the side.

De Laval tied it up in their half. With one out Barrie was safe on Murphy's error and stole second. Cavanah fanned, but Lipsett scratched a hit on a fly back of third, scoring Barrie. Fitzgerald fanned for the third out.

In the eighth the Vets went out in front again. Legros, batting for Cobb, walked. Murphy hit to left centre and Legon made a fine catch. Dugan let his throw to double Legros get away and the runner went to second. Cupoli flied to Barrie. The latter muffed Stan Wade's pop fly and Legros scored. S. Wade stole second and came home on his brother's single. Cavanah missed Daynard's grounder, but Foley lined to Barrie.

In their half De Laval sewed up the game again. Dugan and Bergoine walked. Prest's sacrifice tap which Foley fumbled, scored Dugan, and Bergoine scored on Rose's tap to Daynard. Barrie fanned and Cavanah fouled to Cupoli.

The ninth saw the War Vets win out. Morrow was hit to start with, and stole second and third, and came home on Eano's sacrifice tap which Prest fumbled, the batter being safe. Eano worked his way around and came home when Bergoine made a wild heave to third. The next three went out in order and so did De Laval in their half. The score:

ANOTHER HUNK OF BASEBALL BUNK

Port Hope plays in Peterborough Saturday afternoon.

The rooting of the Belleville fans in the game here against Peterborough and the insulting remarks made to the manager of the team is probably a sample of what was handed the Peterboorugh team when they visited Belleville. Belleville rooters should be broader in their views and see some of the good points in other teams except their own. Their roasting of Jake Solomon showed very poor taste. Jake, in our opinion, is one of the best baseball managers in the business and has more baseball dope stored away in his head than any manager in the Central League. We hope Belleville's experience in the Central League this year will broaden out their ideas.—Port Hope Guide.

One of Toronto'd evening papers says that Cannon Ball Scott was in Toronto buying gloves for his fielders and the Queen City sports advised him to buy baskets. Toronto should not belittle the Central League fielders' work, for they will find that their ball players will need the life-saving grappling hooks when they visit the winners of the Central League.—Oshawa Reformer.

ALL SAINTS WON ANOTHER GAME

In a good game of baseball on the Central school grounds the All Saints' team won from the St. Paul's aggregation by the score of 15-11. The batteries were:

All Saints'—Hopkins and Rootes.

St. Paul's—Long and Herbison.

By their win, the All Saints' team are elegibile to contend for the championship with the Knox church team. The date of the game will be announced later.

BELLEVILLE WON 4-0 FROM OSHAWA

BELLEVILLE, July 10. —A game of baseball was played here between the G. T. R. team of this city and the Oshawa team, being a Central Ontario League Match. The result was a shut out for Oshawa, the score being 4 to 0 in favor of Belleville. Goyer fof the home team pitched a superb game, having 14 strikeouts to his credit. Patton, the pitcher for Oshawa, had 12 strikeouts, but at times was poorly supported. A large crowd of spectators witnessed the game. Mr. Butler of Lindsay, was the umpire on strikes and balls and Mr. Thomas of this city, was base umpire.

Belleville team is leading the league—having won six games and lost one. Port Hope and Peterboro are tied for second place, each having won four and lost two.

The line-up of the teams was as follows:

Belleville — Ross cf; Weir ss; Gerow 1b; Mills c; Morden rf;; Goyer p; Kelleher lf; Meagher 3b; Smith 2b.

Oshawa — Rowden 2b; McComb rf; Jacobi 3b; Wilson lf; Shultz 1b; Fair ss; Dobson c; Legg cf; Patton p.

NEW CONTRACT FOR SHIP PLATES

(Special to The Examiner.)

MONTREAL, July 11. — A contract for 250,000 tons of ship plates, involving five years work and the completion of the erection of a monster rolling plant at Sydney, N. S., costing in the vicinity of five millions of dollars, was to-day awared to the Dominion Steel Company, by the Federal government, according to an announcement by Hon. C. C. Ballantyne, Minister of Marine.

The contract was accepted by the company at 50c per 100 pounds lower than the price now paid.

Announcement of the letting of the ships-plate contract indicates that Canada is to continue its ship-building programme. The order will likely cause the settlement of the troubles of several thousand mill workers at Sydney, and ship workers in plants in Montreal who were either thrown out of work or strike breaks. New wage demands could not be met by shipbuilding companies until the contract was let.

The new price will be $2.65 per hundred pounds.

DR. CECILE GRIEL GAVE A LECTURE

Urging all women to take up the spirit of service and declaring that no woman has any right to live in luxury while others suffer, Dr. Cecile Griel gave an interesting address at the afternoon performance of the Chautauqua ytsterday. Dr. Griel comes from the National Board of the Y.M.C.A., and is in charge of the department of foreign-born women. She is a practicing physician. During the war she was sent by the Italian Government to work among the women and assist in reconstructing homes. She was aboard the Ancona when she was torpedoed, and swam a quarter of a mile to a life-boat. She was taken then by a battleship to Africa, where she met kindly treatment amongst the natives, who took care of the 115 survivors.

SAYS BOARD IS EXTRAVAGANT

A local firm of painters complain to the Examiner that the Board of Education has shown needless extravagance in connection with the painting at King Edward School. The firm in question state that the Board has awarded contracts for two coats of paint on portions of this building, where only one was needed, the extra coat being, in their opinion, absolutely unnecessary, and a waste of the ratepayers' money.

MEASURED ENTIRE GREEN

An interesting episode took place at the Niagara-on-the-lake Bowling tournament, the first of its kind in history, O. B. A. old-timers thought In order to decide the result of the Van Velkenburk (St. Catharines) Ballard (Grimsby) game in the consolaion second round, it was necessary string the entire length of the green to decide if two St. Catharines bowls were alive the other lead. The live one tied the score. In an extra end the Ballard rink won out by one skip Ballard by the last bowl deciding it 19-18.

PORT HOPE HERE TO-MORROW FOR CENTRAL LEAGUE GAME

To-morrow's game between Port Hope and Peterborough will be called at 3 o'clock sharp, and promises to be a great battle. As Belleville won from Oshawa on Wednesday, it is necessary for the Petes to gather in to-morrow's fixture if they want to maintain their standing in the League.

Port Hope, who are tied with the local crew, need the game just as badly, and Tip O'Neill's crowd will be on their toes all the way, hoping to edge Peterborough out of second place by winning at Riverside Park to-morrow.

Hills and Chalk will be the Port Hope battery, while the pitching end of the Peterborough battery has got yet been selected between Kirn, Frost and Mulhern. Swanston will be behind the bat.

The game will be umpired by Dickie Butler, of Lindsay.

The Peterborough team will practise at Riverside Park to-night, and all players are asked to turn out for the final work-out, including Kirn, Frost, Mulhern, Swanston, Head, Long, Hagerman, Rose, Cherrett, Holyman, Cavanah, Clancy, Adams, Heenan.

MILLBROOK REPORTER WOULD LIKE A FISH.

Mrs. Thomas Miller was out from Peterborough on Thursday last, and called on a number of old friends. She reports that Mr. Miller is able to land a big lunge from the waters of the Otonabee, as usual, when all others rest fail to tempt the big fish. They are enjoying life in Peterboro, but the children cast many longing eyes back to old Millbrook.—Millbrook Reporter.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

The Wrong Extreme

By MARY JORDAN GARTH

(Copyright, 1919, by Western Newspaper Union.)

"Bound for the city, eh?"

"Yes, Allen," replied bluff, hearty and handsome Marvin Farr, young enough to be in love with life and all its concomitants, and old enough to be engaged to Mrs. Eunice Brayton, a widow of twenty-eight, pretty as a picture and having life himself a comfortable amount of means.

"I suppose your property there needs looking after occasionally?" submitted Farr's friend.

"Yes, that, and, confidentially—I'm to look for a wedding ring."

"You don't mean it!" exclaimed Allen, with genuine pleasure in his face.

"Yes, I've been engaged to Mrs. Brayton since the first of the year, and we're to be married next month."

"You deserve congratulations, old fellow!" declared Allen warmly. "She is a charming lady and you should be very happy."

When he first reached Columbus, Farr had gone to the office of a life insurance company. Next day at his hotel he received a letter from the examining physician of that concern. As he glanced it over he fairly collapsed. He thrust it into his pocket and sat staring at vacancy in a lost way.

He did not sleep that night. He went about like a man haunted with fearsome dread. He quickened his pace whenever he passed a jewelry store, he had no heart in business, and put in time wandering idly about. One day, coming out of a stock broker's office where he had sat casually viewing blackboard and crowd, he came plump up against Arnold Day, the brother of his fiancee.

"Why, Farr!" exclaimed Day. "What's the matter? You look ill."

"Oh, just a touch of indigestion," evaded Farr and Day went on his way, puzzled and wondering.

At the end of a week Farr returned to his home town. He called upon Eunice. She could not help but notice the change in him. He was preoccupied, had lost weight and amazed her at his second call by saying:

"Eunice, I'm going to ask you to postpone the wedding. Something came up in the city that requires my attention for some time to come."

"Marvin, dear, if it is your business, or the lack of money," began the loyal Eunice, "you know what I have is yours."

"Oh, dear! No! Nothing of that kind," asserted Farr staunchly. "Don't ask me to go into details. If you wouldn't mind, let us put off the wedding for a time."

"Most surely, Marvin, provided you let me know your special worry when it gets too hard for you to bear alone."

So affairs drifted on as they had done, only that Eunice began to fret over the great change in her promised husband. One day she told her brother all her vague fears.

"Why, I think I can figure it out," said the latter. "I remember now that I met Farr in the city coming out of one of those speculation joints where men lose thousands in an hour. I'll wager Farr has been foolish enough to invest in some wildcat stock and has lost his money."

Forthwith Eunice approached Farr on the subject. She accompanied it with a memorandum of her means. "It's all yours, Marvin," she said generously. "Come, use it to help you out of your difficulties and become the smiling contented man you were."

Farr was touched deeply. Here was a proof of the earnest love of his confiding fiancee that was simply irresistible. His eyes grew humid, his voice trembled with emotion as he said, "Eunice, I am going to tell you all about it. I have postponed the wedding because I may not live long."

"Marvin! how ridiculous!" immediately cried out Eunice. "Oh, dear! What has ever put that nonsensical rubbish in your head?"

"The best authority in the world," declared Farr gravely. "It is heartrending to think that the future bears no hope for me, because you can never become my wife. I may not live a year."

"If it were only a month, dear, all the more should I wish to be your nurse, your wife."

"You see," confessed Farr reluctantly, "at Columbus I was examined for life insurance to be made out in your favor. I received the report on my application next day—declined! I think I have the report here. I haven't had the nerve to look at it since I received it," and Farr groped in his pocket and brought to light the document in question.

Eunice grew pale as she read it. According to its contents Marvin Farr was afflicted with hereditary ailments which had already secured a destructive hold on his bodily functions. She gasped, she turned the sheet over in her hands helplessly. Then she sprang to her feet with a hysterical, but joyous cry.

"Oh Marvin!" she palpitated, "this was not for you. See on the back; 'Report on Walter Doyle.' That's not you. My dear! my dear! don't you understand? They sent you the wrong report, and this Walter Doyle is probably the happiest man in the world because he has been pronounced a perfect paragon of health."

And Eunice threw her arms about the neck of the man she loved, lifted suddenly from the lowest depths of misery to the radiant heights of delight.

Rather.

"I don't believe the woman who has the next apartment to ours ever touches her parlor carpet."

"My dear, that's a sweeping arraignment."

MENNEN'S TALCUM POWDERS

SUPPLY OF RUM SECURED FOR CREW OF THE AIRSHIP.

MINEOLA, N.Y., July 10. — The wartime prohibition has not prevented the Navy Department from obtaining rum, which is part of the official ration of the dirigible crew.

Twenty gallons of the liquor reached here to-day, and is being stowed aboard the R-34. Navy officials said it came from a New York dealer.

Stomach Troubles Are Due To Acidity

Tells Safe, Certain, Speedy Relief For Acid Indigestion.

So-called stomach troubles, such as indigestion, gas, sourness, stomach-ache and inability to retain food are in probably nine cases out of ten, simply evidence that excessive secretion of acid is taking place in the stomach, causing the formation of gas and acid indigestion.

Gas distends the stomach and causes that full, oppressive, burning feeling sometimes known as heartburn, while the acid irritates and inflames the delicate lining of the stomach. The trouble lies entirely in the excess development or secretion of acid.

To stop or prevent this souring of the food contents of the stomach and to neutralise the acid, and make it bland and harmless, a teaspoonful of bisurated magnesia, a good and effective corrector of acid stomach, should be taken in a quarter of a glass of hot or cold water after eating or whenever gas, sourness or acidity is felt. This sweetens the stomach and neutralises the acidity in a few moments and is a perfectly harmless and inexpensive remedy to use.

An antiacid, such as bisurated magnesia which can be obtained from any druggist in either powder or tablet form enables the stomach to do its work properly without the aid of artificial digestents. Magnesia comes in several forms, so be certain to ask for and take only Bisurated Magnesia, which is especially prepared for the above purpose.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON FOR WEEK

July 6, 1919.

The Church; its Life and Work. Acts 2: 37-47; 1 Thess. 5: 11-15.

Golden Text: Christ also loved the church, and gave himself for it. Eph. 5: 25.

1. Verse 37. What was it that had brought his sharp sense of guilt upon them

2. If a person in great distress of soul, were to ask you what he should do to be saved, what would your answer be?

3. Verse 38. Why would you say, or not, that a person cannot be saved if he intends to ever sin again?

4. Verse 38. Can a Christian retain he favor of God if he intends to sin again.

5. Why would you ay that all those who, by the grace of God, have forsaken their sins, have had all their past sins pardoned?

6. Verse 40. What reason is there to think that some are saved through the persistent exhortation of Christians, who would not otherwise be saved

7. Verse 41. Why are not similar revivals to this more often witnessed to-day

8. What can the church do to-day more than she is doing o save sinners?

9. Verse 42. If members of the church were to fellowship, one with another, in heart to heart spiritual communion more frequently, what would be the effect upon the work of he church?

10. Why would you say, or not, that the members of the church, ought to eat together more frequently.

11 Verse 43. If the terrible consequences of sin were more vehemently preached in our church pulpits would sinners be filled with fear as in this case, or not, and why?

12 Verse 44, 45. Why would you say hat their community of goods was according to God's best plan?

13. If our brother has nothing) why are we, or not, under obligation to divide with him?

14. Verses 46, 47. Why would you say, or not, that if these were fellowship, joy, and gladness in the church that sinners would still be saved daily? (This is one of the questions which may be answered in writing by the members of the club).

15. 1 Thess. 5: 11-15. What real comfort have Christians a right to take, and to offer to others, when they are in sore distress?

16. Verses 12, 13. What is our duty to pastors, Sunday School teachers, and others, who are laboring hard to carry on the work of the church?

17. What is the best plan in order to have the peace of God reigning between all the members of the church?

18. Verse 14. What should the church do with those members that are worldly and do not even claim to be daily walking with God?

19. What is the duty of the church o those of feeble mind, or the inconspicuous ones in the church

20. What should be the rule of life af a member of the church to his fellow members generally?

Lesson for Sunday July 13, 1919. Baptism. Matt. 28: 18-20; Mark 16: 1-14; Acts 8: 26-40.

Clear, Peachy Skin Awaits Anyone Who Drinks Hot Water

Says an inside bath, before breakfast helps us look and feel clean, sweet, fresh.

Sparkling and vivacious—with bright, alert—a good, clear skin and a natural, rosy, healthy complexion are assured only by pure blood. If only every man and woman could be induced to adopt the morning inside bath, what a gratifying change would take place. Instead of the thousands of sickly, anaemic-looking men, women and girls, with pasty or muddy complexion; instead of the multitudes of "nerve wrecks," "rundowns," "brain fags" and pessimists we should see a virile optimistic throng of rosy-cheeked people everywhere.

An inside bath is had by drinking each morning, before breakfast, a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it to wash from the stomach, liver, kidneys and ten yards of bowels the previous day's indigestible waste, sour fermentations and poisons, thus cleansing, sweetening and freshening the entire alimentary canal before putting more food into the stomach.

Those subject to sick headache, biliousness, nasty breath, rheumatism, colds; and particularly those who have a pallid, sallow complexion and who are constipated very often, are urged to obtain a quarter pound of limestone phosphate at the drug store which will cost but a trifle, but is sufficient to demonstrate the quick and remarkable change in both health and appearance, awaiting those who practice internal sanitation. We must remember that inside cleanliness is more important than outside, because the skin does not absorb impurities to contaminate the blood while the pores in the thirty feet of bowels do.

BARRIE'S WELFARE CLUB PICNIC

AN ENJOYABLE OUTING—LIST OF SPORTS.

A most enjoyable afternoon was spent by Barrie's Welfare Club at Wallace's Point yesterday afternoon.

There the afternoon was spent in games and sports, the crowds taking advantage of the swings, hammocks, etc., which greatly amused both children and grown-ups.

Supper was then prepared and the entire staff sat down to a repast, such as will always be remembered.

Dancing in the pavilion was the big event of the evening and about eight o'clock a well satisfied and merry crowd started for home.

Refreshments, including ice cream and water melon, were served throughout the day.

The list of sports was as follows:

Baseball match between girls and boys. Mr. Thos. Barrie referee.

Girls' shoe race—Won by Miss Helen Conroy, pair of ear rings.

Boys' obstacle race—Won by Mr. Gerry Loescher, baseball.

Girls' straight race—Won by Miss Helen Conroy, tennis racquet.

Boys' three-legged race— Won by Mr. Gerry Loescher and Mr. Fred Lebarr, one prize gold ring, other prize tie pin and cuff links.

Mixed wheelbarrow race—Won by Miss Monica Crough and Mr. William Hamilton. Girls' prize, parasol. Boys' prize, musical instrument.

Married men's race— Won by Mr. Wilbert Irvine, watch fob.

Married ladies' race—Won by Mrs. H. McIlmoyle, amethyst ring.

Children's race — Won by Gene Brundette, Kewpie doll.

200 yard dash—Won by Fred LeBar, prize umbrella.

Judge of races—Mr. Thos. Barrie.

WINDOWS BROKEN BY HAIL STONES NEAR BAILLIEBORO

The fruits and grain crops were seriously injured in the district about Bailieboro and Millbrook, when the heaviest hailstorm which has ever fallen in the history of the community, occurred about 3.30 o'clock yesterday afternoon. In the village of Bailieboro stones as large as pigeon eggs fell for about five minutes, breaking 22 of the Anglican church windows, and many windows in private homes. The grain was badly crushed down.

FINANCE GOES TO MEIGHAN

Ottawa Speculates Upon Business Future of Retiring Minister and Likely Changes in Unionist Administration.

OTTAWA, July 10.—Hon. Arthur Meighen, now Minister of the Interior, is said to be Premier Borden's choice as a successor to Sir Thomas White as Minister of Finance.

The news of the resignation of Sir Thomas White has started speculation as to the possibility of other Ministerial resignations following, and the Premier may have to tackle the task of Cabinet reconstruction more precipitately than had been contemplated.

Some say that he can now be President of the Canada Life at $30,000 a year, some have said that he can return to the Presidency of the National Trust Company, and it has even been more than whispered that Sir Edmund Walker was willing, in the course of time, to have a younger man succeed him in the important financial post he occupies.

Therefore, if Sir Thomas has stayed at Ottawa, it will be seen it is not for lack of other places to which Dame Rumour has said he could go. He has considerable private interests, but there is little doubt that he would have been willing to overlook those for a climb on the dizzy heights of Premiership even at a great monetary sacrifice.

OMEMEE MAN' COMMENTS ON FILLING OUT INCOME TAX FORM

VOICES THE SENTIMENTS OF A LARGE MAJORITY OF THE FARMERS.

The following communication was written by Mr. A. Laidley of Omemee, in conection with the filling out of his income form:

Omemee, Ont., June 27, 1919.

Mr. Hugh D. Patterson, Toronto:

Dear Sir,—Re income tax paper. Not knowing how to fill out these papers, I shall endeavour to co-operate with the department by giving you the information that you require.

When the assessor comes around he asks me some questions re my property, my family and what church I attend.

My business is repairing shoes, but seeing that the world is in great need of food, I turned my attention in part to other work. My income as nearly as I can give it, is as follow:

From shoe repairs	$100.00
Thirty hives of bees, honey	400.00
Rent	98.00
Days' work here and there	75.00
35 bush. of beans (not sold) say	100.00

I live in my own house, produce my own vegetables and most of the fruit I need; keep twelve hens. When the fuel was scarce in 1918 I went to the woods and cut some wood. I am wearing out old clothes; my wife tells me on work days I look ridiculous, but I say that I am not afraid of the rag man or the sport. My clothes are not worth being weighed, and they would never stand to be rammed into a gun.

I am past 60 years old, hale and hearty, go to bed early, get up with the birds. My income is small. I have all I need and am willing to pay taxes on all that I should.

My family—

My wife cooks me good meals, fixes me a comfortable bed, and cleans me up for the Sabbath Day. A wise son makes a glad father. I have two sons, Canadian citizens, well employed, and I am glad. My two daughters are teaching school, and are able to live independently. The above is my family.

My religion—

I work, and if I have a little over to give to him that is in need, all right. I think the best place for prayer is behind closed doors. I like to get people happy enough to laugh. They look better. I tell the other fellow to keep out of hell. The company is bad and it is too hot for either of us. "Beware of covetousness which is idolatry." This is the reason why I don't wish to make an income which might be taxed; in doing so I might covet some other man's goods. And if I made a pile some Bolshevist might covet mine. Then we would both go to heathen darkness. "The heavens declare the glory of God." I have no telescope, but two eyes.

Final remarks—

I am no grafter, but if I do not have to fill out these papers, which I am unable to do, the first time you are in Omemee I invite you to dinner, and you will have the proof of the pudding. If this won't do, will you be kind enough to send this letter to R. N. Rowell or Sir Robert Borden? They might change the order-in-council and let the Omemee cobbler go free.

Yours truly,

(Signed) A. Laidley.

CHEERED FOR THE IRISH REPUBLIC

Big Demonstration Held In Madison Square Garden Last Night.

(Special to The Examiner.)

NEW YORK, N.Y., July 11.—Fifteen thousand Irish men and women in Madison Squire Garden last night hissed President Wilson, England, Sir Douglas Haig and others, and cheered the Irish Republic and President de Valera. The demonstration was echoed b yan overflflow crowd of 10,000. The meeting was a greeting to President de Valera, who sat on the platform. Resolutions were passed demanding that the United States recognise the Irish republic.

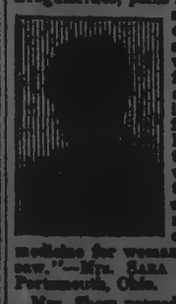
"BEST MEDICINE FOR WOMEN"

What Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Did For Ohio Woman.



Portsmouth, Ohio.—"I suffered from irregularities, pains in my side and was so weak at times I could hardly get around to do my work, and as I had four in my family and three boarders it made it very hard for me. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was recommended to me. I took it and it has restored my health. It is certainly the best medicine for woman's ailments I ever saw."—Mrs. SARA SHAW, R. No. 1, Portsmouth, Ohio.

Mrs. Shaw proved the merit of this medicine and wrote this letter in order that other suffering women may find relief as she did.

Women who are suffering as she was should not drag along from day to day without giving this famous root and herb remedy, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, a trial. For special advice in regard to such ailments write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass. The result of its forty years experience is at your service.

THE STORM DID LITTLE DAMAGE

LAKEFIELD, July 11.—The storm on Wednesday night did no serious damage at Stoney Lake, as the lightning, though vivid, was only of the flash variety, and the heavy peals of thunder were not especially clear. It is believed that north-east of Stoney Lake it was more severe.

The settlers welcomed the heavy shower of rain, as the crops were in serious danger from the drought.

CHILDREN AT THE CHAUTAUQUA

While the attendance at the children's department of the Chautauqua is not as large as last year, Miss Amy Riggle, Middleboro, West Virginia, the instructress, is well pleased with the children, of whom she is in charge. During the past five mornings the children have been entertained by Miss Riggle with short stories and practising for the pagent, "Democracy Triumphant," which they will put on on Saturday afternoon.

Miss Riggle said this morning that she, previous to joining the Coit Aber Chautauqua service, was a teacher in a college in the States and joined to obtain some knowledge of Canada. "I am delighted with the country," she said, "especially with the community spirit which I find is splendid in all the small towns and I believe in the larger ones.

WEDDING BELLS

TWIST—READ.

The following clipping from Wednesday's Mail and Empire is of interest to Lakefield people, as both the contracting parties are well-known and popular young people:

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Guy Carlton Read, 145 Madison Avenue, was the scene of a pretty wedding at high noon on Monday, 7th July, when their niece, Wilhelmina, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. William J. Read, of Bobcaygeon, became the bride of Mr. John Joseph Twist, of Lakefield, Ont.

The bride wore a gown of cream marquisette with satin sash. The bridesmaid, Miss Greta Read, sister of the bride, wore rose silk crepe de chine, and Mrs. Read was attired in grey silk crepe de chine.

Mr. Douglas Read was groomsman, and Rev. Mr. Creighton of Bradford, an old friend of the family, was the officiating clergyman. Miss Maude Harper played the wedding march, and after the ceremony Miss Anne Galbraith sang "O Promise Me."

After the wedding luncheon the happy young couple left for a short honeymoon, and will make their home in Lakefield. The many guests remained for a time to further celebrate the day with Mr. and Mrs. Read, it being the 49th anniversary of their wedding.

CONVENTION ADOPTS RESOLUTION URGING ESTABLISHMENT OF MUNICIPAL MARKETS.

THE BIG PACKERS

Canadian Press:

DENVER, Col., July 12.—With the declaration that the high cost of living, the high cost of dying, the high cost of justice and the outrageously high cost of everything, is the paramount issue in the world to-day, the Convention of Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen late yesterday adopted a resolution urging the immediate establishment of municipal markets and cold storage houses to deal in necessities, and thereby to eliminate the profits of the middleman. The resolution attacked the big packers, alleging the control of food products.

THE BLOCKADE AGAINST GERMANY RAISED TO-DAY

COUNCIL OF FIVE BEGAN ISSUING INSTRUCTIONS TO-DAY—ITALY WANTS AUSTRIAN CONCESSION.

SHIPS ON THE WAY

By Fred S. Ferguson.
(United Press.)

PARIS, July 12. — The blockade against Germany was to be raised today, according to the decision announced by the Council of Five.

Experts advised the Council that they considered the ratification of the peace treaty by the German National Assembly was sufficient, without awaiting action by the Prussian and Bavarian parliaments. The Council concurred in the opinion.

Intervention in Hungary by the Roumanians, Czecho-Slovaks and Jugo-Slavs was being considered today by the Allied military commissioners and representatives of the three powers which will undertake the action. Marshal Foch yesterday was asked to state the amount of supplies, munitions and other materials needed.

Unity of Command.

Unity of command also was discussed. Representatives of these countries were instructed to ask their home governments to submit reports in response to Foch's inquiries within eight days. A decision on the intervention proposal will be reached soon after these replies are received.

Despatch of British, French and American warships to Fiume was a surprise, though apparently such a course was decided upon at least two days ago, as the ships are now on their way. It was hoped to-day that the presence of the vessels would help to stabilize the situation, but the Italians consider their despatch was wholly a French move. They declare Premier Clemenceau proposed to the "Big Five" that a French warship be sent, whereupon the British decided to send one, America sending another to watch the other two.

The German note suggesting creation of a German-Polish Commission will not be answered by the Allies it was learned to-day.

The Council of Five began issuing instructions to-day on the cessation of the blockade against Germany. The Council also started consideration of lifting the blockade against Russia, its maintenance being rendered most difficult by the official decree abolishing the barriers around Germany. American delegates also hold it was [illegible] Victoria [illegible] concession in Tien Tsin, China, the peace treaty now providing that the concession revert to China for International use.

U.S. SENATOR'S SON SLAYS YOUNG GIRL

DROVE CORPSE IN AUTOMOBILE TO LOS ANGELES POLICE STATION —VICTIM HIS FIANCEE.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., July 8. — Harry S. New, of Glendale, Cal., walked into police headquarters here and informed detectives there was a dead woman in his automobile and he desired to give himself up as a murderer.

He then led the officers to a car outside the station, where the body of Frieda J. Lesser, 21 years of age, was found.

New, according to a statement of the police, said he had quarrelled with the young woman at Topanga Canyon, several miles from the city, and had shot her. She had a bullet-hole through the head.

New was charged with murder and held without bail.

New told the police, they said, that he was the son of United States Senator Harry S. New, of Indiana, and his claim was corroborated by relatives of the dead girl, who said they had known New and his family in Indiana.

"And So I Shot Her."

"We didn't understand each other," said New, according to Detective Sergeant D. A. Davidson. "and so I shot her. And here I am. There she is, dead," he added, as he gazed at the dead girl.

New, 30 year sof age, told the officers, according to their statement of his story, that he was engaged to Miss Lesser. He said he urged her to marry him, and when she refused he shot her.

He said he had borrowed the automobile from his mother, Mrs. Lulu M. Burger, of Glendale, and had driven with the girl to Venice, then through Hollywood and finally up the Topanga Canyon road, where their quarrel terminated in the shooting. He told the officers, they said, that for three hours afterwards, he drove around town with the corpse, trying to make up his mind to surrender.

New is of slight build. He showed no evidence of excitement, and officers said he had not been drinking.

CLAIM JAPS WANTED TO CEASE FIGHTING

MOUNT CLEMENS, Mich., July 11.—That Japan was an unfaithful ally during the war against Germany and had continually threatened the United States withwar, was the statment of Colonel Robert R. McCormick co-editor of The Chicago Tribune, while under cross-examination in the Ford-Tribune libel suit yesterday.

"I know she was. I ought to say I learned this on the General Staff. She was exposed not more than six weeks ago as having talked of a separate peace with Germany only a short time before the armistice," replied McCormick.

SCORES OF LAWYERS TO APPEAR AT TRIAL

CROWN WILL BE BACKED BY ARRAY OF TALENT TO PROSECUTE WINNIPEG STRIKERS.

WINNIPEG, July 10 — Amended informations will be filed against both English-speaking labor leaders and foreign-born men now under arrest on charges of seditious conspiracy, A. J. Andrews, K.C., has announced.

"The Minister is going to appoint a judge to sit as member of Board of Inquiry," he said. "When this appointment is made, deportation proceedings will be gone ahead with."

When the cases arising out of the recent strike and rioting eventually come to trial, there will a great array of counsel appearing for both prosecution and defence. On the side of the Crown, A. J. Andrews, K.C., will appear as leader of the prosecution, and he will be assisted by about twenty-five of the leading lawyers in Winnipeg. The defence will beconducted by Messrs. Murray, McMurray and Hyman, who will also have a large staff assisting them. At present, the Crown is busy preparing their case against the men. This is proving a strenuous task, owing to the large quantities of material that has to be gone through, and details the handling of all literature seized in various raids made by the police.

Investigation of the entire question of telephone employes' re-instatement has been promised by Premier T. C. Norris, according to a statement made yesterday by R. A. Bigg, Western Organizer for the Dominion Trades Congress.

H. Carr, international representative of the Freight Handlers' Association, and member of the committee, stated that the three Winnipeg freight handlers' locals were solidly opposed to the One Big Union.

[illegible] ARRESTED

[illegible] Christmas and [illegible] the report of the special [illegible] investigators which was [illegible] published from the headquarters [illegible] Presbyterian church in Amherst.

This investigation followed the news received here of the arrest of American missionaries on charges of aiding plotting against Japan rule in Korea. The report of the investigators tells of Korean Christians being driven by Japanese gendarmie into churches at the point of the bayonet, there to be tortured and finally burnt to death, when the churches were set on fire.

Respectable women, the reports say, were subjected to shameful indignities, and in one part of the country were not safe in their homes and fled to the hills. Men suspected of revolutionary ideas were subjected to cruelty and in many cases fatal methods of examination.

The atrocities were largely confined to the northern province.

MOUJIK SAME AS MEDIAEVAL BRITAIN

LOOK AT RUSSIAN PEASANTS AND SEE WHAT WE HAVE LEFT BEHIND.

The moujiks are sociable and brotherly; they do things together, sing together, pray together, live together. They like meeting together in public places, in churches and markets. They are more public than we are; less suspicious, less recluse. They would never live next door to anyone and not know all his family and his affairs. They always want to know the whole life and business of a stranger moujik and the stranger is always willing to tell. They do not shut themselves in; their doors are open, both the doors of their houses and the doors of their hearts.

Because the peasants have no books to read, they are all forced to read the book of nature. They do not hear the imitation of the nightingale, therefore they listen to the nightingale itself. . . . If the moujik had books he would build higher, larger houses so that he might have a room into which to retire and read and have silence. But as it is, he lives in one room, and likes to see all his family about him, and as many of his relatives and friends as possible. He rejoices to give hospitality to pilgrimes and tramps, bringing stories of other lands and other provinces. He rejoices in keeping open house and in visiting. To such an extent has hospitality gone that not only is open house kept, but open village. There is a whole system of festivals throughout the north, and the villages take it in turn to keep open house for the inhabitants for all the villages round.

All this is due to the fact that the peasants have what we should call spare time. Because they do not read, they have time to enter into many more relations with their fellow-beings. . . . I have said before —in Russia you may study conditions of life which were once the conditions of Britain. You can see what Britain has left behind. Here in the life of this mediaeval peasantry is a veracious picture of our own past. It is more instructive than any book. —Stephen Graham.

GEORGE F. WARNER ELECTROCUTED AT STATE PRISON THIS MORNING

(Canadian Press.)

WINDSOR, Vt., July 12.—George F. Warner was electrocuted at the State Prison here this morning for the murder of his wife's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry E. Wiggins at Andover, five years ago.

It was the first use of electricity in capital punishment in the State.

Previous executions have been by hanging.

Two shocks of about two thousand volts each were administered, the first being given just after the prisoner had said:

"Gentlemen, I am innocent of this crime. I do not know how it happened. Good-bye all."

May Regulate Meters.

When the time comes that Peterborough's water will be filtered, it is probable that the Commission will discontinue the flat rate system of charges and substitute the meter plan by which the people will pay in proportion to the quantity of water used. It is unnecessary to refer to the waste of water in the city. The per capita consumption is 164 gallons a day. It should be 90 gallons. The installation of meters would impose the economy of filtered water which the establishment of a $300,000 plant would obviously demand. It is believed that the meters would have the effect of reducing the per capita consumption to 120 gallons or less a day.

A Record Pumpage.

The pumping station has set up new records during the warm weather of June and July. The peak load was reached with a pumpage maintained for three hours at the rate of 7 1-2 million gallons a day. As a result of the meter system it is expected that the normal consumption of water would be very considerably reduced, and that the average would be about six million gallons.

Commission Prepared.

The Utilities Commission have followed the improved method of filtration as developed both in Canada and the United States. One of their most recent inspections was made of a new plant at Oshawa which cost $80,000. Mr. R. L. Dobbin, superintendent of the local water works has, in his experience, visited all the most important filtration plants in America, and more recently has made, with the Commission, a careful study of the latest ideas in water purification. In other words the Commission is thoroughly conversant with their engineering problem in all its phases, and furthermore they bought some time ago the Carnegie property 700 yards south of the pumping station in anticipation of the local improvement which cannot be much longer delayed.

Tests of Peterborough's water have shown that it is safe, generally speak-

CATTLE MARKET

Monday's market this week opened with a very active demand for handy weight butcher cattle. There was a moderate heavy run of about 2000 cattle offering, but with the active trading, prices held good and firm at the previous week's closing figures. The heavyweight stuff did not find quite such an active market, though prices in this class held fairly steady.

Monday's trade set the pace for the week and prices have kept well up to the lead, in some respects showing a little higher average, considering the quality of the week-end offerings. During the week there were good orders to fill from outside points —choice bulls and good veal calves in particular being in demand for this trade.

Among the small meats there have been good active markets all through the week, prices generally holding firm, with the tendency higher.

Hogs have again been hitting the high spots and passing all former records when $24 fed and watered was reached. It is said that the market has reached the top and that next week will see some down but this has been frequently predicted and failed to materialize that the general attitude now is to "wait and see."

It is seldom a good thing to wash silk-covered comforters at home—the laundries do it better.

Most people are sorry only after it is too late.

If roses are starved and otherwise neglected they are more apt to be attacked by insects and other pests.

$20,000 FILTERING PLANT COULD BE BUILT

ing, but it is not pure. From the preparations the Commission has made for the improvement project, it is assumed that they are ready to proceed almost at any time with the construction of a filtration plant. It is unlikely, however, that there will be any action undertaken this year.

Would Use Chemicals.

The modern filtration plant, and this sketch is subject to revision because of the constant improvements, consists of a collecting system into which the raw water is pumped and treated by alum which coagulates the water, gathering the minutest bacteria, and particles of vegetable matter. The site of the proposed plant in this city provides for filtration by gravity after the water is pumped from the river into the coagulating basin which would probably be built into the ground and roofed. The water flows then into the sand filter beds, and sediment is held by the sand, the purewater running through pipes to the clear water reservoir from which it would be pumped into the main and delivered throughout the city. This would provide a constant storage of one million gallons of purified water.

Flow by Gravity.

The Carnegie property consists of 28 acres of water, of which ten would be required for the filters. The pumps lifting the raw water to the coagulating basin would be installed at the present pump house, about 25 horse power being required. A striking advantage of the local system is its compactness. The filters are only 700 yards above the pumping station, and the water flows continuously by gravity utinl it is delivered to the high pressure pumps that sends it into the city's mains.

This brief outline of a system Peterborough may adopt indicates that the Commission, composed of Messrs. T. F. Matthews, W. H. Moore and Robert Hicks, have not waited until a filtration problem was thrust upon them. It is evident that they are now fully possessed of the latest ideas and methods of filtration and are even prepared to carry out at once, if it were necessary, the recommendation of the Board of Health.

Maxwell: advanced by fine engineering

FIVE decided improvements have been made in the Maxwell. One makes it look better. Another makes the electrical unit far more efficient. A third makes the enginerun sweeter, steadier, and gives it advanced economy. A fourth adds a comfort in seating. A fifth produces increased durability in the top.

You get a Maxwell now with the famous Hot Spot and Ram's-horn and you find a rare delight in more power and more mileage at the old-time cost.

But it isn't a new model Maxwell. For this car is merely the chassis of five years ago with all the advances made in fine engineering.

This is the original chassis Model of which 300,000 have been built to date—300,000 all alike basically, but each one better than the previous one.

Thus you get a sound, safe, extremely reliable car, refined to a degree, and at the same time you get the new improvements. The price is $1395 f.o.b. Windsor.

The Devil's Picture Book

(By Request of H. D. KENNEDY, Evangelist.)

Church members who see no harm in "a friendly game of cards," or who organise card parties to lead their associates in paths of worldliness and sin, might resent such a title as this when applied to the painted pasteboards over which they waste their time. But men who know more of cards than I do have given them their name, and I have no inclination to discard it.

"A sad but true story," told in the "American Baptist Flag," by J. H. Miller, of Heppener, Oregon, exhibits the results that have flowed, and may flow, from this 'innocent amusement.' It was in the large parlours of a mansion in C——, Missouri, where on a pleasant October evening some ten or twelve young people were gathered from the wealthiest homes of the elite of the city.

Among them was a young lady who, though always genial and social with the young, was ever clad in mourning garb, and bore the name of Mara, chosen by herself to express the grief and bitterness of her life, since the time when she, some seven years before, had been bereft of all her family.

The pleasant hours flew past with mirth and fun, till about half-past ten in the evening, when, wearied with their trivial talk, one of the company pulled out a pack of cards and flung it on the table where Mara Moore was sitting. The effect was startling. Her face took on a deadly pallor, she began trembling, arose from her seat, staggered across the room, and took a chair in the remotest corner of the room. So great was her agitation that every one saw it, but none were aware of the cause.

One of the party who had been reading law for some time, not imagining the seriousness of her anguish, went to her, and in a bantering way threatened her with a legal prosecution before an empannelled jury in case she refused to return to her place at the table, and submit to the regulations of the evening. While the lawyer was urging her to this, a thoughtless young man of the company stepped up to them and placed a few of the cards in her hand as it was lying across her back. She jerked her hand away and gave it a sling as if to rid it of the contaminating filth of the cards, and with an agonising scream, she began weeping and sobbing as if her heart would break.

Surprised at this new outburst, the lawyer sought to soothe the wounded spirit, and when she had become somewhat quiet, he, with the rest, began to entreat her to give them the reason for her terrible agitation. This she at first refused to do; but being urged very strongly by all the company, she at last consented. At the first word a shudder passed over her whole frame; but, after a pause, she began:

"When I was nineteen years old I was living in an eastern city, in one of the happiest homes within its limits. A rich and tender father, with a loving and gentle mother, and as bright and true a brother as a sister could want, were my companions in that delightful home of my childhood. Wealth and comfort smiled upon us, and phophesied of future happiness, until, with my own hand, I plucked down upon us all the greatest curse imaginable.

"Two of our cousins—a brother and sister—came to visit us, and we spent the evening in pleasant conversation as we did this evening; and just as those cards were thrown upon the table, and about the same hour, my parents having retired, our cousin threw a deck upon the table. They two and I sat down to play, while my dear and tenderly loved brother, not liking the idea of playing cards, turned to his music which he was composing as a graduating exercise for examination day, and went to work at that. We three needed a fourth one to make the game go properly, and we began trying to persuade my brother to come and take part with us, but he declared he thought it was not right to spend time in card-playing—that it was an amusement of the lowest characters, and belonged to them—and he didn't want to get into it.

"After using all our arguments to induce him to assist us, but to no purpose, I went to him, put my arm about his neck and told him that I was a Christian, and thought it no harm to play cards just for amusement; and that I thought he ought to lay aside his scruples, and come and help us, as we could have no fun without his help; that he was too fastidious anyway. With this he arose from his seat very reluctantly, and came, protesting that he knew nothing about the business. We told him he could soon learn; and he did, only too quickly; for, in a little time, he was enough for either of us; and when we three had become tired of the sport, he was so delighted with it that he sat for an hour studying the cards and shuffling them.

"We laughed heartily at him for his interest in the matter, and finally retired for the night, leaving him with the cards. Next morning he took them up again, and tried to induce us to play with him; but our cousins must go home, and soon left us, taking the deck with them. But the fatal act had been done. That night my brother was out in the city until a late hour, which was a thing that never occurred before; and when he came home he seemed quite morose; and to our inquiries for the cause, his replies were all evasive.

"The next night he was out again; and this continued for some few nights until his money — some two hundred dollars — was all gone. He then went to father for more; and as he had an unbounded confidence in my brother, he very readily gave him quite a little sum, and without asking him what he was going to do with it. This was soon gone, and when he asked for more, father desired him to tell what he was doing with so much money. Not giving a direct answer, father gave him a small sum, and told him he could get no more unless he would give a clear report of the use he made of his money. This was soon spent, and when he went for more, and unwilling to account for what he had received, father refused to give him more. With this refusal he became angry and told father he would make him willing to let him have the money. My brother went into the city again, and as usual went into a gambling den where he managed to get money for gambling, or he would sit and look on. eH was absent for nearly a week.

"During this time my mother neither ate nor slept, as I might say; but when my brother was brought home drunk, my mother took her bed, and never got up again; but died of a broken heart within a few days. We hoped this would stop my brother's course, but it was only for a short time. He soon began his gambling and drinking again; and being young and rather delicate, it was not long until he was brought home in delirium tremens. Upon this father took his bed, languished, sank, and died, leaving myself with my brother alone in the world. Oh, how I wished I could die ,too! But it seemed that God determined that I should see the end of my work in wrecking our family.

"Every influence that could be brought to bear on my poor brother I made use of, but to no avail; and oh how I prayed for him, but it was of no use. He went more rapidly down the way of ruin now that father was dead and out of the way. Only a few weeks after I followed my father to his resting-place in the silent grave, my brother was brought home with delirium tremens again, and after suffering a short time in the most terrible agony, the poor boy died and was laid in a drunkard's grave. O, my God! why was I ever born? Why can't I die too? What will my eternity be for having ruined my own brother, the bright and beautiful boy? This is why I spell my name Mara."

Soon after the lady began telling her sad story, the ladies in the company began weeping, and when it was finished they were all sobbing as if their hearts would break, and the men were pouring their tears with them. The cards had disappeared, and vows were solemnly expressed by the entire company that never again would any of them be guilty of engaging in that sport; but would ever endeavour to put the practice out of good society.

To add a further illustration of the streams of evil originating with the so-called "innocent" games of cards, where money is not played for, a chaplain of the Penitentiary at Mount Auburn, N.Y., tells the following:

"In preparing a young man for his execution on the gallows, he asked him, 'What was it that first turned your steps in the downward path?' And he answered, 'The games of cards I played and the wine I drank in my mother's parlour.'"

Another chaplain also tells of a man that he had been trying in vain to bring to repentance for his evil life. Finding him so very hardened, and thinking he might gain an entrance to his heart if he could bring to him some thought of his mother, he procured her photograph and brought it to him in the prison.

At the sight of it he tore it in pieces and throwing it to the ground and trampling on it, he exclaimed, "Yes, it was she who first turned me into the path of all this ruin. It was at her parlous table I learned to play cards and drink wine."

Oh! Mothers, Mothers! What account will you have to render at the last great day?

Stop, weary traveller, in thine onward course.
Thy way must have an end.
Whither doth it lead? and what is there in view,
If yet unturned you still this course pursue
Unto Eternity?
"Look unto Me." Hearken, 'tis the Saviour's voice;
For there is none beside.
"And be ye saved." From judgment flee;
I bore sin's heavy load to give thee rest
Throughout Eternity.
Listen to His call, and harden not thine heart
Till this short life be past.
For soon the call shall cease,
And vainly thou shalt look and long for peace
When time doth stop—for thee, Eternity.

SAM HUNTER AT STONEY LAKE

"What luck?" and "How's the fishing?" These are, of course, the first questions to be answered by anyone who hopes to be get even the mildest of public interest in the subject of camping out. It is fired at one from every angle and with tireless reiteration many times in the course of a day. Fish—It is the one absorbing interest which brings to these beautiful waters, the vast majority of these portly, fashion, disdaining, enthusiastic Americans that we see passing in guide conducted row boats all day long. It holds chief place in the thoughts—and dreams, doubtless—of most of the summer cottagers, too Canadian and American alike. The fluctations of lunge and black bass stock replace for a brief, glorious season that of cotton, steel, and C. P. R. and is watcher as keenly in Cleveland, Scranton, Toronto, by many sporting magnates as it is a McCracken's Landing. "Doc" Hoover's twenty-one pound 'lunge catch' yesterday will attain a scare-head importance in certain Pittsburg fishing club circles to-morrow when the news arrives as will serve to throw yesterday's silver strike in the Cobalt country into discard.

And fishing is fine. Ten and twelve pound muskalonge are being taken daily, and everyone fishing seems to be having a share in the luck. Black bass fishing, which entices here so many skilful handlers of rod and reel from all over America, is usually attains an excellence, both in flavor and fighting qualities here which places it apart from the bass of warmer and more southerly waters. It is here the hardest fighting fish in the world for it's size, and has been caught in these lakes nearly seven pounds in weight. Some fish. Four pounds, however, is the best that I have seen this season. But the season is still young. Yesterday evening an American cottage neighbor opened up his catch to us as he passed our wharf and displayed a "limit" catch of bass the average weight of which would probably be two and a half pounds. "All right, eh?" he said, and we agreed that they certainly were. We were entertaining and, being entertained, at the moment by a frogs' leg vendor from 'up Buckhorn way' who had just paddled in. He was indubitably a native son. Garb, speech, and the freckles of three soore huckleberry seasons attested to that. "Aint it a holy caution," he said, as the owner of the lucky catch passed, "how little it takes to tickle some fellas and run up their blood pressure? Here now," he continued, shuffling forward in the dugout and producing from under a sheep skin and a wet covering of eel weed a "yellow" bass of perhaps four pounds "is a bass that'd make two of any of thim, an"—throwing it down again with a gesture of disgust, "I've seen the time, not so long ago neither, mind yeh, when I've spent an evenin' down at the mouth o' the crick ketching fish like that just for bait. When I was a lad ole Dinny Conner made all our hooks —Dinny was the blacksmith. With a plow line he hitched to one of Dinny's four inch hooks an' a nap kittle full of big bass for bait manys the fine 'lunge an' trout we took onta Upper Stony.

Trout Sure; what most folks calls sa'mon trout. Lots of them in them days an' running' tall as big as the 'lunge An' tender an' sweet, a fifty pound trout, as a ten pound one. The biggest O, I dunno. I've heerd of a hundred and an' eleven pounder ketched by Reddy McNamara forty years ago. Everybody heerd about it, but then, everybody knowed Reddy and his repatatin, an' it never went on record as you might say. I don't believe myself" resettling himself and easing the ancient craft forward with his hand, "I say, I don't believe myself that the ninety seven an' a half ponnd trout that dad ketched at the mouth of Eel's Crick was ever beat. He bit on a four pound yalls bass an' put up a half hour's rough an' tumble fight. When we opened him we found two of old Miss Tooney's geese an' a ha'f growed mush rat into him. Nice growin' weather, aint it?"

So much for fish. For the man or woman whose love of nature finds its' finest appreciation in ther things than of killing fish it is a pleasant land. It holds an "embarrassment of riches". It is a country of wonderfully varied growths. It's limestone ridges, it's granite islands and northern shores produce a variety and plenty seen in no other district possibly in America; bird life, flower and fern growths, and wild fruits. It's hardwood ridges are everywhere, beautiful with fine old woods, maple, elm, basswood, beach. Here in early summer you may hear such singers as the rose breasted grosbeak, the purple finch, the winter wren, the veery, olive back, hermit, and wood hrushes. Mushrooms are usually in abundance from early in July to the end of the season. The swamps have yielded up their last orchids, but, along Indian river the crimson of the swamp rose can still be seen. And soon the cardinal flower will be again in bloom, gleaming like camp fires whereven water runs. All day long summer and old time health and happiness under pleasant skies and with no thought that it is time misspent. On the hottest days there is always a breeze, sweet and fresh from leagues of pine and balsam, and the cool shade of trees. And at night the stars,—and don't menion it, but perhaps a mosquito or two—and "a bed of boughs."

Kamel Pasha and Essad Pasha Said to be Co-operating.

(Canadian Press.)

PARIS, July 9.—The formation of a separate Turkish Government in Asia Minor by Mutapha Kamel Pasha and Essad Pasha is indicated as a possibility in despatches received in peace conference circles from Greek sources. Kamel Pasha, who is reported to have 40,000 troops with 40 heavy guns and many machine guns, is said to have refused to comply with an order from the Government in Constantinople to return to the capital.

Hens are supplied by nature with 1,200 to 4,000 rudimentary yolks. But a yolk is only half an egg, and a hen won't lay half an egg—it's the whole egg or nothing with her. To lay a whole egg, the hen must have a "white" for a "yolk." If she is to lay 1,000 eggs, her food must supply 1,000 whites as well as 1,000 yolks—she must get "whites" just as she gets yolks, because good eggs—from hen fruit—contain "grain foods and "albuminoids," will fatten a hen and produce yolk, but do not produce white. You've got to make her lay many more eggs than usual. Only the feeding of Purina Scratch Feed and Purina Chicken Chowder will supply enough albumin to make "a white for every yolk," and make a hen LAY MORE EGGS—where only ordinary grain foods are given. The price of Purina Scratch Feed and Purina Chicken Chowder is very little more than ordinary feed, but they make a hen lay so many more eggs that there is an enormous profit in them. As an ESTATE BUILDER there is nothing to equal Life Insurance.

TAKE THE FOLLOWING ACTUAL RESULT

A young man, sixteen years of age, took out a 15-year Endowment (No. 210380) in the Sun Life of Canada, which matured on the first of April. This young man paid annually $44.30 for fifteen years, and he has now, through that investment, an immediate estate of $1,425.00 in case of death.

DO YOU KNOW THAT THIS AMOUNTS TO ALMOST 15% COMPOUND INTEREST ON EVERY DOLLAR HE PAID?

No wonder Sir Wilfrid said (and he might have added, No better place than the Sun Life of Canada), "There is no better way to invest it than in LIFE INSURANCE."

THE COMMUNITY SPIRIT

The improvement that have been made in the bathing facilities at Inverlea Park, unpretentious as they are in themselves albeit a source of enjoyment to hundreds of citizens, indicate what could be accomplished in Peterboro if the community spirit were developed and matured in this city. The rafts that have been provided for he bathers, the spring board, that delight the boy swimmer and incidentally many of the girls for the latter are learning the graceful art of diving, were made possible through the public spirit of Mr. A. G. Roberts of the Playgrounds Association and by the kindness of a number of local firms whose names were published yesterday and who donated all the materials that were used. Mr. Roberts, who might well be termed the "father" of Inverlea, because of his deep interest in the park and for the welfare of those who bathe there, supplied the enterprise that resulted in the facilities that are now enjoyed by visitors. He reports that he was most cordially received by local firms who most willingly gave the materials the were required. The same desire to help might be discovered in many other civic matters if the proper way could be found of supplying direction and leadership for the good spirit that exists. There are many movements that could be materially assisted, if there was proper use made of this spirit: oftentimes it is not developed as it should be and citizens who are willing and anxious to help are not called upon.

ANOTHER LEAVES THE SHIP.

These are bad days for the Union government. Not only are the people of Vancouver in mass meeting assembled, calling upon the administration to resign—a wish that will be echoed in all parts of the country; not only has Sir Thomas White decided to throw up his portfolio, but Mr. J. H. Burnham, member for West Peterboro, has declared himself out. He is through with the Union party, he announces, and would not accept a nomination, if one were offered him. Just how the shock of this announcement was received by Sir Robert Borden and his associates, has not been made public. If it was in proportion with the size of the type used in Mr. Burnham's local newspaper organ, it must have been tremendous, but at any rate, Mr. Burnham is through, and his reasons for such a decision are more than usually logical—for Mr. Burnham. Bluntly, the member for West Peterboro accuses the members of the Union party as being animated by only one ambition—desire to retain power. They were elected, he says, for the prosecution of the war, but peace has been signed and now although the members are opposed directly to each other on trade policies, they are willing to swallow their principles so long as they can hang on to office. In other words the present Union government is a union for one thing only—to remain in power as long as possible. They are merely attempting to deceive the people of Canada in their pretence that there is need of a Unionist administration during the reconstruction period, and Mr. Burnham maintains that they should be honest with their 'constituents.'

There is no question that the member for West Peterboro is expressing the views of the "ginger" group of old-line Tories who object to the presence of Liberals in the government — he has merely beaten the others in the race to declare themselves.

A BETTER UNDERSTANDING

The decision of the Agricultural Committee of the Board of Trade attempt to establish a better understanding between the farmers and their city brethren will be applauded by all who recognize the necessity of the development of a more cordial and closer relationship between rural and urban dwellers. It is a recognized fact that these two classes have been drifting further and further apart; yet it should be equally clear that they are interdependent and one class cannot exist without the other. There is no reason, except a mutual failure to understand each other why the man in the city should regard the average farmer as unworthy and penurious, or why the farmer on the other hand should look upon the city merchant as a profiteer. And yet such opinions exist and it is to establish the fallacy of ideas such as these that the Board of Trade Committee has decided to invite representative farmers of the district to be the guests of the merchants and other members of the Board at a get-together conference probably during the Peterboro Industrial Exhibition. There is much to be said in favour of such a plan. The farmer should have as much interest as the local merchant in the matter of making Peterboro a better market and in other affairs of the same kind in which the two classes can find a common footing and come to a better understanding of each other. If they will talk frankly and openly at a conference of this kind so that the city man may be able to appreciate some of the difficulties that the farmer has to face, and the farmer may understand that the merchant has his troubles as well, much of the present distrust would disappear. The Board of Trade deserves thanks for its enterprise in tackling this problem and it would be a splendid thing for the whole district if the efforts of the Agricultural Committee are crowned with the success their initiative merits.

THE BRIDGE TANGLE.

The latest step in the Hunter Street bridge tangle is a cruel disappointment to the unemployed workmen of the city who were rejoicing in the opinion that there was work in sight for them at last, and to the citizens generally, who were hoping that the long and wearisome negotiations had been finally completed. The application for an injunction restraining the Corporation from entering into an agreement with the Russell-Townsend Company will be bitterly resented by those to whom the immediate starting of work upon the bridge would be a benefit—especially to the workmen, to whom the commencement of operations was the only relief that has been offered them. There are many unemployed men whose financial condition is serious, and who will be in desperate straits next winter if they are not soon given an opportunity for employment. The construction of the bridge was counted upon by these men as a way out of their troubles, the announcement of the passing of the by-law had been hailed by them with delight, and their feelings now when they find that legal proceedings have snatched from them, for the time being at least, their opportunity of employment can be imagined.

The whole problem in connection with the bridge has been so mismanaged and so muddled that it would be considered a joke, were not the matter so serious. The average citizen is weary of reading about the bridge, tired of trying to follow the aldermen in their twistings and twinings: heartily sick of the whole business. It was with relief that the news of the passing of the by-law was received, and it was doubtless with feelings of disgust that the majority of citizens read the announcement in the newspapers last night that once more some one had thrown a wrench into the machinery, and the end was not yet in sight.

THE FOUNTAIN OF YOUTH.

Recent announcements of the birthday anniversaries of prominent citizens, who have passed beyond the allotted "three score and ten" revive the old problem of the fountain of youth. Men and women will, in the very nature of things, grow old; but why should old age be accompanied with disease and decay, pessimism and pain?

The love of living is the most profound instinct of mankind. We cling to life most desperately. Why should not this natural desire be the companion of joy and happiness to the last? Men have searched the world over for the traditional elixir of youth, either to lose their lives in the search or to turn back with the realization that it is to be found only in human hearts and souls.

What are the keys to a happy and prolonged life? Where are the springs of eternal youth? Speaking spiritually they lie in self control, a clear conscience, confidence in one's self and faith in others. There is nothing so disintegrating as uncontrolled temper; nothing so shrivelling as guilt; nothing so enervating as extreme timidity; nothing so narrowing as suspicion and jealousy.

It is worry, not work, that kills. Worry never earned a day's wage, never met a grocery bill, never paid a note, never accomplished anything worth while. On the contrary it destroys the power of the human machine as rust destroys the engine and the boiler.

Science has long sought to prolong human life, and has succeeded in a measure. But science is only advanced common sense plus a higher revelation of the secrets of nature.

The temple we call the body is ours to perfect or to mar. In our use of it lies the secret of a ripe old age. In his famous discourse on old age Cicero says: "Thus old age is honorable where it takes care to support its proper rights and gives them not weakly away, but asserts them to the last. For, as we commend such youths as show something of the solidity of old age, so we do the same by the age who express the liveliness of youth."

Some poet has said:

My age still holds the dew of the morn,
And what I have I give,
Being right glad that I was born
And thankful that I live.

Tennyson at the age of eighty, sat on the shore of time, and wrote:

Sunset and evening star,
And one clear call for me.

The fountain of youth is in every human breast. If partaken of freely it will lengthen the three score and ten to four score and ten, and make the sunset of life a new awakening, a source of gracious joy.—New York Herald.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Bathers will be glad that no one issued an injunction against the building of the new bathing house.

Incidentally the aldermen should see that a returned soldier receives the appointment of caretaker for the new bathing place.

As long as the old bridge will hold the baseball crowds, Manager Solomon of the Petes is doubtless not worrying about injunctions.

Is Mr. Burnham going to form a party of his own. Or where does he go from here?

At the Grand Monday, Tues. and Wed.

SAYS CANADA HAS A CLAIM

To the Editor of the Examiner:

Peace has now been signed, nations have been assigned additional territory and have been given concessions but Canada. The Canadian delegates at the Peace Conference had an excellent opportunity to wage a convincing man-to-man argument against President Wilson's Dalmatian Policy.

Here it is, as stated by John O'Gorman in his excellent article, headed "The Canadian Dalmatia," published on June 28th, 1919, by the "Catholic Record." He says as follows:

"The United States possesses a Canadian Dalmatia strangely similar in geographical contour to the historic Dalmatia. It stretches from the south of Alaska proper, that is, from the 141 parallel of north longitude, along the Pacific Coast to the Portland Canal, a distance of over 500 miles. This territory throughout the 500 miles includes all the islands and a strip of mainland which follows the winding of the coast, but which never stretches further inland than 10 marine leagues therefrom. In addition to the ordinary windings of the coast, there are a number of inlets. The heads of all these inlets were claimed and obtained by the United States. Thus the northern and larger part of Canada is excluded from the Pacific Ocean. It has no access to the sea except through ports held by the United States. Yet ,geographically, this sub-Alaskan coast line and islands, now held by the United States, form as much a part of Canada as the coastline from Maine to Long Island forms part of the United States. So much for geography — now turn to history. The Americans did not discover these North Pacific islands. The name of the principal island, Prince of Wales Island, is a sufficient indication of this. Neither were they its first colonists. American connection began in 1867. Up to that year this territory had no Americans. Up to this day the number is very small. This territory depends chiefly on Canada for an existence and colonization. The claims of Italy are not as strong as Canada's claim. The Alaskan Treaty decision in 1903 was met with a burst of anger by the whole of Canada. Sir Richard Scott, formerly Secretary of State for Canada, bitterly exclaimed in the House of Commons, 'Canada has been sacrificed by England on the altar of American friendship.' The decision, without a doubt, cheated Canada out of this extensive territory now held by U.S.A."

The delegates to the Peace Conference from Canada were more intent in looking after titles than looking after Canadian interests. Canada entered the war for justice nine months before Italy and two years and eight months before the United States. Though less than one-twelfth the population of the United States, she had more soldiers killed in action than the U.S.A. The actual fighting our soldiers did for the Allies was greater than that done by the Americans. It was not till March, 1918, that the United States had a larger army than Canada overseas. Even in the last 100 days of the war, from August to November 11th, the Canadians played a more important part in the actual fighting. Is Canada to have nothing as the result of this war, except over 60,000 dead and a big debt? No! Canada must get something in return. The present is the time to act. Canada is a nation, and Canadians must see to it that she gets her rights. Canada played a greater part in the war than half of the independent Allied nations did. President Wilson conveniently forgot about this doubtful Treaty of Alaska in 1903 that robbed Canada of this territory which justly belongs to her.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor.

SUNSET HILL

Contributed.

Sunset Hill is a large hill near Lake Johnstone, Sask. It is not widely known as such, but is known to ourselves as a sort of valued place where the setting sun can be viewed at the best advantage of anywhere in the country. Being near by, I choose this as a name of my correspondence. No. 1, Sunset Hill Correspondence.

It would be very mild to say that the outlook for a "bumper" crop is splendid. That is, in this district. The crops were in early and were not long in showing above the ground. The land here is generally heavy "gumbo." That is, a mucky, black, sticky soil that grows the best of crops.

Although the crops were doing nicely, a total loss was feared unless a heavy rain took place in the near future. The skies clouded over several times, but somehow the storm always seemed to blow over. Finally the rain did come, and came with a vengeance. Dry and hard as the ground was, puddles were to be seen for days [illegible]. Since then many little [illegible] come at intervals [illegible] and I was [illegible] and much of it is headed out. The rest is in the shot-blade. If rain does not forsake us, a "bumper" crop is to be expected here as well as in Peterborough county. Folks say that it is to be like 1915 for crops if things keep on. In some parts the sand is on the surface instead of being under the "gumbo." In these parts the wind has blown quite a lot of the crops out. Also on the level land south of the lake. We are in the hilly country, and the winds are not nearly so bad as they are on the flats.

The hail storm of a few weeks ago was one of the worst ever known in these parts. Large hail-stones, accompanied by a terrific wind, broke dozens upon dozens of windows and killed some fowl. One neighbour had his granary roof blown away and 73 turkeys killed. Many wild ducks and jack rabbits were killed in the fields, but as if by miracle only one man reports his crops being damaged any.

Jack rabbits and gophers are in abundance this year, and many farmers are suffering more or less loss of grain as a result. Although we have used five gallons of poison and about twelve dollars worth of twenty-two bullets, besides snaring and trapping, there are enough gophers and rabbits left on the half-section yet to suit us.

With all these drawbacks, if the rains continue it is expected that a "bumper" crop will be the result.

"Badger."

HIS MISTAKE

(Author Unknown.)

He moved up to the city,
When he'd made his little pile,
Built a house and a garden,
Dressed his girls in city style;
He read the city papers
And he hate the city food,
His wife joined half-a-dozen clubs,
His boy became a dude;
But he left his religion in the country,
He took a dab at politics
The city kind of course.
He bought a high-powered motor,
It was faster than a horse.
He had a box at opera
And a lot of gilt-edged stock;
Built a bank right in the centre
Of the city's finest block
But he left his religion in the country.
The church just round the corner
Was of other brand than his,
So he visited the movies
Or spent Sunday at his bis'
He knocked the city preachers
And he laughed at Sunday's laws,
While his boy went to the mischief
And his girls were lot ——
Because he left his religion in the country.
And when he took his journey
To the place where all men stand,
He walked up to the Golden Gate
As though he owned the land.
"I know you're from the city,"
Said Saint Peter, with a sigh,
"And I'm sorry I must tell you
This is once you can't get by,
For you've left your religion in the country."

BABY WELFARE IS DISCUSSED

Convention at Cobourg is Informed of the Importance of the Work.

The rising wave of Baby Welfare work has reached Cobourg, and a despatch from the city says that about fifty babies were handled, weighed and measured by Miss Knox of Toronto, at the Baby Welfare Convention held by the local branch of the Ontario Women Citizen's Association, assisted by the women's organizations of the town. Miss Knox in her educative talks gave the mothers much good advice, which was appreciatively received. There was also a delightful address by Miss Marshall Saunders of Toronto, author of "Beautiful Joe." Miss Saunders strongly advocated supervised playgrounds for children, and also a medical inspections in all schools. The more money spent on the children the less will be required for institutions for their care later in life, she argued.

Miss Power, Director of the Child Welfare Bureau, gave excellent addresses on the importance of this great work, and the necessity of using every possible means to stay the appalling loss of life among the babies of Ontario.

Mrs. W. H. Becker, of Toronto, addressed one of the afternoon sessions, speaking of Baby Welfare, and also on woman's part and duty in the coming prohibition referendum.

There were daily clinics on the feeding and care of infants, and young children, dental clinics, moving pictures to illustrate the addresses, musical programs, and other important features. Afternoon tea was served to the mothers.

The convention was heralded by a parade of some five hundred children from the public and separate schools, captained by the Girl Guides carrying banners.

The Promoter's Wife

BY JANE PHELPS

ONE OF NEIL'S DEALS GOES THROUGH

CHAPTER XIV

"Hip-hip-hurrah!"

Neil it was whose voice had rung out in the cheer. I was waiting dinner for him, but had not heard him come in.

"What's it all about?" He had grabbed me around my waist and was whirling me about the room for all the world like a mad Dervish.

"It's over! The deal went thru to-day. My, but your husband's some money-maker! Say you're proud of me, Bab! Say it quick or I'll go and find someone who will." Anxious as always for praise.

"Of course I am proud of you, you dear boy. I'm always proud of you. Come, you shall tell me all about it while we have dinner."

Neil was very gay all thru dinner, yet he really told me nothing. Again and again he reiterated that the "deal had gone thru" and more than once I had to tell him that I was proud of him.

"We'll go and look at those apartments I told you of, on Sunday, or would you rather have a house?" he asked.

"Oh, let us have the apartment. A house isn't half so pretty nor so easy to manage. But Neil, why not stay here until your year is up We'll have to pay unless we find someone to take it."

"Stay here! Well, I guess not! We'll go out of this joint just about as fast as we can ,then we'll show them a few things." ("Them" being his friends of course)

He was so boyishly happy, I said no more. Yet I dread the thought of change. The apartment, while not large was comfortable and was almost luxurious in its furnishings. With the two servants I had little real care, and we had been happy there—in our first home.

After Neil's first ebullition of joy had somewhat subsided, as we were sitting in the library, sipping our coffee, I tried again to question him.

"Never mind the details, Bab. The thing is done. You couldn't understand if I tried to tell you."

"Lorraine said to-day that if she married she would waatt to know all about her husband's business. It made me realize I knew absolutely nothing of yours."

"She probably would have to take it out in wanting. Men aren't apt to tell their wives very much of their business. Women gossip too much, for one thing; and for another a man has to talk business all day, and he doesn't want to talk it all night as well."

I said no more about the business, but told him of the conversation I had heard at the Waldorf. I described the men, and asked if he knew them. He said he did not recognize them from my description, so I repeated what they had said. If it was some other Forbes, there was no reason why I shouldn't tell Neil. I watched him as I repeated him as I repeated the conversation I had overheard. I had forgotten no word of what they had said—it had made me too anxious. Just as I finished I looked up and was surprised and puzzled to see a wave of crimson rush across Neil's face. But at the same time he said carelessly:

"There are several families of Forbes in New York. But we are not related."

Once again I had been uneasy for no reason. I must stop imagining things, I decided.

The remainder of the evening we spent planning when we should move—always supposing we found an apartment that suited us—and what we should do about the disposal of the one we were then occupying.

"If you rent it furnished or unfurnished you may have the rent," he said.

"Oh, I'll surely rent it, but I hate to let anyone have our things."

"We shan't need or want them. Might as well let them stay here."

The very next day I found a tenant for the apartment who would take possession whenever we were ready to vacate. had spoken to the superintendent, and he sent this man to me—a bachelor who would take it off of our hands if we would leave the furniture.

BRITISH OFFICERS TO COME TO CANADA.

Will be Assisted in Higher Education.

LONDON, July 9. — It is officially announced that ex-officers and men of British nationality domiciled elsewhere than in Canada are eligible to receive grants to enable them to study in Canada under the Imperial Government scheme for affording financial assistance for higher education and training.

Answering a question in the House of Lords, Lord Milner, Colonial Secretary, said that the Canadian universities will welcome such students.

LONDON'S BURIED WINDOWS ARE BEING DUG UP.

LONDON, July 10.—The famous stained glass windows of Westminster Abbey and St. Margaret's, taken down and buried in the crypt of the Abbey after the first German air raid on London, are about to be reinstated in their former positions.

Only the most valuable of the windows were removed, the work of dismembering being too lengthy and too costly for all to be taken to a place of safety. Each bit of glass had to be carefully taken out, numbered, and stored away—a delicate and tedious task, but comparatively easy beside that of replacement.

British Expect to Overcome Drawbacks from Commercial Standpoint.

LONDON, July 10.—The Admiralty Airship Department is making a practical experiment in a few days with the object of overcoming the drawbacks from a commercial standpoint connected with the handling and housing of airships. It is hoped the new device, which has been kept secret, will enable the landing or mooring to be effected by the crew without other assistance, and that there will be no necessity for sheds. "Automatic" landing and mooring is regarded as practically essential before airships can be put up as a commercial proposition. The technical department is tackling three points, namely: Moving the ship in the open, economy of manpower for landing and the necessity for a good reserve of fuel.

MEAT CAUSE OF KIDNEY TROUBLE

Take a glass of Salts if your Back hurts or Bladder bothers—
Meat forms uric acid.

If you must have your meat every day, eat it, but flush your kidneys with salts occasionally, says a noted authority who tells us that meat forms uric acid which almost paralyzes the kidneys in their efforts to expel it from the blood. They become sluggish and weaken, then you suffer with a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or sick headache, dizziness, your stomach sours, tongue is coated and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine gets cloudy, full of sediment, the channels often get sore and irritated, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night.

To neutralize these irritating acids, to cleanse the kidneys and flush off the body's urinous waste, get four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy here; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate sluggish kidneys, also to neutralize the acids in urine, so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure, and makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink

THE BELLOW OF A BOURGEOIS

I rise to a question of privilege, a question being about the only privilege I have left. For I am one of those despised creatures known as a bourgeois. After talking to certain parlour Bolsheviki here to a few genuine Bolsheviki in Europe, and reading much up-to-date literature on the subject I am not even sure that I have the right to ask a question. But with the courage of desperation I nevertheless ask it: What is going to become of us?

If this sounds like the cry of a man going down for the third time in a sea of political fury, it sounds just the way I feel.

As long as it was only the capitalist who had to "go," I could view the situation with relative calm. Evidently the new movement was not aiming at me. But to my chagrin and amazement I find that I am only a degree if any less objectionable than a capitalist to the Lenin-Trotzky school.

It does not decrease our temper by chagrin to find that the man who sells peanuts at the corner and the publisher who gives me a job is equally objectionable. The peanut vendor is bourgeois, so is the publisher and the editor and the butcher and the baker and the candle stick maker. They are deriving private profits from activities which must be "nationalized" and "operated for the benefit of all."

If peanuts are to be sold it will be by the State, and as for editors and other idlers, "who produce nothing," I am not sure that we shall have anything of the sort in Bolshevikia. A nationalized press with a Burleson at the head and State-paid directors, such as those who run the railroads and the wire companies, will answer all the requirements of the new regime.

If anyone thinks that these are fanciful or far-fetched statements, he has not kept up with Modern Thought on these subjects. Just wait until the Soviets, those "highest expressions of democracy," get to work here, and the nationalization of newspapers and peanuts will become a stern reality.

Meanwhile, awaiting the full ripening of the Bolshevist state, our own proletariat is getting what is coming to it by a method less laborious than revolution and Soviets and the like. Our proletarians agree perfectly with the Bolshevist idea that everything belongs to the man who works with his hands. But how much simpler to take your everything in the form of wages rather than have the Soviet take it for you!

I confess to the shameful fact that I have, or did have, a clerk. He was a high school boy who had been getting a salary of $20 a week. The other day he resigned, giving as his reason that the paper handlers who roll the paper from truck to basement and from basement to the presses got $35 a week; why grub in an office when one can draw down $35 per for rolling paper around with a crowbar? Why, indeed?

But the point is that the paper-handlers have solved the problem of getting their share without the aid of imposed political machinery. No doubt in accomplishing this they used the crowbar, a simple, efficient, thoroughly American instrument; but we bourgeoisie have no crowbars. All proletariat seem to have them.

My landlord says that he must raise the rent owing to the high price of janitors and elevator men. The cook demands $45 a month, and the man who formerly worked around the place for 30 cents an hour now wants $4 a day whether he works or not, rain, etc., being entirely at my risk. Everything to eat and wear is out of the reach of any one except a member of the capitalist or working classes. It is the same story from every direction. And it comes to this, that we bourgeoisie can't live any longer, not because anyone is going to take the trouble to shoot us or hang us, but because we shall starve. Nobody wants us; we are not even like the capitalist, worth skinning. It is a sad end of what was once considered a worthy level of existence.

But shall we go down and out without a struggle? There must be quite a lot of us bourgeois. The whole strata lying (and lying prone as it happens) between the capitalists and the proletariat are the bourgeoisie. Our old-fashioned census does not classify us, but deducting the manual workers and the capitalists from the total population leaves something like 35,000,000 persons.

I now and hereby call upon 35,000,000 to arouse themselves. There are more than 2,000,000 of us in New York City alone. Let us meet in Madison Square, (not the Garden, for we could not afford it.) The proletariat and capitalistic classes will stone us; the police will club us, but nevertheless let us utter a protest if it is our last act prior to extinction. Let us at least have a decent funeral; to hear one's obituary is a novel even if painful experience.

Of orators we shall have a plenty, since talk is still cheap. I will provide the soap boxes—it is all I have left. — Daniel T. Pierce in the New York Times.

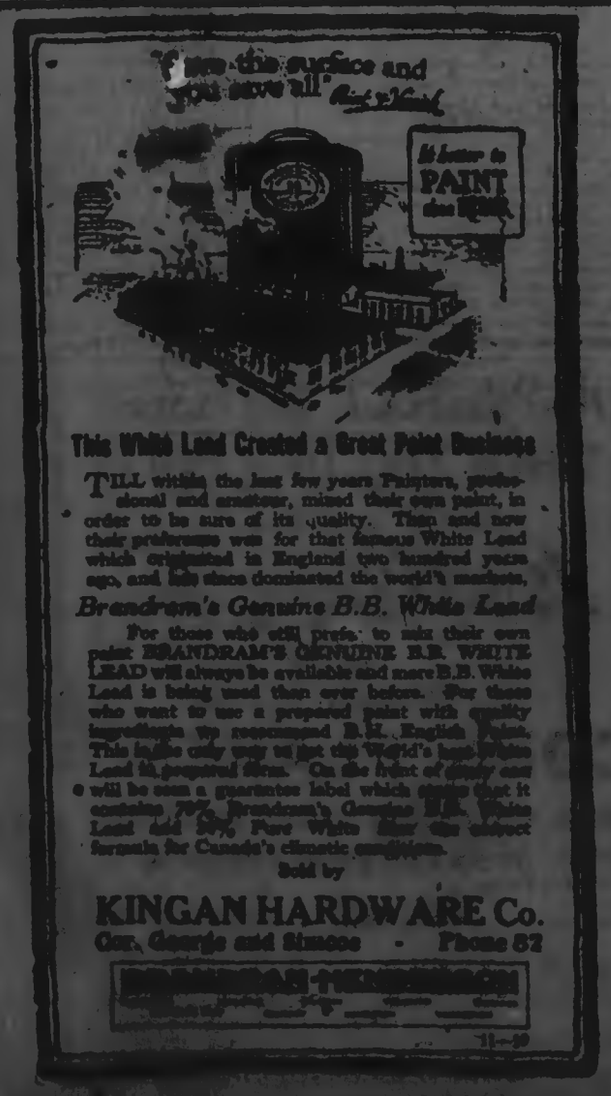
ONE EDITOR'S TROUBLES.

It's a tremendous shock for a country editor to know that someone appreciates his efforts—to get three new yearly subscribers within an hour, each and all putting up $1.50 of the "long green," and to hear a farmer say: "I've taken this paper for twenty-eight years, and it's the best paper to-day—by a mile—that it has ever been." We got it that Tuesday, and being heir to a torpid liver and a weak heart, and had our appendix removed three times (at $200 a throw) —well, it was almost more than we could bear. We are better now.—Algoma Advocate.



This White Lead Created a Great Paint Business

TILL within the last few years Painters, professional and amateur, mixed their own paint, in order to be sure of its quality. Then and now their preference was for that famous White Lead which originated in England two hundred years ago, and has since dominated the world's markets.

Brandram's Genuine B.B. White Lead

For those who still prefer to mix their own paint BRANDRAM'S GENUINE B.B. WHITE LEAD will always be available and more B.B. White Lead is being used than ever before. For those who want to use a prepared paint with quality ingredients we recommend B.B. English White. This is the only way to get the World's best White Lead in prepared form. On the front of every can will be seen a guarantee label which states that it contains 70% Brandram's Genuine B.B. White Lead and 30% Pure White Zinc the correct formula for Canada's climatic conditions.

BUTTER CHEAPER IN THE STORES

CHICKENS AND DUCKS BECOMING MORE PLENTIFUL.

In spite of the fact that butter of the best grade was advertised in the stores at 50 and 55 cents a pound, the farmers this morning at the Market asked 60 cents early, and managed to sell a considerable quantity before the shoppers realised they could get the same goods delivered at 5 and 7 cents less a pound.

Eggs sold at 45 and 50 cents a doz.
Chickens sold at 35 cens a pound.
Ducks sold a 50 cents a pound.
Potatoes sold at $1.80 a bag.
Few raspberries were on sale—these at 40 cents a quart.

GRACE BEFORE MEAT.

He was awfully wild; in fact, he was wildly wild.

"I tell you once and for all," he said to his erring offspring, "if you marry Grace I'll cut you off without a penny and you won't have as much as a piece of beef to boil in the pot."

"Well," said the young man as he went in search of a parson, "Grace hates meat."

SUMMERTIME MEANS COTTON FROCKS

VOILES IN NAVY AND WHITE DESIGNS ARE FAVOURITES.

NEW YORK, July 10.

Between seasons is always a time when the dress problem is seemingly not to be solved. One is quite at a loss as to just whatto wear, for at times a suit seems a bit heavy and then again a summer dress is too light.

Navy Blue Ground with White Checker.

For this very reason the designers have created the alluring satin three piece suit. Most of these satin suits are combined with Georgette and novelty crepes. The coat of the suit is usually long, thereby giving rather the appearance of a dress. Black is the color most generally used, partially because of its practicability and mostly because of its chic quality.

Changeable taffeta, much like the fascinating stuff that was the popular thing in the days of pastiche and bouffant effects, is again attracting attention for late spring dresses. This perhaps is due to the fact that some of the designers are trying to introduce again the draped effect in taffeta which results in a bouffant effect.

Width by Reason of Shirring And Pleatings.

The newest frocks have the width at the hips emphasized, giving a silhouette that is radically different from the long narrow one. Sometimes this added fulness is in the form of a tunic which is either applied at the side or back. When a tunic is used in the front it is in the form of an apron. The sleeves are of elbow length or a little below, and the neckline is straight across the front.

Foulard is everywhere in evidence for the between-season frock. Its artful confederate Georgette is of plain color when combined with foulard. Navy blue and white is the popular color scheme which needs no explanation, for navy blue and white is quite the most artistic, refined and attractive combination that one could use.

The Success of the Cape Assured.

With charming aggressiveness the capes have stepped into the foreground and now are the most envied possession of the feminine world. They are worn now almost exclusively and enjoy an elaborate prestige.

Throbbing Headache Made to Disappear Over Night

Follow This Advice and You'll Get Relief Right Away

Headaches are caused by the accumulations of poisons in the blood. The cure is not difficult.

EXCELLENT STRETCH OF COUNTY ROAD.

A really excellent piece of highway is that being constructed under the County Good Roads System through the village of Omemee and on towards Lindsay. Crushed stone secured from the pit at Bissey's Hill is being used liberally, and if the same care is exercised on the whole stretch as is shown in the work already done, a roadway equal to the best macadam will be the result. The work is under the supervision of Reeve Parsons, of Omemee, who is naturally pleased with the progress made to date.

TYPOS MAKE STIR IN TRADES COUNCIL.

(Canadian Press.)

SASKATOON, SASK., July 11. — The Typographical Union of Saskatoon caused a stir in the ranks of the Trades and Labor Council when at the meeting of the council a letter was read from the typos demanding that the officials state clearly their stand with regard to the One Big Union. The letter further stated that the members of the union who were recently elected to office on the Council would be forbidden to occupy their position if the Council favored the One Big Union Scheme. The matter caused considerable discussion the officials absolutely refused to make any statement. The installation of officers had to be postponed owing to the action of the Typographical Union.

RED HOT JULY DAYS HARD ON THE BABY

July— the month of oppressive heat; red hot days and sweltering nights, is extremely hard on little ones. Diarrhoea, dysentry, colic and cholera infantum carry off thousands of percious little lives every summer. The mother must be constantly on her guard to prevent these troubles, or if they come on suddenly to fight them. No other medicine is of such aid to mothers during the hot summer as is Baby's Own Tablets. They regulate the bowels and stomach, and an occasional dose given to the well child will prevent summer complaint, or if the trouble does come suddenly will banish it. The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cts. a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

The CRESSMAN Company Limited

LABOUR MEN CHALLENGE THE REPORT THAT ANY LABOUR INTERESTS ARE BACK OF THE NEW INJUNCTION

MR. R. R. HALL STATES THAT HE AND HIS FORMER CLIENTS ABANDONED THE INJUNCTION PROCEEDINGS THREATENED SOME TIME AGO.

LABOUR MEN CURIOUS

The injunction proceedings instituted yesterday afternoon by Mr. J. G. Guise-Bagley, on behalf of Mr. W. J. Kearns and other citizens to restrain officers of the corporation from signing the contractual agreement with the Russell-Townsend Company, for the construction of the Hunter street bridge, do not find favour with a number of prominent labour men. This is significant, for the reason that it was stated that the citizens associated with Mr. Kearns in this action were swayed by a desire that the Council should let the contract to some local man. The Labour members of the Council have shown by their votes that their chief concern has been simply to let the contract in order the long delayed project may be undertaken as soon as possible, at the same time protecting themselves against the possible effects of an injunction which had been threatened by Mr. R. R. Hall, representing a number of citizens.

Mr. Hall stated yesterday that neither he nor his clients were interested in the Kearns injunction. The citizens who had previously retained him had abandoned their proceedings when they found that the citizens as a whole were indifferent to what his clients considered an extravagant bridge. They had been prompted by a public spirit and were convinced the council could have decided upon a bridge that would not cost more than the city's appropriation and probably considerably less than that amount.

From this statement it is evident that a new group is making a last stand against the commencement of the work for which quite a number of labourers are anxiously waiting.

Aldermen Gainey, Garside and Crowe voted for the Russell-Townsend tender, Ald. Morrison for the Canadian Engineering and Contracting Company, and Ald. McIntyre's explanation of his position intimated no preference for a local contractor, although he had been one of the aldermen who had previously voted for Mr. Ed. Conroy's bid. It is regarded as more than strange therefore that the Labour group in the council should be so completely out of touch with its particular supporters and constituents, so to speak, if there is actually any appreciable Labour sentiment behind the injunction movement. And labour leaders challenge this statement. In fact they are at a loss to understand the reason for this check upon a means of employment on the very eve of the accomplishment of all their efforts to provide work.

It has been suggested that probably a member or two of the council might be able to throw some light upon the latest attack, but there is no conviction that the injunction has been instigated from within the council circle.

WEAK MOTHERS REGAIN HEALTH

Through the New Blood Dr. Williams' Pink Pills Actually Make.

No mother should allow nervous weakness to get the upper hand of her. If she does worry will mar her work in the home and torment her in body and mind. Day after day spent amid the same surroundings is enough to cause fretfulness and depression. But there are other causes as every mother knows, that tend to make her nerves run down. A change would benefit her jaded system, and rest might improve her blood so as to give the nerves a better tone. But rest and change are often impossible, and it is then that all worn out women should take a short treatment with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, which make new blood, rich with the elements on which the nerves thrive. In this way these pills restore regular health, increased energy, new ambition and steady nerve. There is a lesson for other women in the case of Mrs. Harry P. Snider, Wilton, Ont., who says: "Five years ago my twin babies were born, and I was left very weak and very miserable, hardly fit to do anything. The doctor gave me medicine, but it did not help me. Then I tried another doctor, but with no better results. One day I went home to my mother, telling her how miserable I felt, and that the doctor's medicine had not done me any good. Mother asked me why I did not try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and as I was glad to try anything that might help me, I got three boxes when I went back home. By the time these were used there was no doubt they were helping me, and I got three more boxes. But I did not need them all, for by the time the fifth box was used, I was entirely cured and never felt better in my life. Now when I hear people talk about feeling weak or miserable I always recommend Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and tell what they did for me, and in similar cases I shall continue to recommend them."

At the first sign that the blood is out of order take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and note the speedy improvement they make in the appetite health and spirits. You can get these pills through any medicine dealer or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

PRIZEWINNERS OF DRAWING CONTEST

The drawing for the prizes in connection with the lawn social held on the Sacred Heart Church grounds on Tuesday night took place yesterday evening in the presence of nearly two hundred persons, who were doubtless all personally interested in the outcome of the proceedings. The customary formalities were carefully carried out, the tickets being drawn from a big open receptacle by little Miss Mary Theresa McGrath. The holders of the winning coupons and their prizes were as follows:

A gold watch—Mrs. Geo. Brooks, 87 Adelaide Street, Lindsay.

Barrel of flour—Miss May Orr, 198 Lock Street.

Marble clock—Mrs. Ed. Lynch, Ware Street.

$5 Gold piece—Mr. Ambrose Dorris, Westcott Street.

Fancy cushion—Miss Katie Masterson.

Leather couch—Mr. Frank Clarke, Charlotte Street.

Piano lamp—F. Schoales, 118 Monaghan Road.

$5 Gold piece—Lawrence Cadieux R.R. No. 8.

Centrepiece—Miss Helena Fitzgerald, R.R. No. 2.

$5 in gold—Miss M. Colquhoun, 146 George Street.

Miss Genevieve Meagher won a lady's gold wrist watch, given by Rev. Father McAuley, of Ennismore, for selling the most tickets. Miss Meagher returned $217.50.

Those who guessed correctly the name of the doll are: A. Minty Parnell Street; Dorothy Graham, Aylmer Street; H. McMahon, 272 Conces sion Street.

THE CHAUTAUQUA DELIGHTED LAST NIGHT'S AUDIENCE

GOOD SPEAKER ON THE PROGRAMME THIS EVENING.

Geo. Cohan's popular play, "Seven Keys to Baldpate," under the management of Percival Vivian, who played the leading role, was given last night before the largest audience that has yet attended any of the entertainments given by the Chautauqua artists and the acting and enunciation were perfect. It is seldom that one can hear every word uttered by the different members of the company so distinctly as was heard by the patrons of the Chautauqua series of entertainments.

Tonight Tom Skeyhill, Australia's soldier-poet-orator, will lecture on "Fighting the Turks at the Dardanelles." The famous Fisk jubilee Singers will give a musical program.

"I am prouder to be on the stage with Tom Skeyhill, of Australia, than with any other man I know. He is the greatest orator the war has produced." This is what Theodore Roosevelt told an immense audience in Carnegie Hall, New York, on the night of May 7, 1918.

A GOOD SPEAKER.

Tom Skeyhill has taken the platform with Theodore Roosevelt. He has also taken it with William Howard Taft, Secretary Daniels, Governor Whitman, Elihu Root, Ambassador Gerard, and other famous red-blooded Americans.

He has spoken before President Wilson and at the conclusion of the address, the President saluted him.

He has packed all the biggest halls and auditoriums in the United States. His appearance on the Chatauqua platform is indeed a unique event.

It is a wonderful opportunity for the public to hear one of the world's most celebrated wounded soldiers, who happens to be a great poet and an even greater orator, deliver a thrilling story of battle. He is not the ordinary "over the top" speaker, he is more. He seems to get right at the soul of things. His power of painting word pictures is remarkable. He does more than tell you of a big charge, he takes you there and lets you see things for yourself.

The New York Times calls him "An eloquent speaker who thrills his audiences," and several other leading newspapers refer to him as the greatest war speaker living. His story is a thriller.

Fighting the Turks at the Dardanelles, a wonderful account of the allied struggle to perform the impossible. A splendid story of unparalleled bravery against terrific odds. Once heard it will never be forgotten. When this Australian poet, with the silver tongue and the stage philosophy talks, one can actually see the boys crossing No Man's Land.

Vivid, poetic, thrilling, humorous, philosophic, is the story of battle that he tells. Real war told by a real soldier who is a real talker.

PRICE CHANGES IN HARDWARE LINES

Advance in Copper Follows Rise in Metal—Other Upward Moves.

Numerous changes are again the order of the week's hardware markets and some of the revisions made are most important says Hardware and Metal. One of the outstanding changes is that which has been made on shovels, spades and scoops, the new discounts named providing for a decline of about 10 per cent. in these lines.

In line with the strength shown in the metal market on copper, manufactured lines have responded and copper wash boilers, tea kettles, [illegible] and coffee pots have all undergone revision upward, the advance amounting to a straight 10 per cent. Copper rivets have gone to higher levels also this week.

A sharp advance in tap soles and heels has been reported, amounting to about 25 per cent. Sole leather in also up in line with these changes and a revision has been effected in leather belting, which provides for an advance. Indications are that the peak has not yet been reached in the various lines of leather goods.

Cotton rope, sash cord, wrapping twine, seine twine and kiln dried lines have all registered an advance this week of from 3c. to 4c. per pound. Jute twine in coarse grades is also up 1c. and finer grades 2c. per pound. Coal oil has gone up 1c. per gallon. No change is reported on gasoline which holds at recent decline.

POLACK BROTHERS MAMMOTH MIDWAY

To Furnish All Attractions At Victory Jubilee At Exhibition Grounds Entire Week, July 21st.

As one enters the big midway, his or her attention is attracted to the feature attraction, the La Rose Electric Fountain, a remarkable fire, water and electric production, that has featured the New York Hippodrome. It is indeed a wonderful sight, and one that will long be remembered by the people of Peterboro. It is the only one of its kind ever presented by a carnival company, and is a wonderful water, electric and pyrotechnical display, a massively constructed structure of cement and iron, and is operated by electricity and hydraulic power. It requires an extreme force of water to bring out the mystifying effects. The performers appear in the very midst of a rolling, tumbling tumultuous water cascade upon a hydraulic operated stage, producing the most beautiful and realistic electrical effect imaginable. The performance is finished with a display of fireworks which is exploded from within the fountain while the water is following in full force.

The days of the famous Buffalo Bill Shows are recalled by the appearances of Col. Landers (Buffalo Jack) and Princess Wenona, world's champion lady crack shot. Cowboys reproduces the sports of early frontier days by displaying fancy rope spinning, trick riding, revolver and rifle shooting.

Elizabeth, who is billed as the living doll lady is indeed an attraction which seems to please the majority. She speaks over seven different languages and entertains upon various musical instruments. Then too, the Underground Chinatown proved to be a novel entertainment for many.

Fat people, tall and small, appear in the congress of Fat People, a pleasing show in which Benny Reeves, a handcuff artist, entertains by releasing himself from straight jackets, handcuffs, rope, etc.

Some real hairraising events are staged in the big drome which is termed the sylodrome and in which riders performing dare-devil stunts are featured. "Over the Falls" one of the least, riding divines, is surely amusing, and it would be asking too much should we disclose the nature of the attractions.

The big circus side show, with Gentleman Joe Kramer, the original rubber skin man, and P. T. Barnum's big feature sword swallowers, fire eaters, snake charmers, are some of the fourteen big attractions on exhibition beneath the canvas.

The shows are clean, entertaining and amusing, and a night of fun, jollification and merriment confronts all who enter the midway.

Every Woman's Ambition For Rosy Cheeks Now Easily Satisfied

Hollow cheeks with dark lines under the eyes, how a woman hates them!

But rosy cheeks, clear skin, and bright eyes, give them to a woman and she is happy.

The woman who attracts, whose fresh, dainty complexion compels admiration, is always careful of her health, particularly of her blood condition. Bad complexion always means bad blood.

Girls, don't let your blood grow thin or watery. To do so brings on haggard looks and declining strength.

Many a woman who has allowed herself to run down, to develop that tired, worried look has built up again in this simple way. Why don't you try it?

At the close of every meal, just one two small chocolate-coated Ferrozone Tablets — any person can do this in a minute. The action of Ferrozone is apparent at once. It sets you up, makes you feel good, starts up your appetite, aids digestion brings that old-time feeling of youth into the system again.

Ferrozone puts you on the right road—the one leading to health.

Not a man, woman or child, needing blood, vigor, endurance — not a person who is weak, nervous or sickly, not a person in ill-health who won't receive immediate help from Ferrozone.

As a tonic and restorative, as a health-bringer and body-builder, Ferrozone is unrivalled. It cures because it feeds and nourishes, because it contains the elements that build up and strengthen. For better looks and better health use Ferrozone yourself, and everywhere you see boy, a horse for sale, or for rent, write to The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ont.

RICKARD IS TIRED; NO BOUT IN SIGHT

Does Not Contemplate Promoting Another Titular Match for Some Time

NEW YORK, July 11.—Tex Rickard, promoter of the recent Jack Dempsey-Jess Willard heavyweight championship bout, does not contemplate promoting another boxing match, at least no in the immediate future. The Western promoter has arrived in this city from Toledo, and declared himself satisfied with both the outcome of the match and its conduct.

When asked if he would begin negotiations for a match in which the new title holder would defend his laurels, Rickard declared he preferred a rest. He also refused to discuss the possibilities of his promoting a lightweight championship match in which Benny Lenard will defend his title against Charlie White of Chicago.

Rickard did not attempt to conceal his disappointment over the unexpectedly small crowd which witnessed the recent title bout, but at the same time he accepted the situation with characteristic good grace. The lack of special train accommodations caused through a order issued by the railroad officials prohibiting a majority of those special trains was declared by Rickard to have resulted in a smaller crowd than he anticipated.

ABRIAL MAIL A SUCCESS

U. S. Aerial Posties Flew 19,823 Miles Without Single Failure

WASHINGTON, July 11.—Aerial mail routes were operated during the month of June with almost perfect efficiency, the postmaster department said in a statement t-night. On the Chicago-Cleveland division machines flew 19,823 miles, and carried 19,603 pounds of mail without a single failure to meet schedules.

The average speed by mail planes on that route was 97.8 miles per hour.

The new station to the service route from New York to Cleveland has been operating with the same success since July 1, the department said, while the original route from New York to Washington made a 99 per cent. record during June, carrying 15,643 pounds of mail for a total mileage of 11,118.

U-BOAT MURDERS JOIN RUSSIAN REDS

BERLIN, July 11. — Residents of Wilhelmshaven, the former German submarine base, say that the allies may have to look a long time to find some U-Boat comanders whose delivery is demanded.

Nearly all of them have left Germany, they save and the most interesting of their statements is that many entered the service of an eastern power which joined in the demand for their surrender.

A large number of army officers, supposed to be on the allies' blacklist are said to be in Russia.

WILLARD IS NOW SAID TO HAVE ENTERED RING AT 264 POUNDS

WALTER MONAHAN QUOTED AS SAYING THAT JESS WAS NINETEEN POUNDS OVER MARK THE PUBLIC BELIEVED WHEN HE LOST HEAVYWEIGHT TITLE TO JACK DEMPSES.

By KERR. N. PETRIE.

For its amateurish bungling in the matter of timing the fight between Jess Willard and Jack Dempsey, the Army, Navy and Civilian Board of Boxing Control has been roundly scored, but the more one considers it the stronger the conviction becomes that some authorized body such as this is required to safeguard the public against such a fiasco as was enacted at Toledo, when Willard surrendered his title almost without hitting a blow. There is no fault to be found with Tex Rickard, the promoter of the bout, who acted in good faith with his public when he signed up the holder of the world's heavyweight championship to defend his title against Dempsey.

There is no use mincing words, however. The fight was the worst kind of an over-ripe quince and all because this same Jess Willard, as the events of Friday afternoon proved, was in no condition to defend. He had signed to meet Dempsey through the lure of $100,000, just as Jim Jeffries signed to fight Jack Johnson, at Reno. There was no double crossing or poisoned tea in connection with the contest at Toledo, but in some respects the two fistic events worked out about the same. The public paid the piper and received the solar plexus, while for his beating Willard drew his salary in six figures.

Jack Kearns is authority for the statement that Dempsey did not weigh more than 187 pounds when he slammed the man mountain to the canvas. Seen the day after the fight Walter Monahan, Willard's chief sparring partner, is said to have admitted that instead of weighing 240 or 245 pounds, the big Kansan really tipped the scales at 264 pounds. If that is not putting it over on the dear old public it is difficult to say what it is, and that is why many are now rising to remark that despite all its alleged muddling and amateurishness at the ringside there is room in fistiana for such an organization as the Army, Navy, and Civilian Board of Boxing Control or any other organisation which has the strength of character really to control boxing and protect the public.

Dempsey Much Lighter Than Supposed.

Dempsey's weight is no great surprise. Despite the assertions emanating from the challenger's camp that he was hovering close to the 200 pound mark, and that he even had crossed this mark, many stoutly maintained that Dempsey would enter the ring weighing not more than 190 pounds. That did not so much matter, but the oft-repeated announcement from the Willard training quarters that the conqueror of Jack Johnson was down to his best fighting weight was not only an evasion of the truth, but a bit of chicanery that was entirely unjustified, provided the statement credited to Monahan is true. Evidently Willard knew that he could not get into shape. Probably he believed that he could stall through twelve rounds and get nothing worse than a draw. His eleventh hour attempt to whip himself into something like condition by taking walks or runs when no one was looking would seem to indicate that he had lost confidence in his ability to perfect himself for the pending bout, and that the stories reaching him of Dempsey's speed and hitting ability had begun to throw into him something that might be termed a scare.

This may explain the erasicibility of Willard during the last few days of his training. It also explains that peculiar look and muscular twitching so noticeable on Jess' face when he entered the ring. The almost insane grin with which he battled through that awful first round was the surface indication of the terrible storm that was raging in his brain. The crack of doom rang in his ears. He had overreached himself. He was out beyond his depth. Hope had fled, so he would go to his death as a brave man should who realises that his hour has struck. And so Jess Willard smiles as his features were being battered to a pulp, smiled at his executioner, grinned back at the man who was writing his death warrant in his own blood. Yes, Jess was able to smile, and that smile was the most pitiful thing about the whole affair.

Dempsey carries a stick of dynamite in both hands. He raised a welt or cut a gash in Willard's putty face with every blow. He is being acclaimed as the greatest fistic gladiator of all times, but how good he is will not be known until some young man as husky and virile as himself comes along. Little can be proved, by Willard save that Jess was not there. He was not so much the bucket that had gone too often to the well as the bucket that had sprung its timbers and rotted through disuse. It is no part of my intention to detract from the merit of Dempsey's win. He is a great fighter, a wonderful fighter, a most remarkable hitter and punisher. But some day he may fade away before that first punch just as Jess Willard did in the stadium at Bayview Park, Toledo. Dempsey demonstrated that the lacings that he had doled out to Bill Tate and Jamaica Kid almost daily throughout his training grind were very real indeed. Possibly he could have knocked both of these dusky warriors could every day in the week To my way of thinking, however, the biggest disclosure was that Willard was little more than the shell that Billy Muldoon had declared him to be.

If Willard weighed 264 pounds when he entered the ring he probably tipped the beam at nearer 300 than 270 when he started training, if there is truth in the statement that he trained off thirty pounds. But if Jess actually weighed this much, why was the public allowed to be fooled into believing that he was down below the poundage at which he fought Jack Johnson Here is where the Army, Navy and Civilian Board of Boxing Control ought to take a hand. It should be part of the duties of this organization to make a periodical record of the weights of heavyweight contestants training for a fight. The public deserves this much, for had it known that Willard weighed 264 pounds it would have saved whatever money it bet on him. A Willard at 264 was a Willard out of condition. Yet, although it was known in his camp that Jess was still too heavy to be any good, the statement was religiously circulated broadcast that he was down to the best fighting weight of his life, if Monahan has been quoted correctly.

Champion Should Defend Once a Year.

The Army, Navy, and Civilian Board of Boxing Control would do well to insist that a champion defend his title at least once a year. That would be a measure of protection for the public inasmuch as there would be no four or five year layoffs and no come backs" such as Willard and Jeffries, attempted. No champion would get very far out of condition in one year. Moreover it is about time that some recognized authority took charge of that other very important matter of letting the public know whether it is being told the truth about the weights or is just being plain buncoed.

One very noticeable feature of life at the Willard and Dempsey training camps was the air of mystery which surrounded everything. Several times the newspaper men made overtures to have the battlers put on the scales but there was always an excuse. The answer was always the same whether it referred to Willard or to Dempsey. "How unfortunate, you must just have missed it. Honesty, weren't you here? Why he has just gone upstairs his minute after weighing. You didn't see it Let's see, now, who did Oh, that fellow, you know. Tall and a kind of thin. I forget his name. Oh, our man in great condition. Just this minute tipped the beam at so and so."

Notwithstanding the admitted ability of Dempsey this Willard fiasco leaves a nasty taste in the mouth. Was that defeat of Jack Johnson really on the level or was the negro even more of a husk than Jeffries was at Reno or Willard was at Toledo? I happened to meet Jack Curley, who formerly managed Willard, in the smoking car of the train in which I travelled back from Toledo to New York city. Curley admitted that he won a bit of money on Dempsey and that this fight was the easiest thing to dope of any in the history of the ring. I remarked that it was almost inconceivable that the man who four years ago defeated Johnson and who had taken all the punishment dealt ou by the negro and finally put him away in the twenty-sixth round should have made such a miserable showing against Dempsey and have gone to the mat almost without lifting his hands.

Johnson Did Not Hit Willard.

"Johnson did not lay a glove on Willard at Havana," came back Curley.

Curley ought to know and so we are to suppose that Johnson was defeated by his own exertions.

The only time that Willard has been seen in the ring between the time that he won the championship from Jack Johnson and his defeat last Friday by Dempsey was when he fought Frank Moran at Madison Square Garden about three years ago. Until now many have believed that Willard was charitable with Moran, that he could have put he Pittsburger away any time he wanted to, but that in a no-decision match he mercifully withheld the knockout punch and allowed Moran to stay the ten rounds. In the light of recent events it now looks as if what Willard showed against Moran was his best, his very best That latent power and ability which it has alway been supposed he had evidently never at any time existed. But who will answer the riddle of the Johnson-Willard bout?

It was my luck to be placed on the opposite side of the ring from that which J. Warren Barbur, the timer, and the officials of the Board of Control sat, but from what I have picked up since I am led to believe that Willard was knocked out twice in the first round and that when the Kansan hit the floor for the last time the round had sixteen seconds to go. Pecord, the referee, had counted nine when someone cried that the round was up and Mr. Barbour blew the whistle which could not be heard a yard away. Otto Floto, the Denver critic, and part owner of the Selg-Floto circus with which Dempsey is to show in Newark and other places beginning July 14, declares that such is the case. Moreover he is of the opinion that Willard was out the other time that he got the count of nine. When the champion fell on this occasion Pecord, the referee, had all the way across the ring to some before he began to count. Floto maintains that Pecord should have started to count when Willard fell and that in waiting he gave Jess the benefit of five seconds extra.

Jess had time to Recuperate

Still another assertion of Floto is that Willard had no less than two minutes and forty-five seconds to recuperate between the first round and the second. Dempsey, it may be recalled, had jumped out of the ring and started for the dressing room after seeing Jess go down for the seventh time. He thought the big fellow had been counted out for like most others he did not know that the round had ended and that the bell or whistle had saved him. Here possibly is the explanation of why after delivering such punishment in the first round Dempsey was unable to knock Willard down in the second or third round. When he left the ring it was the belief that he had won the championship. He had to be brought back with a fight for that championship still on his hands. That shock possibly was a greater blow to Dempsey than half a dozen of his opponent's uppercuts. That in site of this sudden and unexpected happening Dempsey was able to regain his mental poise in time enough to deal out the punishment which caused Jess to give up before the fourth round stamps Dempsey as a lad with a fighter's brain. Jack admitted that the incident jarred him to his heels, but said that nevertheless he soon had regained his composure and confidence and that had he come out for the fourth round Willard would have gone down with a shock that would have broken all the crockery in Toledo.

JACKSON STILL LEADS LEAGUE WITH THE WILLOW

PACKERS FIRST BASEMAN HAS FINE PERCENTAGE OF 455,—ORIENTALS PASS DE LAVAL IN BATTING AND NOW LEADS THE LEAGUE IN BOTH HITTING AND FIELDING—BATTING AVERAGES OF ALL WHO HAVE PLAYED IN AT LEAST THREE GAMES.

The City League averages show that Walter Jackson is still far out in front of the other regulars in the batting list, the Matthews-Blackwell player having the splendid average of .455 for eight games, a mark that will take some beating. Jackson got five hits out of ten times at bat since the averages were last published, giving him a gain of 20 points. Bergoine, the youthful catcher of the De Laval team, jumped 40 points in the last two games, and is now leading his team with the fine mark of .367. Most of the other League leaders have dropped down the ladder in the last two games, but "Red" Wade, of the Veterans, on the other hand, by cracking out five hits in the last two fixtures, has made a gain of 182 points, and is now hitting .286.

That the "dope" does not count for much is shown by the fact that the Orientals, who are leading the League, both in batting and fielding, are two and a half games behind the Matthews-Blackwell team, who are third in one department and second in the other. Orientals took the lead in hitting during the week, passing the De Laval team. Otherwise there were no changes in position in these two departments. The figures follow:

LAWN BOWLERS WENT TO COBOURG

Four rinks of Peterborough Bowlers went to Cobourg on Wednesday and took part in their annual Tournament, which was in every way a splendid success. Jack Maynard's rink for the second year in succession brought home some of the spoils, being successful in winning their way to the finals of the Primary Competition by defeating Virmilyea of Belleville, Pratt of Peterborough, Davidson of Cobourg and Rosevear of Port Hope, before being defeated by Whattam of Oshawa. Last year Maynard won out in the Consolation series. The personnel of the successful rink was P. Barclay, Dr. J. A. Allen, J. A. McKeon, J. W. Maynard, skip. The prizes were very nice Mantle Clocks.

PETERBORO, LIKE TOLEDO, IS NOT FREE FROM THE "I-TOLD-YOU-SO" PEST

THE MAN WHO HEARS OR READS ABOUT SOMETHING AND THEN PEDDLES IT OUT AS THE PRODUCT OF HIS OWN MIND IS WELL KNOWN HERE—SICKENING ADULATION OF THE NEW CHAMPION.

NEW YORK, July 12. — W. B. ("Bat") M Masterson, writes in the Telegraph: "The "I-told-you-so's" are more plentiful now than the mosquitoes over in the Jersey swamps. Almost every man I have met since my return home pulled that old gag on me. These birds were everywhere in Toledo after the fight. They were in Cleveland, where I spent the greater part of Saturday visiting with Mat Hinkel, and they were on the homecoming train.

Every time I turned around, ever since the fight terminated, I bumped into the I-told-you-so pest. Even those who had their plunkers on Willard were peddling the old gag. But what's the difference? The world is full of pests and nothing anyone can do will suppress them.

There is this consolation, however, for Willard and those who backed him with their money—Dempsey, for a long time, will be the victim of the pests. He'll get the pest hook everywhere he goes and he'll get it so hard and often that in a little while he'll probably begin to wish he had lost the battle instead of winning it. These pests are an awful thing to go up against.

But after the worst exhibition anyone ever witnessed of the irrepressible pest in full swing occurred at the Hotel Secor, Toledo, in the evening after the fight. Dempsey, with one or two friends, entered the main dining room of the hotel and was instantly recognized. Then bedlam started, and a more disgusting sight than the one that followed would be a difficult matter to describe.

Old men and middle-aged women, young men and girls in their teens all left their tables and made a mad rush for the victor. Dempsey was helpless. He was wedged in from all sides and could neither go forward nor retreat. He just had to stand still and submit to the inevitable. The elderly women, at least some of them, grabbed him around the neck and hugged and kissed him. The girls, when they got a chance, did likewise.

Some of the old sapheads who were passing themselves off for men because they were dressed in men's clothes, were quite as vociferous and emotional as were the women and girls and made themselves fully as disgusting. The writer witnessed the scene from a nearby table and felt a good deal like crawling under it. And these creatures would not doubt tell you, and boastfully too, that they were Americans. As for Dempsey and what he was these boot licks didn't seem to care. He was a champion prize-fighter and that was all they wanted to know.

Much Vaunted Spirit.

What is this country coming to anyway? What has become of that much vaunted spirit of American individuality and independence that has heretofore refused to bow-tow to even royalty? What a blushing nation of hypocrites the Americans have become! The fact is, there are no more genuine Americans in this country. We are now apparently a nation of hybrids in its fullest sense, and the time is not far distant when the man who ventures to proclaim himself an American will at the same time feel it incumbent to offer an apology for doing so.

Right there in the main dining room of the Secor Hotel, one of the finest in the country, where none but the eminently respectable and well-to-do are supposed to foregather or even be tolerated, witnessing a scene such as the one described above is enough to make the decent, self-respecting American ask himself where is he at and what is going to become of him.

Dempsey, of course, was not to blame for the adulation heaped upon him at the Hotel Secor. He very likely had no thought of such a thing when he went there, and in all probability would have gone elsewhere for his dinner had he suspected that the boot licks intended to treat him as a conquering hero.

Can anyone imagine an American soldier who had been to the front and had lost an arm or leg, or perhaps both, fighting for his country and flag, receiving the reception accorded Dempsey, had he strayed into the Secor for a bite to eat? Never in a thousand years. The real hero would, in all probability, have been given the raspberry had he invaded the dining room looking for food, while the war evader got the glad hand.

Ain't we a nation of sure enough patriots and then some. But maybe those boot licks at the Secor didn't realize what they were doing when they were hugging and kissing the new champion and acclaiming him a hero. They might have acted the same way had Bill Tate or the Jamaica Kidd made their appearance instead of Dempsey. You can never tell what a hysterical bunch of troglodytes will do under the stress of excitement, and take it from me, the country is fairly swarming with these birds at this time.

Wait and see the reception Dempsey will receive when he gets here. The hysterics of Toledo will not be in it with those of the Rialto. Here is where the blithering nondescript is always in a state of eruption. What a wonderful thin git is to be a champion prize-fighter.

HURTUBOISE GAVE THE BELLEVILLE FANS A REAL SHOW

LOCAL WRESTLER STAGED ANOTHER MATCH WITH SHIMKUS.

After last night's wrestling match Eugene Hurtuboise is the idol of Belleville sport fans. The Beacon Shows wrestler, Joe Shimkus, who lost a purse of $35 here to Hurtuboise, has been playing rough with some of the Belleville would-be wrestlers, and it tickled their Adam's apple to see "Gene" throw Skimkus for the count. The bout was arranged before Skimkus left Peterborough, and it was advertised in the Belleville paper that Hurtuboise of Peterborough, would meet the famous Shimkus on Friday evening, with the result that the wrestling tent was crowded. Hurtuboise, with Art. Blade, Egbert Kelly, Joe Dwyer, Bill Hamilton, Ernie Hanna and Jimmie Doran, motored to Belleville last night and Hurtuboise was announced by the Peterborough fan as the undefeated Canadian champion. A purse of $[illegible] was put up by each of the wrestlers on their ability to win and then the fun began.

"Kill Him Gene."

The Belleville crowd went wild and "Kill him Gene," "Now you've got him" sent the thick cigar smoke through the holes and vents in the tent like an overflowing water trough. At the end of ten minutes Shimkus and Gene both had a hold on the floor, and Gene on top was seemingly the best man when Shimkus, alarmed at the loss of his wrestling prestige, took a grip of Hurtuboise's shock of hair and banged his head on the floor just as the whistle was blown.

The Belleville people didn't like it. It was then that the bet of $25 was entered by Shimkus on his ability to throw Hurtuboise in fifteen minutes, but the opposite occurred, and the gate receipts were split.

The Belleville bunch nearly went wild. Peterborough obtained more advertisement in that fifteen minutes than she did of the six months controversy over the Hunter street bridge. The crowd pressed in and entreated Gene to be there to-night to meet Shimkus again, but it could not be managed.

One of the "big guns" at military headquarters in Kingston wants Gene to come to the Limestone city and show Kingston what Peterborough produces. The date and particulars will be wired Gene later. It promises to be a corker.

WEEKLY SHOOT OF THE GUN CLUB

MR. CURVIN WAS HIGH GUN FOR LAST NIGHT'S SHOOT

The Gun Club held their weekly shoot last night and considering the high wind some very good scores were made.

Mr. Curvin was high gun for the shoot and was breaking the clay birds pretty good. The Club expects to pay a visit to Lakefield and have a shoot with the team of that village in the near fuure.

CO-OPERATIVE MEN FIGHT OVER LABOUR

Canadian Union Blames Winnipeg Man for Siding With Citizens.

BRANTFORD, Ont., July 12.—At a meeting here of the Dominion executive of the Co-operative Union of Canada, correspondence which has passed between General Secretary Keen and Alderman Fisher, in charge of the grain purchasing branch of the Scottish Co-operative Wholesale Society of Winnipeg, in which the former protested against the latter's alleged activities against organised labour during the recent general strike in that city, was submitted.

Mr. Fisher justified his attitude by his interpretation of the merits of the dispute, Mr. Keen taking the view that co-operators were not concerned therein.

A resolution was unanimously passed protesting against the interference of the accredited representatives in Canada of the British and foreign co-operative institutions in favour of the capitalist interests against organised labour under any circumstances whatever, and suggesting that in future agents in charge of interests in Canada for the British co-operative wholesale organisations be either instructed to refrain from becoming involved in questions between labour and capital or to consult the organised co-operative movement in this country before taking any steps with reference thereto, and in case of difference of opinion, the subject matter be referred to the employers before any action is taken.

Voice Of The People

Editor, Examiner:

Dear Sir,—I have noticed with pleasure the movement of some men in this county toward the placing of a suitable memorial stone over the grave of the late Joseph Scriven, the writer of the hymn, "What a friend we have in Jesus."

Plenty of money will be forthcoming for a suitable memorial from the many lovers of the hymn if this matter is handled as wisely as it surely will be. I have, however, a few enquiries to make.

Since it is well-known that this Godly man was a strong believer in all the distinctive principles of the Baptists, and since the newspaper fyles will show that eight years ago the propositeion to rect a memorial which would would be paid for by Christians of all denominations came from a Peterborough Baptist minister, and since correspondence has gone from this minister to the chairman of the Millbrook committee nine months ago, assuring him that certain worthy subscriptions had already promised him for this purpose, I am wondering why no Baptist representative is on the committee.

The fact that there is no Baptist Church in Millbrook is surely not entirely responsible for this omission, since money will be expected from this city as well as from other places.

It would surely be simple justice as well as good taste and policy to have some one to represent this denomination on the committee.

With every hope and expectation that this will be remedied and that the enterprise will be supported most heartily.—Yours truly,

Justicia.

A. F. & A. M., JULY 15TH.

At Idylwyld the idle masons,
Comprising men of various nations,
Wiled happy hours without disasters,
From Labor called by worthy masters.

To reach this Paradise of loafers
Frequent by fishermen and gophers,
The Stoney Lake.—of local fame,
Near bust her bilers making same.

The wind she blew, then blew some more,
She blew the Island off the shore,
But Cyclops Walter heaving rock
Barefoot and smiling, built a dock.

The plank was walked in many styles,
Some jumped, some crawled for miles and miles
They thought,—thro' troubled waters passed
From bank and dock were doubly saved.

Olympic sports were ne'er like these,
On slippery grass 'neath swaying trees,
Fallen had 'no regard for ants,'
For soiled shirts nor severed pants.

From labor to refreshment called
The fatted calf was never stalled,
Would still such hunger,—only pie,
Dropped in the lake, then set to dry.

Next baseball fans secured a bat,
The sides were picked, both lean and fat.
The umpire called each strike a ball,
Did the crowd holler? Not at tall.

With song and dance and merry quip,
The homeward journey on the ship
Sped quickly, and the court
Passed sentence—the most were short.

A "Perfect Day" will linger long
In memories, some weak, some strong,
A day of fellowship too rare
With brothers parting on the square.

REQUIRES 17 FACES AND RUBBER NECK TO FACE ELECTORS

WINNIPEG, July 12. — "A man needs seventeen faces and a rubber neck to represent all classes of his constituents," was the statement made here by Major C. W. Andrews, M.P. for Centre Winnipeg, whose experiences at Ottawa have made him come to the conclusion that the proportionate representation system of election should be adopted.

Major Andrews left Ottawa in order to attend the Dominion convention of the Great War Veterans' Association at Vancouver, and has now returned to Winnipeg. He attended the convention in his capacity as Manitoba representative on the Dominion Executive, to which position he was re-elected.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

A Penny Birthday

By WALTER J. DELANEY

(Copyright, Western Newspaper Union.)

It was a weird, forlorn looking store, bearing a weather-worn sign outside reading: "Eben Harlow, Taxidermist." Its shelves were filled with stuffed birds, reptiles and animals. Eben Harlow, however, no longer presided at the railinged off space where there was a bench and tools, for he was dead. His brother, Alden, now operated the store, did no work in preserving subjects and was engaged only in selling off the stock on hand.

Alden had been called from his work as a clerk in a business office to carry out his brother's instructions. That was six months ago. From New Mexico, whither Eben had gone for his health, a letter had come. It had been written a week before the death of Eben. The latter, anticipating his own demise, left Alden the little store and the charge of his motherless boy, little Bennie. He asked Alden to care for the orphaned child as if his own, knowing full well that his loyal brother would fully heed the request.

The dilapidated store building had two rooms upstairs. To lessen expenses Alden rented these to an old lady, a Miss Norton, and her daughter Elsie, who supported themselves by expert needlework. Behind the store were two bedrooms and a large apartment which Alden utilized as kitchen and living room combined. He planned to sell off the stock by the time the lease expired and settled down to the task.

It was a dreary one. The day of stuffed birds had passed away. Once in a while a stray customer appeared, but the sales were slow and prices paid low. Whenever Alden found it necessary to go out on business, Miss Norton brought her sewing downstairs and tended shop during his absence and looked after Bennie. The little fellow was no care, however. He got so that he delighted in sitting near her while she told him stories. Elsie had won upon both uncle and nephew. She unostentatiously looked after mending the clothes of the little fellow. Often of evenings they would pass a pleasant hour together, and many a time Alden Harlow sighed drearily as he realized how poor he was, and how vague his prospects of getting ahead sufficiently to begin thinking of a helpmeet.

He had gone away one day and Elsie was seated on duty in the front storeroom, when little Bennie, who had been racing about the suite, came to her side.

"Did you know that it was Uncle Alden's birthday, aunty," he asked.

"Is it, indeed?" replied Elsie. "Then I must tell mother and we shall invite both of you to supper."

"That will be grand!" enthused Bennie. "Uncle says it's just like heaven when we go up to your rooms, and you sing, and grandma tells about old times, and everything is so cozy and happy. Yes, it's his birthday, and I want to make him a present. Will you buy it for me, Aunty Elsie?"

"What shall I get, Bennie," she inquired.

"Oh, anything a penny will buy. That's all I've got," and Bennie placed a large copper coin in her hand. Elsie observed it casually and slipped it in her pocket.

"I found it," explained Bennie, "back in the room where my dead papa used to sleep, under the old bureau, you know. Uncle lets me play there, but he tells me never to disturb anything. He says he wants it to stay just as papa left it."

"I will buy you the present," pronounced Elsie, "and we must keep it secret, and we want to keep the present a secret."

Alden entered the store and thanked Elsie for her services. She went upstairs to arrange for something extra for the birthday meal and then out to the street. At a store she purchased a neat necktie, intending that this should be Bennie's present to his uncle, paying for it out of her own little store. The big penny happened to roll out of her purse. The storekeeper glanced at it with a token of interest.

"May I look at that odd coin?" he asked. "Ah! it is indeed an old one. And rare, too. I'm somewhat of a fadist in numismatics. It's a King George, 1781. It's worth twenty-three dollars and fifty cents. Did you know that, young lady?"

"I did not, and I thank you," responded Elsie, quite fluttering over the strange circumstance. Then when she got home she deemed it right to inform Alden of the incident. He went back to the room held so sacred in his memory where Bennie had found the coin. It had reminded him of the fact that his dead brother had at one time been a diligent coin collector.

Now Alden made a closer search. When he came to the bottom drawer he discovered a canvas sack. It had a hole in it and the bottom of the drawer as well, where a rat had gnawed through. As he lifted the bag, the worn fabric gave way and out poured a stream of coins, gold and silver, as well as copper, and every one a rarity. Within the hour Alden Harlow knew that he was the possessor of over $4,000, represented by some of the most valuable coins in the world.

Upstairs an hour later Bennie gave his penny birthday gift to his uncle and while the little fellow was playing dominoes with grandma, Alden recited his wonderful find to Elsie and asked her to become his wife.

The Spinster's Hint.

A maiden well advanced in years used to wait every morning for the postman, a bachelor of about her age, and ask him if there were not a letter for her. Several weeks passed thus, but the anxiously expected letter did not arrive. Finally one morning the postman said to her:

"Well, tomorrow you shall get your letter if I have to write it myself."

"That's right; do it," replied the old maid. "I shall be delighted to accept it."

"Well," said the postman, smiling, "what do you want me to write—a business letter or a love letter?"

"If you mean business, please write a love letter!" was her blushing reply. —London Scraps.

Ownership of the Air.

Our ancestors must have foreseen the aeroplane or they would not have embodied in the law the principle that he who owns the land owns the column of air above "usque ad coelum," or up to the skies. This can be traced back as far as the reign of Edward I., and from this time every authority to the present court of appeal has emphasized the right of every citizen not only to be king of his own castle, but of the sky above it.—London Chronicle.

Too Deep For Him.

A Britisher was announcing his views on things in general and summed up his own position by the statement, "Well, I've seen life." "But," said his American friend, "one of your own bright poets has said, 'Life's a joke.'" The Britisher is still exploring the remark.—New York Times.

Consistent.

She—This wait between the acts seems to me to be dreadfully long. He—Yes. You see, twenty years are supposed to elapse, and the management is simply trying to make the effect as realistic as possible.—Richmond Times-Dispatch.

Reciprocity.

"I wish I could get some washing to take in."

"So do I."

"Well, you take mine, and I'll take yours. There's nothing like getting a start."—Pittsburgh Post.

Figures of Speech.

Gotcha—I ran into a burglar last night.

Jake—How'd he manage to get away from you?

Gotcha—He went through me.—Dartmouth Jack o' Lantern.

Cutting.

Lord Chatham said of the members of Lord North's cabinet, "They have brought themselves where ordinary inability never arrives and nothing but first rate greatness in incapacity can reach."

Miserly Wedding Fees.

A story illustrating the miserliness of some wedding fees was told by a certain clergyman with a sense of humor: There came to his home one day a woman who inquired whether he had performed the marriage ceremony for a gentleman by the name of X. He examined his records and reported "Yes." She took him to task, saying the fellow was engaged to her daughter and that he jilted her. Dr. Chalfant left the room and came back and handed her an envelope containing a handkerchief saying: "You didn't lose much; this is what he handed me for a fee!" She examined the kerchief and exclaimed: "The rascal! That is one of the handkerchiefs my daughter gave him for a present last Christmas!"

The Ark a True Type.

Perhaps the tracing of the story of the book of Genesis is the true fascination that Mesopotamia has for those who have time to read. The great boats of the Euphrates have the identical lines of the toy ark that can be bought in any toy shop. Where a pent roof has been added for our purposes, the two are one in shape. A Euphrates "bellum" arranged as a sick barge is the toy ark of childhood. Is that toy ark an authentic tradition in its shape? It is almost certain to be. The Euphrates boats are pitched inside and out with pitch, as was that ark. In these same bellums, some as large as 70 tons, we may find British batteries sailing the Euphrates, and a modified menagerie could easily walk on board. One more suggestion of the top shop tradition strikes the casual observer. The tribes people from the hills who work on the Tigris and Euphrates wear high black felt hats, a topper without a brim. Are Mr. and Mrs. Noah really correctly dressed?

Then on top of the discovery of the ark comes the more serious reading of a parallel version of the Bible story of the food found in the cuneiform in Layard's tablets from the Royal Library of Ashurbanipal at Nineveh, copied or collected possibly from Sargon's library at Accade or Agade, about 3,800 B.C., or perhaps 1,800 years. Were the stories of Genesis the household stories of Chaldea 4,000 years ago? It would seem so, when from Babylon is unearthed a seal with the representation of the Temptation, Adam and Eve, the Serpent and the Apple Tree.

His Impatience In Church.

John D. Rockefeller, Jr., tells a story about a miner who explained one day to a bishop why he never went to church. "You see, bish, it's like this," the miner said: "the first time I went to church they threw water in my face, and the second time I went they tied me to a woman I've had to keep ever since." The bishop smiled grimly. "And the third time you go," he said, "they'll throw dirt on you."

Two Million Dollar Monument.

A $2,000,000 victory monument on the Parkway is planned as a tribute by the women of Philadelphia to the memory of the men and women who served in the war for democracy.

Women Sleep Sounder Than Men.

Conclusions based on observations by medical scientists are that women go to sleep less quickly than men, but sleep more soundly and, in normal health, sleep longer.

To Travelling Salesmen

WHEN showing goods, the traveller's cuffs as well as his goods are brought right before the prospective customer's eyes. A soiled cuff doesn't create a favorable impression. And it draws the attention away from the article to the soiled cuff.

The alert, particular traveller, therefore, has to take a big bunch of shirts on his trips and change often—unless he carries W. G. & R. Shirts with Double Wear Cuffs with him when he needs just half the usual quantity.

Everyone knows that the cuffs—the most exposed portion of a shirt—get soiled first. And it doesn't take long for a dirty train or dusty road to soil them.

But when one side of his Double Wear Cuffs gets soiled the traveller just turns the cuffs, which fold easily and lie perfectly flat either way they're turned. He thus wears his shirt twice as long.

If he is away for a period of two weeks to a month or longer every inch in his grip or personal trunk is valuable. W. G. & R. Shirts with Double Wear Cuffs save space for him, cut laundry bills for shirts in half, and wear longer.

WILLIAMS

NEW SCALE PIANO

WHEN the price is no higher, wouldn't you prefer to buy a Canadian-made high-grade piano? There's only one answer, and that is "Yes." The Williams New Scale ranks among the world's best. The late Queen Victoria chose one for Windsor Castle. Famous artists like Melba, McCormack, Clara Butt, Kathleen Parlow, Alma Gluck, and hundreds of others, all choose the Williams New Scale for their Canadian tours. Facts like this enable you to form an idea of its quality—a quality that meets the most exacting tests. And the Williams is made in Canada by Canadians, for Canadians.

Give yourself a musical treat—go to any Williams Dealer and hear the Williams New Scale. Illustrated literature sent on request.

RIDING FOREST FIRES ON EARLY MAIL SERVICE

A CONTRAST WITH MEANS AND METHODS OF TO-DAY—HOW SETTLERS WERE SERVED WITH LONG-LOOKED-FOR LETTERS.

(By F. H. DOBBIN.)

The marvels that science and ingenuity have brought forward, developed, and placed in practical use in the last twenty-five years are many and phenomenal. To enumerate or comment on even a part would occupy columns of space. Such are before the public. Many have worked themselves or have been so worked by others into our daily lives, saving of time and adding convenience, giving service and pleasure. Such are among the most familiar. Others we read of and make comment and ask where will it all end? The sixteen-hour trip of the daring flyers across the Atlantic is the latest achievement, a tribute to man's research, patience, and daring. But among all these there is one, working quietly from day to day—unless some one or some men throw a monkey-wrench into the works—that contributes almost as no other to the sum total of our existence, and will continue to serve and bless. That beneficent boon and service, the National and International Mail Service and System.

A Comparison.

Consider what it does. Your relative or friend lives at the foot of the Himalaya Mountains, on duty in some native village. He writes to you a letter, carries it to the postal station, affixes a penny stamp, and drops it in the receptacle. He does not even pause to entreat of the attendant, if one there be, that extra and special care may be taken to have it forwarded. Has no anxiety or concern. Has the acme of faith that his wishes will be met. Ten weeks afterward a neatly uniformed man knocks at the door of your dwelling and hands to you the letter, marked with mysterious and almost illegible tokens of the hands it has passed through. An atom among ten thousand atoms, it has crossed ten thousand miles of land and sea, and at a money cost of only three cents. If it had been despatched four hundred years ago a special courier would have been required and large expense entailed for the service. Let us contrast all this, which is of to-day, with the facilities prevailing in this district when the settlement was in progress and people were hewing a home and a living out of the forests that covered the land far and near.

A Poor Road.

In 1827, two years after the arrival of the immigration furthered under the direction of Hon. Peter Robinson, such mail matter as was destined for the district north of Rice Lake was brought in by a man on horseback, travelling the road from Cobourg to Gore's Landing, as the point was afterwards named, and crossing Rice Lake by a rude ferry to Bannister's Landing (near Hiawatha). A road in rather poor condition gave access through Otonabee to Scott's Plains. There was an alternative route from Smith's Creek (Port Hope) by a trail around the head of the lake, with a deviation to about the locality of Millbrook, and within sight of the river, to the Plains. But the distribution of the mail, handing it out once it reached the Plains, devolved on the local service, and this existed for the following ten or fifteen years. By the year 1828 the settlement was known as that of Peterborough, the designation having been selected and approved at a public meeting, and as a compliment to and recognition of helpfulness on the part of Hon. Peter Robinson, to whose successful labours in promoting immigration to the district the country was indebted.

"The Red Store."

As would be expected, the giving out of mail was taken in charge by one of the first of the local stores to be built. In a little log building, put up as a store by James Gray Bethune, mail was handled. This was presently superseded by another small place constructed of sawn lumber, at the time known as "The Red Store," at the corner of Water and Charlotte Streets, on ground now covered by the Empress Hotel. In this building the post office was located, and business and mail service was attended to by T. V. Tupper. Some time after James B. Ferguson was appointed postmaster, and he moved the service into another small building attached to his house. The part of Water Street at and around the Market Square was the principal business and residence section. For some years afterwards (house and post office being burned) the old Government Building at the corner of Water and Simcoe Streets was made use of. Ephraim Saunders being the postmaster. He passed away in 1843, and was succeeded by Samuel J. Carver, who continued in office until some time in the sixties. The duties were carried on by Mr. Carver in a small frame building at the corner of Simcoe and Queen Streets. The spot is now that occupied by the office of the Peterborough Cereal Co. The building was erected as a home by Thomas Lannin. One winter day Mr. Lannin got together sleighs and teams, and the little old post office was freighted along Queen Street, Hunter and Water Streets to Brock Street, and dumped off on the north side near the Windsor Hotel. There it had many uses, and afforded much accommodation until it perished of old age. And all of this brings us to what may be related of mail service and difficulties in the townships adjoining Peterborough.

Arduous Duty.

To settle the immigrants on the lands in the several townships was a very arduous duty. The work forms a story itself, but may be summarised to say that landed on the site of the town in August of 1825, it was too late to accomplish much in the way of settlement before the inclement weather of the late autumn intervened. Indeed, the larger number found shelter in and about the town plot in shacks and shelter even of the roughest sort, and for nearly eighteen months very many subsisted by the bounty of the Government, provisions being brought in from the vicinity of Cobourg and along the Front. Settlers who had located in Otonabee three or four years before, and who were in ways accustomed to pioneer life, were hired to go out to the locations and put up log houses, and paid for so doing ten dollars per house. This covered only the work of felling trees, notching the logs, putting up door and windows, with a roof of split cedars. Then the occupant was given his patent of ownership and formally introduced to his future home. Several of these log houses exist to-day, scattered on the farms throughout Douro Township.

Concession Lines.

Roads of the roughest description and contour had to be cut through the forest. In general, it was sought to follow in making the roads the concession and boundary lines as laid down in the several surveys. This plan, while methodical, we now know to have been inadvisable. For it carried roads over the crests of the highest hills and through incessant swamps, where a detour around the side of a hill would have been much better practice. The boundary road, between Otonabee and Douro, once the leading road to Norwood, has three hills to the mile, and many of them whoppers. In all, sixty hills to climb and let the load down. In one case the rule was departed from, that in cutting out the road from Peterborough to Warsaw. Roads pushed across farm lands (at the time forest covered) were known as forced roads, for the right-of-way sought the lines of least resistance. So, as one drives the Warsaw Road, he finds it besecting the farms, cutting through wheat fields and meadows, and occasionally following for a distance the surveyed lines.

As the settlers were given the walls of a house and home, so also were they provided with the essentials of settlement. Here is the average and individual outfit: A cow, axe, auger, hand saw, hammer and one hundred nails, two gimlets, two hoes, kettle, frying pan, pot, five bushels of seed potatoes, and eight quarts of corn. Transportation of the settler, his family (for nearly all came with families ready-made), and effects was a most serious problem. A few teams of horses and oxen were bought, led in through the bush in the best possible way, and many locations effected. Those of an inventive and resourceful turn of mind constructed carts. Almost anywhere could be found a tree of thirty-six inches diameter when the trunk had been felled. From the logs slices were cut of four or five inches in thickness. Holes bored through and enlarged with a red hot iron, formed the hub. The axle was hewn from a stick of maple and shafts and supports pegged to the axle and a platform of hewn boards supplied. With the ox, or the family cow, harnessed in by strips of raw hide, the owner saw a gleam of independence. With such a vehicle he did his work and freighting.

Rural Conditions.

Such were the rural conditions existing for many years. Communication was tedious and difficult. Necessarily mail matter was received at intervals more or less extended. Hardly would the settler venture to come to the post office on the chance that letters would be awaiting. So with the community spirit invoked, it was understood that any who happened to be "to town" would call for mail for themselves and also ask for and undertake to deliver letters for others at all accessible along the line of travel on the way home.

Winter or summer, men would make their way, by trails and paths and along the crudest roads for miles, to deliver an unexpected letter. It might be a day or two before the mission was fulfilled, but without fail the trust was discharged. Letters were passed from hand to hand, to any one who lived nearer, and no trouble or use of time was allowed to interfere. A story was told of the forgetfulness of one, Dennis Hogan, of Douro. Dennis came to the post office of a Tuesday and received mail for neighbours, five letters in all. Hogan was a trifle forgetful, and he knew his infirmity and disposed the letters in a safe place for carriage. The next day he recollected that he had the mail to deliver, but could not for the life of him, as he frankly said, tell where he had placed his charge. Ransacked the cart and everything he had bought and carried. The following Saturday, being again in town, he decided that he would get him a new pair of long boots, the kind that were sold a pair and a boot jack at the same time. One was useless without the other. He selected a suitable pair in McKellar's store, and with forethought provident would try them on. Pulling off one boot he applied the new one and expressed satisfaction. Pulling off the other boot the five letters dropped to the floor. "Bad cess to it," said Dennis. "There do be those letters for which I've searched all along, all along." And public opinion reached unanimous conclusion that for three nights Dennis Hogan had slept with his boots on.

Strange Addresses.

During the interval of twenty or twenty-five years ties that bound the settlers to the Old Country became severed, and with incessant duties and other objects in mind, correspondence declined. Not hearing from Canada, friends and relatives at home would write for information. There were those who had moved away from the vicinity or became indifferent. So letters would come, especially through the forties, with all kinds of entreaties to the postmaster to make delivery. With implorings written on back and front of the envelopes asking very special attention to the merits of the case. For, recollect, the postage was a shilling the letter, and shillings were none too plentiful in Ireland. Mr. Carver, the postmaster, noted such letters, and often copied in a small book the more curious of the addresses. The entries presented a rather queer collection. In addition from 1841, for many years, the weekly paper printed a list of letters uncalled for. Inspection of such lists show that very many surnames have disappeared from this vicinity. The families seem to have run out or moved away. Names such as John Countryman, Christian Bunsack, Jas. Underwise, John Wormwood, Ephraim Top, Samuel Newjank, John Charwater, and many others. Many are taken to be names of men from troops disbanded in Canada, and settling and taking up land. Around Peterborough lived at one time Jonathan Bywater, Erasmus Yapp, Joseph Tenderloin, Simon Sexsmith, Ballington Yarnels, and Andrew Cathcart. None of these names can now be identified in this district.

A few samples of addresses are quoted following. The place named in the address as Metcalf is that now known as Omemee—

Please hand this to her.

John Bailey,

He did keep tavern. He's north

Striking Contrast.

Contrast this with the conditions of today. Deliveries from dwelling, to dwelling, even twice in the same day. Out in the townships, where trails and bridle paths served he who brought letters the rural resident reaches from his vehicle to turn and open the mail-box affixed at his gate. Then there is the element of security and confidence that the contents of the box, either outgoing or incoming, will not be rifled or meddled with. Each box neatly lettered with the owner's name or title of the farm, for now the gracious fashion is to name the place and not to refer to it as our holding, our farm, but as the "Willows," "Sunnidale Farm," "Clovernook" or some similar designation. In sections of the country inspection of a handful of letters would leave the idea that all men along the route were the owners of estates and indeed of the old term, the landed gentry. Prosperous they should be, well off we hope to see them, for the two spell in the future that the incoming of the motor car will bring better roads and ampler means of transportation.

TO SELL LINEN TO BRITISH DEALERS

Mystery Buyer of 30,000,000 Yards From Government Quotes Low Prices.

LONDON, JULY 11.—L. J. Martin, the mystery buyer of 30,000,000 yards of airplane wing linen from the Government, said today:

"I have ruled out the slow and conservative organization of wholesalers. Tonight I am posting to every retail draper in the British Isles my proposals for the disposal of the linen.

"I have selected four qualities, and I shall sell for the drapers at prices equivalent to a range from 45 cents to 65 cents per square yard. The terms are net cash on order, and the buyers are bound not to sell to any other retailer. The export trade is going to pay the same as the retail trade in England. There will no different treatment of one buyer than any other. Meanwhile the price has been arrived at for every quality, and that price will be the same to the man who orders 100 yards as the man who orders 1,000,000.

"I could have sold the whole lot to America, but I did not want to. The British public ought to get as much of this stuff as they want. They paid for it, and the prices I have quoted to the drapers are 30 per cent. below the cost of production in Belfast today. Thirty thousand drapers in the United Kingdom have first chance to buy."

THE HUNTER STREET CAMPAIGN

Some straight from the shoulder jolts were handed out by Evangelist H. D. Kennedy last evening to those church members who, while professing to be Christians, nevertheless live after the manner of the world. "A woman once said to me," said Mr. Kennedy, "that she could take Christ with her to the theatre." I replied to her that she had no business taking Christ with her to the theatre. She should first be satisfied that Christ was taking her there. It is not the business of Christians to take Christ with them, but to go only when Christ leads them. It is all right for the world to have the church in it, but it is ruinous for the church to have the worldly spirit in it.

Unlike many ministers of to-day who apply the soft pedal when it comes to questions of dancing, card playing and theatre-going as practised by church members, Mr. Kennedy told those present just what he thought of these practices. "I never saw a card-playing, dance-loving, theatre-going Christian who could lead anyone to Christ and how any of us would call on for spiritual comfort and consolation, were we dying," said Mr. Kennedy, "yet Christians are supposed to be filled with the spirit and to be examples to the world about them of the saving power of Christ. There is Christian on earth who can continue to be filled with the spirit while making it a practice to attend the theatre or indulge in other worldly amusements."

Mr. Kennedy also talked plainly to those professing Christians, who set bad examples to those who have a right to look to them for more consistent conduct. The father who continues to smoke a pipe cannot very well find fault with his boy if he finds him smoking cigarettes. A mother who plays whist and encourages card playing in the home, sometimes on the plea that it will encourage the boy to stay at home, need not be surprised if she finds later that her boy has been looking for bigger game and is found playing cards among experts for money. Mr. Kennedy said that at a meeting of some 3,500 gamblers in the United States it was found that 75% of them had learned to play cards in the home. He related the case of a Sunday School teacher who used to encourage her class of 12 boys to visit her home on Saturday evenings to study the Bible. Later, she commenced to amuse them by teaching them to play cards. The final result was that a large percentage of that class turned out to be gamblers to the dismay and remorse of the teacher. "Seven-tenths of all gambling," said Mr. Kennedy, "is done with cards."

Abraham and Lot

Mr. Kennedy based his remarks on the contrasted careers of Abraham and Lot. He showed that Abraham was a man who walked in Godly ways, while Lot was a believer who wlked after the way of the world. Abraham went out from his home and kindred to follow the path God chose for him. Lot chose his dwelling in the city of Sodom. Because he lived after the way of the world his children followed his example and he had but little influence with them. When the warning reached him tha the city was to be destroyed he endeavored o have his sons-in-law flee with him from it. The Bible record says that "He seemed as one that mocked unto his sons-in-law." They refused to accompany him and were destroyed in the judgment of tha city.

SERMONETTES BY KENNEDY.

Theatre going never helps young people in getting a job.

You cannot build a good future on a bad present.

Fortune gotten at the cost of honor is misfortune.

A home should be more than a boarding house for father and children and a dressing room for mother.

Many a boy who goes to a gambling den, is reminded of his home.

Gamblers always smile when card parties are announced. They know soon some mothers' boy will be coming their way.

Some mothers teach their boys they say, to play cards at home so they won't play when they grow up. That is like teaching a little pig to drink swill so he won't do it when he gets bigger.

Can any Christian claim that the theatre, cards or the dance, the fruits of the Spirit of God?

People who play cards in their homes have no right to find fault with city officials if they allow gambling to go on in the city.

Nine-tenths of all gambling is done with cards.

If the same liberties were allowed between the sexes in a prayer meeting that is in a dance, it would be the scandal of the town.

If its not fit for the preacher to talk about it, then surely it must be worse for you to do it.

If you were to announce a dance for men only, only the janitor would be there.

Why is it that dancing masters will not let their own daughters dance?

A good game to play is "Progressive Christian Work."

Subject for Saturday night, "A Judge Before a Prisoner."

Subject for Sunday night, "The Handwriting on the Wall."

A delegation from Oshawa, where Mr. Kennedy held a meeting in March is expected on Sunday evening.

WHAT STREET SIGNS COST THE TOWN.

It will cost the town about $130.00 to have the street signs placed at intersecting points throughout the town. This includes material for the signs, painting, and installation of same. The work was done under the supervision of the Board of Works, and has been carried out in a satisfactory manner. Some years ago it cost the town some $300 to do this work. That the work has been done this summer at considerably less is worthy of note, when the cost of material and labour is taken into consideration.—Lindsay Post.

AMERICAN COAL IS THE MAIN HOPE EXPERT STATES

Arthur V. White Urges Moving Fuel and Letting Grain Wait

That Canada's most serious fuel situation is by no means solved is evident from a comprehensive discussion of the National and International aspects of Canada's fuel problem, by Arthur V. White. Consulting Engineer of the Commission of Conservation, appearing in the current issue of the General Electric Review. Mr. White has for some time been directing special attention of the menace to the great stability of Canada which exists, arising from the absence of a developed supply of coal from within the confines of the Dominion.

In a statemen made t-day, Mr. White said that, although the weekly report on theproduction and shipment of bituminous and anthracite coal compiled by the Department ment of the Interior of the United States, shows that the production of anthracite coal during the week ending June 28, was the highest reported since the last week in January, nevertheless, the total production in the year to date, is only 38,796,000 tons, as compared with 40,077,000 tons for the same period last year. Canada derives her anthracite from this supply.

Mr. White directs attention to the need for co-ordination of transportation and other cognate agencies, to provide for the distribution of fuel to all communities in the Dominion In some respects it is more important to save coal, he adds, and have it adequately stored and distributed throughout Canada, than it is to move the grin out of the country.

WEDDING BELLS

CONDON—DALTON.

A pretty wedding was solemnized at St. Joseph's church, Douro, when Agnes Dalton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Dalton, became the bride of Mr. John Joseph Condon, son of Mr and Mrs. Bartholomew Condon, Douro, Ont.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. Father McGuire of Douro, during which the choir sang very sweetly.

The little Misses O'Grady entered the church acting as flower girls and carried a huge boquet of sweet peas and maiden hair fern.

The bride entered the church leaning on the arm of her cousin and bridesmaid, Miss Susie Dalton, to the strains of Mendelssohn's wedding march, rendered by Miss Mary Quinlan.

The groom was ably supported by his brother Alphonsus.

The bride was attired in white embroidered silk crepe de chine with large white picture hat to match. The bridesmaid were grey silk poplin and white picture hat.

The groom's gift to the bride was a dainty wrist watch. To the bridesmaid he gave a pearl pin and to the groomsman gold cuff links.

The wedding party motored to the home of the bride's parents, where a sumptuous repast was partaken of by a number of friends.

The presents were both numerous and costly showing the high esteem in which the bride was held.

Among the guests were Mr. and Mrs. J. V. Murphy, Mrs. J. B. Murphy and daughter Blanche, Miss Ileen Harrison, Mr. Leonard Flynn and Messrs Thomas and Stafford Cassidy of Erinsville.

BREADMAN—FULLER.

The little village of Cobham, situated among the Surrey hills, was the scene of a quiet, but picturesque wedding on June 14, 1919. The contracting parties were Bandsman Albert Breadman, 4th Batt., late of the 93rd Band, Peterboorough, Ont., Canada, and Miss E. Fuller, of Cobham, Surrey. The bride looked charming in white silk, and carried a beautiful bouquet of roses. Among the numerous friends were Bandsman E. Keale, late of the 93rd Band, and Bandsman F. Jobson, of Hamilton, Ont.

A noticeable incident was the toast, "The Old Folks at Home," which was heartily drunk, recalling many pleasant reminiscences of days gone by.

The bride and bridegroom were the recipients of many useful and beautiful presents. The happy couple were given a hearty send-off on their honeymoon to the Isle of Wight. They leave for Canada shortly.

FRANCE CELEBRATED DAY SHE HAS AWAITED SINCE PRUSSIAN DEFEAT IN 1870

FIVE MILE PARADE OF ALLIED SOLDIERS—EMPTY CASKET DECORATED IN MEMORY OF ALLIED DEAD.

ARCH OF TRIUMPH

PARIS, July 14. — France swept aside the accumulation of half a century of bitterness and woe to-day with the greatest celebration in her history, the victory parade.

Hundreds of thousands of people from all parts of the country crowded into Paris and cheered the Allied soldiers in their five mile triumphal march through the heart of the city. It was the day France had been awaiting since her Prussian defeat by the Prussian in 1870 and she made the most of it.

The city was a riot of colour when the 25,000 Allied veterans began their march. Flags were flown from every building, an each street apparently tried to outdo the other in gala attitude.

The Allied Dead.

(Canadian Press.)

PARIS, July 14.—Triumphal march of Allied troops through Paris commenced at eight o'clock this morning. The weather was brilliant, being more like October than mid-summer. A thousand wounded soldiers with crutches or in wheel chairs and clad for the most part in civilian clothes, led the parade, being preceded by a drum corps. Guns began firing at minute intervals as they placed wreaths at the foot of the cenotaph at the arc de triumph this morning. The empty casket placed there in memory of Allied dead was also decorated by other wreaths, these being placed by Premier Clemenceau, a French soldier, a French sailor, an Alsacian girl and a girl from Lorraine.

Marshal Foche passed under the arc de Triomphe at 9.45 o'clock. Behind him came Marshal Foch. A storm of applause broke from the vast

(United Press.)

It was just nine o'clock whes Marshal Foche and Marshal Joffre, with their staffs, rode past the arch of triumph. As the parade proceeded the cheers and the shouts increased in volume until they became deafening. Field Marshal Haig and General Robertson marched at the end of the British contingent.

General Petain, Generals, Mangin, Humbert, Lyauty, Gourand and other famous French military leaders were in line.

Preceding Marshals Foch and Joffre were a band of girls from Alsace Lorraine, strewing flowers gathered from districts of the republic.

The marshals came smartly to the salute when they passed the great cenotaph—a pyramidal structure sixty feet high, erected in honour of the fallen allied soldiers. This was surmounted by a winged victory, and bore war trophies of all the allies.

Special provision was made for seating the French wounded and the parents and widows of poilus killed in action. The "Blesses" were further favoured when 1,000 of them passed under the Arch of Triumph at a halting tumbling pace, even before Marshal Foch had ridden through.

More than 60,000 troops and 15,000 Gendarmes were required to police the line of march and maintain order.

FLYERS ARRIVE IN HALIFAX YESTERDAY

WILL START IN TORONTO AND OTHER POINTS.

(Special to The Examiner.)

HALIFAX, N.S., July 14.—To give exhibition flying with German as well as British and French air craft, a party of twenty officers and mechanics arrived on the Carmania and left for Quebec, from where they will proceed to Toronto. In charge of them is Capt. O. Johnson, M.C., Windermere avenue, Toronto. Capt. Johnson, who is credited officially with downing fifteen enemy machines, will go to Ottawa for orders.

It is proposed to fly one of each type of British and German machines and also some French planes. Some of these machines are now at Ottawa and Montreal, while others are yet to be brought across the Atlantic. It is not known whether these exhibitions will be given all over the Dominion, but it is probable that the people will ask for them. The party is made up of three officers who fly the machines, and the remainder are mechanics. With Capt. Johnson are Capt. H. S. Quigley, M.C., D.C.M., 20 Crescent street, Toronto, and Lieut. F. V. Hawkes, 40 Euclid avenue. These officers have all seen much service. The mechanics are all expert men and have been selected from the two air squadrons in England.

Some long silk tunics come within two inches of the foundation skirt.

QUICK SERVICE TO OLD COUNTRY

(Canadian Press.)

LONDON, July 14. — Photographs taken in the United States and brought to England by dirigible R-34, and to London by airplane from Pelham, are published in the morning papers. This is looked upon as the first step toward the fulfilment of the prediction by Northcliffe that the quick interchange of New York and London newspapers and photographs by aerial post were among the possibilities of the near future.

The photographs include President Wilson's arrival at New York, view of the R-34 taken from an American airship as the British dirigible first approached Mineola, and a snapshot of the first knock-down in the Willard-Dempsey fight. The newspapers also published photographs showing the four day old newspaper being delivered at Buckingham Palace.

SMALL FIRE ON PARNELL STREET

Clothes Hanging on a Nail Caught Fire.

A fire alarm at 2.15 this morning called the fire brigade to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Libby, 477 Parnell street, where spontaneous combustion had set fire to the woodshed. Only the speedy arrival of the brigade saved the wood shed from being a total loss. Mr. Libby had hung his working clothes on a nail in the woodshed. They were saturated with oil and grease and the pressure of the coat and cap upon the vest, which held a pocketful of matches, set fire to the clothes. The flames mounted to the roof, but before they had spread the brigade extinguished them with a three-gallon chemical tank.

Miss Maud Libby detected the smoke and sent in the alarm.

CONTROVERSY IN WINNIPEG

EMPLOYEES WILL RECOGNIZE ONLY SHOP COMMITTEE—CANDIDATE FOR MAYOR.

COMMISSION SITTING

(Special to he Examiner.)

Winnipeg, July 14. — The employees of the three big iron firms met on Sunday afternoon to plan further action to force their own masters to accept their conceptions of "collective bargaining." The committee of six which met the bosses on Thursday, were refused a hearing, they say, because they had not been elected in the shops.

The only committee the employers will recognize, they declare, is one composed of two representatives of each shop, elected not in lodge rooms, but in the shop itself. Notice to this effect has been placed on the bulletin boards at the shops.

The committee that was turned down was elected by the employees of the three firms en masse at their lodge rooms.

R. B. Russell, the business agent of the Metal Trades, recommended to re-elect the committee, and if they were not recognized, to protest to the government. This was done.

While all other metal workers are on the job the six composing the committee have not been reinstated, Mr. Russell said.

The first session of the Royal Commision appointed to investigate the strike, will be held on Wednesday afternoon, according to an announcement, made by Judge H. A. Robson, Commissoiner.

A. J. Andrews said that an attempt was being made by the government to obtain Magistrate Noble of the Provincial Police Court, to sit as a member of the board of inquiry that is to conduct the deportation proceedings in the case of the foreign-born men under arrest.

LOCAL ORANGEMEN HAD BIG DAY

HAD A PARADE IN THE CITY UPON RETURN FROM COBOURG.

Between six and seven hundred John Spence has made a fine impression in the Lakeshore town. The course of parade was over six miles long "and the worst roads in Canada" said one local Orangeman. A tremendous crowd from the outside soon filled up all of Cobourg's hotel accommodation and the overflow walked the streets all night waving balloons and beating drums or sleeping in the station rooms.

The majority of the Peterboro walkers reached the city via the G.T.R. at 9.30 and a parade was marshalled to the lodgeroom and the drums and fifes heard in the city well past midnight.

Cobourg never saw such a day like it before and it is estimated that from eight to ten thousand people turned out for the Orange celebration Three special trains came in in the forenoon, each bringing a large number of lodges and excursionists, and the lodges from Port Hope west to Oshawa came by regular train. Roseneath, Coldsprings, Baltimore, and other Northumberland County lodges motored in. It is estimated that there were some 85 lodges in the procession that formed at Victoria Park early in the afternoon and paraded the town. There were veteran Orangemen of 80 years, several of whom had seldom or ever missed a parade in a half-century. There were bands by the score, and several women's lodges marched in the procession, which was so large that it took an hour to pass a given point.

At Victoria Park J. H. Spence, County Grand Master of Peterboro, presided over an interesting programme of addresses. Mayor Denton spoke briefly, welcoming the visiting lodges on behalf of the town and speeches were made by Dr. Kaiser, Ottawa; Mr. Jas. Birney of Kingston; Mr. George McCartney, of Bethany, and Rev. J. S. I. Wilson, the newly appointed pastor of the Cobourg Methodist Church.

SUNDAY SCHOOL AT BRAUNDPORT

A Sunday school has been in operation down the river at "Braundport," during the camping season, for a number of years, under the auspices of the Salvation Army. This Sunday School is in charge of Mr. R. C. Braund, superintendent of the Sunday School at the Temple on Simcoe street.

The School meets at 11 o'clock on Sunday mornings and the attendance is good every Sunday. Yesterday's attendance was a record breaker for this year, as on the first Sunday, four weeks ago, the congregation numbered only eight.

All campers are invited to these services; they are interesting, and variety is provided to avoid monotony.

MASKED BURG[illegible] SHOT AND KILLED

(Canadian Press.)

PHILADELPHIA, July 14. — A masked burglar was shot and killed by Prof. Benjamin Franklin Shappelle, of the University of Pennsylvania, in the Alpha Chi Rho fraternity house here to-day after he had threatened death to Prof. Shappelle and the others living in the fraternity building. Receiving a bullet in the heart the burglar leaped from the second storey window to the yard, reeled across the yard and died as two policemen reached his side.

WAS DROWNED IN BUCKHORN LAKE

YOUNG MAN FAILED TO RETURN FROM A FISHING TRIP.

On Saturday evening Jordan Harris, son of Levi Harris, was drowned in the waters of Buckhorn Lake while out fishing. The young man left his home about four o'clock for the purpose of going fishing, not returning in the evening his parents waited up in the night. In the early morning other help went in search of him, finding his canoe about a mile distant, close to the shore. The canoe being half full of water, led them to believe he har been drowned. The neighbours from all sides turned out and dragged the lake all day. About six o'clock Sunday evening Mr. [illegible] Wood, one of the party discovered the body close to the shore.

STEAMER LOST HER RUDDER

ACCIDENT TO THE "SIMLA" ON LAKE ONTARIO.

(Special to The Examiner.)

KINGSTON, July 14.— While on her way to Kingston the steamer Simla lost her rudder and lay at anchor off Long Point for forty-eight hours until picked up by the steamer Samuel Langdon and towed into Kingston. The steamer is reported ashore near Morrisburg.

DANCE AT SOUTH BEACH ON FRIDAY NIGHT

JUST BEFORE THE HOLIDAY SATURDAY NEXT—PEACE DANCE.

There is a good time in store for those who enjoy a good dance with excellent music. An orchestra is to be brought from Toronto for the Peace Dance to be held at South Beach on Friday evening, July 18th. With the large number of guests at present at South Beach and the number from the city who usually enjoy South Beach dances, an excellent evening is expected.

HUCKLEBERRY PICKERS FOUND BUSHES BURNED

Huckleberry pickers who spent Sunday on the rocks of Burleigh township returned home last night fagged and comparatively empty-handed. They discovered that there was no exaggeration in the reports of extreme drought throughout that cuntry. The bushes and their fruit were dried up and hours were wasted in one sections without finding any patches worth scouring. Some of the pickers came back to the district around Burleigh Falls and Buckhorn and gathered twelve quarts each, but hey had expected to bring home at least twenty-four quarts. On the rocks in the north country they were half baked and only the retracing of their path gave them the small quantity that saved theday from utter failure. There were many raspberry pickers in the country, last year having given a decided impetus to these country trips by persons who are unable to leave town during the week.

SOME BAKERS MAY STRIKE

IN SHOPS THAT REFUSE TO GRANT THEIR DEMANDS BY NEXT SATURDAY—MOST SHOPS SYMPATHETIC.

THIS APPLIES TO CONFECTIONERS, TOO

Members of the Bakers' Union announce that the employees of shops that have failed to accere by Saturday next to the demands which will be presented to the employers on Wednesday will declare a strike on the following Monday. More than half the shops have already met the requests of their workmen and there is entire harmony between the men and their employers. Since coming to Peterboro the Mothers' Bread company have been paying the Union scale fr Union time. Mr. T. H. Hooper, it is stated, gave the men all the conditions they sought and also a half holiday.

There are a number of the manufacturers, however, who are said to have evaded or ignored the communications from the Union, and they are receiving a week's grace to reconsider the requests.

The scale of wages is $30 for foremen, $28 for doughmen and $25 for benchmen, and the Union's jurisdiction over apprentices and "jobbers" is also demanded. They also want a 48 hour week, and time and a half py for all overtime.

Worked Long Hours

Men state that in the past the wages ranged frm $25 to $16 and less and that the hours ranged all the way from 54 to 76, with no remuneration for overtime.

In their efforts to improve their conditions they have met with encouragement from some employing quarters, that "bosses" approved of their idea but objected to the increase in wages. However, it is contended that the Union rates should have no effect upon the local price of bread and confectionery for the reason, as given, that several companies have been paying the scale for considerable time without finding it necessary to raise prices to

CHILD FELL INTO WELL AND DEAD WHEN DISCOVERED

FOUR-YEAR-OLD CHILD OF LONDON STREET FAMILY MET WITH STRANGE DEATH.

Death came with unexpected suddenness to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Whatman, 177 London street, when their four-year old son, Fred Whatman, was drowned in a cistern in a wood shed at the rear of the house, Saturday morning at 11.30 o'clock.

The cistern is covered over with a board flooring which is nearly all rotten, and it is thought that the little boy, seeing the door left open, went out in to the wood shed, stepped on the top of the cistern, and the rotten flooring gave way, allowing him to go through. It was not until an hour after that the boy was missed, and on search being made by the distracted mother, the body was found floating in the cistern. The police were informed and Dr. A. Moir called, who pronounced the boy dead after the pullmotor had been used by the firemen with no effect. The doctor stated that the boy had been dead at least half an hour. The father could not be located and the mother was prostrated with grief. The firemen notified Belleghem's undertaking establishment.

A FORTUNE FOR STOKER IN ARMY

(Canadian Press.)

NEW YORK, July 14. — When the giant liner "Imperator" docked at Hoboken last night, there climbed out of a stoke hole a passenger who has suddenly come into an income of $[illegible] a year. He is E. L. Perkins, a sailor in the United States navy. In 1913 Perkins bought an 80 acre farm, three miles northeast of his home town, and planted corn on it. During the war he enlisted in the navy. Just before the "Imperator" sailed from here for Brest to load troops, Perkins, who had been assigned to her fire room force, received word from his father that a six thousand barrel gusher had been located on his farm. Three drillers started to bort seven other wells and they figure the eight might shoot his income up to a million dollars a year.

PETERBORO MEN REACH HALIFAX

CARMANIA BROUGHT HOME EIGHT LOCAL MEN AND NURSING SISTER DENNE.

HALIFAX, N.S., July 14.—The following men arrived here on the Carmania and left for their homes a few hours later:

Nursing Sister H. I. Denne, 733 George street.

Pte. R. F. Dyer, 20 Aylmer street.

Pte. C. F. Heard, R. R. No. 4.

Driver N. G. Lewis, 319 Boswell avenue.

Driver A. C. Lotter, 118 Aylmer street.

Bombardier A. J. Allison, 673 Water street.

Lieut. H. C. Hatton was the only Peterborough man on the Minnekhada.

ADDITIONAL ARRIVALS.

The following arrivals are also announced of soldiers for this district, at ports of disembarkation, as noted:

At Quebec, per steamer Empress of Britain, on 11th July, and forwarded by earliest trains going West—

Pte. C. C. Binnington, Hall's Glen.

Pte. R. Parrington, 339 Aylmer St.

Pte. R. Brock, 328 Charlotte St.

At Halifax, per steamer Celtic, the evening of 11th July, and going forward the same evening:

OTHER BOATS ON THE WAY.

(Canadian Press.)

QUEBEC, July 14.—The steamship Tunisian arrived this morning, bringing troops.

HALIFAX, July 14.—The steamships Carmania and Minnekahda, which arrived on Saturday, landed troops, and left for New York within a few hours.

QUEBEC, July 14.—The steamer Corsican, with twelve hundred soldiers and dependants are expected here to-day.

The Empress of Britain sailed for St. John's this afternoon to take over the passengers on the Grampian, disabled by ice last week.

Other Arrivals.

During the past week several Peterborough soldiers arrived home whose names, for some unexplained reason, did not appear in the regular lists. They include Sergt. George Chambers, Sergt. F. H. Downton, Sergt. B. Borland and Pte. G. East.

Sergt. Downton was a member of the Peterborough Fire Department when he enlisted.

In addition to the above there were Pte. John Garrett and Pte. James Garrett, who will reside with their sister, Miss Sadie Garrett, at 96 Hunter street east. They are two of three brothers who enlisted early in the war and have seen long service in France. The third brother enlisted in the American Army. He returned home to New York a few weeks ago.

MR. F. W. PAULIN, OF THE CANADIAN ENGINEERING AND CONTRACTING COMPANY, SAYS HIS FIRM HAS THREE COMPETENT ENGINEERS—CONGRATULATE CITY.

COMMEND RUSSELL CO.

P. W. Paulin of the Canadian Engineering and Contracting Company, in a letter to Mayor Duncan and the council this morning, congratulates the city upon awarding the bridge contract to the Russell-Townsend Comapny, but flatly denies that his company, had their tender been accepted, intended to engage Mr. C. W. Townsend to supervise the work.

The letter follows:

"July 12th, 1919.

"We note with considerable interest that the contract for the Hunter street bridge has finally been awarded to the Russell-Townsend Company, and while we take the occasion to congratulate the city of Peterboro and the contracting company on the event, there are one or two statements made in council which we think it only fair to ourselves to have corrected.

Have Three Engineers.

"The statement was made by one of the aldermen that the services of the Russell-Townsend Company would be required in the event of any other contractor than themselves being successful in landing the contract. For ourselves we must empahtically state that this is not so. We have thre engineers in our firm, all of whom are graduates of the University and members of the Engineering Institute of Canada. In addition to that fact, had we been awarded the contract, the superintendent in charge would have been Mr. Coates, who built the Rocky River bridge, one of the largest concrete bridges in existence.

"We feel that the time and money spent by this firm in the endeavor to bring the contract price within the city's appropriation, and the valuable suggestions submitted to [illegible] such by the committee [illegible] would be sufficient reward [illegible] done in this concern on the part of the city.

"We have a very high regard for the Russell-Townsend Company, and we feel quite sure that they will give eminent satisfaction to the city of Peterboro. At the same time it should be remembered that this firm tendered on the work last December, and were prepared then, as we have been ever since, to carry the contract through to a successful conclusion. Our record on difficult engineering work would bear the most stringent investigation both as to ability to design and construct.

"In conclusion we desire to congratulate you on your final choice and to wish you every success in your undertaking."

AVOID LITIGATION BY GETTING TOGETHER, MR. BAGLEY URGES COUNCIL

HIS CLIENT'S DESIRE TOELIMINATE EXTRAVAGANCE IN CONSTRUCTION AND NOT TO PREVENT WORK PROCEEDING, HE AVERS--MAY FAIL TO RAISE INJUNCTION SECURITY.

ANOTHER WEEK'S DELAY

The Council's attempts to let the contract for the Hunter street bridge have been nullified so regularly that the aldermen who had entertained bright hopes of witnessing the breaking of the ground this morning by the Russell-Townsend Company, were deeply disappointed despite the fact that they have become inured to the experience.

Those who supported the by-law were wondering to-day whether Mr. W. J. Kearns and his associates could raise the $10,000 guarantee required to carry their application for an injunction to Osgoode Hall. An interim order was granted by Judge Huycke on Saturday, temporarily restraining the Mayor and City Clerk from signing the agreement with the Russell-Townsend Company.

Letter to the Council.

A letter from Mr. Bagley to the Council indicates that the opponents of the by-law may be unable to provide the security for their action. A copy of this letter was given to the Examiner with Mr. Bagley's explanation: "Street reports state that my clients want to prevent the building of the bridge and I want to give a most unqualified denial to this statement. Their object is to prevent waste of the ratepayers' money and to remove doubt and uncertainty at present prevailing as to the ultimate cost of the structure."

The letter to the Council is, in part, as follows:

Gentlemen,— This morning His Honour Judge Huycke made an order (subject to security being given) restraining the City of Peterborough from entering into the proposed contract with the Russell-Townsend Company for building the Hunter street bridge. It is now too late in the day to get the security, and the matter will have to stand over till Monday next.

I think it is a great pity that it should be necessary to expend so much money in litigation, when perhaps a friendly talk, and a little forbearance would be of much benefit to the city and all concerned. The men that are taking exception to the contract have the best interests of the city at heart and are in no way hostile to you gentlemen. It is not too late to discuss the matter calmly and dispassionately and review the whole situation.

The present proopsal has not one redeeming feature. The plus cost plan as proposed is much to be deprecated because the only limit is the sky. There are no means of guessing what the bridge will cost, having regard to the present unstable condition of affairs not only in the labour world, but also in the prices of material. Judge Huycke this morning made no secret of his opinion that the contract is loose, and eminently unsatisfactory because there is no limit to what the cost may be.

Under the proposed agreement the city pays the full cost of the work and materials. Presumably it would not cost any more if it were done by day labour employed direct by the city. In addition to the fair cost of the work, the city pays the Engineer a big salary (about $12,000) for supervising the job. That would be fully enough to pay for all overseeing. But in addition it pays $30,000 to a firm of contractors. What for? Not for work because the work of the job is all to be paid for as "cost"; not for the supervising, because that is paid for in the Engineer's salary. Then it must be as foreman's pay. Will these highly paid foremen save one cent out of what any fairly paid foreman employed by the city under its own Engineer would spend in the work? And will these men that are to get $30,000 really act as foremen? It appears to be they will just sit back and employ foremen, etc., and their pay will appear on the ay sheets that the city will pay, and they will do nothing of value for their money. Better, far better, to employ a staff of quailfied foremen, let the Engineer earn his money by supervising the buying of materials, etc., and do the work by day labour, without the intervention of anyone. And let the city get the benefit of the discounts.

You need not worry about two weeks' delay in getting the new tenders, we waited three weeks to hear from the Leonard Construction Co., and we have waited eighteen months for the bridge anyway, and nothing terrible will happen us if we delay to see if we cannot do something practical and business-like.

Let me plead with you, gentlemen, to give this letter careful thought, and see whether it is not possible to save the "commission" to the contractors" and get a much better bridge at a lower price than we will get under the proposed arrangement.

Let this contract standover, and call for seperate tenders for the approaches, and then let Mr. Barber advise whether we cannot best serve our city in the way indicated.

Your obedient servant,
Jas. Guise-Bagley.

POLICE ISSUE A WARNING

The drowning of Fred Whatman last Saturday has brought forth a warning from the police that all wood work around wells and cisterns must be in good condition. If any rotten or grossly constructed wood work is discovered prosecution will follow.

NGALLS' EULOGY OF GRASS

Brilliant Piece of Writing by Famous Kansan Will Forever Hold Place in Literature.

"Lying in the sunshine among the buttercups and dandelions of May, scarcely higher in intelligence than the minute tenants of that mimic wilderness, our earliest recollections are of grass, and when the fitful fever is ended and the foolish wrangle of the market and the forum is closed, grass heals over the scar which our descent into the bosom of earth has made and the carpet of the infant becomes the blanket of the dead. Grass is the forgiveness of nature—her constant benediction. Fields trampled with battle, saturated with blood, torn with the implements of cannon, grow green again with grass, and carnage is forgotten. Streets abandoned by traffic become grass-grown like rural lanes and are obliterated. Forests decay, harvests perish, flowers vanish, but grass is immortal. Beleaguered by the sullen hosts of winter, it withdraws into the impregnable fortress of its subterranean vitality and emerges upon the first solicitation of spring. Sown by the winds, by the wandering birds, propagated by the subtle agriculture of the elements which are its ministers and servants, it softens the rude outline of the world. It bears no blazonry of bloom to charm the senses with fragrance or splendor, but its homely hue is more enthanting than the lily or the rose. It yields no fruit in earth or air, and yet, should its harvest fail for a single year, famine would depopulate the world."

This classic by John J. Ingalls, was first printed in the Duluth Herald, says the Kansas Magazine, when Senator Ingalls was one of its owners.

"CARAVAN KITCHENS" TO STAY

Introduced as Wartime Measure in England, They Have Demonstrated Their Usefulness.

One of the most successful wartime experiments has been the caravan kitchen, says a London (Eng.) dispatch.

Owing to the fact that so many mothers had to leave their families of young children to fend for themselves while they went out to work to make ends meet, Miss Horsborough conceived the idea of catering to the needs of these children by means of a caravan kitchen.

Accordingly she fitted up three motor vans, she paraded the poorer quarters of London, cooking en route all kinds of toothsome and nourishing dishes. The kiddies came running out with their plates at the blowing of a tin trumpet, and were served with a piping hot and appetising dinner in return for a trifling sum of money, which had been left with them for this purpose by mother.

The fame of the caravan kitchen soon spread abroad, and within a short space of time was paying its way, 33,000 dinners a week being served in one district alone.

So successful has been this traveling caterer it is likely the work will be continued on a larger scale, and become a permanent institution, instead of a wartime measure.

Bird Welcome on Board Ship.

Weary of wing and starved, a tiny linnet alighted aboard the four-masted schooner Sophie Christenson 1,000 miles from San Francisco, according to Capt. Bob McCarron.

A tramp steamer was hull down on the horison when the linnet reached the schooner, and one of the theories as to its long flight was that the bird had been a pet on the vessel and, yearning for land, had sought to fly to the far-away shore.

Aboard the schooner is a canary and, as though by instinct, the linnet flew to the cage of the canary, perching precariously while the schooner heaved and tossed. Captain McCarron opened the door of the cage and the linnet soon recovered. The canary welcomed the linnet and they are now chums.

Black Fox Industry.

The number of foxes in the ranches of Prince Edward Island at the beginning of the pelting season in 1917 was approximately 10,000. From December 1, 1917, to January 31, 1918, 2,500 foxes were killed and their skins marketed. Raising ranch-bred foxes is an industry that is being carried on extensively in all the Canadian provinces, in at least a dozen of the northernmost of the United States, and beginning in Japan and Norway, all lying in much the same climatic belt, adapted to domesticating the black fox under the most favorable conditions.

The Wings of Time.

"Mamma," said little Tommy as he closed the big book, "what are the 'wings of time?'"

"The 'wings of time,' my son," replied his mother in loud tones, "are the faded wings I have been wearing on my hat for three seasons."

And then pe coughed uneasily and told Tommy if he did not stop asking foolish questions he would send him to bed.

Curious.

"Curious thing about human vanity," said the customer.

"To what do you refer?"

"The more knucklehead a man is the more he wants to appear at a masquerade ball as a Scottish highlander."—Boston Evening Record.

TEMPERANCE ACT ON APPOINTING LOCAL OFFICERS

The City Council at its last meeting appointed all the members of the Police Department as officers to enforce the Temperance Act. Previously only Chief Thompson had been specified by the bylaw. Ald. Edgar expressed a doubt of the council's right to designate more than one official, and on this point the statute is as follows, incidentally showing that the officer has authority only in the municipality that appointed him:

Sec. 110 (1). The penalties in money imposed under this act or any portion of them that may be recovered, except as provided in the next subsection, shall be paid to the convicting magistrate in the case, and shall by him or them be paid to the Inspector of the country or district in which the offence was committed, to be by him remitted to the License Board, in accordance with the regulations of the Department, and shall form part of the consolidated revenue of the province.

Sec. 110 (2). Where an officer appointed under section 120 is the prosecutor, then the same shall be paid to the treasurer of the municipality wherein the offence was committed.

Sec. 12. The council of any municipality may by by-law appoint an officer whose duty it shall be to enforce the provisions of this act within the municipality, and such council may by by-law provide for the payment of such officer or officers, and for the payment of any expenses incurred in such enforcement out of the general funds of the municipality and every officer so appointed shall have within the municipality for which he is appointed all the powers possessed by a provincial officer appointed under Section 119 and all provisions of this act applicable to any such provincial officer shall apply as to any officer appointed under this section and acting within the municipality for which he is appointed, in the same manner and to the same extent as if such municipal officer were expressly mentioned in such provisions.

HAD BETTER BE CAREFUL.

According to the Cobourg World, the Duke and Duchess of Devonshire were greatly "enthused" by the sights they saw in Cobourg. Their Excellencies were probably steered clear of the unique pot metal bell, mounted on the top of a pole at a prominent street corner, to be rung violently when a fire breaks out. The good people of Cobourg were at one time proud of their fire alarm system, but travel on the part of some, has engenedered a measure of doubt Further travel may teach the lesson that "enthuse" is an alleged English word not used in educational circles or by people of quality anywhere.—Orillia Packet.

The Promoter's Wife

BY JANE PHELPS

BAB'S MOTHER GIVES HER GOOD ADVICE

CHAPTER XV.

Neil was a man of slight artistic culture, but he took an instinctive delight in the beautiful. Anything really lovely gave him pleasure, and inversely anything ugly gave him pain, that at times seemed almost physical.

"You like it?" he asked.

"It was our first visit to the new apartment we had rented since it had been decorated for us.

"Like it! I just love it, and who wouldn't? But it is so large and I shall have to have another servant. I dread that."

"Never mind. Call her the thorn in your rose, if you like, but don't let her spoil the beauty of the rose for you." And Neil, well-groomed, alert, brimming over with good nature and satisfaction, eager and keen, drew me to him and, kissing me many times, added: "My rose, aren't you, Bab? The setting is none too good for you."

When Neil was like this I was repaid for any carelessness, any laxness on his part. I would forget everything save that I loved him, and that he belonged to me.

Neil's very appearance was reassuring. I was overwhelmed by the optimism of prosperity, and it brushed from my mind all misgivings. I seldom allowed them room, save when something was said to cause them. But as I knew few people, most of them introduced by Neil, it was rare that anything unpleasant or unsettling reached my ears.

I had made many acquaintances, but few friends. I had erred on occasions, and found that a supposed friend was really an unfortunate acquaintance. In one or two cases intolerable bores. But Neil delighted in company. He loved to entertain—if we did it lavishly. He wanted that, like everything else he did, to show his worldly success. I was not surprised when he expiated upon the size of the dining-room the capacity of the apartment, its appropriateness for entertaining.

"Come now, dear, let us go home. You look tired," I said. All suddenly I had noticed he was fagged. "Anyway, I am."

"Yes, I am tired," he acknowledged. So we turned off the light and went home.

When we reached home he sank heavily into a chair. He looked older and worn. I noticed for the first time a nervous twitching around his mouth. For an instant I felt irritated at the thought of the way he wasted himself to add to his wealth; and so made himself too tired to tell me of his love as often as he used to.

I had received a letter from mother that day, and I now brought it to Neil to read. (A habit I had formed when we were first married.)

"Read it to me," he said.

"I told her about the new apartment, described it, and also told her how wonderfully you were getting on," I said as I unfolded the letter and commenced to read in response to his request.

"Go slow, dear," mother said, "you are both young. Neil is a very young man to make enough money to live in such luxury as you describe. You must be very proud of his ability. But remember that the sun does not always shine, and prepare for the rainy day that is almost sure to come at some time in your life. Father says to tell Neil to keep away from speculation. He says it is a rock on which many young men split, and that it is better to go slow and sure. Of course we do not know that Neil does speculate, but I guess father thought he would warn you.

"We all miss you very much, and in response to your invitation may soon make you a short visit."

There was much more, but this was all that directly related to Neil in any way.

"You don't speculate, do you, Neil?" I asked as I laid the letter down.

"Of course I do! Everyone does nowadays. But not in the way your father thinks. But no big money is made without taking risks. I'll take a chance any time."

(To-morrow—Blanche Orton Monopolizes Neil.)

FOOOD MONOPOLY URGED FOR FRANCE

ALBERT THOMAS SAYS THE STATE MUST CURB MIDDLEMEN AND PROFITEERS

PARIS — State food monopoly is proposed by ex-Minister Albert Thomas in the Socialist organ 'L'Humanite as the sole means of reducing the present cost of living, which is one of the principle causes of the incessant labor troubles. No less an authority than Premier Clemenceau is said to have declared recently after a conference with the labor representatives, that the strikes were due to general discontent rather than to strictly political or professional causes. The high cost of food and the belief that profiteering is rampant are the chief contributing factors to this dissatisfaction.

How prices have risen may be judged from the comparative table given by L'Oeuvre, showing that the cost of a very simple home dinner for six persons has risen during the war from just under $5 to within a few cents of $17.

M. Thomas takes as his text the resolution voted on July 4 by the National Syndicate of Dairy Produce Retailers requesting Clemenceau in view of the probable shortage of milk eggs and butter during the winter to have the State undertake the sole purchase and importation of these commodities, "to prevent an increase in prices by middlemen, profits and speculation," while for their part the retailers agree to limit their profits to 20 per cent. and offer to place their books at the disposal of the official controllers.

That the retailers, on whom has been placed the blame for a great part of the rise in prices, should make such a proposal seems pretty good evidence to M. Thomas that it is really the middlemen and speculators who are responsible. The success of municipal co-operative organisations and Government stores in the principal cities, although all too limited in extent, are further proofs to him that the remedy lies in State monopoly, with no intermediaries between that official purchaser and the retailer.

Supply Offices.

M. Thomas adds that he placed before the Chamber six months ago a bill to create departmental and municipal food supply offices under a monopolistic system which won the approval both of the National Co-operative Federation and of the Chamber Committees of Food Supply and General Administration. Subsequently, however, the measure was buried as the result of pressure brought to bear on Parliament by Chambers of Commerce, syndicates of brokers, or similar intermediaries, and various other interested parties, to say nothing of many opponents of State monopolies as being purely Socialistic in theory.

M. Thomas now appeals to the public generally and Socialists in particular to support his scheme, or something on similar lines, as the sole means of averting not only a further increase in food prices, but the serious social troubles that are likely to ensue. On the day after the publication of the news that fighting had occurred in the streets of Rome and Florence, with soldiers firing on the crowds driven by food shortage and high prices to attempt the pillage of food stores, M. Thomas's warning has especial significance.

Despite the avowed intention of the French labour leaders to call a 24-hour general strike on 2nd July as a protest against French interference in the Russian revolution and with other political objects, it has been one of the lessons of the strikes of the past six weeks that both the country as a whole and a large proportion of the workers themselves do not want social trouble if they get a decent living wage without it. The workers have recognised the fact that a rise in wages following a strike automatically involves an equivalent or even greater rise in prices. They admit that strikes do not provide an outlet from this vicious circle. Although a small but active minority is frankly aiming at a revolution of a Bolshevist character, their programme, as M. Thomas pertinently observes, for building up a new social mechanism after they have torn down the existing structure is exceedingly hazy, and so far, at least, the results in Russia have been anything but promising as regards the comfort and welfare of the population.

The mass of French workers realise this, and throughout the recent labour troubles there has been a steadily growing tendency toward the settlement of disputes by discussion rather than by violence. For one thing, Frenchmen have had quite enough fighting, and the strong nationalist feeling created by the victorious termination of the war has led to a corresponding decrease in the number of adherents of the Labour Internationale.

M. Clemenceau has wisely taken advantage of this state of feeling in insisting in talks to labour leaders and in public speeches on the necessity for all Frenchmen to get together and accomplish post-bellum reconstruction worthy of the military record of France. The Premier is said to have expressed his conviction that long steps towards Socialism are bound to be taken in the near future, but he hopes that this may be accomplished gradually and without friction, much less anything approaching Bolshevist upheavals. Other leaders—notably Briand and Viviani—hold similar views. No better beginning could be made in this direction than by reduction of the cost of living as the result of some such arrangement as proposed by Thomas.

The BUSTER BROWN STOCKING

THE DIARY OF A STOMACH THAT STRUCK

10.00 a.m. — Oh dear! Another day! Wonder if I'll be abused as I was yesterday. If I am, I'm surely going to strike. Just disposed of a half-chewed breakfast. We ran for the train, which meant I was so jiggled about and so tired that it took me twice as long to do my work. Hope she gives me an hour or two of complete rest before anything more comes my way.

10:30 a.m. — Two glasses of ice water have just arrived. It will take all the energy I can pump up in the hour to warm me up to normal again.

10:50 a.m. — Half-chewed breakfast did not satisfy her, and she had bought some peanuts and started again.

12:00 a.m.—Peanuts have dribbled along, steadily ever since last entry. Think she has finished them, though.

12:30 p.m.—Decided she wasn't very hungry, and instead of a good solid dinner, sent me down a cold eggnogg, heavy with chocolate. Could have managed it alright if it hadn't been so cold, but that makes it terribly hard to deal with.

1:10 p.m.—More ice water.

1:40 p.m.—Was mistaken about the peanuts; she found another handful in the bottom of the bag and now I have them to tend to.

2:50 p.m.—More ice water.

3:10 p.m.—She has been lifting some heavy books, and as usual, used my muscles, instead of her arm muscles, as she should have done. Tired me more than digesting a six-course dinner.

3:20 p.m. — Someone has brought us a box of caramels, and she started on that.

4:30 p.m. ——Have received something like half a pound of caramels since last entry. She just said: "Oh, dear, I don't feel a bit well; I know the milk in that eggnogg must have been sour.

6:30 p.m. — We played a set of tennis before dinner, and here I am all tired out and a dinner to handle.

6:50 p.m. — We were invited out to have a soda before going home. Had a lemon phosphate and then ran for the train.

7:00 p.m. — Fried potatoes, cucumbers, veal and canned blueberries. What do you know about that?

7:45 p.m. — We are going down for a chocolate walnut ice.

8:20 p.m. — Got home and found someone had made some lemonade. She drank two glasses. That on top of the ice settles it. I strike.

8:30 p.m. — Have sent back the ice and lemonade.

8:40 p.m. — Returned the blueberries.

8:50 p.m. — And the veal.

9:10 p.m. — She had sent for the doctor. Says the ice must have had something the matter with it. Her mother says it is probably the weak stomach she inherited from her father.

9:30 p.m. — Doctor says it is just a little upset due to the weather.

Good-night.

CARUSO'S WINE AND AUTO COMMANDEERED IN RECENT OUTBREAK.

FLORENCE, July 11 — Enrico Caruso, the famous opera tenor, lost thirty barrels of wine when it was commandeered by the Workers' Committees at his villa in the outskirts of Florence during the recent disorders here. He said today that the committees left him just enough to last until the new vintage was ready. He added that the members of the committee were polite in presenting their demands.

"This morning the Prefect telephoned me. He said my automobile had been requisitioned. My villa is most difficult to reach because it is situated on a steep hill and I have noother means of transportation. I am lost without my automobile.

MR. DEWART'S POSITION.

Some temperance supporters, the majority of them, it is to be expected, of Conservative leanings, profess to believe that the choice of Mr. Hartley Dewart as leader of the Liberal party in Ontario is not a good thing for the cause of temperance in this province. But these faint-hearted people need not be alarmed. Mr. Dewart has already made his position clear and beyond the shadow of a doubt. Adhering to the staunch Liberal principles that the will of the people must be carried out, Mr. Dewart has pledged himself unequivocally to support whatever method of handling the liquor problem is desired by the electors of Ontario. There is a referendum to be taken in the near future, and Ontario's liquor policy will be decided by the votes of the people. The policy that is adopted will be supported by Mr. Dewart. That is his promise; is there any reason why there should be misgiving among temperance adherents? If the bars come back—and it is devoutly to be hoped that they do not—it will be because the people of Ontario have so voted. If Government liquor stores are opened, that, too, will be because the referendum has shown that this is the desire of the majority of the electors. On the other hand, if Ontario decides to carry on as she is, that will be because her people express their wish by the ballot. Mr. Dewart is pledged to carry out the wish of the people. Can anything more be asked of him?

APPOINTING ENUMERATORS.

Judging by the complaints that are being made in Toronto over the appointment of enumerators for the temperance referendum in the various districts in that city, the local War Veterans would be advised to bring stronger pressure than the passing of a resolution to bear here if they want to see the positions filled in this district by returned soldiers. Members of Veterans' Associations in Toronto are declaring that in the selection of the enumerators returned men, instead of being given the preference, were hardly afforded a chance at all, and that the appointments were made by the "old machine," which means that the Government is apparently looking upon the work of preparing the voters' lists for the referendum as a nice little piece of political patronage which affords them a chance to reward the faithful. No doubt the same game is being played throughout the province, and if the G.W.V.A. wants to have returned men appointed, they should not confine their activities to forwarding resolutions. The appointments should go to ex-service men. There are scores of them whose gratuities have lapsed and who have been unable to find steady employment. The temporary assistance to be obtained by doing the enumeration work would be of great benefit. The Veterans should get the appointments, but they will be left out in the cold if they do not put up a strong fight.

CANDID, AT LEAST.

Although the Review's editorial reference to the retirement of Mr. Burnham from the Unionist party may have seemed almost brutal in its candour, there is no doubt that our Hunter Street contemporary was expressing what have been for a long time the views of a very large section of the Conservative party. By the Review and the hide-bound Tories it professes to speak for the Union Government, has always been regarded as a means of winning the election of 1917 — although the Conservative press and Conservative orators professed to believe that it was formed to win the war, and said so on every possible occasion. Everyone remembers the nice things that were said of the Liberals who consented to enter the pseudo union. The Tory journals, the Review included, called them patriots, men who put their country before their politics, statesmen to whom Canada meant more than allegiance to a party standard. They were held up before the people of Canada as shining examples of real patriotism—before the election of 1917.

[illegible] dropped. [illegible] Newburn, [illegible] Liberals [illegible] as patriots. "Is it [illegible]" asks dion sponsor the cause and the futures of men who have been cast out by their former political associates, and against whose return the party doors have been closed? Will the retention of these men in the ranks bring any strength to the party with which they are now willing to identify themselves permanently, not as a matter of principle, but with political expediency as the sole inspiration for their action?"

With the Old Guard Tories the Liberal Unionists have lost their usefulness. They were needed to help carry the day in 1917 when the old Conservative administration was discredited and shaken. They they were patriots and statesmen. Now, overboard with them; they have served their day, and the Conservative politicians want no alien hand in the spoils of office. Out with Rowell and Carvell and the rest—that is the slogan that is sounding from the old-line Tories. Mr. Burnham and the local party organ have expressed with candid clearness just what the Tory clans in every riding are thinking.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier and those who fought on his side during the election campaign maintained that there was no real union. They were laughed at, jeered at by Government speakers and Government press. But in the light of the Review's candour, can there be any doubt but that the old chieftain was right? There never was the spirit of a true union. The Conservative members and their partisan supporters never for one moment were animated by sound principles of Unionism. The presence of Liberals in the Government was accepted as a political expedient—a manoeuvre that would help to win the election. Because armed with a club as they were in the War Time Election Act, they were not confident that they could win out without the names of Liberal leaders among the directorate. And ever since the election the Liberal-Unionists have been made to feel the resentment of the Tory private members. There is not even a pretence of concealment now, and so the local party organ calls for the heads of the Liberals. They could not win an election anywhere, the Review insinuates, and therefore must drop out and leave the field to the old-time Conservative party.

"The masses of the Canadian people are wearied unto the point of death with the old-time tactics," admits the Review in the course of this amazing article. This fact being granted, does our contemporary expect the country to receive with open arms the old Tory party, with its bungling and lack of progress, its suspicious connections with the big interests, and its records of mistakes and scandals?

THE FIGHT FOR THE LEAGUE.

President Wilson's message delivered in person to the United States Senate yesterday is the first shot in the impending battle for the ratification or rejection by the Senate of the Peace Treaty with its included covenant of the League of Nations. The result of that battle, as The Star pointed out on the day of the President's return, is of the most momentous consequences not only to the United States, but to the whole world. Mr. Wilson's conception of the League is of particular interest, since its origins are largely with him and he, warmly seconded by British influence at Paris, was mainly responsible for the inclusion of the covenant which decrees the birth of the League in the body of the Peace Treaty itself.

In it he sees the remedy for a sick world. Again and again the scourge of war had been followed by the futile dream of an enduring peace, futile because the security of the world lay ever at the mercy of illegitimate ambition backed by armed force. There was war because no overwhelming power existed which could defend and maintain peace. The Paris Council had before it two alternatives, either the creation of another series of balances backed by what Mr. Wilson aptly calls "humane theses" or the experimental course of attempting to build an organisation which would in time of crisis be able to transmute phrases into facts and, if necessary, threats into action.

There were, as Mr. Wilson points out, too many things wrong with the world to be set right by the creation of another balance. To whom could the world appeal for the sanction of some authority supreme over all other authority and backed by a power to make its orders good? Of what avail is it to cast out a devil if seven other devils worse than the first take its place? All through the ages men have made peace and striven to bind it with bits of silken ribbon and seals of wax, and all through the ages their wax and parchment peaces have gone up in flame because there has been no common counsel or common rule of conduct among the nations. The League idea is not merely the embodiment upon paper of an idealistic dream. It came because it had to come, or, as Mr. Wilson stated it yesterday, "what had seemed to the peace negotiators a counsel of perfection had come to seem a plain counsel of necessity."

It is not a mere phrase to say that the "world's heart would be broken" if the United States were to reject the plan to which its head has so strongly pledged himself. It would mean that with all history for its guidance, and with humanity yet upon the path to Golgotha, the world must be again compelled to try the old makeshift, outworn and eternally discredited patchwork of balance, adjustment and impotence. It would mean that the common counsel of the nations, formulating a code of common conduct and ranking that code good by the supreme authority of all mankind vested in it—that all this must be once again deferred until, once more in generations to come and after another and still more awful visitation of war, men of clearer vision and broader wisdom might succeed where we have failed.

The issue lies between those who believe that we of to-day can make the future safe for humanity, even though it be at the cost of some of our cherished shibboleths, of "sovereignty," and "independence," and those who would maintain the latter of these things and throw the burden of their maintenance and the preservation of world peace upon posterity. That is the fight that is being waged not only in the United States, but all over the world to-day.—Montreal Star.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

This was to have been a red-letter day—the date of beginning work on the Hunter Street Bridge. But you never know.

Mr. Burnham says he will not accept a Unionist nomination. What is that—a prophecy or a promise?

One of those civil servants whose work is not heavy might be given a job keeping the dust off the report of the Cost of Living Committee.

Some of the Orange fife and drum bands substituted patriotic airs like "The British Grenadiers" for the usual Twelfth music. They are to be congratulated upon their choice.

Voice Of The People

Dear Sir: — In view of the approaching referendum on prohibition would it not be well for us to look into the matter from every standpoint and try and arrive at an impartial and sane judgment on the question?

Has alcohol as a beverage any place in modern life? Can we in view of the great increase in mechanical transport, and the greater need of caution to avoid the multiplicity of dangers arising therefrom, put into the hands of the drivers of these vehicles, already in many instances far too reckless, the whiskey and the beer or wine bottle?

We hear specious arguments advanced by the advocates of liquor along the lines of personal liberty. Liberty, for what? To get drunk if they wish and drive an automobile, not only to his own injury or death, but to the common danger of every citizen in his road.

If our great transportation companies found it necessary even before prohibition to insist on abstinence for engine drivers, conductors, motormen, etc., and that when their conveyances were confined to steel tracks, how much more necessary is it to insist on abstinence for the drivers of autos, etc., which are under no such limitations, but driven by persons under the influence of liquor would mean danger to all.

Accidents fatal and otherwise are far too common under present conditions for any one to wish to see them increased, which they assuredly would be by opening the door for a return of the liquor regime.

This is a democratic age and we live in a democratic country, and the verdict must be given by the majority, but it is as well for the voter to know that every vote given for liquor in any form, means apart from the moral or economic question altogether a vote for an increase in the dangers on the streets already far too great through the reckless driving of careless persons, and consequently a corresponding insecurity of life and property.

I am confident that if the referendum unfortunately resulted in the reopening of the bars, it would bring in its wake such a crop of accidents that would appall us. This is an aspect of the question I have not seen brought forward but which I think should cause a voter to think twice before casting a vote for the reintroduction of liquor.

Yours, etc.,
GEO. LEADER.

IF FRENCH WON'T PAY, WILL SELL ELSEWHERE.

France Offers U.S. One-Fifth Cost of War Equipment; Refused.

WASHINGTON, July 13. — The French Government, having offered only $300,000,000 for American army equipment in France costing $1,500,000,000, the War Department has ordered a sales organization for disposal of the property formed in France. Director of Sales Hare told a special house committee investigating War Department expenditures abroad.

Mr. Hare, with a small party of industrial experts, will sail for Europe to begin their work abroad. Sales offices and organizations will be organized and maintained at various places throughout Europe, the director said, and much of the material may be returned to the United States.

"If France will not pay a fair figure," the director added, "we will take the stuff out of the country and sell it elsewhere."

"Those who think that music is one of the trifles of existence," said Gladstone, "are in a serious error, since from the earliest times it has been one of the most potent factors in [illegible] and forming character."

CANADA DRIFTING IN STORMY SEA WITH NO HAND AT THE HELM

AMERICAN FINDS THAT UNION GOVERNMENT HAS SCARCELY ANY FRIENDS EXCEPT THOSE WHO FEED DIRECTLY AT PUBLIC TROUGH.

A remarkable size-up of the political and industrial situation in Canada is contained in a recent number of the St. Louis Daily Globe Democrat, from the pen of John Lloyd Balderson. His article was written in Ottawa after returning from the European war fields and a tour of Great Britain and Ireland.

It certainly does not give Canada the best recommendation abroad, and though an impartial review of Canadian conditions, it is the writer's conviction, when all things are weighed, that Bordenism and the present Union Government are wholly responsible for conditions described as "serious" and "grave." The article was evidently prepared before the delivery of the budget, and it is on that account, the more remarkable in its prophecy:

The story follows:

OTTAWA. — Strange and disturbing rumors regarding Canada were afloat in London and Paris before I left Europe. The present coalition government, I was told, had purchased by advertising grants practically the entire press, landed the Dominion in a financial morass from which there is no escape, by a frenzied and stupid fiscal policy, and ruled the country by a system of arbitrary orders in council that not only set aside the authority of Parliament but in more than one case refused to citizens, whose property had been taken over by the state without legal proceedings, the right to lay their grievances before the courts.

"Canada," an eminent Canadian said to me in Paris, "is headed straight for bankruptcy and Bolshevism."

Having been told these things, I came to Ottawa to seek out the truth. I found that while the pessimists across the water had painted too black a picture, an amazing political situation does exist here.

Canada is drifting on a stormy sea, with no directing hand at the helm, and if she escapes piling up on the rocks it will be because of that genius for political navigation that the English and their offspring abroad have always developed when affairs seemed the most desperate.

Government Unpopular.

So far as my observation goes the present coalition government here has hardly a friend or a supporter left who does not directly or indirectly feed at the public trough. Officials of provincial governments and members of parliament from all over Canada have assured me that public anger has risen so high in all sections that an election to-morrow would sweep the whole Cabinet into oblivion.

Statesmen elected to support the coalition, political correspondents here representing strongly pro-government papers, almost all the people I saw, told the same story. Yet the present government, under the premiership of Sir Robert Borden, won a triumphant electoral victory on the conscription issue in 1917, and returned 153 members to the House of Commons against 82 Liberals.

Moreover, Parliament was elected for five years, until 1922, and even if, as most men here think, the state of opinion will compel an election within a year, the Liberal opposition has been left, by the death of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, without a chief, and is split into several contending parties, which may be unable to unite at a conference called for early in August in the hope of reaching an agreement upon a leader and a policy.

Accordingly a straight fight between the Liberal and Conservative parties, as in the past, may be impossible, and the old Canadian parties may seperate into various contending groups. The next House is likely to be made up at least at the outset, of a jumble of factions, each with a different solution for the gigantic problems that lie immediately ahead.

Whispers of Graft.

The ugly whispers of graft and corruption, the alleged methods by which the controlling powers secured the support of practically the whole Canadian daily press, the scandals about the orders-in-councils, are domestic matters that concern the people of Canada, and need not be too closely looked into by an outsider.

Indeed, there is one high compliment that may be paid in passing to these much-abused government officials; they appear to be raising a large and handsome capitol in Ottawa to replace the one that was burned during the war without causing a suspicion that anybody is getting a penny he isn't entitled to.

But the financial situation of the Dominion, whose gravity appears to be appreciated in London but overlooked across the border, is of great moment to the American people, whose commercial relations with Canada seem destined to grow rapidly and enormously.

Before the war Canada's public debt was about $337,000,000 upon which interest, or about $15,000,000 was paid. Out of the financial condition existing at present I have obtained from one of the leading experts of the country an estimate that from now on Canada's war bill yearly will amount to more than $179,000,000, including about $30,000,000 for pensions. Canada must raise somehow fifteen times as much money as before the war.

Two Billions Debt.

The net public debt of the country at the end of this year will be in the neighborhood of $2,000,000,000, and in addition, interest must be paid on hundreds of millions of railroad bonds guaranteed or held by the government, for with the exception of the Canadian Pacific, nearly all the railroads in the country are in very serious difficulties.

Gigantic expenses were necessarily incurred in the great war in which Canadians fought so well, and it is not so much the size of the bill as the method of financing adopted that makes the present situation look so serious, and causes Sir Thomas White to be abused even by some of his nominal supporters. Approximately $700,000,000 of Canadian securities were taken outside the country, and the $1,300,000,000 which Canada owes to her own people is outstanding in the form of war bonds issued at 5 and 5 1-2 per cent., not subject to income taxation.

Taxation a Big Problem.

Where is Canada to raise her income? Already the prairie provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, with eyes across the border, are clamoring for a reduction of the tariff. Many Liberals told me that the present tariff is so high as to reduce the revenues because on many articles it is prohibitive.

According there can be little more revenue expected from the tariff. An income tax about one-sixth as heavy as the American nominally exists, but does not seem to be taken very seriously, one of the most prominent politicians in the country informing me in the present of a third party that he has not paid his tax and has no intention of doing so.

All factions are agreed that to meet her obligations Canada must impose and collect a real income tax, modelled on those existing in Britain and the United States. There is no other way, except a capital levy, to get the money. The present government has shown no signs of enforcing a heavy income tax, nor has it brought forward and solution of the revenue question.

Pessimists say that there is no solution, because a big income tax cannot be collected with $1,300,000,000 worth of non-taxable bonds outstanding. The very fact that they are non-taxable has caused the richer classes, who would otherwise ultimately have to pay heavy supertax, to buy war bonds to the limit of their ability.

Repudiation is Advocated.

"What is the answer?" I asked men of both parties. How serious the situation is regarded is shown by the fact that repudiation, not abroad, but at home, was seriously discussed by some. It was argued that to repudiate the whole $1,300,000,000 owned in Canada would be a blessing in disguise to all excepting the rich, even though the few hundred or thousand dollars in bonds held by the average citizen went up in smoke with the rest.

"If you asked me," said a capital corrrespondent of a Conservative paper, "whether I would rather hold my few bonds and pay taxes on a hundred and seventy-five million yearly interest bill, or sacrifice my bonds, and lop off two thirds of my taxes, is there any doubt that the latter would be best for me?"

But this somewhat Bolshevik solution finds favor only among the extremely radical element, and there are many more sober men who desire that Sir Thomas White's non-taxable proviso be withdrawn by Parliament, so that the rich bondholders must pay income tax on his bonds. They criticize the Finance Minister for not following the example of the United States in the later Liberty loans, which are subject to income tax.

White's position has been that taxable bonds could not have been successfully floated in Canada. An example of the existing mental confusion on the taxation question was the statement to me by a member of the cabinet of British Columbia that his provincial government proposes to collect taxes on the income from these tax-exempt war bonds, whatever the government at Ottawa may say. At present the credit of the province of Quebec stands higher than Dominion credit.

Industrial Unrest Wide.

Industrial unrest exists on a wide scale throughout the country. In the east it centres in Toronto, where Bolshevik orators are cheered by crowds in spite of the fact that wages continue high and little unemployment exists. These agitators, I was assured during a short stay in Toronto, are not men from across the border but come from England or Wales.

In the west conditions are more disturbing. Winnipeg is a centre of Red propaganda. The worst labor situation in the Dominion is on the coast, where the breakdown of the Seattle strike does not seem to have discouraged the Bolshevik agitators among the miners and lumber men to the north of the frontier.

"I expect serious fighting in British Columbia by autumn," a man highly placed in that province said me. "One of the leaders of the Bolsheviks told me two weeks ago that the government was to be taken over by the Soviets in September. 'What are you going to do to me?' I asked, and he said, 'You are all right. We'll let you go; but a lot of officials in this government we're going to nail down to their own office desks.'"

This grotesque threat was repeated by my informant with the comment that he could not explain Bolshevism in his district, since wages are higher than ever before and there are jobs enough to go around.

Returned Soldiers to Lead.

Apparently the concensus of opinion is that whether industrial unrest in Canada becomes extremely serious or dies down depends in great measure upon the returned soldier, whose attitude will give the lead to his stay-at-home comrades. If this is true, Canada has not much to fear, in my opinion.

I have been with the Canadian corps in France during some of its hardest fighting and it was the intelligence and discipline as well as bravery of the private in the ranks that made the Canadians, as I believe, the best corps in the British army. Men of this stamp do not turn into Bolshevists overnight.

General Sir Arthur Currie, commander of the Canadians in France, is pected back with the last of his veterans during the summer and Liberals are turning to him as a possible political leader. General Currie, in peace time, was not a man of great importance and never took a prominent part in politics, but he has always been a Liberal, and read an address of welcome to Sir Wilfrid Laurier in British Columbia nine years ago.

Now, returning with the laurels of Vimy and Cambrai on his brow to find his country discontented with a coalition that seems to be turning more and more into an avowed Conservative government, General Currie can undoubtedly play a big part in Canadian politics if so inclined.

Quebec Political Issue.

Quebec with its French population, and its religious question, is more a political issue than ever before, due to the bitterness aroused by the failure of that province to supply its share of soldiers for the war. I hesitate to repeat a terrible charge against agents or supporters of the present government, but that charge was made to me not only by Quebec men but by Liberals from all over the Dominion, and by not a few nominal Conservatives, and will play a great part in the coming election.

As a political move, it is charged that recruiting in Quebec was deliberately discouraged from early in the war. As I sat in the temporary capitol in Ottawa and listened to incidents bearing on this allegation the parallel with Ireland appeared complete; Joe Devlin had told me in Belfast almost identical similar stupidities (or worse) attributed to the war offices in London.

While Sir Wilfrid Laurier was trying to raise French regiments, his opponents circulated placards bearing the legend "Borden Backs Britain While Laurier Lacks Loyalty", commissions were refused wherever possible to the French and Catholic soldiers; a Presbyterian minister was appointed chief recruiting officer in Montreal, with its almost exclusively Catholic population. All these stories were told me here; exactly by similar things happened in Nationalist Ireland. The result in both cases was the same; early support of the war and enthusiasm turned to sullen discontent.

WHEN YOU LAY YOUR PAPER ASIDE

After you've read the news, have you gotten all the valuable information out of it? Not until you have read the advertisements.

Reading the advertisements should be as much a part of your day as reading the news columns.

The advertisements in your favorite newspaper are a daily record of what your local merchants have laid in store to meet your needs and add to your comfort.

They tell you what the manufacturers of these goods, who are constantly striving to please the public, have done to add to your advantages and comforts. The news, while always interesting, may often concern you only in a general way.

The advertisements are almost certain to tell you something that may mean a great deal to your home life or your business and social welfare.

PERSONAL LIBERTY AND TEMPERANCE LEGISLATION, BY REV. ROBERT POGUE

INTERESTING SERMON IN ST. PAUL'S CHURCH LAST EVENING.

In the course of a sermon based upon the text, "If the son shall make you free ye shall be free indeed," the Rev. R. Pogue had some things to say last night in St. Paul's church bearing upon the matter of personal liberty in realtion to drinking. He said in part:

"There is nothing that men love more than they do freedom. It is an instinct of our nature. It is not only true of men, it is true of every living thing. You cannot imprison life anywhere without it showing a desire for liberty. You may imprison the seed of a tree in the cleft of a rock, and yet it will take root and spring up and struggle towards the sunshine in its desire to live its life in its natural element, the air. You may imprison a bird and it will express its desire for liberty by beating itself against the bars of its cage. You may imprison your puppie dog in its kennel and it will yelp all night in protest against the bars that confine it. Now, the desire of the human heart for liberty is just as natural as the desire of all living things for liberty. It is a God-implanted desire, planted deep in our nature when we come from the hands of our Creator.

True Freedom.

But what is true freedom? What is the freedom of which Christ speaks? Is it the same as that for which men of evil life raise so loud a cry, men who form themselves into liberty leagues throughout the country, and who ask for the privilege of doing their own sweet will irrespective of the claims and rights of others? Is that freedom? Is freedom the privilege of doing just as you please? Let us be careful here in our definitions, careful to understand what the nature of true freedom really is. An individual is free when he lives the life which God intended he should live. He is free when he realizes, the highest purpose of his existence. He is freest when his life is of the most value to himself and others. Freedom is not a something which may be considered apart from others. I am free, for example, to extend my arms to-night to their full length and do what I please with them so long as there is no one else within reach. But I am not free, to thrust my fist in another man's face. My freedom ends at the point of his nose. So that in defining what true freedom is we have to take into consideration the relation of our conduct to others. It cannot be considered apart from the well being of others.

The colt in the field kicks up its heels and runs whither-so-ever it wills. It has freedom of a kind. But that is not the purpuose of the existence of such a noble creature as the horse. The horse is intended to be the servant of man. He is intended to be of service unto the world. And in order to be of service he has to be taken from the field and have his and bridle subjection to the will of man. The horse is never so free as when he has been brought to do the bidding of his master, as when he walks along the straight furrow, or speeds along the roadway conveying his master to his desired destination. That is a much higher freedom than the freedom of the colt in the field.

I paid a visit recently to one of our farmers in the country. He was driving a beatiful team of horses behind a disc harrow. As they walked along with their heads in the air doing the will of their master and preparing the soil for the seed they were the very embodiment of true liberty. He left them standing for a moment behind the house while he came around and sat down for a chat with me on the verandah. In a moment he heard a noise, and, hastening to see what was the matter. We saw the team of horses running madly away with the disc harrow behind them. Soon the harrow was broken. Then they dashed against a fence as though the rails were nothing but cobwebs, in their wild dash for liberty and freedom.

That is a liberty of a very different kind to the liberty of free obedience to the will of their master. And that is the kind of liberty exactly that a certain type of peopel are crying for who are organising themselves into Personal Liberty Leagues. They are asking for the privilege of running amuck through the streets of civilization and doing whatsoever they please irrespective of the effect of their wild conduct upon themselves or those with whom they come in contact. That is the Bolshevist's idea of liberty. He wishes to free himself from the incumbernances of the traces and harness of civilization, and, regardless of how his conduct may affect his neighbour, he wants the privilege of doing his own sweet will.

Not Liberty.

Needless to say that is not liberty; that is license, and it is a license which a society that believes in its own preservation, and which believes not only in the greatest good to the greatest number, but the highest good of all, will refuse to acquiesce in. The reason why a high civilization passes prohibitory laws is because it wishes to secure the highest good of all its citizens. So it will not permit a man to engage in a business that will endanger somebody else. It goes farther than that, and it says that if a man will not protect himself and will not render the highest service of which he is capable to society, it will withhold from him that which is interfering with his usefulness and with his best service. Society therefore, says that a man is not free to drink what he pleases, and that for two reasons: First of all he is not free to drink if the indulgence of his appetite in any way interferes with the well being of society. No man has the right, in order to gratify his own thirst, or his own appetite, to demand that an institution shall be maintained on the street corner that may work injury to other parts of the community. And not only that, he has no right to gratify his appetite or his thirst if in so doing he himself may, in any way, be a burden upon the community. He cannot make another pay for his indulgence. Nor, indeed, has he the right to the indulgence of his own appetite if that indulgence is going to interfere with the highest and best service which he owes to his family and to the community in which he is a citizen.

PENITENTIARY FACES MORE GRAVE CHARGES

Convict Made to Take Bit in Mouth at Stony Mountain.

WINNIPEG, July 12.—A formal demand for an investigation of the conditions at Stony Mountain Penitentiary, is made in a letter sent to the Department of Justice by Ward Hollands, of a leading Winnipeg lawyer.

This letter alleges, among other charges that a convict was forced to put a horse bit in his mouth and that he bit was pulled from behind until the convict's mouth was torn, that one of the convicts bears wounds from the teeth of a dog owned by the warden, and that convicts were punished until the prison doctor ordered punishment abated.

SUNKEN EYES BRIGHTEN QUICKLY, HEALTH RETURNS

In a Message to Ailing Women Doctor Hamilton Tells How It Is Done.

In speaking of the ills from which women suffer, Dr. Hamilton points out that nine out of every ten women are by nature inclined to habitual constipation. Harsh purgatives are resorted to which only intensify the trouble. Although not generally known, it is a constipated condition of the bowels that causes half the sickness and tired weariness with which all womankind is so familiar. It was after long years of study that Dr. Hamilton perfected the pills which have been of such marvellous benefit to women the world over. In his pills of Mandrake and Butternut every sufferer will find an absolute specific for constipation, sick headache, and biliousness. It is safe to say that Dr. Hamilton's Pills bring better health and keep the system in a more vigorous condition than any other medicine ever discovered. At all dealers, in 25c boxes.

THE CHAUTAUQUA CAME TO A CLOSE SATURDAY EVENING

AUSTRALIAN TELLS OF AWFUL HARDSHIPS IN GALLIPOLI CAMPAIGN.

STORY OF GOAT

The tragedy of the Gallipoli expedition with all the attendant slaughter and hardship when the British sought to take Constantinople, is told with a vividness and strength of description simply marvellous by one who was there and took part. Signaller Tom Skeyhill, an Australian, who gave on address at the Chautauqua which closed here Saturday evening.

Had the Allied troops been in a position to follow up the several advantages which they won from the Turks against dreadful odds, they would have got to Constantinople without a doubt, is his contention, but the Allied losses were so terrible that they had not sufficient men to hold their postions and were compelled to fall back.

No Such a Bad Fellow

"The Turk is not such a bad fellow, though," said Skeyhill. "Take the Germans away from him and he's all right. He fought us clean. We had no kick. He took and gave like a real soldier and was all right in spite of some things. You know the Turks could never surprise us, because we'd smell him coming, and I tell you there was a pretty time about that, too.

"Our Indian troops being Mohammedans, woudn't eat the unregenerate meat of their white brothers, so they brought their own meal along—goats. You know what goats are. Well, it started a controversy that spread all over the Allied armies, which smelt the worse, the Turks or the goats. Say, that thing got so big and widespread that it pretty nearly demoralized the whole army. Everybody was arguing and forgetting about what they were there for. And one day one of our Australians went to the general about it. And the general became quite exercised. 'What's all this rot about" he wanted to know 'Say I'll fix it. Bring me one of each a goat and a Turk.'

"Well", said Skeyhill, "they brought a goat first and the general fainted. Then they brought a Turk and the goat fainted."

Speaking of the speed of some of the operations in Gallipoli. Skeyhill told how one day the Australians were ordered to join the French a mile or so ahead. It was an open plain, as bare and level as a billiard table, without cover of any kind. Loaded down with their heavy equipment, a rifle in one hand and a spade in the other, the men were ordered to get across he open in the best they could. It was simple murder, for as they ran and tried to dodge the Turks on the heights shot them down a will.

Sobbing With Fatigue

"And just about beat and sobbing with fatigue we reached the French line,' 'said Skeyhill, "and not ten minutes later came the order: 'The whole allied line will charge.' "We had to get up and go it again," said Skeyhill.

In spite of all the hardships, he said the troops were always cheerful and happy. There was never any grumbling heard. The soldiers were true fighters and took things as they came. "And I believe every man who fell in battle is in heaven to-day," said he solemnly.

He didn't refer to the western front except more to mention it in passing, but in doing so he incidentally took occasion to pay a little compliment on the United States troops.

"Uncle Sam's boys took quite a time to get here, but when they did to use one of their own expressions—oh, boy."

Skeyhill said though he had been shot and bayonetted he had no hymn of hate against the enemy. He had given and taken and was quite satisfied. He was there for the same thing, and they were ready to accept what was coming.

The speaker closed his address by giving a few of his poems some humourous and others with the pathos of war running through them. Signaller Skeyhill again and again in his poems reiterates his belief that when a soldier dies at the front he goes straight to Heaven. This characteristic of writings he did not notice until an admirer brought his attention to the fact.

Member of the Group.

Skeyhill is or was a member of a group of twenty poets who called themselves the New Elizabethans and numbered the best poets of three continents in their ranks. The celebrated Rupert Brooke, who died at Gallipoli was a member of the New Elizabethans.

After finishing his Chautauqua contract Signaller Skeyhill leaves for England to attend Christchurch College, Oxford University, which was made possible by the restoration of his eyesight by an osteopath in the United States. He was blinded at the front and awoke in hospital to find that he could not distinguish day from night. Two years he remained thus until the light of day and complete sight was brought back to him.

Jubilee Singers.

During the evening the Fisk Jubilee Singers an organization with a world-wide reputation, rendered a delightful programme, which was conceded to be the best musical offering of the entire Chautauqua programme. The programme was varied to such an extent as to suit all tastes, and the work of the soloists, as well as the chorus was of the highest standard of excellence. Their voices blended beautifully, and the harmony was so delightful to the ear that it still lingers with those who were fortunate enough to be present.

PRICES HIGHER IN PETERBORO

Peterborough, 14th July, 1919.

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Sir,—In looking over the retail prices of articles of consumption in the May number of the Government Labour Gazette, I notice Peterborough heads the list seven times out of nine articles quoted below:

	Peterboro'.	Kitchener.	Kingston.	Hamilton
Beef	40	38	32	35
Bacon	49	50	45	45
Sugar	11.1	11.1	11	10.8
Coal Oil	28	26	25	23
Coal	$12.00	$11.75	$11.50	$10.50
Potatoes	$1.50	$1.25	$1.75	$1.40
New Cheese	33	35	32	34
Starch	14	12	12	12
Dairy Butter	65	58	58	60

Perhaps the Retail Merchants Committee of the Board of Trade could throw some light on this extra cost of living in Peterborough. It certainly would be interesting to the consumer to know why this is so. It would be a source of satisfaction to the community.—Yours, CONSUMER.

THE HUNTER STREET CAMPAIGN

The big meeting held in the tent on Hunter Street last evening in the union evangelistic campaign was full of interest from start to finish. The tent was filled to overflowing, and Evangelist H. D. Kennedy gave one of the most searching addresses he has yet delivered. Originally it was thought that probably the meetings would run for the four weeks, concluding last night. So much interest has been aroused in the meetings that a vote of the audience was taken last evening, with the result that it was decided to continue the meetings till next Wednesday night at least. Including the conversions that took place last night, about 50 conversions have been recorded to date, and many more are expected. Included in the audience last evening was a party of 16 from Oshawa, who visited the city specially to hear Mr. Kennedy, who is well known in Oshawa, where he conducted a special campaign some months ago. There is a great deal of psychology in the handling of an evangelistic campaign. Mr. Kennedy seems to be a master of this side of the subject. He often asks his audiences to do things without explaining his purpose, yet there is a purpose behind it. Unconverted people, when they enter such a meeting as was held last night, do so with their mind made up to resist any appeal that may be made to them. Last evening during the singing of one of the songs, Mr. Kennedy asked everybody to shake hands first with the neighbour on their right, next with their neighbour on the left and finally with the person standing behind them. Nearly everybody did so, although there was considerable laughter and diffidence about it. A little later he asked all present to do as he did. He then raised his hands over his head, and as the verse of the hymn was sung kept time with his hands. Such tactics as these break up the stiffness of a meeting and prepare the audience for the gospel message in a way that only those who have studied the effect of such practices can best appreciate.

Forward Move.

On several occasions at the beginning of the campaign Mr. Kennedy asked certain of the Christians present to come forward for one purpose or another. This was to prepare them for the meetings later in the campaign, so that they would move quickly and assist new converts in going to the front. Often a convert hesitates to go forward alone, but is ready to go forward among a number of Christians. Christians who at first hesitated to fall in with Mr. Kennedy's requests have done so willingly since they have learned the purpose that was behind it. Last evening, as the audience was large and people were sitting close together, Mr. Kennedy asked every lady who had paid for her hat if she would mind removing it. After such a request it was not to be wondered at that there was a ready response to his appeal. From the start of the present campaign no collections have been taken up on week nights. Instead, a quiet canvass has been conducted among the Christian people of the city for the several hundred dollars of funds required to meet the expenses of the campaign. Last evening the chairman announced that the committee was going to be able to pay all expenses in full promptly at the close of the campaign. A few more subscriptions are required to enable the committee to do this, but it is believed that these will be forthcoming. Many of the chief bills have already been paid.

Subjects of Addresses.

As this week may see the close of the campaign, considerable interest is being taken in the subjects that are to be discussed. To-night Mr. Kennedy will speak on "The Heart of the Gospel." Two weeks ago he gave this address in the morning in St. Paul's Church. It made such an impression, in most cases favourable, but in a few cases unfavourable, that he has been asked to repeat it tonight, and by special request again night. To-morrow night Mr. Kennedy will speak on the "Second Coming." There was quite an array of ministers on the platform last night, those present including Revs. Rose of Mark Street Church, Greatrix, Webb, Malloy, Pogue, and Thomas. A solo was rendered very effectively by Mr. Mulligan.

THE RULES FOR A MODEL HUSBAND

A husband should know enough about the rearing of children, and the work of the house, to be independent if his wife dies, or goes home to mother, or takes to politics.

The average man is a pitiful sort of a boob when left alone with the children. And there is no excuse for him not knowing where the safety pins go in the clothes of little brother, or where the flour bin is, or what the china dish cloth is on earth for.

A man can learn to cook his own meals in much less time than it takes to master golf, and washing dishes is not much harder than going fishing.

Indeed the husband can put on and take off the family wash, and who knows the distinction between boiling the white clothes and not boiling the colored clothes, may easily save himself a lot of grief, and several round ten dollar pieces.

The husband who can make bread, and turn out a batch of cookies, and achieve a custard pie with a decent bottom crust, has the edge on his brethren, who eat from a can when their wives are away, and who, in desperation, acquire another perfectly needless wife when number one goes to heaven, or the divorce court.

The man who can once a week take charge of the evening meal and leave the pantry as he found it besides, will be a happy husband.

LINSEED OIL DEARER.

Linseed oil is again featured in the changes which have taken place, says Hardware and Metal, prices going up from 20c to 30c per gallon, and in one instance 50c per gallon. This is a direct reflection of the soaring tendency of flaxseed, which has passed the $6 figure. Predictions were made a month ago that $5 flax would be reached—another dollar has been added to it, and still the end does not appear to be in sight. Crushers, however, are loath to make any predictions and buyers from pobber to retailer are only taking delivery of what they consider they need.

Turpentine shows no change locally but a stiffer market has developed in the South, due to the entry into the market of buyers from overseas again. The crop is not going to be any too ample, and the firm situation now developing is expected to be maintained.

WILL HOLD A MONSTER PICNIC

A monster picnic under the auspices of the Salvation Army will be held at Nicholl's Oval on Saturday, July 19 (Peace Day) for all returned soldiers and their dependants. A long list of prizes provided the Salvation Army bearing the whole of the expense.

The committee in charge of arrangements is—Adjutant and Mrs. Buntin, Sergt.-Major F. Coudy, Bandsman and Mrs. Badley, Bandsman F. Robinson, Songster Leader Will Ford, Treasurer, John Cunningham, Secretary Mary Yost.

For sports wear is a skirt of oyster-white pongee with a blouse of gray tricolette.

Some of the new materials are reminiscent of the fashions of the eighteen-forties.

The average man is to be seen everywhere—except in the mirror.

Music In The Home

"I am not ready to admit that there is such a thing as an unmusical child, if the term is used to denote a child in whom there is a susceptibility to a musical appeal." This pointed assertion was made by W. O. Meissner, Music Director of the State Normal School, Milwaukee, in the course of an address before the convention of the National School Music Supervisors. A child brought up in an English-speaking family in un-French and un-Italian because he cannot read these languages, continued Mr. Meissner. Likewise if the language of music is not spoken in the home and the school, the child is quite likely to be unmusical. It is all a question of opportunity and environment whether or not one is able to understand and enjoy the beautiful and universal language of music. "The plea I want to make," said the speaker, "is that we offer to every child the opportunity to know music—to democratize music by teaching it at public expense in all its branches, instrumental as well as vocal, in classes, like all other subjects. Let us give music, the best we have, to all of the people, all of the time. A community which has become truly musical will have become a better place to live in and will find life worth while.

"It is undeniable that music should be placed on the same basis as other subjects, both in the public schools and higher institutions of learning. The parents of a child having a marked talent and inclination for music should not be forced to pay for private lessons in his chosen art, while students of mechanical engineering, or agriculture, or domestic science or sewing are taught in the public schools free of charge.

"The still subordinate place accorded music in public schools is largely due to a narrowness of vision on the part of the musical educators themselves. They have been content to offer elementary group instruction and have overlooked the individual child. I would prefer to divide children into four classes, musically: First, the genius, the future artist, with demonstrated musical talent; second, the child with a strong liking for music, the future amateur; third the child with a passive interest, the future layman; fourth, the child who displays no musical interest whatsoever.

"The first class should have the advantage of a specialized training at public expense in whatever branch they are best fitted for. The same privileges should be provided for children of the second class, only the time they devote to music should be restricted somewhat and more time given to other subjects. Probably 50 per cent of the girls, and a great many boys in the high schools could learn to play acceptably upon some instrument if given the opportunity, especially in the elementary grades.

"For the third class I would offer such opportunities as are found everywhere today — elementary knowledge required to play simple music of sight, and music appreciation, including an acquaintance with the world's musical masterpieces, its great composers and its musical history.

"As for the unmusical child, practically all of them would become musical when surrounded with music. If any of them were found still untouched by the appeal of music after they had been taught several years, they should be allowed to drop the subject and devote all their time to other studies more to their liking."

BRIEF AND BREEZY.

A chorus is a true democracy — all sorts and conditions of people joining together for the single purpose of bringing to life the inspiration of gifted composers.

Give music a definite place in your home. Let the little ones chatter their little songs. Teach them motion songs. Turn their games into musical games.

Never frown on toy musical instruments. Let the children have their whistles, kazoos, toy pianos, jew's harps, mouth-organs, etc. They are only forerunners of something better.

Well done! It is announced that a prominent business man has presented one of the High Schools in Cincinnati with a $15,000 pipe organ. May his tribe increase!

It is a wholesome thing to put one's self under the discipline of a good choral conductor, to sink your personality into his, for he momentarily represents the composer, and to study music for music's sake, without hope of reward beyond the pleasure and the profit you derive from it.

It is a worthy thing to develop a musical artist in your home; it is a worthy thing to encourage every person in the home to express their deepest feelings in song. If, on occasion, you cannot sing let someone else sing or play for you by putting a suitable record on the phonograph.

Never under any circumstances roll your music—use a flat portfolio. The music roll is an abomination, a delusion and a snare. Have some folders made of stout smooth manila paper, the proper size (some 22x14 in., some 22x12 1-2 in., and some 18 1-2x12 1-2 in. (this last named size is now becoming much in use), and if you have any octavo choir music, some 10x14 in.)— and put each piece in such a folder, writing the name neatly on the outside of each, near the top edge. It is much better to have a regular music cabinet with shallow drawers where you can keep your pieces where you can always find them. Have some form of classification which will make it easy for you to find what you want without much hunting.

INSPIRATION.

More goes into the making of music than the mere wish to write something, which unfortunately seems to be the usual motive. There is a little old fashioned word "inspiration" which still sometimes has some significance, though business men and others sometimes are trying tohunt it out of the dictionary. Without what it stands for, we fall short in our efforts. It seems that we cannot pause long enough in our occupations to hear this "still small voice" which comes only to those in a mood to listen. Hence springs in large measure the present artistic chaos — a state of things which could be easily remedied

In Denmark they have discovered that music is a great aid to other studies. In the High Schools, the students sing one or two songs before the commencement of every lecture and very often afterwards.

MR. HALL SAYS COUNCIL WILL HAVE TO PAY FOR BRIDGE FOLLY

Sir: The large taxpayers of Peterboro who retained me to take proceedings to quash any bylaw that authorized the construction of this bridge on a cost plus plan or on a basis that exceeded $260,000.00 voted by the ratepayers as the total cost, have decided to take no action to force the council to accede to their demands.

Several weeks have elapsed since the facts were drawn to the attention of the ratepayers, and owing to the indifference or lack of interest on the part of the general taxpayers, my clients have decided to take no action.

They consider that the bridge could be constructed for over $100,000.00 less than it will ultimately cost, and that if the ratepayers who are the real sufferers, are prepared to take this loss with full knowledge, then this small fractional minority are content to pay their share of the extravagant and unnecessary arch and monument to be erected to the memory and folly of the Mayor and Council of 1919.

The Board of Trade was requested to call a meeting to discuss the Hunter street bridge question, but its executive officers decided not to do so. Many of its members may not know this, but such is the fact. To save $100,000.00 to the city may be too small an item to consider in these days of extravagance and waste.

The facts are very simple. The ratepayers of Peterboro authorized the Mayor and Council to erect a bridge over the river at Hunter street to cost $260,000.00. The Dominion Government made a contribution of $50,000.00 as a part of this expenditure, or with the grants $300,000.00.

It is not necessary that any ratepayer should now intervene to protect the ratepayers from a breach of trust. The Council may go on and complete their breach of trust, and when the work is done, an action may be brought against any and all members of the Council who have acquiesced in this breach of trust, and hold them personally responsible.

They may laugh and jeer (as some of them have done) but by so doing they are only courting individual loss to themselves that they richly deserve.

My own advice is to let the Mayor and Council proceed with their own illegal acts and take the personal consequences of their own folly, and, like other delinquents pay for their own mistakes.

Yours truly,
R. R. HALL.

IT'S QUITE TRUE

POETIC MALADY AFFECTS ANOTHER READER.

To the Editor of the Examiner,—

Dear Mr. Editor:—Having read your two poems, entitled "His Mistake," (author unknown) I guess it was rightly named and "A. E. A. M. July 20th" (author not signed) it made me turn a poemist too.

However, my luck was out; as whilst I stood trembling on the editoral door mat outside your office, I felt nervous somehow—so I hesitated to venture further. The office boy seeing my predicament rushed to the rescue. I at once produced my poem for his perusal, and expected congratulations. To my horror and surprise he informed me that the Editor had received six new bricks, and a base ball bat that morning, and intended to use them on the first spring poet appearing before him in July or August. Another thing he advised me to do, i. e, to carry a cigar or two in one hand and the poem in the other, as it meant "safety first" and would be taken into consideration by the Editor whilst reading the poem. Unfortunately I had not a cigar with me and that is the reason you did not get my poem.

Will you kindly inform me if it is true about the bricks and the base ball bat across I venture into your office with my poem and oblige.

Yours.
Mayor of "Ourtown"

P. S.—The office boy informed me that he thought Walter, the town plasterer; was the author of one poem—but my poem was worser than his.

WAS CURED BY A SMALL OPERATION

SIGNALLER SKEYHILL, WHO LECTURED HERE SATURDAY, HAD SIGHT RESTORED.

No one in Peterboro was more interested in the visit to this city of Signaller Thomas Skeyhill, the Australian poet and orator, who lectured at the Chautauqua on Saturday night, than Dr. Walmsley, the local osteopath. Dr. Walmsley's interest in this wonderful speaker is easily understood when it is known that Signaller Skeyhill, who had lost his sight by reason of a shell explosion at Gallipoli, was completely restored by an osteopathic operation, performed by a friend and former class mate of Dr. Walmsley, Dr. R. D. Moore of Washington. The operation, a simple one on the vertebrae of the neck, was described in the Examiner last August as a matter of news, although at that time there was no thought that the soldier in question would ever visit Peterboro.

Tan, Red or Freckled Skin is Easily shed

To free your summer- soiled skin of its muddiness, freckles, blotches or tan, the best thing to do is to free yourself of the skin itself. This is easily accomplished by the use of ordinary mercolized wax, which you use at night as you use cold cream washing it off in the morning. Immediately the offending surface skin begins to come off in fine powder-like particles. Gradually the entire outer scarf skin is absorbed, without the least harm or inconvenience. The second layer of skin now in evidence presents a spotless whiteness and sparkling beauty obtainable in no other way. One ounce of mercolized wax usually is sufficient to completely renovate a bad complexion.

PASSING THOUGHTS ON SCHOOL MUSIC.

Teachers like to have pupils for the period following the singing period. The children are then more alert and more responsive.

Children should be encouraged in those recreations that they can continue with pleasure and profit when they become adults. Does anything fit that case like music?

Credit for music study, under certain prescribed conditions, is allowed in the regular school courses by the educational authorities in such cities as Boston, New York, Washington, Pittsburg, Cincinnati and many others.

PORTLAND MAN HAS GAINED 18 POUNDS

A. M. ERSKINE WAS RELIEVED OF RHEUMATISM—OTHER TREATMENTS HAD FAILED.

"I have not only been completely relieved of a bad case of rheumatism by taking the Tanlac treatment, but have also gained eighteen pounds in weight, so you may know by that what I think of the medicine," said A. M. Erskine, of 8130-84th street Southeast, Portland, Ore., to a Tanlac representative recently. Mr. Erskine is employed by the Northwest Steel and Shipbuilding Co.

"I began to suffer with rheumatism about ten months ago," continued Mr. Erskine, "I was in Vancouver at the time, helping to build the Standerfer Shipbuilding plant, and I first noticed it in my left knee. The pain felt more like neuralgia than anything else, but it kept getting worse all the time and finally shifted from my knee to my hip and at times I would have it in my back and then in the muscles of the calf of my leg That part of my leg seemed to be troubled the most and the muscles just felt all the time like the skin had been torn and like a hot mustard plaster had been put on the spot. At times, I also suffered with sharp shooting pains that would run up and down my leg and I just couldn't walk any distance without my leg giving out enirely. When this would happen I would just have to stop and rest and sometimes the pain would be awfully bad it looked like it would cut off my breath. Sometimes abut the only way I could get any rest at nights would be to use hot applications and I suffered such agony for eight months and got in such bad shape that I fell off in weight from 145 pounds down to 130 pounds, and, while I kept at work, I was certainly in a bad way and would feel all fagged out when I would get home in the evenings. I took different treatments and medicines but I might just as well have taken so much drinking water for all the relief I got.

"I had been reading so much about Tanlac and what it was doing for others, that I decided to try it and I hadn't been taking the Tanlac treatment relieved me of my rheumatism entirely. I not only got rid of the rheumatism but got back all the weight I had lost and three pounds more besides. I am working fine every day now and never have that wornout, draggy feeling that used to trouble me. I am certainly glad to give this statement for the sake of others that are suffering with rheumatism, because I know what Tanlac has done in my case."

Tanlac is sold in Peterborough by W. B. Warne Drug C. Ltd., in Havelock by A. C. Denike, in Lakefield by Tanner Drug Co. Ltd., in Fowlers Corners by W. A. Hunter, in Gelert by A. J. Scott, in Westwood by G. Pringle & Son.

DOES ADVERTISING PAY?

Many advertisers, and particularly retail advertisers, never get the full cumulative power of advertising behind their business because they lack patience. They demand direct returns. They run a one-time announcement in the local paper to-day and look for sales enough—sales directly traceable to the little one-time advertisement—before next week to pay for the cost of the space. Of course they are disappointed. Retail advertising seldom works out that way. But they are impatient for results. They are not prepared to invest money in advertising as they would in new goods, in store fixtures, in stocks or in real estate—and wait for profits to be earned. No. The returns of to-day's advertising must ring in cash profits to-morrow, or, in the estimation of too many retail dealers, the advertising is not worth what it costs.

Hand-to-mouth advetising is not worth what it costs. It yields only hand-to-mouth returns. To show the best results as a business building power, the advertising of the retail merchant must be persistent. Its chief purpose should be to build up permanent trade; to make the people of your community turn to your store in preference to other stores; to make them think of you and of your place of business; to convince them that they cannot get better quality and price and service anywhere.

"Would you advise a sixty-inch advertisement in the newspaper once a week or six ads. covering ten inches of space each week?" was one of the questions asked.

"I would advise six ads., one each day, or, better still, three twenty--inch ads. each week." replied the advertiser.

"Anything that is desirable is advertisable," he said, and pointed out that the desirability of an article depends much on the consistency with which it is advertised.

"One of the best ways to advertise is to cultivate the customers you have acquired and they will assist you in your advertising."

His final message was: "Advertise and get out and prosper."

BRITAIN SORRY WHITE QUITS

Is Held In High Regard In High British Circles.

LONDON, July 12.—The report of the resignation of Sir Thomas White, Canadian Minister of Finance, has been cabled. It has been received with considerable regret, although little surprise is expressed. Three years ago, when Sir Thomas paid a visit to England, Reginald McKenna, who was Chancellor of the Exchequer at the time, paid a high tribute to his financial leadership in the Dominion, under which, said Mr. McKenna, Canada has become a lender instead of a borrower in this country.

EASY WIN FOR THE PETES IN CENTRAL ONTARIO LEAGUE GAME

HOMESTERS SCORE NINE RUNS IN ONE INNINGS AND BEAT PORT HOPE BY 12 TO 5--GIVING PETES FIRM HOLD ON SECOND PLACE IN THE LEAGUE RACE.

SWANSTON'S FINE HITTING

The Peterborough Central League team took a firm grip on second place in the League race and kept themselves right in the running for the honours by beating the Port Hope crew at Riverside Park on Saturday afternoon before 700 fans by 12 runs to 5. The Petes won the game in the third innings, when, after the Ontarios had set up a 5-1 lead, the home brigade drove Finnegan Hills off the slab with a fusilade of solid hits, and before Baxter, who went to the rescue with four runs in, a man on second and nobody out, could retire the side, the Petes had chased nine perfectly good runs over the plate and were on easy street. The relief pitcher held them to four hits and two runs for the rest of the game, but the harvest in the third was more than enough to carry them through.

"Kiddie" Mulhern did the heaving for the Petes and the youngster turned in an excellent performance. His "smoke" baffled the Ontarios, and until two were out in the 9th the visitors only secured five scattered singles off his delivery. They managed to nick three in a row then for two runs before the last man was killed off. Mulhern struck out nine men during the engagement.

Hills, who started for Port Hope, was no mystery to the Petes, and if he had been left in there, the home crew would have piled up healthy increases in their batting averages. As it was they collected six smashes during the short time he was on the firing line. Max Swanston was the Petes' leader on the attack, with three smashing doubles out of four trips to the plate, while Long and Cherrett helped themselves to a double and and single.

Swanston was also in the lunelight with a fine catch of a difficult foul fly. Holyman gave an excellent performance at third for the Petes.

First Innings.

Port Hope.— Rowden walked and was sacrificed to second by A. Hills. Moise grounded to Cherrett, Rowden going to third. R. Hills was safe on a slow grounder to Long, Rowden scoring. Hills stole second, and went to third on a passed ball. R. Chalk walked, and when Swanston threw home for second to stop him stealing, Hills scored. Baxter fanned. Two runs, one hit, one error.

Peterborough.—Cherrett singled to right. Adams drew a pass. Rose fanned. Cherrett scored when Chalk threw high to third to stop him stealing. Adams tried to go to third on the play and was out when he slid over the base. Swanston doubled to left and went to third on a passed ball, but Chalk grounded to Rowden. One run, two hits, one error.

Second Innings.

Port Hope.—F. Chalk walked, but Rowden and W. Hills fanned and Rowden flied to Cherrett. No runs, hits or errors.

Peterborough.—Long fanned. Rowden made a nice catch of Hagerman's fly. Holyman struck out. No runs, hits or errors.

Third Innings.

Port Hope.—A. Hills went to second on Holyman's wild throw. Moise struck out, but R. Hills walked and R. Chalk singled to centre, filling the bases. Baxter missed three, but a wild pitch scored A. Hills. Hagerman threw out F. Chalk. One run, one hit, one error.

Peterborough. — Mulhern singled through short. Cherrett walked. Adams singled to centre, scoring Mulhern and taking second on the throw to the plate. Rose hit safely over second scoring Cherrett and Adams. Swanston doubled to left centre, sending Rose in. This was enough for Finnegan Hills and he went to left field, Baxter going on the rubber. The relief pitcher passed Clancy and R. Hills dropped Long's fly after a run, filling the bases. Hagerman struck out, but Holyman was hit, forcing in Swanston. Mulhern, up for the second time, drew a pass, Clancy coming home. Baxter threw to second to catch Holyman and Long tore for home. Moise made a wild heave to the plate and both Long and Holyman scored. Mulhern came in a second later on Chalk's poor return throw to the pitcher. Cherrett doubled to left and stole third, but Adams and Rose struck out. Nine runs, five hits, three errors.

Fourth Innings.

Port Hope.—Friar beat out a slow roller and went to second on a wild pitch. W. Hills fanned. Friar died trying to steal third, Swanston to Holyman. Rowden was safe on Hagerman's miss. Hagerman tossed out A. Hills.—No runs, one hit, one error.

Peterborough.— Swanston hoisted one to Moise. The latter made a nice play on Clancy's grounder. Long doubled over W. Hill's head, but was out at third trying to stretch it into a triple. No runs, one hit, no errors.

Fifth Innings.

Port Hope.—Swanston made a nice catch of Moise's foul. Holyman made a nice grab of R. Hill's low drive. R. Chalk was hit, but Baxter lifted one to Holyman. No runs, hits or errors.

Peterborough.—Swanston hit to left centre for two bases, his third double of the day. Clancy was safe on Moise's bad throw, but was caught off first, Baxter to Hill. Long singled over second, scoring Swanston. Hagerman was safe on Rowden's fumble. The runners advanced on Holyman's roller to the pitcher and when Hills, handling the ball, was slow, rolled the ball out to the box. Long came home. Mulhern struck out. Two runs, two hits, three errors.

Sixth Innings.

Port Hope.— R. Chalk popped to Mulhern. Baxter struck out. F. Chalk singled to left. Clancy was under Friar's fly. No runs, one hit, no errors.

Peterborough.—W. Hills captured Cherrett's drive to left in good style. Adams skied to Friar. R. Chalk got under Rose's foul. No runs, hits or errors.

Seventh Innings.

Port Hope.— Holyman tossed out W. Hills, Hagerman grabbed Rowden's fly. A Hill singled to left. Moise doubled between left and centre, scoring A. Hills. R Hills drew a pass. R. Chalk singled past third, scoring Moise. Baxter went out, Holyman to Long. Two runs, three hits, no errors.

Eighth Innings.

Port Hope.— Holyman grounded to Cherrett, Rowden flied to Rose. Rose hit safely over second scoring Cherrett and Adams. Swanston doubled to left centre, sending Rose in. This was enough for Finnegan Hills and he went to left field, Baxter going on the rubber. The relief pitcher passed Clancy and R. Hills dropped Long's fly after a run, filling the bases. Hagerman struck out, but Holyman was hit, forcing in Swanston. Mulhern, up for the second time, drew a pass, Clancy coming home. Baxter threw to second to catch Holyman and Long tore for home. Moise made a wild heave to the plate and both Long and Holyman scored. Mulhern came in a second later on Chalk's poor return throw to the pitcher. Cherrett doubled to left and stole third, but Adams and Rose struck out. Nine runs, five hits, three errors.

HORSE VERSUS MOTOR TRUCK

TRUCK FACTS.

In every case of hauling, the motor truck will do more than the horse and waggon.

The motor truck has the advantages of speed. A farmer can deliver his produce to market by motor truck before his neighbor with horse and waggon gets fairly started.

A truck holds three to five times a waggon-load. A truck permits a farmer to complete in this age of heavy loads and large operations.

Cheaper power means more crops. That is why fully five-sixths of our farm work is now being done by labor-saving machinery.

It costs more to carry wheat ten miles by horse and waggon than 2,300 miles by steamship. Whenever machinery replaces muscle, there is always a saving of time and cost.

The truck serves just as well in the winter as it does in the boiling heat of summer. It will do work no animal team could perform.

The motor of the truck can be used to help load and unload.

The truck eats only when it works; wears only when it is in use.

A truck occupies less than one-fifth the space needed for the horse equipment.

A motor truck never becomes a "dead-horse." Its "vitals" are easily replaced.

HORSE FACTS.

Thomas Edison says the horse is the poorest motor ever built. As a motor it is 2 percent. efficient.

One horse consumes every year the whole output of five acres.

The initial maintenance costs of a horse has gone up nearly 190 per cent. during the last ten years. Still, he is more efficient than he was ten hundred years ago.

He may last twenty years, but he is at his best about six year. An Government report shows, a farm horse averages 3 1-2 hours of work a day. He tires out in six.

Overwork kills him; underwork weakens him.

The horse can work only at one speed. He can seldom be used to load and unload. Quick loading and unloading methods only serve to shorten the life of a horse. He must have his rest.

Horse-chores, horse-costs, and horse-feed mean that the farmer works more for his horse than the horse works for him.

One horse and his feed require 3,250 cubic feet barn space.

The horse belongs to the day of the hand-sickle.

A horse eats whether he works or not. He also grows older every day. He wears out with age even when he is in the stall.

CARPENTIER WILL HAVE TO COME TO AMERICA TO GET BOUT WITH NEW CHAMPION

CHICAGO, July 11.—If George Carpenter hopes to get a match with Jack Dempsey, the new heavyweight champion, he will have to come to this country to wage battle. This was the decision of Manager Jack Kearns today in a private message sent here. Jack has been offered a big sum to go to Paris for such a contest, but declined. He cabled back he would fight the French champion and willingly, but that the fight must be held on American soil.

"There is no greater country in the world than America and there are no greater fans. I want Americans to see Dempsey defeat Carpentier and that's why I demand the match be staged here," said Kearns.

This goes only so far as Carpentier is concerned, because Kearns believes him to be the most formidable foe for Jack. Along in January or February Dempsey would fight Beckett in London.

Dempsey winds up his stage work in Cincinnati Saturday and then will go to Salt Lake to visit his mother. Jack believes the time will mean $500,000 to him. He will rest up in the west for two weeks, then start east and join 10 clubs where he will meet all comers for twenty weeks.

DISCUSS CARPENTIER'S CHANCES OF CONQUERING JACK DEMPSEY

NEW YORK, July 11—New York sporting circles are now discussing the chances of Georges Carpentier the French heavyweight champion, in a fight against Jack Dempsey. For the present Carpentier looms up as he only possible contender against the new world's champion. For Jack Dempsey succeeded not only in mauling the life out of Willard, but he has wiped away clean the hopes of a half dozen or so world-be hevayweight champions.

Carpentier was the choice of 'Tex Rickard last December as a rival of Willard. He wanted to sign the Frenchman up for the fight which took place in Toledo last week, but Carpentier was unable to obtain his discharge from the French army.

But Dempsey's terrific flattening of Willard has made Carpentier look like a puny rival. The new champion one of the most remarkable sluggers since the days of Terry McGovern and Young Corbett, faster on his feet and more aggressive than any other living heavyweight. Not only is he capable of inflicting a great amount of punishmen, but he slugs so fast that his opponents wilt. Willard thought a house of bricks fell on him. Giants like Fulton and Morris were paralyzed by his blows.

CARPENTIERS ABILITY UNKNOWN

Is Carpentier capable of facing Jack Dempsey? For Carpentier at the present is a good deal of a legendary figure. His last battle was fought some five years ago, when he won on a foul from Gunboat Smith in six rounds.

Carpentier is 28 years old, and stands 5 feet 11 1-2 inches tall. His best fighting weight is between 175 and 180 pounds. He is a clever boxer, and won the attention of the fight fans when he tapped Bombardier Wells for a knockout on two separate occasions. That was back in 1913.

The next year Joe Jeanette the negro heavyweight, outpointed him in a hell 12-round affair. Carpentier began his ring career in 1907. His record shows that he was beaten in six rounds by Dixie Kid, the American negro; stopped in 17 rounds by Billy Papke, a crackerjack middleweight fighter, and lost on a foul to Frank Klaus, another middleweight, in 19 rounds.

When the war broke ou Carpentier enlisted to fight for his country. Since that time it is doubtful whether he has had the gloves on for even a few minutes.

BOYS WERE GIVEN TASTE OF STRAP

A CHAPTER OF ROBBERIES COMMITTED BY LOCAL YOUTHS.

Two youthful robbers, nine and seven years old, looked askance at the Magistrate this morning as they gazed over the top of the heavy table in front of the bench.

Mr. G. N. Gordon appeared for the elder boy, and Mr. Joseph Wearing was present to look after the interests of the Children's Aid Society.

The two boys broke into Robert Fair's store on George Street on Sunday, 6th July, by means of an iron bar on a six foot by six plate-glass window. The older boy, in order not to be incriminated if caught, turned his back while his seven-year-old companion wielded the bar.

They had broken into Fair's store once before and also Soden's bookstore and also W. J. Ohe's wholesale fruit establishment. Not being detected they grew bolder, with the result that Fair's window fell before their growing audacity.

The Magistrate decided that a castigation by the police would do more good than the reformatory, and so the two boys trotted downstairs to feel the flagellator. The strap was wielded ten times on the older boy and five times on the seven-year-old.

The mother of the elder boy, who is a widow and keeps her family by working, was required to pay $ 2 as part cost of the plate-glass window. The father of the smaller boy paid $18.

"Don't you make a noise when you get hit," said the younger to the elder, "or you will get an extra one.

"Can't I even cry?" was the reply.

"I dunno."

But they both cried.

If a soft piece of home-made bread is rubbed on a scorch on woollen goods it will remove it entirely.

Equal parts of cold potatoes and cold chopped chicken with the proper seasoning will make excellent hash.

School children should not be taught music merely with the idea of making them musicians. They should be taught music so that as grocers, doctors, engineers, lawyers, mechanics, and housewives they will in after years get the great joy out of music that Providence intended they should.

FRANK J. DUFFY HAD NARROW ESCAPE

WAS ALLOWED TO GO ON SUSPENDED SENTENCE.

Frank J. Duffy, of Greenpoint, S.C., considers himself about the luckiest person who ever graced a Police Court docket. Duffy appeared in Court a week ago and pleaded guilty to making a get-away with Joe Shimkus' gate receipts at the Exhibition Grounds and also to stealing a car belonging to the Fontaine Garage.

Duffy came into this country with the Beacon Shows, who are required to give heavy bond that they will transport all of the personnel out of the country again.

The manager of the show wired the Chief from Belleville that he is willing to take the man out of the country and pay all expenses if he receives nothing worse than suspended sentence.

"We don't want him here," helped along Crown Attorney Hatton.

"He has no previous record," said the Chief.

A War Veteran.

"I served in the American Army for eighteen months, and have a clean sheet," stated the prisoner.

"Suspended sentence," judged the Court. "I don't let him go because he deserves it or because I have any compassion on him, but because we don't want him."

This ended the case, except that Mr. Wearing must now look for a $5.00 retainer from somebody.

Parents are quite justified in asking that their children be given a reasonable opportunity at school to study applied music. By "applied" music is generally meant study of voice, piano, organ, violin, or any instrument of the symphony orchestra.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

The Runaway Trunk

By JACK LAWTON

(Copyright, 1919, by Western Newspaper Union.)

Rhoda put up the telephone receiver and looked toward her aunt.

"Those trainmen are a lot of story-telling conspirators," she said. "Now, why did they say yesterday that my trunk was on its way here, while today they knew nothing about it? I don't care so much for the loss of my clothing as I do for the fate of the eggs which grandma insisted upon packing in for you. I can manage with your borrowed things, Aunt Stacia, but how long will five dozen eggs—and at such a prohibitory price—last in a traveling trunk?

"Nearly three weeks since I came to the city and my trunk still listed among the 'congested freight.' Cloverton may be slow, Aunt Stacia, but I tell you we would not put up with such things."

Aunt Stacia turned her mild eyes upon her exasperated niece.

"My dear," she replied, "I suppose the men are doing their best, and it is not as though you were running about to places where you would need pretty dresses. My shirtwaists will do very well at home, with just you and me."

But this fact did not seem to console the girl from the village. In Aunt Stacia's neat guest chamber, Rhoda flattened her pretty nose against the window pane as she stared down the brilliantly lighted street.

It was for occasions such as these that Rhoda had labored over the light blue silk, now lying crumpled beneath five dozen eggs in a trunk which had mysteriously run away. Even if the blue dress were here, Rhoda reflected, there would be no chance to wear it. Aunt Stacia did not indulge in frivolities; and Aunt Stacia's acquaintanceship with young men seemed limited to those who delivered her bundles.

"No use," sighed Rhoda. "No peep into merry city life for me. As well be resigned to my fate."

Rhoda decided to "go after" her trunk the next morning.

It was after a hasty luncheon in the station that Rhoda approached the glass door of an office which looked as though its occupant might be endowed with capability.

The occupant immediately arose from his desk, awaiting in evident surprise her errand.

"You see," she naively explained, "I do not mind about my dresses now, not even the blue silk. I shall not be able to get to the theater or any of those lovely places the magazines tell about. But Aunt Stacia does want those eggs, you understand, before—"

"I understand perfectly," said the charming man, and his eyes twinkled. After a third peremptory inquiry of some "Jerry" at the other end of the wire he turned again to Rhoda.

"Why?" he asked whimsically, "are you not going to be able to visit the lovely theaters and restaurants as you had planned?"

"Aunt Stacia doesn't care to go," Rhoda answered.

"But I should think," gently persisted the man—Rhoda liked his smile—"that there would be any number of Aunt Stacia's masculine friends ready and eager to act the part of escort."

Rhoda sighed. "Aunt does not seem to have any masculine friends," she dolefully replied.

Suddenly the office man frowned.

"Why," he asked severely, "did your aunt, knowing you to be unacquainted with this section of the city, allow you to go searching around freight yards alone?"

"She did not allow me," corrected Rhoda. "I just came."

"Look here," the man announced presently, "I think we've located that trunk at last. But to facilitate matters I'm going to ride around and attend to it myself. Would you—" he hesitated—"like to go with me and identify your property?"

"Of course I'll go," Rhoda agreed.

"He was very kind," she told herself, as they flew along in his car, and often Rhoda's clear eyes sought the man's, gratefully. When she returned by the circuitous route of the street cars to Aunt Stacia's home the trunk was there before her. And when, after the evening meal, she went to answer the telephone, it was with a strange exhilarating sense of coming joy.

"Miss Rhoda Brown of Cloverton?" called a deep voice. "This is Mr. Hammond of the B. N. & Y. Has your trunk safely arrived?"

"Yes, thanks to you," she told him.

"I wonder—" continued the man, pausing in strange diffidence, "if you will ask Aunt Stacia if I may come out this evening, and—have a little omelet," he ended laughingly.

"Certainly not," Rhoda replied. "Why—I don't even know you."

"Very well," the man said sorrowfully. "Since this afternoon I have dared to look forward to giving you that desired peep into the theaters. It would have been to me a privilege and pleasure."

When the receiver had clicked back into the hook the man sat silently retrospective.

"And all my single life," he muttered, "I have wanted to meet just that kind of a girl." Wearily he turned again to the telephone.

"When I told Aunt Stacia your name," came Rhoda's jubilant voice, "she said at once that you might come, Mr. Hammond. I am wearing my blue silk dress," added the girl, and the man joyously reached for his hat and coat.

Of Course.

"Daughter sends you 1,000 kisses and wants 100 in return."

"A hundred kisses?"

"Don't be absurd, John—a hundred dollars, of course."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

LESSON FOR GANG

To Take Care of Job and Quit Spilling Over.

Conversation Fest Shows Great Advantages of a Little Hardship That Increases Man's Appreciation of His Privileges.

"Don't hurry away, Bud; sit down and talk; that's the popular recreation nowadays," said Leonard V. Wheane, the village philosopher, to the interested listener, Glenn M. Farley writes in the Seattle Post-Intelligencer. "We have progressed so fast and so far in the last two or three decades, and arrived at such a complicated and finely organized system of civilization, that we are practically tied up in a web of our own weaving; the war has thrown us into confusion, so the world has called a square man's meeting, and we are trying to talk ourselves out of it. Everybody has a remedy for repairing the system, and we are all standing around giving our views, and the resultant chorus is something to make angels weep."

"Three-a-day, a place to sleep and a little amusement is all I want of it," said the Interested Listener. "What are they arguing about? My idea would be for the whole gang to stop talking and go to work."

"Did you read about that shipwrecked sailor they took off a Pacific island the other day?" said Wheane. "He was washed ashore, with a barrel of port wine, a phonograph and a box of soda crackers, and, by gum, he fought the rescuing party. They had to handcuff him and carry him aboard ship. He was in fever of the simple life, but they brought him back home and dumped him into a longshoremen's strike. Man wants but little here below, but he makes an awful fuss about getting it."

"I know," said the Listener. "Our landlady gave us ten thousand enraged words at the breakfast table because the phone was out of order, the butcher's boy was late with the meat and the electric lights were short circuited."

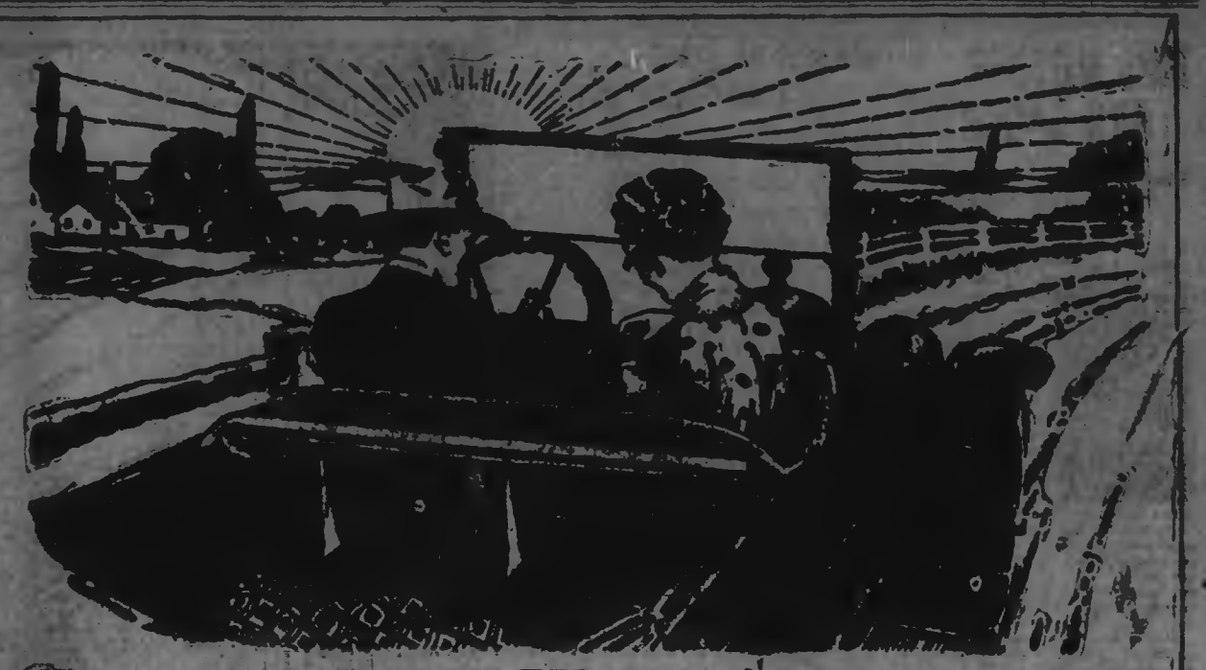
"The more people get," said Wheane, "the more they want, and the harder they are to please. Things have come so easy they have lost their appetite. A little hardship is a good thing once in a while, if for nothing more than to increase a man's appreciation of his privileges. Everything is relative; sunshine and fresh air, without any trimmings at all, are heaven enough to the guy who gets up from a sick bed, and even a ham sandwich is a blessed privilege to a hungry man. Here is America, full of food and comfort to the neck, standing around and wondering what is the matter, and listening to the orators of discontent. In hard times all people pray for is a job, and in good times they get purse proud and want an endowment. Probably the Almighty sends us lots tough going to make us appreciate our good fortune when it comes."

"Well, I get my little lessons between pay days," said the Listener. "When I get the little envelope I'm so full of joy and optimism that I spill over."

"That is what the world has yet to learn," said Wheane. "It's got to learn to take care of its job, and quit spilling over."

Prevention of the Flight of Birds.

To prevent birds from flying without the barbarous and injurious system sometimes of cutting their wings it will be found sufficient to tie together with a thread three or four of the largest feathers of one wing. This destroys the balance, the wings do not act symmetrically in the air, and flight is rendered impossible. Fowls, pigeons, etc., may be kept within bounds in this simple fashion.



Regular Equipment in Your Car

Chiclets add just as much to the joy of motoring as they do to any other outing. These dainty, peppermint, candy-coated confections will bring smiles and bright eyes to every one of the party.

There are good, sound reasons for using Chiclets, aside from their tempting deliciousness. They aid digestion, help keep the teeth bright and the breath sweet. Slip a few packets into your motoring coat so as to have them always handy. Sold everywhere at a nickel a packet of ten.

ADAMS Chiclets CANDY COATED GUM

Canadian Chewing Gum Co., Limited, Toronto, Winnipeg, Vancouver.

BE SUSPICIOUS OF TENDER GUMS

Be suspicious of any tenderness or bleeding of the gums. This is usually the first stage of Pyorrhea—an insidious disease of the gums that destroys the teeth and undermines bodily health.

Gradually the gums become spongy. They inflame, then shrink, thus exposing the unenameled tooth-base to the ravages of decay. Tiny openings in the gums form gateways for disease germs to enter the system. Medical science has traced many ills to these infecting germs in the gums weakened by Pyorrhea.

They are now known to be a frequent cause of indigestion, anaemia, rheumatism and other serious conditions.

So watch carefully for that first tenderness or bleeding of the gums. Try Forhan's immediately. It positively prevents Pyorrhea (Riggs' Disease) if used in time and used consistently.

And in preventing Pyorrhea—it guards against other ills.

Forhan's (For the Gums) cleans teeth scientifically as well. Brush your teeth with it. It keeps the teeth white and clean.

If gum-shrinkage has already set in start using Forhan's and consult a dentist immediately for special treatment.

THE JOURNALIST AND PHANTOM MILLIONAIRE

The journalist in question graced at the time the editorial staff of a daily paper published in a port from which liners sailed to far New York. Being of a fertile mind, it struck him that, in the absence of legitimate news, it was up to him to provide some of the other kind. He sat down therefore and wrote a lengthy story, which he subsequently dispatched to London by the Post Office wire.

Its tenor was this. An American millionaire, unable to find his soul-mate among the beauties of Philadelphia, or among those of Chicago, or distant Jacksonville, had come privily to England in search of a wife. Posing as a poor and humble person, he roamed our own fair land until passing through a typical English village, roses, thatch, and church-tower all complete, he found the Girl of his Heart, with soft brown hair and eyes of the deepest blue. He married her so the story ended, and the happy pair had sailed in the liner which had just left the port, for the happy clime of dollars and sunshine, there to repose on the millions before mentioned.

The story struck the News Editor in London as "the goods." He "splashed" accordingly, and wired instructions to our friend in—to find out anything more he could about the doings of the couple, adding that he had also cabled to New York for the boat to be met there by the paper's correspondent.

Imagine, if you can, the feelings of our young friend when he got this wire. For six days he was on the verge of nervous prostration. On the ninth, in the evening of an exhausting day of soul-killing anxiety, he got a copy of the London paper. He staggered and nearly fell. There, with triumphant headlines, was an interview with the phantom millionaire and his fair young bride. Bully for New York.

A fine type of Danish woman, who told a visitor to Denmark of how much she had been benefitted from a course at the People's High School, said the subjects that had done her most good were music, history and physical culture.

PILES Do not suffer another day with itching, Blind, Bleeding or Protruding Piles. No surgical operation required. Dr. Chase's Ointment will relieve you at once and as certainly cure you. 60c a box; all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto. Both Made Well by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Steele, Ala.—"During the Change of Life I had hot flashes, was nervous, run down, and had sick headaches for two or three days at a time. I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I am much stronger and better in every way than I was. My daughter's health broke down last June from teaching school without a rest, and she has taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and the Blood Medicine with good results. She is much better and teaching now and I give your medicine the praise. You are welcome to use this letter for the benefit of other suffering women."—Mrs. F. A. Gahrns, R. F. D. No. 1, Steele, Ala.

Women who suffer as Mrs. Gahrns did should not hesitate to give this famous root and herb remedy, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, a trial, as the evidence that is constantly being published proves beyond question that this grand old remedy has relieved much suffering among women.

Originality of James Russell Lowell As Told by Judge Corning.

Judge Charles B. Corning, of Concord, N.H., tells a James Russell Lowell anecdote, which throws a pleasant light on Lowell's geniality, as well as on his gout. Says Judge Corning: "I was spending the winter of 1879-'80 in Spain, and in December there blew in at Barcelona a company of American and British newspaper men. Among them was Edward King, a well-known correspondent of the period. He persuaded me to join the gang and go to Madrid to Alfonso's second wedding. Lowell was United States Minister, and he and King were old acquaintances. Accordingly I went with King to call at the Legation. Lowell had just got better of a painful attack of gout, which he described with more or less detail as he sat before the open fire blowing smoke from his pipe up the chimney. At last he remarked, 'Well, King, it's a devilish bad visitor, the gout. First I had it in one arm, then in the other; then it lodged in my right leg for a week, suddenly quitting for the left leg and ankle. Then the thing would repeat its visit, with a touch now and then in the stomach.' King remarked that the experience required patience when Lowell interrupted by saying that it wasn't a matter of patience but for philosophy, for 'after those weeks of first one arm or leg, then the other, I gained courage and thanked God I wasn't a centipede. What is the financial condition of Spain, Mr. Lowell?' asked King 'Well,' replied Lowell, that has been an interesting subject to me and I have read reports and made inquiries concerning the debt and income, but didn't get anywhere, so I called on the Minister of Finance, to whom I pointed out a reference to a sinking fund. The Minister took my report and spent some time going over the paper, quietly said: 'But, senor, you have called my attention to sinking fund, which obliges me to tell you that our sinking fund was long ago sunk.'"

DISEASES OF HEART LED MORTALITY LIST

PNEUMONIA NEXT AND TUBERCULOSIS THIRD, CENSUS BUREAU RETURNS FOR 1917 SHOW.

NEW YORK, July 11 — Heart disease is placed in the front rank among fatal diseases in the Census Bureau's compilation of mortality statistics for the death-registration area of the United States for 1917. Pneumonia is a close second and tuberculosis a crowding third. Together, these three diseases caused nearly a third of all the deaths reported.

The compilation shows a total of 1,068,932 deaths in the registration area in 1917; representing a rate of 14.2 per 1,000 of population. While heart disease, pneumonia and tuberculosis caused nearly athird of these deaths, nearly another third resulted from the following nine causes: Bright's disease and nephritis, apoplexy, cancer, diarrhea and enteritis, arterial diseases, influenza diabetes, diptheria and bronchitis.

The death-regitration area of the United States in 1917 comprised twenty-seven States, the District of Columbia, and forty-three cities in nonregistration States, with a total estimated population of 75,000,000, or about 73 per cent. of the estimated population of the United States.

The deaths from heart disease (organic diseases of the heart and endocarditis) numbered 115,337, or 153.2 per 100,000 population. The death ratet from this cause shows a noticeable decrease, as compared with 1916, when it was 159.4 per 100,000. There have been fluctuations from year to year, but in general there has been a marked increase since 1900, the earliest year for which the annual mortality statistics were published, when the rate for heart diseases was only 123.1 per 100,000.

ST. THOMAS MAY HAVE MUNICIPAL ICE YARD TO SUPPLY CITIZENS

Have made a Decided Success of the City Coal Yard in the Railway City.

ST. THOMAS, July 11. — The city has made such a decided success of the fuel yard in handling coal during the past few weeks that a number of promient citizens are discussing the advisability of the inauguration of a municipal ice yard. According to statistics obtained by a prominent local citizen St. Thomas citizens are paying a higher price for their ice than any other city in the province of Ontario, and at the same time the facilities for handling the product are equally as good and better than in many places. The price for 30 tickets allowing 25 pounds to the ticket, is $6. It was set at $5 but was raise last week to the above price. The wholesale price, for which anyone can obtain ict in ton lots at the St. Thomas Packing Company, is $4 per ton.

Several citizens have already laid in a supply and those who are fortunate enough to have a supply in which to store thei rsummer supply are making preparations to have a sfficient quantity harvested and stored next winter, so that they will not be at the mercy of the retail dealer. Ice has been shipped to Dutton and numerous other places outsidt at $4 per ton and as this is the same material sol dthe local consumers at the very high price of $6 for 30 tickets, each good for 25 pounds of ice, it denotes a very excessive profit.

SAILOR SHOVELS FORTUNE INTO SEA

A careless sailor on board the whaling schooner Margaret shovelled $20,000 worth of ambergris overboard into the sea, believing it to be refuse. Captain Louis Lopes told of this on his return fr oman eight months' cruise on the western whaling grounds. The ambergris came from a sperm whale which they captured. The ambergris taken from the animal which the captain estimated as easily worth $20,000, was lying upon the deck alongside of blubber put out for drying. It had all been shoveddel over the side by the sailor before Captain Lopes discovered what happined. Frantically he and some men climbed into a boat in a naffort to rescue the precious substance, but it sank too quickly and the sea swallowed the fortune which it had yielded.

It is now seldom questioned that a well directed study of instrumental music is just as beneficial, if not more so, to the student in after life as the same amount of time spent at Latin Greek, Algebra, Euclid and many other major subjects of the school curriculum.

Canadian Chewing Gum
Adams California Frutt
Aids in Conquest of the Air
Essential to the first dirigible flight across the Atlantic.
Carried although every inch of space was priceless.
That is the proud story of the connection of Adams' California Fruit Gum with the R-34.
For weeks every item of equipment was studied and tested rigorously. California Fruit Gum was considered necessary to steady the nerves and relieve the fatigue of the heroic crew.
Read the official item as set down in the log:
2 p.m. — Slight trouble with starboard amidships engine; cracked cylinder water jacket. Shatter, always equal to the occasion, made a quick and safe repair with a piece of copper sheeting, and the entire supply of the ship's chewing gum had to be chewed by himself and two engineers before being applied.
Returning, the R-34 left New York with a fresh supply of Adams Pure Chewing Gum.
On your own trip through the day's work, keep a packet of Adams Gum handy. It will brighten the day. Try Adams California Fruit—or Adams Chiclets, the "Really Delightful" candy-coated gum with the peppermint flavor. Sold everywhere at ten for 5c.

GOVERNMENT GRANT OF $50,000 TO CITY IS SUPPLEMENTARY

WILL BE PAID IF BRIDGE COSTS $350,000 OR EVEN CONSIDERABLY LESS.

Reference to the Government's subsidy of $50,000 toward the construction of the Hunter Street bridge, the conditions of which are questioned in Mr. W. J. Kearns' affidavit upon which he obtained an interim injunction to restrain the Mayor from signing the agreement with the Russell-Townsend Company, recalls the letter which Hon. Dr. Reid wrote the Mayor in February.

This letter, written on 15th February, to His Worship is republished as follows, and seems to be sufficiently clear an dself-explanatory:

Dear Sir,—I wish also to inform you that I submitted on Order-in-Council for consideration, recommending that if the city proceed with the construction of a bridge costing three hundred and fifty thousand dollars ($350,000.00), as stated to me a few days ago, the Government, instead of constructing a swing bridge, would pay fifty thousand dollars ($50,000.00) towards the construction and be relieved of any responsibility in connection with the construction of the new bridge or any future maintenance.

The amount will be placed in the Estimates during the coming session, and if Parliament approves of the recommendation, then, of course, we will be prepared to enter into an agreement on that position.

Mayor Duncan stated that he understood the grant had been approved by the House.

COBOURG FACTORY CLOSED FOR GOOD.

General Manager Dinnick, of the Niagara Silk Company, Brantford, visited Cobourg and as a result of his visit the factory there was ordered closed down, and, it was stated, would not re-open.

The factory was opened last January, the Board of Trade contributing $1,000 to the fitting up of the building. It was hoped to secure 100 girls to work, but the most at any time working was between 50 and 60. Of late the number has been gradually falling off.

SIXTH BARN IS SET ON FIRE

MYSTERY OF GLENELG TOWNSHIP UNSOLVED.

DURHAM, July 14.—The Glenelg fire bug is still at large, continuing his work. At 2 o'clock yesterday morning the large barn on the farm rented by James Murphy, owned by the late John Murphy, on the 8th concession of Glenelg, was destroyed by fire. It is about 11 miles northeast of here, a mile or two north of the previous fires.

The barn was one of the finest in the township, 45 by 70 feet, with stone foundations and splendid stables. In it were burned a large pig, implements, sixty bushels of barley, one hundred bushels of oats and four loads of hay. There is no house on the farm and the barn was first noticed in flames by J. Peart's son when returning home from Markdale. On the floor near a haymow a rag about a foot square, partly burned, was found, leading to the belief that the incendiarys first effort was unsuccessful.

Exactly two weeks previous Pat Haley's barn on the 6th concession was fired, and with it twelve pigs, implements and a calf were consumed. This makes six incendiary barn fires in three months in Glenelg, and latterly they have been occurring at regular intervals, every two weeks or less than three, part.

No clue has yet been discovered of the perpetrator, though efforts to locate him will be made with redoubled vigor, as in a short tim when crops are garnered the loss will be much more seirous should the fire fiend still be free.

DIVORCE HAS HURT BUSHMAN'S CAREER

FORMER "MOVIE" IDOL HAS MADE ONE PICTURE SINCE HE MARRIED BEVERLEY BAYNE.

NEW YORK, July 14.—Once, as he admits, a matinee idol and potentate in the cinema world, Francis X. Bushman laments the tarnishing of his sceptre and the passing of his crown to others because his matrimonial troubles have become public. Since Mrs. Josephine P. Bushman obtained a divorce from him in Baltimore, Md., and he became the husband of Miss Beverly Bayne, he says he has found it difficult to obtain engagements.

Because his first wife in her petition for a divorce made formal charges of cruelty, although without specifications, the actor alleges, he was placed in an unfavourable light before the public.

"Since July of last year," he avers, "I have made but one picture on account of the vehement attacks made upon me by my wife, and have been unable to obtain employment. I am told at the studios and in the street by fellow actors and producers that a movie star's matrimonial troubles usually injure him in the eye of the moving picture public."

Mr. Bushman made his plaint before Justice Hendrick, of the Supreme Court yesterday in having vacated an attachment obtained by the first wife against art belongings which he had ordered to be sold. The affidavits stated that a satisfactory adjustment had been reached by the parties.

His children, Virginia and Josephine, twelve and fourteen years old, respectively said he had declared there would be a small chance of thier mother ever collecting her alimony. Mr. Bushman, who lives with his present wife at No. 485 Riverside Drive, expressed regret at the statements and said he was making every effort to meet his obligations.

ST. JAMES' MISSION BAND PICNIC

GAMES, RACES AND SWIMMING WERE ENJOYED BY THE PICNICKERS.

A delightful time was enjoyed on Friday afternoon, when about fifty members of the Golden Links Mission Band held a basket picnic in Jackson Park. Games, races, swimming and bathing were enjoyed by the children. Those winning prizes were Greta Welbourne, Margaret Todd, and Leslie Church. An impromptu programme was arranged, in which all the children and their friends took part. A pleasing feature on the programme was an address and presentation of a Life Membership in the Mission Band to little Miss Annie Payne for her faithful service during the year. Mrs. H. A. Bonney read the address, while the president, Miss Mary Wood, presented the Life certificate. Mrs. Payne, in replying for her little daughter, who was taken entirely by surprise, thanked the Mission Band for the loving thought that prompted such a gift.

Huge hampers overflowing with delectable picnic lunches, were then forthcoming, and the tables spread in the pavilion, where the little ones had the real jollification of the day. Many honorary members and friends of the Band added to the pleasure of the day by their presence, and their kindly assistance in entertaining the children.

Mrs. Wagar, superintendent, and Mrs. Bonney, leader of the Band, chaperoned the party, which returned home at nine o'clock, tired but happy after a perfect day in the woods.

MINERAL OIL
For Chronic Constipation

By buying this product from us you can get the Highest in Quality that can be procured at an ESPECIALLY LOW PRICE.

There are many thin oils on the market that are not suitable for internal use; other oils have irritating qualities which render them also unsuitable. The one we are selling is guaranteed thick and entirely pure.

It is recognized that a good grade of Mineral Oil is one of the best remedies for CHRONIC CONSTIPATION that is being used. It acts mechanically and does not irritate the intestinal tract, nor does the dose have to be continually increased as is the case with ordinary purgatives.

It is much better and cheaper than Castor Oil as a laxative for Children, since Castor Oil has two effects, the first of which is purgative and the second or after effect, which is Constipating.

BLAMES THE BLOCKADE

GIVES THIS AS THE CAUSE OF GERMANY'S DEFEAT—CLAIMS HUN VICTORY AT JUTLAND.

"HONOR RESTORED"

(United Press.)

LONDON, July 15. — The allied blockade was the cause of Germany's defeat, Admiral Von Scheer, the former German fleet commander, declared in an interview given the Daily Chronicle's Weimar correspondent.

"As everybody warned," Von Scheer said, "the blockade triumphed over the U-boat campaign."

Von Scheer claimed a German victory in the Battle of Jutland, pointing out that his losses in materials and men were but a third of those suffered by the British. The German ships were smaller and slower and outpointed in gun fire, he said, but enjoyed better protection from shells. Von Scheer admitted the British shooting was most accurate but he characterized Admiral Jellicoe's book as a "mere apology," saying Jellico used "strategy" when he should have used "tactics."

The German fleet would have offered battle last October, according to Von Scheer, but the crews were unreliable. Thank God Von Reuter restored the honour of the navy by the sinking of the fleet at Scapa Flow," Von Scheer concluded.

ALDERMEN TALK BOTH OF QUITTING AND CARRYING ON INCESSANT ATTACKS HAVE AROUSED A SPIRIT OF DETERMINATION AND [illegible] OF THEM.

[illegible] injunction action [illegible] of the aldermen who voted for the Russell-Townsend bylaw, find an opportunity to point out that the latest flurry of opposition overlooks the clause providing for an alternative steel arch to be built next year, if the construction of the approaches [illegible] a disproportionate amount of the appropriation. Without that clause it is safe to say that the by-law would have been defeated. Behind it the most cautious of the aldermen considered themselves and the city safe against an expenditure in excess of the funds available for the bridge.

The amendment contemplated a survey of the work and costs when the approaches and filling were completed, and it was expected that this stage of progress would be reached this year. If it was apparent that the concrete arch could not be built for the remainder of the appropriation it was intended that plans for a steel arch would be obtained during the winter months substituted when work was resumed in the spring.

This provision together with the record and reputation of the Russell-Townsend Company, their stake in the structural and economic success of the bridge, their business affiliations, and their assurances that the cost would not exceed their tender, these were influences that gave the company the support of the majority. There was also the wide difference betwee the Russell-Townsend tender and that of the Canadian Engineering and Contracting Company's guaranteed bid. The council may be infected with the peevishness of the aldermen who remarked that since the summer is half over there was the shadow of an excuse for brushing the concrete bridge plans into the discard and setting out to build the cheapest possible bridge that could be devised, even to the extent of inviting injunctions aimed at possible flimsiness. It is also proposed that since the ostensible reason for the present injunction is a demand for iron-bound or gilt-edged security, or guarantees of some such high and universally approved qualities, because of these alleged demands by citizens whose public spiritedness overshadows the aldermanic conception, the council would discover the easiest way out of the difficulties by accepting the suggestions of their persistent and belligerent advisers, on the understanding that the silence of the general public indicates that they are all stretched out in file behind Mr. Kearns and Mr. Bagley.

STRATFORD, July 14.—If the Toronto Street Railway employees want the Board of Conciliation, of which Judge Barron is chairman, to resume its sessions, they will have to make formal application to the Department for it. This is the word which Judge Barron has received from Ottawa in reply to an inquiry for instructions as to the future activity of the Board.

SHOWS HERE FOR VICTORY WEEK

ALL ATTRACTIONS FURNISHED BY POLACK BROTHERS TWENTY BIG SHOWS.

Two young men of genius, inventive ability and progressive methods, have revolutionized the old street fair carnival into a modern praiseworthy exhibit of the world at your very door. This revolution was not accomplished over night, not in a day or a month, for Harry and Irving Polack, the producers of the "Polack Bros. 20 Big Shows" have been, as the saying goes, "to the manner born."

These young producers of meritorious outdoor entertainment have ever striven for the highest pinnacle in carnival endeavour, realizing the fact that the final verdict is given by the paying public. It has always been their motto to see that each and every patron's money does its duty, for in these times of stress and high cost of everything they have proved that honest, clean methods and interesting shows are appreciated by the amusement class, for each year their surplus capital has been reinvested in improvement and inventions to increase the worth of the "Polack Bros. 20 Big Shows."

This year every endeavour has been made to surpass all former efforts, and a generous public can rely on the time well spent when visiting this high class model institution.

The Polack Bros. 20 Big Shows are to exhibit in Peterborough the entire week of July 21, and a grand free [illegible] American military band of twenty pieces will furnish music day and night.

A CO-OPERATIVE STORE FOR FARMERS

MEETING HELD LAST EVENING—A CHAIN OF STORES.

Peterboro may have a co-operative store supported by members of the United Farmers of Ontario in the very near future. Mr. T. P. Loblaw, the manager of the United Farmers Co-operative Company, Toronto, outlined the plan to a large audience in the Sons of England Hall last night. The meeting lasted well past midnight and everybody seemed enthusiastic over the idea which is intended to eliminate the middleman's profit staple products. The plan is to establish a chain of stores throughout the province who in combination would have equal buying power with the large departmental stores thus buying goods straight from the manufacturer without paying the wholesaler ten per cent. or whatever his ordinary percentage is. Three stores have already been established in Ontario and the movement is growing rapidly. One is doing business in Kingston, one in Seaforth and one in being organized in Cobourg. The organizer at Cobourg will if sufficient funds are subscribed by the different U. F. O. clubs in this district be asked to come to Peterboro and open a store here. It is likely that a meeting of all the Farmer's Clubs in this district will be called soon to consider Mr. Loblaw's proposition.

At first the store would be nothing more than a general grocery store but as the business became stronger a venture would be made in hardware, clothing and boot and shoes and even motor car parts, gasline, and oils.

Mr Loblaw made it clear that the purpose of the store was not to eliminate the arrangement for wholesale buying of seeds, etc., in car loads lots which is being carried on now. The plan is for the farmer, carried on by the farmer.

Contributions for the common cause was made by those present and a large sum collected. The farmers are very optimistic over the idea.

HEAVY LOSS OF LIFE DUE TO THE HEAVY RAINFALLS

ONE MILLION SHEEP AND ONE HUNDRED THOUSAND CATTLE DROWNED.

HEAVY SNOWFALLS

(Canadian Press.)

BUENOS AIRES, July 15.— Government reports show that one million sheep and a hundred thousand cattle were drowned in floods in the southern part of Buenos Aires province. Several sections in that region have been completely isolated for more than a week. The floods were due to a month of the heaviest rainfall ever recorded here. Over on the Chilean side there have been further heavy snowfalls along the trans-Andine railway. Snow in this region has been more or less continuous for a month and in some places to more than twenty-six feet deep.

(Canadian Press.)

VALPARAISO, July 15.— Eighty-seven persons are known to have been drowned and the loss of life may have been much greater, in the hurricane which swept this port Saturday and Sunday. Fourteen vessels of various sizes were sunk and about a hundred lighters and other small craft destroyed. Property loss is estimated at $200,000,000.

INDUSTRIAL CONGRESS IN ALBERTAN CITIES

MANUFACTURERS OF NATIONAL FAME WILL SURVEY WESTERN OPPORTUNITIES.

The City Council has been invited to send a delegation to the Industrial Congress to be held in four cities of Alberta from August 11th to the 16th. The municipalities assisted by the Provincial Government have organized this convention about which Trade in Canada and the United States. Among the distinguished heads of finance and industry who have accepted this invitation are E. W. Beatty, President of the C.P.R., Henry Ford, John Willys, president of the Willys-Overland company, C. B. Hanna of the C.N.R., Harold McCormack, of the International Harvester company, Robert Dollar and others.

Special trains with sleeping accommodation will be provided for the visitors. The Congress will visit Medicine Hat, Lethbridge, Calgary and Edmonton for the purpose of demonstrating to the industrial magnates Alberta's opportunities for manufacturing.

ROWDYISM HAS BEEN SUPPRESSED

MR. GATES IS MAKING GOOD AT INVERLEA PARK.

Mr. James Gates, D.C., is much in love with "For we ain't got weary yet." He is now after the scalps of the dog owners who neglected purchasing tags for their dogs this year. He has a number of successes to date and he if sure the number will swell every day. Even if your dog has the necessary bit of yellow metal hanging around its neck the dog must be kept in an enclosure and not allowed to gambol on the front lawn although it is tied to the verandah. A lady who tried this stunt of giving her "night watchman" a view of the latest fashions, by tying him to the front lawn was quite sure that Mr. Gates was wrong, but Mr. Gates in order to be sure asked the police sergeant to produce his volume of city by-laws, and it was found that the City Fathers had taken measures to prevent the canines from viewing Peterborough's fair demoiselles from the front lawn. The bow-wows must be kept in an enclosure with a tag attached to its neck, and this is the only way that you can keep your dog from falling into the hands of Mr. Gates.

No Rowdyism.

Mr. Gates has proved a most effective cure to the epidemic of rowdyism which broke out at Inverlea Park at the beginning of the bathing season. No longer are the benches consigned to the Otonabee river to see if they can float, or are holes bored in the partition between the two compartments of the bathing house. Swimmers are not even allowed to take a plunge off the Smith street bridge.

SAYS GERMANY DOWN FOR KEEPS

VON TIRPITZ WASHES HIS HOHENZOLLERN—BLAMES HOLLWEG.

(United Press.)

BERLIN, July 15. — Germany as a republic will not be able to rise again —Admiral Von Tirpitz declares in a book which he will publish soon. The revolution threw away Germany's chances for greatness, Von Tirpitz said. He absolved the Kaiser of responsibility for the war.

The Admiral expressed the belief that the German navy should have been strong enough to obtain a better peace. Bethmann-Hollweg was blamed with "monopolizing responsibility" of the war. Von Tirpitz charges that the former Chancellor kept the ex-Kaiser, himself (Tirpitz) and the army and navy staff officers [illegible] from Berlin.

(United Press.)

WASHINGTON, July 15. — Foreseeing a complete victory for President Wilson in the Senate, some League of Nations opponents to-day were discussing a plan to make withdrawal from the League by the United States an issue in the campaign of 1920.

The proposal was nebulous, no one was openly sponsoring it. Those who favoured it will be ready to announce it, however, the moment they think it will receive party support.

Developments expected to-day in connection with the Senate's discussion of the League and the treaty were:

Meeting of the Foreign Relations committee at 10 o'clock, at which Senator Johnson, California, planned to urge the adoption of his resolution calling on the President to give the committee testimony and data from the peace conference, and drafts of all League of Nations plans offered.

Discussion in the senate of the Lodge resolution requesting that the Senate be given a copy of a reported treaty between Germany and Japan and all information the State Department has concerning German and Japanese negotiations during the war.

A speech by Senator Norris, Republican, Nebraska, denouncing the Shantung settlement as "robbery." A speech by Senator Underwood, Democrat, from Alabama, announcing his complete support of the treaty as it stands.

A call by Senator Hitchcock at the White House.

Hitchcock had no definite engagement with President Wilson, but planned, if circumstances would permit, to spend some time discussing the league situation with him, as confidant of the President. It was stated to-day at Hitchcock's office that he has been informed "the White House latch string will be out to him at any time."

ETHEL CLAYTON COMING

Famous Screen Star to Appear in "A Soul Without Windows"

Ethel Clayton, the famous screen star, is coming on Thursday, Friday and Saturday to the Grand Theatre in a great World-Picture, "A Soul Without Windows."

This picture is a really remarkable offering. It is one of the most vitally interesting and unusually appealing attractions of the season. Not only that but the scenic effects are superb and the erole portrayed by Miss Clayton is sympathetic and charming.

"A Soul Without Windows" is the most superior sort of screen entertainment and you will enjoy it thoroughly.

P. BLACK'S SUMMER CLEARANCE

A midsummer clearance sale begins to-morrow at P. Black's store, corner of King and George streets. As usual Mr. Black goes over his stock about this time every year and trims the prices down to effect a reduction in preparation for the fall goods soon to arrive. The customers of this store have faith in Mr. Black's advertised reductions, and have been good patrons during these sales. The reduced prices will pay a careful perusal. Read the advertisement elsewhere.

THE WEATHER

The rain of last night was timely and much needed, and there appears to be more coming, and more is yet required. The total last night was almost one-third of an inch (.32).—W.P.

INVITED TO ATTEND MEETING DOMINION BAR ASSOCIATION

Mr F. D. Kerr, Barrister, received this morning a letter from Sir James Akins, Lieutenant-Governor of Manitoba, and President of the Dominion Bar Association, requesting him to be present, at the meeting of the Dominion Bar Association this year at Winnipeg, August 27th, 28th and 29th, and suggesting that the members of the bar be impressed with the importance of attending.

Sir James' letter indicated that the Winnipeg gathering would prove more than ordinarily interested by reason of the fact that the former Lord Chancellor of England, Lord Finlay, was coming to Canada for the express purpose of delivering an address to the Convention as was also the Honourable [illegible] of Chicago, [illegible] of the American [illegible] Secretary [illegible] Canada.

BYERSVILLE CHILDREN MAY BE EXCLUDED FROM COLLEGIATE INSTITUTE

LACK OF ACCOMMODATION IS DEMANDING DRASTIC ACTION IF THE OVERCROWDING IS TO BE REDUCED SO THAT THE CLASSES MAY BE PREVENTED FROM BECOMING CUMBERSOME. DEFEATING THE WORK OF THE STAFF.

ALL RURAL CHILDREN AFFECTED

Graduates of local rural schools particularly those who pass their entrance examinations at May's School in North Monaghan will be confronted with a serious problem if the Board of Education finds it necessary to adopt the suggestion of Mr. H. R. H. Kenner to the effect that only children living in the city be admitted to the lower forms of Collegiate Institute. This proposal was offered as the only immediate solution of the overcrowding at the Collegiate, which, increasing every year, is now taxing the accommodation to the utmost and threatens to impair the success of the teachers' work.

Classes with forty and forty-five pupils last year had twice the enrollment that is desired for successful teaching. This applied to the Commercial and the other lowes forms. In the more advanced classes the attendance presents no difficulty but has almost reached the approved maximum.

Farmers Take Notice

The publication of Mr. Kenner's intimation at the last meeting of the Board has brought several enquiries from farmers who have children ready to attend the Collegiate Institute next term. There must be many others from the surrounding townships and also from the populuous suburb of Byersville and Claraday. May's school must have had many children writing their entrance examinations this summer. But if the Peterboro Collegiate Institute cannot admit the successful children how are they to secure the secondary education to which they are entitled and which should be freely provided for them.

Norwood Is Too Far.

If the Board of Education is forced by circumstances to exclude the children living outside the city the only recourse they have is the Norwood High School, which would entail the expense of boarding throughout the school year. This would be prohibitory to nearly all the families in the suburbs and would likewise cut short the secondary education of many of the children of farmers in this district.

It is recognized that the Board of Education owes its first and perhaps its entire responsibility to the city children for the simple reason that the Collegiate Institutes maintained by the taxes of the ratepayers. Residents of the country contribute nothing to its upkeep, although they are required to pay $25 a year for each child who attends the Collegiate But several citizens, among them

STRIKERS MAY RESUME WORK

(Canadian Pres.)

BERLIN, July 15. — Employees of the tramways here have voted 10,643 to 6,645 for a continuation of the strike. As this is not two-thirds of a majority work should be resumed, but a large number of the men say that they will persist in the movement.

The management of the tramways has announced that all who do not return to work on Thursday night will be considered discharged.

A DECORATED BICYCLE PARADE

BOYS AND GIRLS WILL RECEIVE TICKETS FOR FREE ICE CREAM CONES.

At a meeting of the bicycle dealers held at Banks' Garage it was arranged to hold a decorated bicycle parade from Central Park to Rye's boathouse on Peace Day, July 19th. The parade will start at two o'clock in the afternoon and will be under the auspices of the Bicycle Dealers Association. Three prizes will be offered for the best decorated bicycles. There will be a special prize for the best juvenile decorated bicycle, one for boys and one for girls.

All boys and girls taking part in the parade will receive at Rye's boathouse on Peace Day, July 19th. The parade will start at two o'clock in the afternoon and will be under the auspices of the Bicycle Dealers Association. Three prizes will be offered for the best decorated bicycles. There will be a special prize for the best juvenile decorated bicycle, one for boys and one for girls.

All boys and girls taking part in the parade will receive at Rye's boathouse an ice cream cone, a ticket for which will be given out at Central Park before the parade.

MAY RESUME TRADE WITH HUNS

(Special to The Examiner.)

WASHINGTON, July 15. — Practically unrestricted trade with Germany was begun to-day by American exporters for the first time in two years.

In an order effective to-day the war trade section of the State Department issued a blanket license permitting communication and trade with Germany under the Trading-with-the-enemy Act in all lines but dye stuffs, chemicals and potash.

EMBARGO MAY BE DECLARED

(Special to The Examiner.)

NEW YORK, July 15. — The possibility of an embargo on railway freight from interior points because of the situation created by the seaman's strike, was foreseen in shipping circles here to-day.

Spread of the strike to the Great Lakes as well as along the Atlantic coast was also considered possible because of the refusal of the United States Shipping Board and private steamship owners to grant the demands of the firemen, water tenders and oilers.

HONOURED THE VICTORY DAY

BIG DEMONSTRATIONS AT MANY POINTS THROUGHOUT FRANCE.

(Canadian Press.)

PARIS, July 15.—Despatches from various cities and provinces of France on the observance of Victory Day, report that everywhere the same spirit of exultation was manifested as in the national capital.

Military reviews brought forth demonstrations of patriotic fervour in Alsace-Lorraine, at Metz and Strassbourg, where celebrations took on an especially solemn character, and evoked indescribable enthusiasm among the people.

Despatches from various European capitals, such as London, Madrid, Lisbon, Rome, and Brussels, as well as from other foreign cities, describe the demonstrations there in honour of the day, and in friendship towards France.

HUN SLAVE DRIVE

How Kaiser's Minions Deported Belgian Peasants.

Unfortunate People Herded Along Highways Like Cattle—Dapper Lieutenant Found Much That Was Amusing in Spectacle.

John Lowrey Simpson gives a vivid little pen-picture of a German deportation of civilian Belgians in Century:

"So we slackened pace, rolled by the outlying dwellings, and with a scuffling of broken sleeves around the corner into Wavhem — Waulsort, wrecked in a battle. Up and down the long street, gaunt husks of houses leered greenishly. Perhaps the vacant stare of houses ruined in a battle is indistinguishable from the vacant stare of houses ruined out of a battle. I do not know. Within the passing of time these many intimate variations of detail from horror to horror weather into the general sphere. Westhem cowered pale under the chill of the morning.

"A little horde of country folk squatted like roadside mud splashed even against the tiny eyes of white houses. On the doorsteps women stood clutching their children, the subtle tip-toeing to catch a glimpse of what passed ahead. A few stolidly soldiers with fixed bayonets prodded back the crowd into a semblance of people all with hand clung to the sides of the buildings as by their nails, and held their ground more obstinately than in the teeth. Crowds always cling desperately to the sides of buildings. Ahead marched—if the word is not too proud a one—a procession. There are a dozen men, perhaps, laden with bundles and packs, clad in the loose, shaggy stuffs of Belgian peasantry. The inevitable colored mufflers struggled over their shoulders. Their caps were drawn tight, as though to deny the cold. Lugubrious defiance, pains to be quiet; for the cold crept into their nostrils, and one could perceive their breaths, frozen and dead. The scattering of soldiers trudged beside them, gazing solemnly first at their bayonets, then at the file of prisoners. In the rear rode two officers. Their horses clattered and feinted, as though to imply that mount, like master, was bored by these people and their troubles—foolish troubles, foibles of peasants.

"As the company advanced, a purpose stood regarding it. He was not attired in rough blouse and sabots. He wore a long gray coat with a fur collar; his feet were compressed in narrow black boots. Steel spurs twinkled at his heels. A jaunty round cap perched on the back of his head, a scant trifle to one side. His mustache was cropped till it might have been molded there on his face. Under his eyes drooped dark, heavy rings. He sported a morsel of braid on each shoulder, and the tip end of a sash-band peeked from under his huge coat. The man lumbered by, and the wooden grained closer toward him. He smiled. He was a German lieutenant."

Joy in Homely Happenings.

Curiously enough, as one reads letters and reports that come to one personally, one finds that the interest of our boys in France is centered on the quaint and homely happenings of everyday living. The big certainties—life, death, immortality, God—they joyously take for granted, with their strange, new insight into things spiritual, their prescience of reality; but perhaps for the first time they are realizing every-day joys, know what quiet means, and rest and needed sleep; are aware of the holiness of clean clothing, the exquisite flavor of common food, the divine loveliness of dawn, and noontime and night.

And so, having found out about Life, they know all there is for us to know about Death. Instead of losing its strange distinction, death for them has taken on a new splendor, as have the common things of life.

And as to their losing the vision, forgetting—those who live to come back—they may. But they have known reality, these boys, and one does not easily drop into materialism after one has attained that knowledge.—Atlantic Monthly.

Many Uses for Gunpowder.

Black powder has been made and used for centuries, and up until a few years ago was the only kind of powder known. While it has been replaced for many uses by high explosives, it is still in great demand. More of it was used in the United States in the year 1917 than in any previous year, as the economical mining of coal, blasting of rocks, blasting of stone, where it is desirable to get out large unbroken pieces, or in earth blasting, where it is desired to move a mass of earth loosely, and where there can be no danger of igniting dust, gas or fire damp.

Much Honey Goes to Waste.

Whole shiploads of honey have been sent to Europe, and more is wanted. Few people realize that 200,000,000 pounds of honey are produced in the United States alone each year. Yet the Department of agriculture says that the output ought to be much greater, and that millions of dollars' worth of sweets annually are going to waste in the fields for lack of bees to gather the nectar. When the consumer pays twice as much for a comb of honey as he did a few years ago he finds disposed to sing a stand of Home Sweet.

Crossing the Strait.

Among those funny typographical errors, the Christian Register recalls how there was a clergyman, writing of his travels in that paper, was made to say that he had crossed the straits of Mantua "in twelve hours." It should have been "twelve hearts."

MAKING CITIZENS OF ALIENS

Excellent Work Done Through Classes Conducted Under Auspices of Bureau of Naturalization.

Many aliens who enter the naturalization courts as candidates for citizenship are much better grounded in the knowledge of American government and institutions than the average native of this country. Indeed, some aliens are able to answer questions that the judges themselves are not able to answer off-hand.

The reason for their excellent knowledge of the American government lies in the care taken by the citizenship classes, now conducted in public schools throughout the country by the bureau of naturalization, department of labor, to inculcate thorough familiarity with the institutions of the land of their adoption. The courses given by these classes are designed to raise the standard of citizenship by insuring a preparation adequate to meet the requirements of the most exacting state laws.

Naturalization is a somewhat complicated process at best, for not only must the alien satisfy the requirements of the state in which he accepts citizenship, but he must also meet the demands of the naturalization court, which has the right to reject his application, at its own discretion.

The citizenship classes aim to make the way to citizenship as easy as possible for men and women who are willing to fit themselves for it.

Stranger Than Fiction.

Among the advertisements on the first page of an Australian rural newspaper appears one tradesman's praise of the "beautiful fresh bread" he distributes, and another tradesman's acclaim of the "beautiful Cavendish bananas" he has for sale. After reading further and finding with relief that at least one individual deals in "beautiful art" in this day of post-postism, one is naturally led to wonder just when Lewis Carroll was exercising his imagination, and when he was merely setting down faithfully what he had heard when he penned such poems of praise as that Alice in Wonderland lyric which concludes:

Soup of the evening
Beautiful soup.

PETERBORO WILL BE REPRESENTED AT MEEETING OF THE GRAND LODGE

THREE DELEGATES WILL BE PRESENT IN INTEREST OF LOCAL LODGES —SOLDIERS TO BE CONSIDERED.

The hree local Masonic Lodges will send three delegates to the annual meeting of the Grand Lodge, A.F. and A.M., which opens in the Masonic Temple in Toronto tomorrow. Worshipful Bro. W. T. Holloway, Master of Corinthian Lodge, will represent his lodge, and Worshipful Bro. E.B. Fowler, Master of Royal Arthur lodge and Worshipful Bro. Samuel Taylor, Master of Peterboro lodge, respectively, will represent their lodges, in Toronto.

Between onethousand and eleven hundred delegates, representing some 1,600 votes, twenty-five districts, 462 lodges and a membership of 70,000, will assemble for the annual meeting of the Masonic Grand Lorge of Canada, the meetings taking place in the Masonic Temple, Yonge etreet, and Davenport road.

G. M.'s Address.

The Grand Master W. M. Bro. William Hugh Wardrope, K. C., of Hamilton, will deliver his address on Wednesday morning, and in the afternoon between four and six the delegates to Grand Lodge will be motored round the city. It is anticipated that the G. M.'s address will be more than usually interesting as he has just returned from England, where he attended the great Masonic peace conference.

On Wednesday evening the election will take place of the District Deputy Grand Masters, and from nine-thirty for a couple of hours there will be a high-class enteatainhent in the Temple auditorium for the delegates. For this forty lodges in Toronto have subscribed ten cents per member towards the xepenses.

Soldiers Expected.

R. W. Bro. F. W. Harcourt, has given notice of motion as follows:—"That in the opinion of this Grand Lodge the words having no maim or defect in the body that may render him incapable of learning the art' in Ancient Charge IV. of 'Masters, Wardens, Fellows and Apprentices,' shall not refer to the applied to any person. who, having been maimed in the great war which commenced in 1914, is, by artificial limbs or otherwise, able to give the signs, tokens and words required to be given in the three degrees of Craft Masonry, and that any such person shall be eligible for admission into the Craft for and during the period of four years from the 1st. day of September, 1919, and that for the purposes aforsaid the word 'literally' in the first line of section 181 of the Constitution be deleted."

It is anticipated that the motion will be adoped, a sthe same rule is now being carried out in England. A number of jurisdictions in the United States are also not so exact-[illegible] physical fitness of candidates.

In this connection the following letter from the Grand Secretary, Freemasons' Hall, London, England, is of interest:

Latitude in England.

"Representations have been made to the Board of General Purposes that cases of hardship may occur if no maimed person, otherwise fully qualified, isallowed to become a Freemason. The board feel that it is impposible to lay down a hard and fast rule as to the initiation of a candidate not perfect in his body withi the meaning of article 4 of the Ancient Charges, prefaced to Book of Constitutions. But the board are of opinion that, when the defect does not render a candidate incapable of learning our art, there is no reason why he should not be initiated, provided he is able to understand our secrets and mysteries and to explain or exemplify them when properly called upon.

On Its Merits.

"Each case of this description who is officially responsible that the candidate is personally known, subject to the investigation and approval of the master of the lodge. members ofthe lodge to whom the candidate is in a condition to comply with the requirements above named, and subject also in provinces and districts to the sanction of the province or district Grand Master, and elsewhere to the sanction of the Grand Master, after submission of the circumstances of the case."

Change of Date.

R. W. Bro. Thomas Rowe will move: "The annual meeting of Grand Lodge shall be held at the hour of then o'clock in the forenoon of the second Wednesday in May, in the place decided upon at the previous annual meeting.

The matter of changing the date of meeting has been before Grand Lodge on many previous occasions and any alteration has always been voted down. It is scarcely expected that any change will be adopted at the present meeting.

The Constitution.

R. W. Bro. Rowe has also given notice of the following motions: That section 45 of the Constitution be amended to read: "45 — The Constitution of Grand Lodge may be amended or altered at any annual meeting thereof by atwo-thirds vote of the members present, provided that notice in writing, stating distinctly the proposed amendment or alte.ation shall have been given at the preceeding annual meeting. or shall have been sent to the Grand Sechetary before the first day of March preceeding the meeting at which the motion is to be considered. and published in the notice paper. Any amendment to the Constitution which has been rejected by Grand Lodge shall not be reconsidered any time within five years after such rejection, except leove be given by Grand Lodge by a two-thirds vote. such vote to be taken without de-[illegible]bate."

Constitution shall read: "He shall on or before the fifteenth day of March in each year, send to each lodge and to every officer of Grand Lodge, copies of all notices of motion."

Benevolence.

That Rule 3, on Benevolence, be amended to read: "3—All applications for relief must be made upon a printed form, which will be furnished by the Grand Secretary when applied for. They shall be sent to and be in possession of the Grand Secretary before the first day of April immediately preceding the annual meeting of Grand Lodge, in each and every year. It is imperative that the fullest possible information be given in the several blanks in such printed form, whether the application is made for the first time or for the renewal of a grant."

Other Motions.

By W. Bro. J. Herod—"That the Most Worshipful the Grand Master be authorized by Grand Lodge to grant special dispensations for the acceptance, as members of the Craft. of Great War veterans who apply and can meet all the requirements of the constitution, with the exception of physical fitness."

By R. W. Bro. James Hamilton — "That the Grand Lodge A.F. & A.M. of Canada, in the province of On-[illegible] suggested to make all Masons within its jurisdiction (who have gone overseas and defended right, justice, and human freedom with such fortitude and bravery) life members free of all charges, and that a suitable certificate of such service be sent to each one."

By R. W. Bro Wm. M. Logan — That section 77 of the Constitution be amended to read "77—He shall send to the Grand Secretary, at least 14 days before the annual meeting, a brief account in writing, and in duplicate, of his proceedings and of the state Masonry within his district, together with a list of such lodges as may have been constituted since the last return."

Kumagae's Rare Stroke

CHIYA KUMAGAE, champion tennis player of Japan, has come back again to the United States, and will pay several visits to Canada during the coming summer.

Kumagae is a sterling player and it cannot be denied that he has an excellent chance of winning the great event of the American tennis world. Kumagae was bound to be the centre of attraction of this tennis season, quite apart from the question of his nationality. His play is most remarkable. His stroke, on both forehand and backhand, is the rarest stroke in the world of sport.

Every tennis player knows what "cutting" a ball means. It is a glancing blow in which the racket across the ball from right to left so that it sends the ball away spinning from left to right. This making the ball spin from left to right has its perfect analogy in the "slice" in golf. It also makes the ball swerve from left to right.

This is one of the most accurate strokes in the game. It has always a low bound and frequently a disconcerting break after it hits the ground.

It is an undoubtable fact that the cut strokes in nearly all games are the most accurate. The reason has never been given. It probably is that as the ball remains a longer time in contact with the propelling instrument the player has a greater opportunity for aiming.

That probably is the reason for Kumagaes almost sickening consistency. The ball always seems to come back, but he does not get his drive by cutting the ball, or, as they would say in golf, by slicing it. He uses habitually a stroke that is unique among international tennis players, namely the pull.

So rare is this stroke, that in the bibliography of tennis the pull is not even mention, except in "Modern Tennis," and even there it was dismissed with the briefest reference until after Kumagae's remarkable performance with it in recent seasons.

The pull in tennis is exactly the same as the pull in golf, with the obvious exception that one is hitting a moving ball instead of one that is stationary.

The pull is the reverse of the cut. The ball is taken low and the racket swings across it from left to right, coming, if one may so express it, from behind the player and being flung away from him across the line of intended flight of the ball and finishing high up—so high, indeed, that it often looks as though Kumagae would hit his head.

Tennis players are familiar with the peculiar "dip" of the ordinary forehand drive with the topspin. The peculiarity of the pulled drive is that it does its dipping sideways. The plane of the ball's flight, instead of being upright as in the ordinary drive, is leaning over at an angle of from 30 to 50 degrees. It naturally follows that this drive swerves a good dead especially against a wind. It is most deceptive to a would-be volleyer, who does not understand what is happening, for its dip and swerve is nearly always across the court, and this caused a great deal of miscalculation on the part of any one who is accustomed to returns that come to meet him, whereas this one is always edging away from him and compelling him to "dig it up" from below the height of the net.

The pull has the unique quality of swerving into the court both on the forehand and the backhand. It was not uncommon for Kumagae's opponent at the net to let his return pass him, under the impression that it was going out of the court, only to see it curl in and land well inside the line.

Against a wind a cut that is three feet inside the court at net may swerve out of it. Against the wind, a pull that is three feet outside the court at the net would be quite likely to swerve in over the side line. This is not a very theoretical advantage against an active opponent at the net!

Kumakae plays the pull on both his forehand and back hand, and his remarkable work on his former visit was unquestionably a date in tennis history for it definitely put the pull into the game as an acknowledged and practical stroke. It is, however, open to question if it will ever dispossess the standard forehand drive with top spin, for it has two outstanding defects. One is that for a man of ordinary stature it must be played off a low ball. This means that one's opponent has more time wherein to take up an attacking position at the net. The other is that, as the ball does its ducking sideways, it fights gravitation more than the standard drive. This makes it hang in the air more, which naturally is a further advantage to the opposing player.

There is no ranking player except Kumagae that uses the pull consistently in his game, and therefore I have called it the rarest stroke in the realm of sport — the pull in tennis.—P. A. Valle in New York World.

Edwin Booth and Lincoln.

It has long been known that Edwin Booth felt deeply the grief that it was one of his own family who took Abraham Lincoln's life. This little story, which the editor of a well known magazine is fond of telling, emphasizes that fact:

When I was a boy I lived in Chicago near Lincoln park. There when Edwin Booth was playing in the city I went with another boy to hear "Hamlet." I was permitted to spend the night at my friend's house, but went home for breakfast.

At that early hour Lincoln park was deserted, but as I drew near St. Gaudens' great statue of Lincoln I saw a carriage approach, driven by a negro coachman. It stopped before the statue, the door opened and out stepped Edwin Booth. Curious to see what would happen, I stepped behind a clump of shrubbery where I might watch unobserved.

The great actor stood for a moment before the wonderful bronze with his head bared. Then he took a rose from his buttonhole and laid it at the base of the statue. He entered the carriage and was driven away, utterly unconscious that the incident had been witnessed by one who would ever after cherish its memory.—Youth's Companion.

Many Uses of Graphite.

Few people begin to realize the range of uses to which graphite is put, says the Scientific American, for it is an essential though minor ingredient in a great number of unsuspected connections as common as that of lead pencils. With many of these the graphite man is himself unfamiliar, beyond the simple fact that this or that manufacturer purchases from him, for in such uses it is apt to represent part of a secret process.

Lead pencils, lubricants, electrical conductors and black polishes and paints are prominent conventional uses, but it is liable to be present pretty much anywhere that anti-friction, unfading blackness, heat resistance, electrical conductivity or noncorrosiveness is a desirable property, and the fact that without graphite the derby hat, as we know it could not be, is an example of its importance as an incidental ingredient.

A Wonderful Railway Journey.

For picturesque variety and romantic appeal the panoramas running like double cinematograph films past the car windows on the great African trunk line can never know a rival. Six thousand miles, across sixty-five degrees of latitude; a score of climates and the lands of a hundred different peoples or tribes; the second longest of the world's rivers and two of its largest lakes; the greatest dam ever built, conserving water for the world's richest lands; the most imposing and ancient of all temples; the greatest waterfall and the most important gold and diamond mines, and finally one of the last great expanses of real wilderness, the only place in the world where the wild beasts of the jungle may be seen in their primitive state from a train—all these are seen, witnessed or experienced in twelve days.

SERIOUS ACCIDENT ON CHARLOTTE ST.

Waggon Wheel Was Caught in Railway Track.

A serious accident took place on Charlotte street near Pearl Avenue, last night at 11 o'clock when Charles Pogue, 280 William street, and I. W. Christopher, 319 Pearl Avenue, were badly shaken and cut up when their horse ran away. A horse and waggon was hired from Dr. F. L. Robinson's livery stable by Mr. Pogue but when proceeding east on Charlotte street, one of the front wheels was caught between the street railway track and the pavement and in trying to turn out smashed the wheel which caused the horse to run away and collide with a passing street car dashing Mr. Pogue and Mr. Christopher to the ground. The horse ran almost to Reid street until it collided with a tree turning over the waggon and smashing it almost beyond repair and upsetting the balance of the load. The two young men were taken to the office of Dr. McLelland at the corner of Stewart and Charlotte streets. Two other young men whose names could not be ascertained jumped from the waggon and escaped unharmed.

THE R-34'S TRIUMPH.

Canadians, in common with their fellow citizens in all parts of the British Empire, will rejoice at the safe arrival in England of the giant British dirigible, the R-34, completing the most remarkable round trip over the Atlantic that the world has known. Apart from the national pride in British science and British gallantry, which made the exploit possible, the voyage of Britain's mammoth airship is remarkable because it has demonstrated that for some time at least the lighter-than-air machine will have to be the type used for commercial flying. It is true that the dirigibles cannot approach the aeroplane or seaplane in speed, but this is more than counter balanced by the much greater safety ensured by the balloon type of airship. With an aeroplane the engine is the heart of the machine; let the engine stop and there is nothing left for the aviator to do but to make a landing. On the other hand, the dirigible can remain in the air even if her engines are disabled, while, of course, the carrying capacity is far greater than in the case of the aeroplane. Vast strides have been made in the conquest of the air in the past five years, and notably in the past few months, but although the successful voyage of the R-34 has shown the possibilities that a continued development of the science of aerial navigation presents, there is still much to be done before even the dirigible will be accepted by the public as a regular means of crossing the Atlantic.

DAYLIGHT SAVINGS TO STAY.

President Wilson is evidently not afraid of the farmers' vote, judging by his action in vetoing the passing of the Agricultural Bill because of a clause which repealed the daylight-saving law. The United States' president is a firm believer in the new time and its benefits for the people as a whole, and although the decision to do away with the measure after this year was approved by both Houses, Mr. Wilson has not hesitated to veto the bill. In doing so he pointed out that the Daylight Savings Act resulted "inevitably from a careful study of ... by competent ... which the business operations of the country, but also from observation of the happy and beneficial consequences of similar legislation in other countries where legislation of this character has been for some time in operation, and where it resulted, as the Act of March 19, 1918, has resulted, in the United States, in substantial economies."

The President's decision is of vital interest to Canadians, because it will probably mean that in the urban centres of this country, the new time will be used again next year. Had Mr. Wilson approved the repeal of the measure across the line, the railways of the United States would have gone back to standard time next year, and as the Canadian roads would have had to follow their example in order to maintain their connections at the border, it would have been practically impossible for the cities of Canada to use the new system as they have done this summer.

MR. ROWELL'S ATTACK.

Mr. Rowell, realising that he has lost the confidence and the support of the vast majority of the Liberals of the province of Ontario, has evidently decided that he may as well establish himself as firmly as he possibly can in the good graces of the Conservatives. This seems to be the explanation of his attack upon Mr. Hartley Dewart, the new Liberal leader in Ontario, an attack that will not in the least injure Mr. Dewart, but will, it is to be imagined, have boomerang tendencies in so far as the instigator of the verbal onslaught is concerned. Mr. Dewart is denounced on two grounds, first because he opposed Union government in 1917, and secondly because Mr. Rowell states that he is the "rising hope" of the organized liquor traffic. The Ontario Liberal leader needs no defence; he is well qualified to look after himself, and Mr. Rowell's feeble arrows are not in the least likely to worry Mr. Dewart. It is perhaps only necessary to point out that Mr. Dewart has already made his position on the liquor question clear and so far as can be judged he differs in no way from Sir William Hearst. Both have promised to carry out the law, no matter what the law may be, after the people have given their decision when the referendum is taken. There is no particular hope for the liquor interests in this stand of Mr. Dewart. If the people want to have the bars back, then the majority will have to say so by their ballots. If they vote against the bars or any other form of selling liquor then Mr. Dewart is pledged to see that the bars and all other forms of handling liquor remain out of the province. Why then the attack upon the new Liberal leader, unless it is dictated by the hope of gaining prestige with those Conservatives in the Union government who even now are calling for Mr. Rowell's head?

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The correspondence on the Hunter street bridge problem has been voluminous enough to provide filling for all the approaches.

The boys are still coming back from ... "over there," and everybody is delighted to see them—even if the official welcome is not as fervent as it might be.

With daylight savings in the United States again next year there is no question about its adoption by the cities and towns on this side.

Sir George Perley has sailed for Canada. Will he have anything new to say about Argyl House?

POLITICAL AFFILIATIONS.

The interests of both farmers and labouring men are adequately covered in the platform of the Canadian Council of Agriculture. In the long run what is the good for the farmer is equally good for his brother who works in the town. Legislation inimical to the interests of the one will eventually prove equally inimical to the interests of the other. But even recognising this community of interest, as we do, we must confess to misgivings when we contemplate a union of organized farmers with trade unionists for political action. The ultimate ideals of the two classes are almost identical insofar as they call for a more equitable distribution of wealth. Their methods of attaining this end are as far apart as the poles; to say it seems to us, for unified political action.

The lack of union among the labour unionists themselves is a serious obstacle to effective political union. Labour views, as expressed in their unions, vary all the way from individualism to the socialism of Karl Marx. The tendency, however, is toward the latter extreme and the attitude of labour to-day was well expressed by one of their speakers who recently appeared before the convention of the Saskatchewan Grain Growers' Association. He professed to see little that was good in the Farmers' platform and called for the nationalization of land of all industries and the return to the labourer of the full product of his toil with apparently no reward to capital and mighty little for labour of superintendence.

The sympathetic attitude adopted by many labour unions towards the Bolshevik movement in Russia is also a fair indication of the economic ideals of a section of union labour. Such an ideal for society, where every man would be little more than a small cog in a very big machine, would be, we believe, repugnant to the farmers of both eastern and western Canada. Farmers recognize that capital must be rewarded in order to stimulate thrift and insure those accumulations of capital which are necessary in maintaining and increasing production. From their practical experience as farm managers, they recognize that labour of superintendence often involves greater strain than actual work with the hands and must be rewarded accordingly.

It is in their recognition of the necessity of competition, however, that the farmers depart absolutely from the ideals of the labour union. Competition of itself, say the farmers, is helpful; it stimulates to greater endeavour and brings out the best that is in us. It is the exactions of special privilege and monopolies to which farmers object. They believe that, with the removal of such artificial barriers to an equitable distribution of wealth as the protective tariff, special franchises and with the retention of the natural resources of the country for the people of the country and the use of the community value of land for publi cpurposes, collecting it by means of a tax on land values, that competition would be a force for good. It would assure to every man a return proportionate to his efforts in production. Greater effort would insure proportionately greater returns, something that no system of socialism with which we are acquainted, can insure.

Such a system would be equally beneficial to both farmers and labouring men but so far union labour has failed to grasp how far reaching are the reforms that would be effected easily, and naturally through the adoption of the farmers' platform. By failing to distinguish between capital productively employed and capital as represented in monopoly, labouring men have failed to recognize the power that is robbing them of their just reward and their attacks have been largely directed against their working partner as represented by capital invested in industry. As long as these differences in viewpoint exist we fail to see how organized farmers and organized labour can form a working alliance. Both parties are bent on political action and we believe that, for the present at least, labour and agriculture should be represented in our legislative halls by distinct groups which, however, could work together on the many projects on which the two meet on common ground and each lend strength to the other. We doubt, however, if either party are willing to modify their platform sufficiently to make unified political action possible.—Farm and Dairy.

Voice Of The People

Dear Sir,—Will you be kind enough through your valuable paper to tell the citizens of our city if his worship has the power to say we will not have the 19th declared a public holiday to celebrate the signing of Peace after His Majesty calling upon the Empire to celebrate the same also the Government of the Dominion having set apart the 19th for such celebration. I am rather surprised to think His Worship the Mayor should take this step especially when after the awful struggle that this Empire has passed through I think that every citizen should fittingly celebrate the same and that the wheels of industry should also stop so that all our people should be given the opportunity to celebrate the same. Hoping His Worship will declare the 19th a Public Holiday and call upon the people to fittingly celebrate the same, and by thus doing, this city will show its appreciation of the gigantic sacrifice Our Empire had made.

Yours truly,

One who has the Empire at Heart.

P. S.—Let our people prove their loyalty to the Empire by keeping the 19th day for celebration.

EUROPE FACES COAL SHORTAGE

LABOUR DIFFICULTIES WILL REDUCE ENGLAND'S EXPORT SAYS AMERICAN OFFICIAL—FRANCE AND ITALY AFFECTED BY WAR.

WASHINGTON.—That the United States may be called upon to make up an alarming coal shortage in Europe, due in part to what may amount to the destruction of England's great export coal trade through labor made public today by Vaut H. Manning, the Director of the Federal Bureau of Mines.

The report to Director Manning was written by George S. Rice, the Chief Mining Engineer of the Bureau of Mines. Mr. Rice has just returned from Europe, where he went to investigate mining conditions. He was in Europe several months, and his report indicates a serious coal situation not only in England, but in all other parts of Europe as well.

In the course of his report Mr. Rice says:

"Perhaps the most serious changes in the coal problem taking place in Great Britain, which has always been the greatest coal-exporting nation of the world. With a production of 287,000,000 tons in 1913, the last pre-war year, she exported 77,000,000 tons to countries that were in dire need of coal."

The startling changes in the after-war period are based on the coming award of the Coal Industry Commission, a Parliamentary committee, the report of which goes into effect July 16, and which reduces the hours of labor underground from eight to seven hours, and "subject to the economic position of the industry at the end of 1920, the hours of labor underground to be reduced to six." In discussing the effect of this Mr. Rice quotes Sir Auckland Geddes as calling to the attention of the House of Commons that during the next year, under this award, the production of coal will be lessened by 70,000,000 tons, practically England's export trade, and that the reduced output and increase of wages will cost $1.05 more per ton, altogether an increase of more than $300,000,000.

"The seven hours' work a day are exclusive of the average time of lowering or raising the workmen from the mine," adds Mr. Rice, "but include the time of travelling to the working place, which means, according to the mine owners, that with the seven-hour day there will be less than six hours of effective work.

"The total British coal exports in 1913 were 77,000,000 tons. If the restrictions in the consumption of coal are removed on the basis of internal consumption of coal this would leave but 7,000,000 tons for export. As France, Italy, Sweden, Norway, and Spain have largely been dependent on Great Britain for fuel, it can be realized that the situation is a serious one apart from England's loss of practically its only raw product export.

"France will be particularly hit by the conditions prevailing in Great Britain, from whom she received in 1913 nearly 13,000,000 tons of coal. Altogether, before the war, she consumed 60,000,000 tons and imported from different countries 21,000,000 tons of coal, coke, and briquets. The mines destroyed by the Germans produced 20,000,000 tons of coal in pre-war times, and at least two-thirds of the destruction was systematic wanton and without military necessity.

"It is estimated by the French engineers that it will take from two to five years to restore the broken shaft fixings and to reinstate the mines and rebuild the modern plants ... "There is thus a total deficit at this time of approximately 40,000,000 tons a year which, if it is to be supplied at all, can only come from America, on the assumption that Westphalia and Belgium are unable to materially increase production. At best there is evidently a very large amount of coal which the United States could and should supply to relieve the situation now and there is likely to be sufficient shipping flying the American flag to take care of the business."

WORLD HAPPENINGS

LONDON, July 15.—The Government has decided to postpone the increase in the price of coal until a conference can be held with the miners.

BLANCHE ORTON MONOPOLIZES NEIL

CHAPTER XVI.

Often when I saw older married people so indifferent I would think how perfectly awful, how tragic it was—tragic that they accepted each other simply as a matter of course, as they did their oatmeal or their coffee. Perhaps young married people were rather imbecile about many things, but wasn't it better than being cold and indifferent? Across the intimate commonplaces of married life ran the flashes of sympathy, the wonderful love that rose above all, that surmounted all else. When that was worn to indifference, where was the joy of living?

Yet, to tell the truth I wasn't much given to analysis. One isn't, often, at twenty-four, especially if one is as normally healthy and alive as was I. We kept busy too, Neil and I, or some of my friends and I, although the novelty of New York had worn off to a degree, and I often wondered how people who had been living this theatre-restaurant sort of life for years, could keep up their perpetual vivacity and never-flagging interest in the same puerile amusements. At first I was wildly enthusiastic whenever Neil spoke of going to the play, or to some smart restaurant for dinner, or on occasion to some "Bohemian joint," as he called the sort of places frequented by girls with bobbed hair, and men with flowing neckties and frayed cuffs. But now I was a bit satiated with these evenings of noise, forced gayety and alcohol-inspired witticisms. Yet Neil seemed never to tire of the gay places, and was ever polite— so I thought— to the coarse, red-faced men who often sought our table intrusively.

The furnishings of the new apartment kept me so busy for a few weeks that when night came I begged Neil either to stay at home, or to go out without me. Yet when he took me at my word and went smilingly out, after kissing me fondly and telling me to "turn in early," I felt strangly resentful and abominably lonely.

'I never saw anyone so generous with her property as you are," Lorraine Morton said to me one day when I was shopping for curtains, and had run into her at the counter.

"Meaning?"

"Simply that Blanche Orton is delighted to monopolize Neil. I was at Perry's last night, and when she saw him come in alone she called him to her at once; then flirted outrageously with him all the evening. Why didn't you come, too?"

"I was dead tired. Wasn't Mr. Orton there?"

"Yes. But that means nothing."

"I guess I shan't worry as long as he doesn't."

"I don't want you to worry. I might want to do the same thing some day! I am rather fond of your handsome husband myself, you know. I was only remarking your generosity. It is unusual — when a man is as attractive as Neil. Most women would be wildly jealous."

"Jealous because a man went out occasionally? I think that would be terribly silly, as well as almost insulting to the man. I don't expect Neil to be tied to my apron strings simply because I am his wife." Yet, as I spoke, I felt a return of the resentment I had felt the night before when he had so nonchalantly left me.

"Better tied to your apron than to that of some other woman. You know, Blanche considered him her especial property until he married you."

"He's mine now," I said with a little laugh that sounded forced. I knew Neil had known Blanche Orton for a long time and that he liked her. I wondered if Lorraine knew it also, and if she thought Neil still was en rapport with the lively Blanche.

"See that you keep him. I don't envy you your job."

On my way home I kept thinking of that parting speech of Lorraine's. What did she mean? She had said she did not "envy me my job," and her voice had conveyed even more plainly than had her words, that she thought it might be a hard job. The idea! That was all she knew about it. She was judging Neil by some of the married people she knew who had become indifferent to each other. To-morrow—Neil Takes Blanche Orton's Advice to Exercise.

Look and Feel Clean, Sweet and Fresh Every Day

Drink a glass of real hot water before breakfast to wash out poisons.

Life is not merely to live, but to live well, eat well, digest well, work well, sleep well, look well. What a glorious condition to attain, and yet how very easy it is if one will only adopt the morning inside bath.

Folks who are accustomed to feel dull and heavy when they arise, splitting headache, stuffy from a cold, foul tongue, nasty breath, acid stomach, can, instead, feel as fresh as a daisy by opening the sluices of the system each morning and flushing out the whole of the internal poisonous stagnant matter.

Everyone, whether ailing, sick or well, should, each morning, before breakfast, drink a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it to wash from the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels the previous day's indigestible waste, sour bile and poisonous toxins; thus cleansing, sweetening and purifying the entire alimentary canal before putting more food into the stomach. The action of hot water and limestone phosphate on an empty stomach is wonderfully invigorating. It cleans out all the sour fermentations, gases, waste and acidity and gives one a splendid appetite for breakfast. While you are enjoying your breakfast the water and phosphate is quietly extracting a large volume of water from the blood and getting ready for a thorough flushing of all the inside organs.

The millions of people who are bothered with constipation, bilious spells, stomach trouble, rheumatism; others who have sallow skins, blood disorders and sickly complexions are urged to get a quarter pound of limestone phosphate from the drug store which will cost very little, but is sufficient to make anyone a pronounced crank on the subject of internal sanitation.

ENUMERATORS APPOINTED

John Maize and Paul Trebilcock ganized districts, and one or two ther ridings, the chief enumerators who are to have charge of the preparation of the voters' lists for the referendum have been appointed by the Government. The list was made public by Hon. I. B. Lucas recently, who stated that the work of preparing the lists is to be commenced next Monday. The epumerator for East Durham is John Maize, of Garden Hill, and for West Durham, Paul C. Trebilcock, Bowmanville.

Benson's CORN STARCH

For Tomorrow's Dessert

The question of variety in summer desserts never troubles the woman who knows the possibilities of Benson's Corn Starch, the choicest product of the corn.

Benson's Corn Starch is equally fine for crisp, delicate pastries as it is for simple puddings; it is good for cakes and for pie fillings to say nothing of Blanc Mange, Custards and Ice Cream.

Try one of these recipes for tomorrow's dessert—

Write for Cook Book

The Canada Starch Co. Limited - Montreal

Blanc Mange

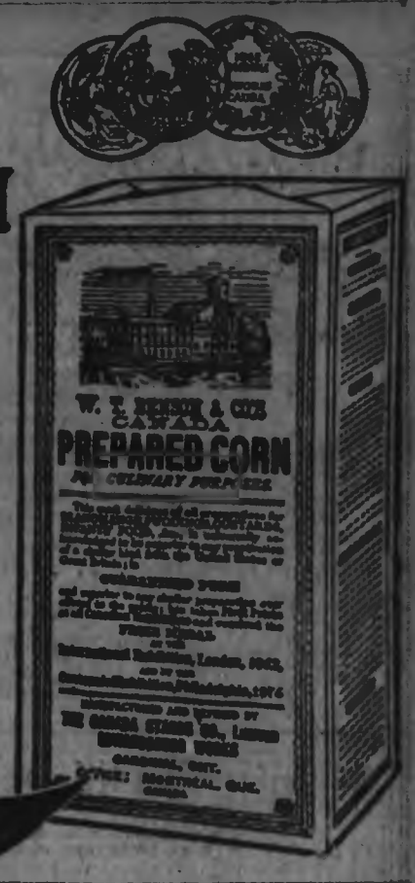
Four tablespoonfuls of Benson's Corn Starch, one quart of milk, half the Corn Starch with little of the milk; heat the remainder of the milk and when boiling add the dissolved Corn Starch; boil for 15 minutes in double saucepan; sweeten if desired and flavour to taste. Allow to cool in a mould and serve with cream and sugar, jelly or preserves.

Mock Cream Pie

Beat the yolks of three eggs, one cup of sugar and four tablespoonfuls of Benson's Corn Starch well mixed. Stir in one pint of hot milk, slowly and add a pinch of salt and a teaspoonful of butter. Flavor with a cream flavoring, grate nutmeg on top. Bake till done. Cover with meringue and brown.

Coffee Custard

Heat 1 pint of milk and ½ cup of Lily White Corn Syrup to boiling point. Add two eggs well beaten, 2 tbsp. full of Benson's Corn Starch mixed till smooth with a little cold milk. Stir till thickens. Pour into glasses. When very cold serve with cream.



Political Railroading

Government operation of the United States railways is becoming more of a farce under peace conditions than it was in the most strenuous days of the war. It will be recalled that Mr. McAdoo recommended to Congress before he retired from the directorship of the railways that government operation should be continued over a period of five years, in order that the country might judge and pass judgment on the respective merits of government and private operation.

For the month of April the railways showed an increase in the volume of business of 4.9 per cent.; but here was a decrease of $3.7 in net income. This less in net was registered despite the fact that freight and passenger rates have been increased about 50 per cent. since the government took over the railways and began to operate them. The promising increase in net earnings during peace conditions proved to be also prophecy; there has been a steadily-increasing deficit.

During the first four months of the present year there has been a net loss for railway operation of $165,-000,000, notwithstanding the increased rates. The financial expert of the New York Times gives the following figures relating to government operation this year, taken from the records of the Federal Department of Railways:—

In comparison with the three-year average upon which the government rents the railways there was an increase of $110,-117,000 in gross earnings and a loss of $41,183,000 in net income. (This is for April only.) Over the four months of this year there was an increase of $447,-950,000 in gross earnings and a decrease of $174,613,000 in net income. The loss of 72 per cent. in net earnings LEFT FOR THE GOVERNMENT $60,584,000 WITH WHICH TO PAY $240,-216,000.

What more convincing object lesson of the failure of government ownership could be asked than those two totals, an increase of $447,000,000 in gross earnings and a decrease of $174,000,000 in net earnings? That means a difference of more than $600,000,000 between government and private operation in the short period of four months, or of $1,800,000,000 in a single year.

Part of that loss is due to mismanagement and part of it to padding the railroad pay rolls. Senator Cummins, formerly an advocate of government ownership, read statistics in the Senate recently to back his assertion that there were 200,000 useless men in the employ of the Railway Administration. He said the whole of them could be cut off without injuring the service in the least. In other words, there are more than 200,000 purely political positions under the railway management.

Little wonder that the Democrats have cut government ownership from their party platform and that even the radical supporters of Senator Johnson failed to make any mention of it in their "Progressive" platform. In 1913 and again in 1916 the Progressives made government ownership a headliner in their policies. Now the idol has fallen so low that none will do it reverence.—From the Los Angeles Times.

MADE ODD CHOICE OF "LOOT"

Sailors Had Little Time to Select, and Result Showed Wide Divergence of Ideas.

What would you take if a great many of the choicest goods of the world were spread before you and you had approximately a half hour to load yourself with legitimate loot?

This problem came before British sailors whose destroyer had answered the call of distress of a torpedoed liner. The ship was sinking slowly. It had been hit by two torpedoes and could not possibly be saved. The forward bulk-heads still held, and it was certain that a half hour remained for the destroyer's boarding party and the liner's crew to remain aboard and "help themselves."

This is what happened:

One sailor took a knife, fork and spoon of the liner's best silver.

An assistant paymaster, who writes a diary in odd hours, took four bundles of [illegible] papers.

A petty officer spent the entire ha our trying to remove a handson lock in the upper-deck dining salo ut came away empty-handed.

A cook took a carving knife.

Another cook took an easy chair.

A petty officer took an armful of fi ble linen for his mother.

Many sailors took blankets.

The ship's crew were content wi eir own personal kit.

In addition to usual articles in ner's dining saloons and cabins, the ere automobiles on board, victrola nos and a purser's safe of the late del. However, nobody seemed nt them, and they went down wi e ship.

ANY CARILLONS WERE SAVE

ameus Bells of Belgium Not All D stroyed by Hun Ravages of the Country.

Thinking of peace memorials, th nited States will be the richer fo possession of carillons, those g antic bell-pianos, as they might b lled, for which Belgium was, ar ppily can still be famous. Many o er carillons, with from 36 to 52 bells ranging from little ones that weig only a few pounds to big ones of ab r seven tons, were destroyed by she fire or enemy spoliation, but some of he best have survived uninjured. The bells of Tournai were taken away by he Germans, and recaptured a brought back by the British. Th carillon of Malines survived in a to er that was seven times hit by art ery; but the keyboard was smash from which Josef Denys, one of t greatest bell-masters in the worl bravely rang out the national airs Belgium while the invaders were ge ing ready to enter the town. An now the carillon of Malines can re sume its interrupted weekly concert one of which, just before the war, h said to have had an audience of at least 20,000.

Mad Imitation Submarine Target.

The skill with which the American gunners frustrated the attacks of U-boats was due, in a large measure, to the use of an ingenious target for gun practice during the voyages, asserts a writer in Popular Mechanics Magazine. The device consisted of a framework, about 30 feet long and five feet wide, built to be drawn through the water, with an imitation conning tower and periscope mounted on the upper side. It was drawn behind the ship by means of two cables attached one above the other. By pulling on the upper one, the upper side of the frame was made to project forward, causing the target to rise to the surface, while, by pulling on the lower cable the device would quickly submerge. Officers out of sight of the gunners manipulated the apparatus, frequently changing the range by paying out or taking in the cables.

IF STRENGTH DECLINES AS AGE ADVANCES FOLLOW THIS SUGGESTION

So many women grow old before their time, perhaps your wife or sister. A little while ago buoyant, full of vigor and activity — she enjoyed life and imparted pleasure to the whole family; but now in a few short years she has faded and lost color and strength. She is just ready to develop some disease that will further weaken and debilitate. You remember how it began, failure of appetite, tired in the morning, found the housework burdensome, always nervous and a little irritable. It's a shame to let her go down hill further when you can build her up so quickly with Ferrozone. The change this nourishing tonic makes in a weak woman is surprising. It gives great zest for food, increases the appetite and digestion enormously. The blood gets richer and stronger and adds new life to every organ in the body. A rebuilding process works through the entire system. The first week will show an improvement and a month or two will fatten up the thinnest, most run down woman you can think of. Take Ferrozone for lost color or nervousness, for weakness—use it when run down and feeling poorly—it will do you more lasting good, keep you in better health, than anything else. Just as good for men and children, too, because Ferrozone is harmless and safe. 50c per box or six for $2.50, at all dealers, or direct by mail from the Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ont.

PREPARED TO DEAL WITH STRIKE

TROOPS MUSTERED AT VARIOUS POINTS THROUGHOUT ITALY.

(Canadian Press.)

ROME, July 15.— Strike disorders occurred at various places in Italy yesterday. At Lucera, eight persons were killed and thirty wounded. At New Genoa two anarchists were killed in a fight with Carabinieri and four arrested. A general strike began at Caltanissetta, Sicily. People there marched through the streets crying "Vive Soviet" and forced dealers in foodstuffs and other necessities to reduce their prices fifty per cent.

The Italian government, Premier Nitti announced in the Chamber of Deputies, has taken ample measures to preserve order in view of the threat of a general strike throughout the country. Troops have been distributed everywhere in cities and villages and in the country and provided with supplies for more than forty-eight hours in case they should be cut off from their base.

MEMORIAL ON CHURCH GROUNDS

MEETING HELD LAST EVENING AT ST. JOHN'S CHURCH.

Many suggestions were offered by an interested gathering of members of St. John's Anglican church held last evening to consider a suitable memorial to soldiers, who have fallen in the war, Canon J. C. Davidson was in the chair and the matter was finally referred back to the Special Committee appointed for the purpose. The general opinion seemed to favour the erection of some memorial or cross on the church grounds in memory of the sixteen members of the congregation who have fallen in battle.

ANNA Q. NILSSON IN A PLAY OF THE YUKON

"The Way of the Strong," to the New Metro Drama to be Shown at the Grand Theatre.

"The Way of the Strong," a story of the great northwest, is a play of tremendous dramatic value which gives Anna Q. Nilsson, beautiful star of the production, a dual role.

This play which will be featured at the Grand Theatre Thursday, Friday and Saturday, is a story of the northlands—showing the forceful passions which rule in the land of open spaces where love and purity hold high value but where narrow conventions are never known. The two roles in which Miss Nilsson appears, vary widely. In the first scenes she enacts the character of an unfaithful wife, while later she is seen as the girl who brings ultimate love and happiness to many lives.

Miss Nilsson is surrounded by a cast of clever players among whom are Joe King, Harry S. Northrup, Irene Yeager, Arthur Redden and Rita Harlan. The play is adapted from the novel of the same name by Ridgewell Cullum and is directed by Edwin Carewe.

MAGIC BAKING POWDER

DOES ADVERTISING PAY?

Many advertisers, and particularly retail advertisers, never get the full cumulative power of advertising behind their business because they lack patience. They demand direct returns. They run a one-time announcement in the local paper to-day and look for sales enough—sales directly traceable to the little one-time advertisement—before next week to pay for the cost of the space. Of course they are disappointed. Retail advertising seldom works out that way. But they are impatient for results. They are not prepared to invest money in advertising as they would in new goods, in store fixtures, in stocks or in real estate—and wait for profits to be earned. No. The returns of to-day's advertising must ring in cash profits to-morrow, or, in the estimation of too many retail dealers, the advertising is not worth what it costs.

Hand-to-mouth advetising is not worth what it costs. It yields only hand-to-mouth returns. To show the best results as a business building power, the advertising of the retail merchant must be persistent. Its chief purpose should be to build up permanent trade; to make the people of your community turn to your store in preference to other stores; to make them think of you and of your place of business; to convince them that they cannot get better quality and price and service anywhere.

"Would you advise a sixty-inch advertisement in the newspaper once a week or six ads. covering ten inches of space each week?" was one of the questions asked.

"I would advise six ads., one each day, or, better still, three twenty-inch ads. each week," replied the advertiser.

"Anything that is desirable is advertisable," he said, and pointed out that the desirability of an article depends much on the consistency with which it is advertised.

"One of the best ways to advertise is to cultivate the customers you have acquired and they will assist you in your advertising."

His final message was: "Advertise and get out and prosper."

SUNSET HILL

(Contributed)

The sports out here are very different from those in the east. Down there on the farm, when your day's work is done you can nearly always go and visit some fellow your own age. Here our nearest neighbour lives about a mile away and I don't know of anyone my own age (accept girls and I claim exemption in that line) nearer than two hundred and some miles at a town that I visited on the way out. Of course, there are hundreds at Moosejaw and Regina but it's my luck to average a trip about once a year and therefore I don't know them. The nearest town (at least they do other places the injustice to call it such) is about eighteen miles. It consists of one elevator, two stores, five houses and a station platform with a small baggage room that measures about eight by fourteen feet. You see there's not much chance of a picture show on Saturday night.

Deprived of these privileges the people do not seem to be at much of a loss. They go for a thirty or forty mile ride in the saddle, or perhaps a sixty, eighty or on a hundred mile drive in a car to spend Sunday. Any other holiday is usually spent reading, writing home, or hunting. Sometimes sport is obtained by galloping after a coyote on a level stretch or galloping a driving team over rough ground to try and see how high they can bounce or something like that as they tell me. Some of the "Cowboy" class are at their greatest glory while they are breaking "broncho". They had me try it but I got bucked off. I got back on again and rode the wild one home At the same time I'll be in no hurry to break another or get broken by another. It is about five miles from our place to the swimming point so we go swimming most every Sunday. Lake Johnstone is about fifteen by thiry miles and only one fairly small island to be seen anywhere on it. The Island is where the Pellicans build in the spring and swans Pellicans, etc., go for refuge from hunters in fall. While swimming on the lake or paddling in the old punt, a storm will come up so quickly as to make it dangerous to anyone who ventures too far out. One can wade out for close unto a mile and as a storm often comes up and gets in full swing in five or less minutes it is considered by many too dangerous a place. Of course to us, both sound and thought of "dangerous or risky" makes it past resistance and although we do not venture far enough but to be caught in a storm, we kind of feel big when we say how bad the storm was when we were in swimming.

The school is just half a mile north west of our house and I often watch them play at recess and noon. All but three of the school pupils ride or drive to school. There are two, brother and sister, who ride little white ponies to school, scarcely over three feet high. At noon the boy will often be seen galloping the pony around the yard and trying to lasso the pupils. These ponies are pure-bred Shetlands from France and are extra well trained. They will stand still and pretend to be racing at a signal from their owner or if the owner wishes they will buck with all their might and often succeed in throwing the rider.

GARDEN PARTY WAS A SUCCESS

Over Three Hundred Took in the Event

Cloudy weather did not deter the George Street Church Epworth League Garden party held on the lawn of Mr. A. Allison's home, 577 Water street, from being a gratifying success. Three hundred people attendded and listened to the George Street Orchestra which was in attendance. A fine musical programme was provided and this together with a number of prettily decorated booths with pie, cake ice cream, home made candy, made the evening pass off more than creditably.

COW PATH IN CENTRAL PARK

It is across the Central Park. It leaves the granolithic walk under the trees about the centre and makes straight for the north-east corner of the Collegiate Institute. Its beginning was last winter when the snow lay deep and unbroken. An adventuresome fellow reaching the centre of the granolithic beheld the unbroken snow, boldly, with venturesome spirit determined to shorten his way home, so he lifted his leg and planted it in the unbroken snow, and keeping his eye fixed on the bush at the north-west corner of the lawn, he pressed boldly on. It was heavy tramping, but he was venturesome and bold and, not deterred by the thought that he was the first man to break the till now untrodden field, he succeeded in reaching the south side of McDonnel street. On reaching it he proudly [illegible] the prints of his big feet. Others came along and seeing the path, thought they too, would shorten the way by cutting the corner. It was shorter and quicker by four seconds. Then a woman came; she was going out to do a day's washing, and she said to herself, where a man goes a woman can go; so she lifted her left leg and plunged. The snow was deep and her skirts were in the way, so she lifted them and plunged on. The way was trying and the snow was cold, oh, so very cold! but she determined to go through with it, and she did. Then others came along. Life is short and four seconds is worth saving. They looked at the short cut and they took it, and the cow path over the grass was made. In spring the snow went but the path was adhered to and has been used ever since. The school [illegible] was spoken to and it was suggested that a stake at each end with a board nailed with a notice, "This [illegible]" would have the grass and remove the eye sore, and suggest that it was bad manners and improper to make bare paths by trampling over the grass and making paths where many were not desired. The janitor, however, remembered that was no part of his business to interfere. Then [illegible] up in the City Council and after careful and long consideration, a resolution was passed unanimously. The resolution read as follows:

Moved by Mr. ——, seconded by Mr. ——, "That the matter of the cow path over the lawn be left over till after the war."—Carried.

Thus the path goes down to history. The war is over and the path remains. It is largely patronized by thoughtless people who have a consciousness of their wrong doing. The grass is worn off and it is three or four feet wide. The janitor or some other thoughtful person put up notices. One said, "Please keep off the grass." Another said, "Keep off the grass," and to add emphasis some one tied a dark, rusty old wire across the path, keeping it about ten inches high, just high enough to send people ploughing the path with their noses. This wire was not seen after dark, and so many went down. They got up in amazement, saying, "What was that d—— thing?" The men limped from the scrape of the rusty wire. The women would have examined their shins but there were so many people they didn't like to do it, but went limping, exclaiming, "such a nastry trick is no credit to the School Board."

The wire has been removed, but the ends are still around the two trees. Pedestrians read the warnings that were planted right in the middle of the cow path, "Keep off the grass." "Please keep off the grass," and one man indignantly exclaimed, the blamed fools, I'm not on the grass; there isn't a blade of grass now on this path, the grass is gone long ago. Where am I to walk. If I walked on the grass that notice would be all right, but if I leave this path I will then be violating the command.

It is quite evident that this cow path is too big a problem for the board. No one knows what is coming. Some suggest that the granolithic walk be taken up and diverted to the cow path. It would perhaps be an improvement—straight lines are odious.

Then it would be so original and interesting to learn the history of the diversion of that walk. But enough. The school board have an interesting a problem as the new bridge is to the City Council and they will probably wrestle with it so long, to the wonder and amazement of the people.

THE HUNTER STREET CAMPAIGN

Probably a more simple and clear explanation of what is meant by the "Atonement" has never been given in Peterborough than the address of Evangelist H. D. Kennedy, given last night in the big tent on Hunter street, entitled "The Heart of the Gospel." This address was given two weeks ago in St. Paul's Presbyterian church, with the result that by special request Mr. Kennedy consented to repeat it last evening. Several conversions resulted.

People some times ask how one sacrifice such as that of Christ could make atonement for the sins of all the sinners of the world. In the course of his address Mr. Kennedy answered this point very clearly by showing that Jesus, though a man, was also divine and infinite in character. Mu-man beings are all finite in character. In God's sight, therefore, the life of Christ being infinite, is more valuable than all the lives of all the finite beings that have ever lived. Thus, when Christ offered Himself as the sacrifice to take away the sins of the world, His holiness was sufficiently great to more than offset all the unrighteousness of all the people that have ever lived or ever will live. "It is," said Mr. Kennedy, "as though I held 499 coppers in my left hand and a $5.00 gold piece in my right. While there are 499 coppers, yet the one gold piece is worth more than them all. In the same way Christ is of more value than all the sinners that have ever lived. Sinners who accept Him as the atonement of their sins may know that God considers His sacrifice ample for all His holy requirements."

Another Point.

Another interesting point brought out clearly by Mr. Kennedy was why it was necessary that Christ should die. He showed that in the beginning God created the world perfect and without sin. Through the disobedience of Adam and Eve sin entered the earth and the world has been corrupted by its influence ever since. When God sought Adam in the garden it would not have been possible for Adam to have offered to die for Eve's sake and his own, because both sinned. Adam could not atone for anything more than his own sin. In the same way Eve could not atone for Adam's sin, as she had her own sins to die for. This is true with all of us, for we have all sinned and come short of the glory of God. God hates sin and will never pass over it, although He may love the sinner. Because of His love for the sinner, Christ, who was perfect and without sin, offered to die in His stead. The greatest period of the world's history was the birth and death of Christ. Through His death Christ has redeemed the whole world. This does not mean, however, that the whole world is saved. Only those are saved who claim their redemption. Each individual must accept the redemption for themselves. Unless they do they cannot be saved. God offers the gift of redemption free of cost to all who will take it. He has done everything that He can to save mankind from the results of their sins. He offers eterial life to all who will believe. If men reject their redemption and spurn His free offer of grace the responsibility lies with them and not with God.

Where Are the Dead?

Mr. Kennedy dealt also in an interesting way with the location of the dead. Up to the time of the death of Christ there is reason to believe from the Scriptures that paradise was the abode of the blessed dead. The souls of all the righteous dead, after death, went to paradise. In saying this Mr. Kennedy made it clear that he did not believe in the teachings of purgatory. On the day of His death Christ said to the thief on the cross, "To-day shalt thou be with me in paradise." By this he did mean heaven. This is shown by the fact that after His resurrection when Mary sought to worship Him He told her that He had not yet ascended to His Father. He evidently did not ascend to His Father until some days later. In the account of His death we read that the graves of many were opened and that people who had been dead appeared unto many. We read also that Christ spoke to the souls that were imprisoned. By this, it is believed, that He appeared and spoke to the unrighteous dead, where their souls were imprisoned. Christ was the first born from the dead. When He arose from the dead. He set free the souls of the righteous dead that previously had been confined in paradise and took them with Him to His Father's presence. To-day when the righteous dead die they depart unto Christ and are no longer in paradise as formerly.

Righteous Dead.

Mr. Kennedy said that the righteous dead when they die are not judged as to whether or not they will go to heaven. The moment a person believes on Christ in this life there is no more judgment for them because they have then and there received eternal life and are sure to go to heaven. The believer, however, will have to appear before the judgment seat of Christ to pass a judgment for rewards of their deeds on the earth. Some believers will receiver crowns because of their faithful service. In the case of Christians whose works have been done for wrong motives their works shall be burned up in the judgment, although they themselves will be saved, because they believe in Christ, yet it will be as "though as by fire." Mr. Kennedy announced that in his address to-night on "The Second Coming of Christ," he will speak more fully on the judgments.

Much interest is being taken in to-night's subject, "The Second Coming if Christ." Mr. Kennedy has been preaching in the city for over four week and has never dealt with this subject or referred to it in any of his addresses. He feels, however, that he cannot close his campaign without dealing with it and incidentally discussing some of the many false teachings relating to it that have been spread since the outbreak of the war. To-night and to-morrow night are likely to be the last opportunities the public will have of hearing Mr. Kennedy in this campaign.

A splendid solo was rendered last evening by Messrs. Geo. and Wallace Mulligan.

Mr. Kennedy has conducted the campaign without any guarantee as to what financial returns he would receive. It was announced early in the campaign that a special collection on his behalf would be taken up on the last Sunday evening of the campaign. This collection was taken up on Sunday night. As a number of people have envelopes in which to make their thank offerings to Mr. Kennedy for his work an opportunity to hand these in will be given to-night and to-morrow night to them to do so.

SERMONETTES BY KENNEDY

The Bible does not endorse all we find in it. We find there quotations from Satan and the deeds of bad men recorded. It is a record of things said and done but not always endorsed by God as being right.

The Bible is broad enough to include everything except falsehood.

No man can appreciate the best literature, art, painting and music unless he is familiar with the Bible.

Palestine has all kinds of climates, and grows all kinds of flowers, so the men who wrote the Bible could make it an unusual book, for all kinds of people.

The New Testament is in the Old concealed and the Old is in the New revealed.

If the Bible is a man-made book why don't some men write a better book now?

It has come down to us unimpaired and uninjured.

All the Old Testament writers testified though they faced persecution.

Some claim that the Bible writers wrote only what they saw and felt. No one saw and felt the first chapter of Genesis.

The subject for Tuesday night will be the "Second Coming of Christ."

On Wednesday night a grand farewell will be held. Subejct of sermon, "Good Cheer." This is said to be Mr. Kennedy's most helpful sermon.

GOOD PROGRAMME AT GRAND OPERA

TWO WELL KNOWN STARS IN FEATURE FILMS.

An augmented orchestra of nine pieces featured the performance last evening at the Grand Opera House. It is the intention of the management to build up this particular department of the Grand Opera House and give the patrons an opportunity of hearing the best that can be produced in the line of music.

Other features of last night's show included the presentation of Kittie Gordon in "The Madonna's Gold" and Madge Kennedy in "A Perfect Lady." This double feature programme will be continued to-day and to-morrow. A special comedy and an interesting travelogue completed a well-balanced programme.

former members of the Board of Education, have expressed the conviction that secondary education should be made as accessible as possible for every child in this district. The solution of the problem so rapidly developing may not be immediately apparent, but it is felt that the present inadequacies demand a broad and bold policy of expansion, providing for modernly equipped domestic science class rooms, a gymnasium, additional rooms for the regular courses, and on top of these requirements a technical school. The only available room for temporary and expedient provision for classes is the assembly hall, on the third floor, but there are strong objections both to any move to transform, or to use it should that action be undertaken.

The situation is causing uneasiness among farmers who have suddenly been apprised of possible exclusion, and also among citizens who realize that the city cannot evade a certain responsibility for the advanced education of many children who while living beyond the corporation's boundaries are virtual residents.

Moreover, the attendance of city students alone is demanding the enlargment that becomes absolutely necessary if the country children are to be accepted.

PRESENTATION FOR TWO WAR VETERANS

SMITH TOWNSHIP RESIDENTS PARTICIPATED IN THE EVENT.

Seventy-five friends of Corp. Norman Young and his younger brother, Sergt. Harry Young, gathered at the Young homestead on the Fourth Line of Smith Township last evening, and in appreciation of the sacrifice made by the young men, presented each of them with a cheque for $258.00.

Sergt. Harry Young went overseas with the 93rd aBttalion, while Norman joined the Fort Garry Horse of Winnipeg, in England.

They are sons of Mr. H. A. Young.

WILL HOLD MEETING THIS EVENING

CHAUTAUQUA COMMITTEE IS OUT $200 ON THIS SEASON'S OPERATIONS.

Contrary to the belief held by a number of citizens that the committee who arranged for the appearance of this year's Chautauqua would be in a quandary as to how to divide the profits, the guarantors met this afternoon and each is called upon to contribute $10.00 in order that all accounts may be straightened out.

The difficulty was not in the fact that the programme presented at this year's Chautauqua was not an excellent one, but from a feeling that the tickets would be sold more generally without solicitation, and consequently the city was only canvassed the last day or two previous to the opening, and not covered at all in many sections.

The Women's Council have arranged for the Chautauqua next year, and under their auspices it should be a very decided success.

The thanks of the citizens who attended the Chautauqua this summer have been given by many to the committee for making it possible to enjoy such excellent entertainments at so modest a cost.

WORD MR. STRICKLAND ENUMERATOR

FIREBUG BURNS BARN

FIEND STARTS THE SEVENTH BLAZE ON EVE OF SOLDIER SON'S RETURN.

DURHAM, Ont., July 15.—Still another incendiary barn fire occurred in Centre Glenelg early yesterday morning, when Mrs. Thomas Connelly's barn on the 6th Concession went up in flames. The scene of this latest fire is about three miles south-west of Murphy's barn, which was destroyed approximately twenty-four hours previously.

The Connelly barn was a log structure, and traces of an attempt to fire it three weeks ago had been found in a partially burned log, but it is thought that heavy rain that night foiled the incendiary's work.

The fire evidently was started in or near the hay loft, as, after it was first noticed by Wilfred Leach, en route to Markdale, there was time to remove two horses from the stables below before it was entirely aflame. Fortunately the barn was quite empty, or the loss would be even more serious.

Mrs. Connelly is a widow, who cannot well afford the loss, and a reception was to have been tendered last night to her home to a returned son and bride, who arrived last week.

ALEX. ELLIOTT IS LOCAL ENUMERATOR

WAS RECOMMENDED BY CONSERVATIVE EXECUTIVE AND APPOINTED FOR WEST PETERBORO.

Mr. Alexander Elliott has been appointed chief enumerator for West Peterborough by the Attorney-General upon the recommendation of the executive of the local Conservative Association. In this office he will have charge of the preparation and compilation of the voters' lists for this riding to be used for the prohibition referendum. It is expected that these lists will also be used for other election purposes, especially if the next provincial elections should be held either concurrently with the voting on the prohibition question or about the same time. It is understood that Mr. Elliott is authorized to appoint the enumerators in this riding, although there seemed to be some doubt about this.

CELEBRATED THEIR 50TH ANNIVERSARY

FENELON FALLS, July 15.—Recently Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Gunn, of West Ops, reached that notable event in their lives, their 50th wedding anniversary. Their marriage was solemnized in the Parish church, Downeyville, by the late Rev. Father Coyle. Mr. Gunn was born in Cavan, Ireland, and came to Canada at the age of ten years. Before her marriage Mrs. Gunn was Miss Sarah Atkinson, of Ops township. Their married life has been spent upon the homestead where they now reside. Congratulatory addresses were made by Senator McHugh, Robert Fitzpatrick, of Toronto, and Mr. Hugh Masterson, of Haldimand County. Among the guests present were three who were guests at the wedding fifty years ago, Sarah J. Ray, Dennis Fitzpatrick, of Ops, and John Fleury, of Lindsay. Of their family of six boys and four girls, all but two were present.

FARMER BURNED TO DEATH FOLLOWING DOMESTIC ROW

MONTREAL, July 15. — A horrible tragedy was enacted last Thursday night at St. Malachie, of Ormstown, Chateauguay county, when a farmer named James Dubeau, was burned alive in his house. The story, as related up to this time, is that on Thursday afternoon Dubeau was returning from Ormstown where he had been selling some farm products, when eh discovered a man in his house. A fight followed in which Dubeau attempted to shoot both his wife and the man that he had found in his home. The latter succeeded however in stopping the irate husband by nearly braining him with a heavy stick. A physician was called and Dubeau was attended, but in order to prevent him from putting into effect threats against his wife to kill her o night, he was confined in his own h for the night, while his wife and their children took refuge in a nearby barn. At about 11 o'clock the same night, the whole village was awakened by the glimmer of flames from Dubeau's house, and although an attempt was made to extinguish the flames, the building was burned to ashes. The body of Dubeau, horribly calcinated, was found ater amid the ruins.

NORMAL SCHOOL EXAMINATIONS

The results of the courses of training for Public and Separate School teachers are announced by the "Hon. Dr. Cody, Minister of Education." The successful pupils who attended the Peterborough Normal School are as follows:

The certificates of the successful candidates and the marks of those who failed will be forwarded in due course to the individual addresses. Candidates who failed to obtain the necessary standing for interim second class certificates, but whose marks bring them within the provisions of section 23 (2) of the Normal School Syllabus, will be granted limited third-class certificates, valid for five years, and upon passing the final examination at a Normal School not later than 1921 will be granted interim second-class certificates. Such candidates will be advised of the groups which they must re-write.

Those candidates who have failed to obtain standing will be required to attend another session, but they may enter at the re-opening of the Normal Schools in January and complete their examinations in June:

MEN REFUSE TO RETURN TO WORK

(Canadian Press.)

OTTAWA, July 15. — The striking street railway employees voted against returning to work unless all the strikers are reinstated.

A tragic incident of the strike this morning was the death of James Dyer, an employee of the Militia Department, who while running to catch a government truck conveying government employees to work, was struck and killed by another truck driven by Billy Allen, the former light weight boxing champion of Canada.

HAVE COMPLETED THE NEW MERGER

(Canadian Press.)

TORONTO, July 15. — Fergusson and Grundy, acting for themselves, the Canadian Bond Corporation, and Hanson Bros., Montreal, have completed the financing of the Canadian Woollen Mills Limited merger.

The directors of the combination are the Standard Woollen Mills Ltd., Toronto; the Auburn Mills, Peterboro; and the Boner-Worth Mills, Peterboro, and the new corporation will be known as, and operated by the Canadian Woollen Mills Limited.

WHITE STILL CARRYING ON

(Canadian Press.)

OTTAWA, July 15. — Sir Thomas White will continue as Minister of Finance until a successor is appointed, which will probably be before the end of the month. He has already done some preliminary work in the flotation of the big Dominion Fall Loan, and is willing to assist his successor to get started on this and the other business of the Department.

Sir Thomas is not likely to make any business plans for several months, during which he will enjoy a partial holiday in Toronto.

FORCED TO OBSERVE SABBATH

Church Attendance, Until Comparatively Recent Times, Was Compulsory in Great Britain.

Numerous laws in this country, Canada and Great Britain forbid various acts of work and play on Sunday, but not since the lapse of the "blue laws" of colonial days have Americans been forced by legislation to go to church on the Sabbath, an exchange says. In England, however, it was not until the middle of the last century, during the reign of Queen Victoria, that all penalties for nonattendance at religious services were abolished. Some unusual incidents attended the enforcement of the regulations, particularly upon the Hebrews.

They were not released from the provisions of the law until 1871 and multitudes of them were prosecuted for insisting upon observing their own Sabbath. In the thirteenth century, it is recorded, a Jew of Twineburg fell into a sewer on a Saturday. Although almost naked, he would not permit himself to be drawn out, believing that to do so would be to violate the sanctity of the holy day. On the following morning he was quite ready to be removed from his perilous plight, but the authorities, considering that the unfortunate man to be reduced until after sunrise on Monday, when he was found to be dead.

As late as 1626 there were persons in English prisons whose only crime was refusal to attend divine service. One of them was a young man who had been convicted at the instigation of his own mother, who appeared against him. In 1617 Sir Montague Burgoyne was haled into court to explain why he had neglected his religious duties. Right Sunday observance in England began during the reign of Edgar, in the tenth century, when the Sabbath day was ordained to be kept holy from three o'clock on Saturday afternoon until sunrise on Monday. The most innocent actions were condemned, and death was the extreme penalty for continued violation of the law. About three centuries ago partiality passed a law imposing a fine of one shilling for remaining away from church on Sunday, unless some good excuse was forthcoming. This act remained in effect until comparatively recent times, and inability or unwillingness to pay the fine resulted in a prison sentence.

CAPTAIN WAS "GOOD FELLOW"

Otherwise Privates Might Have Found Their Playfulness to Be a Serious Matter.

While serving at Fort Sill, Okla., I was quartered with a Texas cowboy, and he would often amuse himself hours at a time with his lasso. One favorite stunt was to stand in the door of his tent after taps, when all was dark and quiet, and throw his rope around the foot of some unsuspecting comrade returning from town, drawing him into the tent, where he would flash a light into his face, frightening the poor fellow unmercifully.

One night at his game an unusually large fellow was caught and he whispered to me to help drag him in, which I cheerfully did. The big fellow came into the tent on his back, swearing with all his might. We threw the light into his face with a laugh and were greeted with the two shining bars of our captain! I lost no time in getting outside of the tent, and suppose my brave cow-puncher disappeared in some such way. For days we could picture ourselves behind bars at Fort Leavenworth, and upon being called to the captain's tent a week later all hope faded. Right here I wish to declare our captain a good fellow, as we were dismissed with a reprimand and a request that the performance never be repeated.—Detroit Free Press.

Sounds a Call to Arms.

That of 12,445 teachers in Ontario, 11,359 are women, was stated by Miss Evelyn Johnston, of London, in her presidential report to the Federation of Women Teachers' Associations of Ontario, which was organized just a year ago. In the coming period of reconstruction in educational work our united effort is needed,' she proceeded, "so let us get a large vision of what we can accomplish, and let us endeavor to realize the power in our hands when united 11,000 strong—the power to educate the future parents, to better guide the big issues of life."

PROOF OF BIBLICAL TRUTH

Religious Writer Points Out Parallel Between Germany and the Recorded Fall of Man.

The world war has brought to the fore striking illustrations of the truth of Bible doctrines as usually interpreted by what is called the old theology. Glance for a moment at some of the old Bible truths that the war has illustrated and vindicated.

Take, for example, the fall of man as recounted in Genesis. Some have had difficulty with this fundamental doctrine of the Bible. I was talking a short time ago with a brilliant young college man, steeped in the scientific [illegible] of the age, and he said:

"But, doctor, think how irrational is the theory that man fell in a garden, just created by an all-wise and all-powerful God!"

I replied by pointing out the very interesting fact that modern Germany also fell in a garden. There was not a country upon the earth more blest and prosperous than Germany. Her progress in all lines, except morals and spirituality, had been marvelous. If she had remained true to right ideals she would have gone on undoubtedly into the leadership of the whole earth. But even in that garden of prosperity and peace the devil of selfishness, untruth and false ambition entered, and the ruling classes fell, and, like the fall in Eden, carried others down with them.—Dr. John Roach Straton in Christian Herald.

An Anthem.

An amusing little story is told by Reginald T. Townsend, in his description of Victory Day in Paris in the Red Cross Magazine. Mr. Townsend says: 'A group of Tommies passed singing 'Tipperary.' 'What is that they are singing?' asked a Frenchman standing beside me of his neighbor. 'Don't you know?' came the scornful reply of one who always makes a point of keeping up with world affairs. 'Why, that is the new national anthem.'"

RETROSPECT THAT IS VAIN

Mournful Man Has Come to Realize That All Things That Are to Be, Will Be.

"I sometimes think as I watch the silkiest workings of a cream separator," said the stoop-shouldered man, "how much happier my life might have been could I but have had when I was first married a separator, operated somewhat on the same principle, into which my wife's relatives could have been thrust, the cranks turned and by centrifugal or centripetal force—I can never remember which is which—the two kinds divided, like the sheep and the goats of Holy Writ.

"Out of one spout would have come the undesirable ones—those who contraverted my cherished theories, disagreed with me on various subjects, and jeered at my lack of faculty, the while they borrowed money from me and paid not again, and wore, their sex permitting, such of my Sunday garments as fitted them. And from the other spout would have emerged the good ones—those who tried to pay their way by being sympathetic and tactful, who were diplomatic enough to agree with me when it did not make any particular difference, and occasionally lent me money and were not forever dogging me to get it back. But, of course, nothing of the kind was then or ever will be invented. Man was made to mourn and his wife's kin were made to see that he does mourn."

FLAUNT WEALTH DUE TO WAR

Extravagances Indulged in by Japan's "Newly Rich" Have Brought Forth Bitter Condemnation.

Mr. Shiori, a Tokyo barrister, in the Horitsu Shimbun (Law Journal) refers to some remarkable examples of the extravagance indulged in by certain "narikin." It is said that a well-known mine owner in Kyushu gave a dinner party in Tokyo recently to 50 guests at 300 yen a head. The caterer, somewhat at a loss to know how to "go the limit," provided a "geisha" for each guest, engaging all the most expensive members of the profession who were available.

A Kobe "narikin" entertained some guests to dinner at a Tokyo restaurant the other day, the cost per head being 100 yen. A "rust-narikin," during a stay at Ikao, ordered by telephone from a Tokyo restaurant two dishes of "unagidomburi" on condition that the food should arrive hot after traveling about 100 miles. The proprietor of the restaurant took the order, engaged a motorcar, fixed up a "hibachi" to keep the food hot, and delivered the goods at the mountain resort in two hours and a half, returning with 300 yen in his pocket.

Mr. Shiori fears there will be many more cases of crazy waste of money by "narikin," who, he says, are stingy enough in donating money for the relief of the poor or sufferers from calamities. "They are simply shameless whose actions corrupt public manners and morals."

The Tokyo barrister thinks that just as it was legal under the feudal system to confiscate the property of such swollen-headed men, it would be advisable today to levy a heavy impost upon them so that they may be prevented from repeating such foolish actions as those referred to.

SEEKING USES FOR LIGNITES

Federal Bureau of Mines Will Make Investigation of What May Be New Fuel Supply.

The bureau of mines will make an investigation to determine the commercial and economical value of lignites and the practicability of their utilization in production of fuel oil, gasoline substitutes, ammonia, tar, solid fuel, gas for power and other purposes, under the terms of a senate bill which the house of representatives adopted. An appropriation of $150,000 was voted. It was argued that the object of the investigation is to demonstrate the commercial value of lignite, which is one-third of the coal deposits of the nation.

A vast volume of the deposits is on government lands, and Texas has approximately $2,000,000,000 tons. The federal report says there is permanence coal in Texas, but not sufficient to supply the railroads, and in urging the passage of the bill Representative Wingo of Arkansas told the house that proper development of lignite in Texas with its full scale demonstration would save an annual fuel bill to the people of that state of $15,000,000.—Houston Post.

Found Platinum Beds.

Dr. Herschel C. Parker of Columbia university, while on an exploring expedition to Alaska last summer, discovered extensive platinum beds in the Tuxtiana and Yukina valleys in the Cook inlet country. He brought out a large number of ore samples on his return to the United, and is now engaged in exhaustive tests of the metal. He expects to establish a plant for handling the ore when he goes back to Alaska next spring.

"The Alaska platinum ore is low grade," said Doctor Parker. "But it is there in abundance. It will have to be handled in large quantities and some economic method of operating to make it pay. The question of its commercial value is simply one of engineering. With the end of the war and the consequent wide use of platinum for jewelry, I believe the Alaska beds will prove a valuable source of world supply."

SPRUCING UP UNDER FIRE

Soldier in the Trenches Wielded Razor While Enemy Shells Were Passing Above Him.

The sailor who can shave himself in a storm has found his match in the soldier Walter Ehrman, a Kansas City man, saw at the Argonne front. Ehrman was with a medical corps and as he passed into No Man's Land with the stretcher bearers, he noticed a youth in khaki hiding in a shell hole.

"He had a mirror between his knees," writes Ehrman, "and he was intermittently shaving himself. Which is to say, that, between acts, he'd show a section of his face. Whenever a shell would come over he would duck expertly, only to resume his interrupted task in moments of what you might call peace.

"'Hey, buddie, do you need a shave that bad?' I asked him.

"'Aw, my mug's so blame dirty, had to have it,' was his reply.

"And here's another: One of our medics found a pair of hair clippers on the field, and while he was waiting in a shell hole with a doughboy until an enemy barrage should light up, he clipped that doughboy's hair as nice and stylish as you please, till they'd hardly let him in when he returned to the trench, he looked that different."

Tim Healy's Wit.

The resignation of Tim Healy from parliament, says a writer in Tit-Bits, means that the House will lose its greatest wit. I recall, from his inexhaustible list of witticisms, his description of a bill to which he objected as the clipping of "a hole-in-the of the Irish office," while he once declared that the making of the late Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman into chief secretary was an attempt to govern Ireland with Scotch jokes. One of Tim's most exquisite imaginings, however, was during a divorce case, when he said that "the spectacle of his learned friend's client crying in the witness box was the greatest miracle that had ever happened since Moses drew water from the rock."

Ministry of Knitters.

With real regret a good many of our ladies will lay aside their knitting needles at the word that their industry has supplied the immediate needs of the soldiers and sailors. Their record of millions of sweaters, helmets and other protective gear is unsurpassed in the history of the world, and will be immortal in the grateful memories of the returning heroes. These knitters did not stand to begin their lessons of thought for others when they took up knitting. But having kept it at the forefront of attention for all time, they will certainly be eager to find other means of thoughtful ministry.—Congregationalist and Advance.

Was Good to See Her.

Mrs. William K. Vanderbilt, who is home on a furlough after four years of service in France, where she has been for the last 18 months directress of canteens for the Red Cross, was just about to enter a New York shop the other day when she felt some one touching her arm. Turning, she was face to face with two husky doughboys that she had helped to nurse back to health in one of the convalescent homes in France. "Mrs. Vanderbilt," one exclaimed, while both extended rough, work-hardened hands. "It's sure good to see you again. We don't forget old friends like you."

Kaiser's Sublime Vanity.

Of the innumerable stories told of the ex-kaiser's vanity none surpasses one concerning a little incident that took place on board a British warship a few years ago. The recently deposed emperor was being entertained at dinner during a visit to the British fleet, and when smoking began took up a cigar and looked around for a cutter. One not being handy, an officer immediately offered him a penknife, which William used and returned with the solemn remark, "Keep it and guard it well; one day it will be historic."

A Pen Portrait of Carlyle.

He looked, I thought, the prophet. His clothes loose and careless, for comfort, now chose; the shaggy, contempt gray thatch of hair; the long head, the bony, almost feminine face of one who has fasted and suffered; the tyrannous overhanging cliff forehead; the firm, heavy mouth and outthrust challenging chin—the face of a fighter; force everywhere, brains and will dominant; strength redeemed by the deepest eyes, most human, beautiful; by turns piercing, luminous, tender, gleaming; pathetic, too, for the lights were usually veiled in brooding sadness, broken oftenest by a look of dumb despair and regret; a strong, sad face, the saddest face I ever studied—all petrified, so to speak, in tearless misery as of one who had come to wreck by his own fault and was tortured by remorse—the worm that dieth not.—From "Contemporary Portraits," by Frank Harris.

Judged by Appearances.

In "Twenty Years of My Life" Douglas Sladen recalls a story told at the Authors' club long ago by Sir J. M. Barrie against himself in broad Doric:

"I expect it was just a ben trovato but it was none the less amusing. He apologized for being late. He had been to the wrong club. He had never been to the Authors' club before, he said (though he was a member of the committee), so he asked a policeman the way. From the way in which he pronounced the word the policeman thought he meant Arthur's, which was quite near the Authors' club when it was in its temporary premises in Park place. When he got there he found it a very grand place, he said. The club porter looked him up and down and said, 'The servants' entrance is round the corner.'"

THE CURTAIN RISES ON A NEW TYPE ENTERTAINMENT

New — yet as old as the Drama itself. Old — yet its delightful possibilities as a factor of Photo-Play presentation has not been fully appreciated until now.

Artistic Musical Selections by an organization such as The Grand Orchestra is as necessary to proper Photo-Play presentations as a costume is to a Shakespearian actor.

Men's swimming race, 50 yards.

Hurry scurry race, course to be arranged by committee.

Flip and double overboard, to be 1-8 mile.

All ladies' events to be half distance of men's events and without turn.

Launch Races.

8 horse power and under.
8 horse power and under.
6 horse power and under.
12 horse power and under.

Free-for-all, T.A.S. and return, 8 h.p. and under. Prize for this race donated by employees of Peterborough Canoe Co.

Hang and go back.

Tortoise and hare race, fast and slow boats, T.A.S. and return.

All launches must carry crew of at least two adults.

All stars to be dead.

These rules to apply to all launch races except tortoise and hare, which is a matched handicap arranged between Mr. K. McKenzie and Mr. P. Meagher, McKenzie allowing Meagher 27 1-2 mins. in a race to T.A.S. and return.

Entries may be left at Rye's boat house, Mr. D. Loomis, Y.M.C.A., and Mr. H. Kelsey at his camp, "Kawcambidawaganamot."

Aqua Plane.

The following launch owners have offered to tow aqua planes:

Mr. S. J. Brown, "Praps."
Mr. K. McKenzie, "Wasp."

The bicycle dealers had representatives at last night's meeting arranging for a bicycle parade to start at 2 p.m. and parade to the boat house, arriving there at 2.30, which will be the time for the commencing of the regatta.

Officials and Committees.

Prize Com.—Loomis, Anderson and Rye.
Clerk of course—J. H. Renwick.
Announcer—Earl Lester.
Starter—Benj. Moore.
Scorers—Review and Examiner representatives.

The following names have been suggested as judges: Chas. Sisson, Robertson, F. H. Dobbin, Ross Dobbin.

A special feature of the meeting was the appointing of an interim committee to act on a suggestion made by Mr. J. H. Renwick, that this regatta be a nucleus of a boating and aquatic association. The following were appointed to look into the idea and get the feeling of the boat owners as to whether the time was ripe for such an association— Mr. S. J. Brown, Mr. Benj Moore, launch owners; Mr. D. Loomis, Mr. Green, canoe owners. The committee having power to add a fifth man. Mr. H. Kelsey added.

Committee to report progress at a meeting to be held Monday evening at Rye's boat house.

CHURCH LEAGUE BASEBALL RESULTS

All Saints' team of the Church Junior Baseball League, came out on the tug end of a 14-5 score with St. James' team. The game was played at King Edward school grounds.

The date for the championship game in the Church Senior League to be played between All Saints' and Knox Church team has not yet been fixed.

Unpopular Job.

Few persons were desirous of qualifying for the task of destroying 24,000 pounds of dynamite and other high explosives, stored until recently in an abandoned magazine. The unpopularity of the job was increased by the fact that a previous attempt to burn the explosives had resulted in detonations so violent that the experimenters fled. Finally an expert was employed who carefully opened each box with a wooden wedge and mallet and examined the contents. In most cases he found that the material could be destroyed by dumping it on the ground, saturating it with oil, and then lighting it with a fuse that permitted withdrawal before explosions took place.

Asphodel an Source of Alcohol.

The asphodel, which contains much starch in its tubers, grows as a common weed (perrunse) in many parts of Italy—in fact, it has been called "the plague of the Mediterranean." At one time it was cultivated as a source of industrial spirit, but owing to difficulties in the rectification the culture was abandoned. If these difficulties could be overcome Italy would be able to considerably increase her home supply of spirit.

Motortruck on Farms.

Investigation shows that the motortruck is making longer hauls for the farmer at a decreased cost as compared with horses.

HOW TO TRAP SUCCESSFULLY

Two Ways of Taking the Wary Mink —Snare Into Which "Brer Fox" May Fall.

If a mink makes a hole through a snowdrift he will use it again and a trap set in it will catch him.

After cold weather sets in, when setting in shallow water for mink, choose a place where the current runs swiftly and is not likely to freeze up.

When trapping foxes use a No. 2 double spring trap. This style of trap is known as "the fox trap."

If you wish to be real foxy and cunning yourself, try setting three traps, one in an old path without any covering, and one on each side, skillfully covered. The fox will give all his attention to the uncovered trap and by going around it may step into one of those on the side.

It is not much use to try to trap foxes or any other such wary animal without a good scent.

An ear of corn stuck in the mud near a trap makes an excellent bait for 'coon.

One of the best places to look for 'coon signs is in a cornfield.

Marie's American Anthem.

In far away France little Marie, aged six, visited the Red Cross hospital near her home every day, and became very popular with the convalescent American soldiers there. She soon became very good friends with the soldiers and they delighted to teach her scraps of English. When they sang she joined them in their American songs. One day, in Marie's school, teacher asked her class the title of America's national anthem. The class looked blank, until Marie, with a flash of inspiration, jumped to her feet and announced, "Hail! Hail! the Gang's All Here," in quaint, rolling English.

Heating the House.

The proper temperature for various rooms of the home are as follows: The living room should be 70 degrees, no more. It should be occasionally aired so that it does not become close, but the doors should be kept closed into the hall. The dining room and kitchen should be heated to 65 degrees. Most kitchens rise higher than that. The bedrooms should be heated not at all, except for the little time that the occupants use them for dressing. The bathroom should be made as warm as you choose and the halls should be given no special heat, as we are always exercising when we are going through them.

Glover Engineering Feat.

Bleeding long boats so that they could be taken through the Welland canal was considered an interesting feat a short time ago, but this has been surpassed, according to the Popular Mechanics Magazine. The Charles R. Van Hise, a 10,000-ton boat, was wanted for Atlantic service. It had a 10-foot beam, whereas the canal is only 44 feet wide. The boat was cut in two and each half was turned on its side in order to be taken through the locks. Floating in this position each section cleared the lock sides by just 6 inches.

Thinks Many Will Fly.

The principal of one of the chief American schools for airplane mechanics thinks that flying is going to be the next great American amusement. He reminds us that our aviation corps has entertained a great many young men of large wealth who have shown themselves good sportsmen. They can afford to buy and maintain their own machines and, having become accustomed to a speed of a hundred and fifty miles an hour, will find the ordinary modes of travel tame.—Youth's Companion.

LIFT OFF CORNS!

Apply few drops then lift sore, touchy corns off with fingers—No pain!

Doesn't hurt a bit! Drop a little Freezone on an aching corn, instantly that corn stops hurting, then you lift it right out. Yes, magic!

A tiny bottle of Freezone costs but a few cents at any drug store, but is sufficient to remove every hard corn, soft corn, or corn between the toes, and the calluses, without soreness or irritation.

Freezone is the sensational discovery of a Cincinnati genius. It is wonderful.

PICKING A PICKPOCKET.

Rules That Guide Chicago Detectives in Spotting Their Men.

How to tell a pickpocket when you see one—the feat is apparently not difficult, for all applicants who take the civil service examination to become Chicago detectives are required to have mastered it.

"What are the physical characteristics of pickpockets?" the would be thief catchers are asked.

And this is the answer they are expected to give:

"Pickpockets ordinarily travel in mobs and are of two distinct types—one small or medium stature, the other tall and muscular. As a general rule, the age runs from eighteen to thirty-five. Their hands are soft, show no signs of work, and the fingers of all except the 'stall' and particularly the fingers of the 'wire' are long and slender. Their eyes are shifting and furtive. Their complexion is generally sallow and without distinct color, this being due either to prison pallor in types or to the use of cocaine or other drugs. The cocaine users shew drawn features and prominent cheek bones and usually have distinct rings around the eyes.

"The temperament of pickpockets is high strung because of the dangers of the 'profession' or from the use of drugs. At the same time they are polite almost to the point of obsequiousness. They seldom carry weapons and rarely resort to force. On duty they dress to suit the occasion, generally well, but not conspicuously. They avoid wearing anything that might lead to identification.—Baltimore American.

Greenland Summers.

Things grow very fast in the short Greenland summer. As soon as the snow melts off in many places the ground is covered with a vine which bears a small berry something like a huckleberry. It is nearly tasteless, but it is juicy, and the natives are fond of it.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

(Copyright, 1919, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

The little music teacher ran up the steps of the boarding house with a fluttering heart, for she had seen the gray coat of the postman disappearing around the corner. The fluttering quickened into a brisk tattoo like the beating of tiny hammers, and by the time she reached the hall table where the letters were always laid it was like the pulsation of a mighty engine.

Yes, there was a letter, but the writing was not familiar. When she reached the sacred precincts of her own room she read it and had just cast it aside with a most contemptuous sniff when there came a timid knock at the door. When she called "Come in" the maid brought another letter which in her haste she had overlooked. Again her hope beat high, but this was a more bitter disappointment than the first.

"Sickening—both of them!" she muttered. "Why must I be made the target for such piffle?"

Angrily she thrust them inside her desk, closed it with a bang and went down to dinner. That evening, after a brisk walk through a little park nearby, the keen October air having soothed her ruffled spirits, she donned a comfortable dressing gown and wrote to her old friend, Mrs. De Voss:

"Dear Mollykins: It rests me just to write your name. It carries me back to the days when you were my sympathetic mother confessor, and, Mollykins, I've got to talk to you now, for you are the only one who will understand. I've worked so hard this past year to build up my class and you've heard how I've succeeded even beyond my wildest dreams. But success isn't everything. Even here I seem destined to be nauseated with impossible things. I've just had two of the most sickening proposals by letter that any girl ever received. Possibly I might have read one or the other a second time had I not been sure that each man is counting on my income to help support him. Pence to the ashes of their unsolicited adoration! I tell you, dear, I shall marry for money. I've seen the folly of not preparing for a rainy day and it has colored everything in the world for me. When I put my head into the matrimonial noose it will be when the future Mr. Boss Courtland is ready to hand me a checkbook on a nice, fat bank account. As it is, epistolary efforts such as reached me today only serve to frazzle my disposition. 'Buckets of slush,' Billy would call them. It is needless for me to tell you where my heart lies, and he has never written me a line in all this long year. I thought, of course, when our crash came and father died that Billy would be the first to come to me, and when he left for Colorado without so much as a good-by I was broken-hearted. Now I've joined the ranks of those who believe that money talks. I can hear you call me flinty of heart, but so will you be, Molly, if ever you come to feel the dull, sickening thud of the fall from the lap of luxury to the cold, stone floor of poverty. I hope you never may. Write me soon—your letters are such comforts. Lovingly,

"BESS."

That night the little music teacher cried herself to sleep and the next morning she said to herself, as she surveyed the pale face which looked at her with weary eyes from her mirror:

"Don't you let me catch you weeping again over Billy Dempster. He doesn't care a fig about you and he wouldn't weep over anybody."

By the time she reached the studio she had fully made up her mind that she hated Billy cordially and that if he should ever see fit to write her a letter she would return it to him unopened. It was several days later that a special delivery letter, bearing a Colorado postmark, reached Miss Courtland, and, after the messenger had gone, she stood gazing at the envelope, scarcely able to believe her eyes, while the waiting pupil at the piano wondered what was about to be disclosed.

"Billy's writing!" gasped the teacher. "No—no—I'm getting foolish, of course—it can't be—he doesn't know my address, and yet I—"

"Why don't you open it?" suggested her pupil, and forgetting her late determination to put Billy Dempster out of her life forever, Bess tore open his letter with fingers that trembled as though she might have the palsy.

"Dear Bess," she read. "I wrote to Molly De Voss two weeks ago for your address and just got it today. How are you, anyway? It seems a life time since I saw you. What are you doing and how do you like living in Chicago? Molly didn't answer a single question I asked, so I shall wait anxiously to hear direct from you about your work, your husband—if you have one; in fact, tell me all about everything. As ever, yours,

"BILLY."

Miss Courtland's black eyes snapped and she crushed the letter in her hand.

"To write me a letter like that," she gasped, "after waiting a whole year to even ask for my address!"

During the following week she wrote six replies to Dempster's letter and tore each one to bits almost as soon as it was finished. The seventh she thought somewhat tart, but concluding it was better than he deserved anyway, she finally sent it.

"Dear Billy (It ran): I probably need not tell you that your letter was a surprise. When an old friend leaves you at a time of a great crisis in your life, without even a good-by, and for a whole year forgets that you ever existed, a letter from such a one is apt to come as a surprise; don't you think so? Since you are alive and are good enough to feel an interest in knowing that I am too, I don't mind telling you that I am teaching music here in Chicago and like my work very much. I have no husband in sight, and if I ever acquire such a possession, it will be because his pockets are so well lined with gold that it would be folly for me to let him slip through my fingers. At present I am very well and contented. Sincerely,

"BESS COURTLAND."

If Bess could have seen Dempster when he read this letter all idea that he regarded her carelessly or that he was deceived as to her own feeling for him would have vanished as a June frost. As it was, she never knew how she managed to live through the next week until an answer to her letter arrived. Then, one morning, as she was leaving the boarding house for the studio, the postman handed her another envelope bearing the familiar writing, and she almost ran to the little park, where she sat down on a bench to open it.

"Dearest girl," she read. "I am the man you are after—the possession you really ought to acquire. My pockets are so well lined with filthy lucre that I'm bent with the weight of it. It would be worse than folly to let me slip through your fingers and nothing could possibly suit me so well as to lodge in those same fingers forever. Seriously, Bess, don't you still care a little? I'm in a position now to ask you to marry me—will you? You'll never know how I suffered because I was not able to ask this when your father died and left you so little; but a peculiar round of circumstances overtook me just then and left me no alternative. My little sister, who was out here visiting, met with a terrible accident, which necessitated a very difficult operation, and my resources were so taxed to take care of this situation I did not dare assume another obligation. I left without seeing you, and I've remained silent because I did not wish to stand in the way of your comfort elsewhere. Perhaps I did wrong, dear; but my heart was right and I ask to be forgiven. I have never ceased to want you, Bess, and now, the remnant of my savings, happily invested, has brought me returns which permit me to ask you with a clear conscience to share my lot. I'm coming East for my answer and shall probably be with you almost as soon as you read this. Always your lover,

"BILLY."

When she had finished reading, tears blinded her and little shivers of shame chased themselves up and down her spine at the thought of her own sordidness; but through the tumult within her, her heart kept singing, "Billy is coming—Billy is coming!" She had only just removed her wraps at the studio when Billy came, and there, from the safe shelter of his arms, she said to him:

"Billy, dear, I'd have jumped at the chance to share your lot any time and any place, if you hadn't had a thing in all this world but a penny with a hole in it!"

EMBLEM OF THREE COUNTRIES

British "Union Jack" Displays Crosses of England, Scotland and Ireland in Combination.

The term "Union Jack" is applied to the national flag of the British empire. It consists of three crosses combined, on a blue field, viz.: the cross of St. George for England, of St. Andrew for Scotland, and of St. Patrick for Ireland. The original English flag was St. George's cross, red on a white field; the flag of St. Patrick, red on a white field, and the Scottish flag was St. Andrew's cross, white on a blue field. History says that the united crosses of England and Scotland were first used on the flag in 1606 by order of King James, which sovereign of the two countries. By his order the two crosses were united in such a manner as to preserve the distinctive outline of each, also, by means of a white border, the original color of the Scotch flag on a blue ground. In 1801, on the legislative union with Ireland, the red cross of St. Patrick was added in such a way as to outline and preserve its individuality with that of the others. As now constituted the cross of St. George is much wider than the other two and seems to dominate them, but they are nevertheless distinctive and individual, while the white border of each is a reminder of the original white flag of Scotland. The proper designation of the flag is the great union, or simply the union. Union Jack is a nickname. Technically it is only a Jack when flown on the jackstaff of a ship of war. It is suggested that the name probably came from that of the Stuart king, King Jacques, which King James always signed.

Palestine's Salt Mountain.

Palestine possesses a remarkable salt mountain situated at the south end of the Dead sea. The length of the ridge is six miles, with an average width of three-quarters of a mile, and the height is not far from 600 feet. There are places where the overlying earthy deposits are many feet in thickness, but the mass of the mountain is composed of solid rock salt, some of which is as clear as crystal.

LEMON JUICE FOR FRECKLES

Girls! Make beauty lotion for a few cents—Try It!

Squeeze the juice of two lemons into a bottle containing three ounces of orchard white, shake well, and you have a quarter pint of the best freckle and tan lotion, and complexion beautifier, at very, very small cost.

Your grocer has the lemons and any drug store or toilet counter will supply three ounces of orchard white for a few cents. Massage this sweetly fragrant lotion into the face neck, arms and hands each day and see how freckles and blemishes disappear and how clear, soft and rosy-white the skin becomes. Yes! It is harmless and never irritates.

Burglary Among Nonessentials.

Among the nonessential industries which are almost in a state of collapse is the ancient and sinister one of burglary. According to data furnished by a burglary insurance company there has been a decided and favorable change in the attitude of absolute nonessentials since the armistice was signed. Many of them, after a few weeks' lamentation of a few weeks ago, directing all attention to most business eighteen and fifty years old to turn their hands to industrial pursuits. The draft, high wages and federal and state surveillance promises to subdue crime almost to the vanishing point. Many sociologists and criminologists of the modern school will point to this as proof of their theories that poverty is the principal cause of crime. It will no doubt be a powerful argument in favor of a revision of criminal laws after the war.

A Lost Opportunity.

Mrs. O'gar (a typical product of the Kentucky mountains) came to a small Missouri town to live. One of the many new diversions she found was the picture show. Recently she attended a "movie," and during the interval between parts, a picture for the fourth liberty loan was thrown on the screen. It portrayed the kaiser in dire distress on his knees to Uncle Sam, while Our Uncle wrathfully shook his fist at the despised creature. After the show Mrs. O'gar was heard to say disgustedly to her "better half": "Mike, I can't see why in the world if Uncle Sam got that close to the kaiser he didn't kill him."—Film Fun.

Americanization Influence.

An unforeseen by-product of home-demonstration work, especially in cities, has been its influence as an aid in the Americanization of people of foreign birth or extraction. In many instances it was the home-demonstration agent in her food-conservation work who gave the foreign woman the first understanding of the war and her duty as an American citizen.

A Prophetic Writer.

In practical science the most marvelously prophetic writer was the Marquis of Worcester, who in his "Century of Inventions," published in 1655, described the steam engine, the telegraph, the torpedo, the range finder, the hydraulic press, portable military pontoons, matches and many other things which have come into use within the last hundred years.—St. James' Gazette.

"SEE US AND SEE BETTER"

STEPHEN PICHON.

French Foreign Minister Is Typical Diplomat.

Anyone who has seen a photograph of Stephen Pichon, French Foreign Minister, must have sized him up as a typical diplomat of the old school. A bit master of the Quai d' Orsay. A sketch of his life and character in the Christian Science Monitor says he has always taken life seriously even when as a rigid, grave little boy, clad in long trousers and Eton jacket, he trotted dutifully to school through the quaint old streets of Nancy in Lorraine. He was, it is said, a very good little boy; his elders prized him highly; he rarely made a noise, and did not care to play with his livelier schoolmates. In fact, his father, who was tax-collector in the tiny Cote d'Or city, was very proud of his quiet little son.

It would hardly appear at first sight that such a retiring—almost timid—child would be well equipped for the battle of life. Yet Stephen Pichon is, in all of the acceptations of the phrase, a "self-made man." When his father had passed away his family had great difficulties to face, but convinced that where there was a will there was a way, young Pichon set to work to grasp the material opportunities which would relieve his mother of all anxiety on his account.

One day, at a lunch given by mutual friends at the famous restaurant Durot, at the angle of the Rue de Bourbon and the Rue de Vaugirard, in the shade of the Senate to which many years later both were to belong, Stephen Pichon made the acquaintance of Clemenceau. The latter, attracted by the qualities he was quick to detect in the young man, engaged him as reporter in the Republique Francaise, of which he was then co-director with Sigismond Lacroix. A couple of years later, having founded La Justice, Clemenceau instructed "little Pichon" with the task of reporting the meetings of the Senate. The young man continued to write for that paper until 1885, and it was while on it that he made the acquaintance of Millerand, Aurelien Scholl, and Jules Roche.

Mr. Pichon was an excellent journalist. He revealed both a diversity of ideas and a penetrating judgment, which were the precursors of that humanity which had always characterized his political career. He treated with equal ease and talent the most varied subjects, ranging from society to literature, from history to financial economy, and he has also written a particularly fine essay on Charles Fauvety, the forerunner of socialism, one of the great French thinkers of the time.

Nevertheless, journalism did not entirely fill up a "life work." Politics soon exerted a great and irresistible attraction for him; and in 1883 he succeeded in being elected as Municipal Councillor of Paris, the almost inevitable stepping-stone toward the more enviable position of deputy, which he attained in 1885. At this period he definitely abandoned journalism, never again to take it up, and this mental attitude is extremely characteristic of Mr. Pichon, who in the course of his life never resumed any of his former occupations—thus resolutely turning his back upon the past and looking only toward the future.

Failing to be re-elected in 1893, he immediately concentrated his attention on a diplomatic career, with such success that he was soon appointed Minister Plenipotentiary to Port-au-Prince. It should be remarked that Mr. Pichon—unlike any of his colleagues, ministers for foreign affairs—has actually visited widely different countries, with the result that he has acquired a very real and useful knowledge of racial characteristics. In 1894 he was appointed Minister to Bemsil, but unfortunately he remained there only two years, during which time he fully realized the great influence which France could and should acquire in South America, then a world in the making.

The year 1897 saw Mr. Pichon in Public. Here again he was confronted with the delicate problem of dealing with an altogether unknown psychology which he was able to study under particularly harrowing circumstances, being there during the Boxer revolt of 1900. His "Diary of the Siege of Pekin," written with all the conciseness of a diplomatic document, contains some particularly interesting descriptions of the various episodes in this drama. Mr. Pichon and his wife displayed much bravery and self-control.

In 1907, Mr. Pichon went to Tunis, as resident-general, and he fulfilled the high and delicate duties intrusted to him greatly to the satisfaction of the Bey, while developing French interests throughout the whole protectorate in a most important manner.

Although he seemed definitely to have abandoned politics, Mr. Stephen Pichon had never ceased to remain in touch with Mr. Clemenceau, and when the latter became Prime Minister in 1906, he did not forget to recall his old friend from Tunis to assume the portfolio of Foreign Affairs.

Thirteen years have elapsed since then. Both Clemenceau and Stephen Pichon again occupy their respective positions of yore, at a moment when the reconstruction of France and the remaking of the world are at stake.

VEGETABLE MARKETING

High Prices Are Paid for Best Quality.

Provide Abundance of Cool Water for Dairy Cows During Hot Weather—Shade in Pasture Also Essential — Ideal Location on Banks of Cool, Pure Stream.

(Contributed by Ontario Department of Agriculture, Toronto.)

FEW growers realize the importance of properly harvesting and marketing their early vegetables. The large majority are expert enough to produce an excellent crop, but there is perhaps only about one out of ten that harvest and market their crop to the best advantage. The public is today, perhaps more than before, demanding a high grade product. They are willing to pay the price if they get the quality, and the gardener that will make the greatest success will be the one that caters to this demand.

There are several factors of great importance necessary to achieve the greatest amount of success. Foremost of these, perhaps, is proper harvesting. Few, even of our growers, realize how rapidly our vegetables deteriorate in quality after they are taken from the ground. Much of the fine flavor and crispness is lost in the case of such products as onions, lettuce and radishes in only a few hours unless special care is exercised in handling. Such crops should never be exposed to winds or the hot sun and if they can be kept in a cool, fairly moist condition, the least possible loss in quality will be maintained.

To market the vegetable crop to best advantage the grower must ever keep in mind the ultimate destination of his goods. The housewife is the one that he must please. If she is well pleased then she tells her neighbors quietly over the back fence, but if she finds that she has received something of very inferior quality than she proclaims her grievance from the housetops and forever after will be hard to convince that there is such a thing as high quality.

The most important factors to bear in mind are few in number and are not hard to put into practice. The proper degree of maturity is the first one that must be considered. Carrots, beets, onions, radishes and the other bunching crops should not be pulled before they reach the proper size. They should be carefully pulled and taken to the bunching house. There they are neatly bunched, tied and washed and then should be protected from the atmosphere as much as possible by covering. Lettuce, spinach, parsley, cabbage and cauliflower should be carefully cut and placed in baskets or carriers. Care should be taken that none of the dirt is taken up and allowed to fall through the crates as this is hard to remove even by careful washing and will detract from the quality.

There is perhaps not more than one person in ten that can be called a really successful salesman, and here is where a good many of our growers fall down, and after producing a high grade product they are unable to market it to the best advantage. The first requisite, as has already been mentioned, is a high grade article. An inferior grade cannot be expected to obtain the highest price. The proper care in preparation is also important. A neat, attractive package, well-packed, with high grade vegetables will always command the higher price. Furthermore, an attractive article will be its own salesman, and no matter how overstocked the market may be, will command a good price. The proper care in sorting and grading is also quite important. Vegetables of poor quality should never be placed on the market. They will not only have to be sold at a much lower price but will also have the effect of lowering the price on the higher grades, with the result that many a good market has been almost ruined by a small quantity of inferior goods.

From this we see that the greatest results can only be obtained by growing a high grade article, carefully harvested and attractively and efficiently marketed.—A. H. MacLennan, B.S.A., Ontario Vegetable Specialist.

Why Plenty of Water Is Necessary for Cows in Hot Weather.

Water is very necessary for cows at all times, because the body itself contains a large proportion of water; the functions of the body cannot properly take place except plenty of water be supplied; and milk contains about 87 ½ per cent. water. All this makes water needful at all times to the cow giving milk, but in hot weather there are added reasons why the cow should have plenty of water. These hot weather additions to the water supply of cows are necessary:

1. To assist in cooling the body. When the animal body becomes too warm, nature suggests an extra supply of water, which lowers the temperature of the body of the animal, making the cow more comfortable, hence she produces more milk.

2. The second reason for supplying plenty of water to cows in summer is the fact that the body excretions are very much increased during hot weather. These excretions consist largely of water, with certain salty materials in solution, and to supply this waste material, the cow must be supplied with an abundance of water. After proper and abundant feed, the second great need of the cow giving milk is plenty of clean, cool water. Dairymen prefer to locate along the banks of a never-failing stream. Lacking this, a dairy farm must have a good supply of well-water. — Prof. H. H. Dean, O. A. College, Guelph.

The "Fine" in Labrador.

The ravages of the Spanish influenza in Labrador during the past winter and the many deaths in that portion of British North America have created a new problem to be met by the friends of the Labrador Mission. In a letter from Dr. Wilfred Grenfell an account is given of the effect of the influenza epidemic in the Sandwich Bay district of Labrador. Twenty per cent. of the population perished as a result of the illness. Dr. Grenfell gives a long list of the dead, and adds: "As these Labrador settlements are very small, each one generally consisting of a few houses, some idea can be gained of the catastrophe to that part of the country. The distances are great between places and families, and the difficulties of the doctor and nurse traveling over that area are almost insurmountable. The point that I should like to emphasize in this connection is the pressing need for care for the orphan children who are left as a result of this epidemic. A number of men left young families, and in several cases both parents were taken. Our present orphanage, besides being so poorly constructed and difficult to run, is full to capacity, and we are at our wit's end to meet the problem of caring for so many helpless children."

THIRD DOSE RELIEF! FIFTH DOSE! DIARRHOEA STOPPED

Diarrhoea does not need to persist for any length of time until the whole system is weakened and debilitated. No other disease so quickly undermines the strength and brings about a condition of prostration and very often total collapse.

Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry is not only prompt and effectual in checking the diarrhoea, but at the same time acts as a stimulant, strengthening the bowels and braces up the whole system—and one of its principal points is that it does not leave the bowels in a constipated condition.

Mr. W. H. Arnold, Fort Qu'Appelle, Sask., writes: "A few years ago while out threshing I had a severe attack of diarrhoea. Nothing I took seemed to do me any good. I was getting worse all the time. Hearing that Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry was good for diarrhoea I went into town and procured a bottle. After the third dose I felt relief and after I had taken the fifth dose the diarrhoea had stopped. I always keep it in the house and would not be without it."

See that you get the original "Dr. Fowler's." It has been on the market for the past 74 years. Substitutes may endanger your health. Price 35c. Put up only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

PROBLEMS FOR POPE.

New Nations Are Demanding National Bishops.

Vatican advices give some idea of the difficulties which confront Pope Benedict XV growing out of changed nationalities, says the Boston Transcript. The French authorities demand new bishops for the dioceses of Metz and Strasburg, replacing the Germans now occupying those sees. With Danzig given to the Poles, the later have already asked for a Polish bishop of Danzig. Anticipating changed national relations of Cologne, Coblenz and the Rhenish provinces, unrest obtains in these dioceses. Cardinal Hartmann, the Cologne archbishop, during the war was a radical Hun, and said so many things against Cardinal Mercier, the Belgian leader of Malines, that some excuses for failure to attend a consistory had to be accepted by the Vatican. In the East, where several different rites acknowledge obedience to Rome, similar unrest is known to obtain, pending the national decisions at Paris.

Added to these complications is what approaches a revolt over Jewish ascendency in Palestine by Franciscans, who have had charge of the Roman Catholic shrines in the Holy Land for centuries, and have enjoyed unusual freedom under Turkish rule. Under Jewish rule, with a Protestant nation as mandatory, it is different and not wholly pleasant matter to the Franciscans and the Vatican. There is unusual desire at the Vatican to accede to the wishes of the French, for during and since the war French people have returned to the church, and are to replace Austria as the church's eldest daughter. Yet attachments of the people of these various dioceses for their bishops in spite of nationalities, add much to Vatican embarrassments. Every word now coming from Rome is to the effect that the Pope's difficulties are great and in no wise growing lighter.

GREAT INDUSTRY LOST

DIAMOND DEALERS HAVE NOW FORSAKEN ANTWERP.

Before War This Belgian City Transacted More Diamond Business Than All the Rest of Europe Put Together. But Coming of German Created Situation That Forced Members of "Diamond" Club to Flee to Holland.

THE Roche put a very definite stop to the diamond trade of Antwerp — just to show how thorough he was. Before the war the great Belgian seaport was the principal seat of the world's diamond industry — a distinction formerly held by the rival Dutch port of Amsterdam. It would be a long story to tell how and why the trade shifted its centre—the fact remains that prior to August 1, 1914, more diamond business was transacted at Antwerp than in the rest of Europe taken together.

And now? Listen to the account the Rotterdam correspondent of the Berliner Nemeste Nachrichten gives of the passing of Antwerp's diamond glory:

"In the year 1914 there were about 200 diamond cutting shops in Antwerp, employing about 16,000 cutters and 3,000 cornsetters, altogether about 20,000 highly skilled workmen, who earned over 100,000,000 francs ($20,000,000) a year. Besides, there were between 3,000 and 4,000 manufacturers, merchants and brokers; what these men earned it is impossible to tell; it is certain that they dressed very deadly and spent lots of money. If it is considered further that these 23,000 diamond men had families averaging three to four members, it will be found that the living of over 100,000 people depended directly on the diamond trade. Add to this the large number of hotel and cafe owners who made huge sums on the diamond trade. The fact is these men acted as private bankers to the cutters, who lived almost exclusively in hotels and boarding houses and paid their accounts at long intervals. Finally, there were the hosts of tradesmen and retailers who supplied the 'diamond people' with provisions, clothes and furniture. The 'Diamond Club' of Antwerp, where the yearly business ran into millions of francs, had a membership of 12,000, all of them merchants, brokers or manufacturers.

"This club was situated in a gorgeous building near the railroad terminal. It contained an exchange hall over 200 feet in length. During the war this hall was destroyed, but last year it was restored. Here diamonds were bought and sold, offers whispered and shouted in all European languages; here the courts of arbitration and conciliation had their chambers, institutions which rescued club members from the claws of lawyers. The courts proved a great success; since their establishment nobody ever heard of a lawsuit in the diamond trade. The cutting industry was almost exclusively in Belgian hands; on the contrary, buying and selling were altogether controlled by foreigners—more than half of the merchants and brokers were Turks or Poles.

"What could such a Polish Jew do in 1914 when the Germans entered Belgium? If he hailed from Warsaw he was a Russian subject and an enemy alien; if he came from Cracow he was an Austrian and liable to military service at home. And yet those from Warsaw and those from Cracow were exactly the same people. When the Germans retired and the Belgian troops made their entry, these Jews took to their heels and scattered in all directions of the compass.

"The French papers called them Boches, semi-Boches, triple-Boches, arch-Boches and so on. This was rather ill-considered. The newspapers did not figure out what the exodus of the Poles and Turks meant for Antwerp. The industry is dead since the merchants are gone. Out of the 16,000 cutting benches only about 1,000 are still operated; 15,000 highly skilled workmen starve.

The Diamond Club presents a sorry sight. If one looks through the huge crystal windows into the exchange hall, one observes a small group of men, crouching around a fireplace as if lost; one hears nothing but the clink of the glasses and the clapping of cards. I accosted a man who was just about to leave. 'What are these people waiting for?' The man cast a sly glance at me and whispered: 'The Poles.' Where are the Polish Finkelsteins and Silberfelds and Fischers, the Russian Tolkowskis and the Turkish Saltis, Sivas and Mirahis, whose very names suggest the Orient, with its camels and rugs, barems and candied fruits? Where are those men whose gold was so thickly sown into the soil of Antwerp that every inhabitant had his share of the harvest? Most of them are in Scheveningen, across the Dutch border, where they already have founded two clubs, one of them as a permanent institution—an ominous fact for Antwerp, for Antwerp needs the Jews more than the Jews need Antwerp.

An Offering From Alsace.

It is more than welcome to know that one of the first thoughts, last November, of the "lost provinces" of Alsace, now happily restored to France, was for the provinces of the north, whose bitter sufferings had helped to right the wrong of 1871. As soon as the French troops entered Strasbourg a committee was formed to collect offerings as a token of gratitude for liberation from the German yoke. This fund has just been closed, and the total amount collected, about 1,000,000 francs, presented by the committee to the President of the Republic for the relief of the "martyred provinces." Alsace has made a good beginning.

Recovered Manuscripts.

The Magna Charta manuscript is not the only one that was found by accident. The "Diary of Jon. Evelyn" was found by William Upcott among the waste paper in the lumber room at Wotton, while the tutor of the Marquis de Renville when playing tennis found that the drum of his racket was formed of some parchment upon which was written a fragment of the lost "Thousand Decade" of Livy.

One of the oldest fragments of Anglo-Saxon poetry, "The Fight at Finnsburg," was found pasted inside the covers of a book of homilies in Lambeth library, and twelve volumes of the manuscript journal of the house of lords were found in the Walworth road in a cheesemonger's shop about to be used as wrapping paper for butter and lard.

A Short Lived Island.

In 1807 a new shoal was discovered in the group of the Tonga or Friendly Islands. In 1877 smoke was seen over the shoal. In 1885 the shoal had become a volcanic island more than two miles long and 240 feet high, and a flame eruption was taking place within it. In 1899 the island had begun to shrink in dimensions. In 1900 its height had diminished one-half, and the ocean above around it was more than a mile deep. In 1906 the island rose only about twenty-six feet above sea level, and in 1909, under the action of the waves, its complete disappearance was reported.

For Biliousness

Biliousness is a common form of indigestion. It is brought on by food-waste which the stomach, intestines and bowels fail to expel. If you will take a few doses of Beecham's Pills, when bilious, you will soon rid yourself of the impurities, relieve sick headache, stimulate the liver and bile and tone the stomach. Healthy conditions are quickly re-established by using

Sir Wilfrid Laurier Said

"After all, what a man does with his money is to invest, and there is no better way to invest it than in Life Insurance."

As an ESTATE BUILDER there is nothing to equal Life Insurance.

TAKE THE FOLLOWING ACTUAL RESULT

A young man, sixteen years of age, took out a 15-year Endowment (No. 210380) in the Sun Life of Canada, which matured on the first of April. This young man paid annually $66.30 for fifteen years, and he has now, through that investment, an immediate estate of $1,425.00 in case of death.

DO YOU KNOW THAT THIS AMOUNTS TO ALMOST 15% COMPOUND INTEREST ON EVERY DOLLAR HE PAID?

No wonder Sir Wilfrid said (and he might have added, No better place than the Sun Life of Canada), "There is no better way to invest it than in LIFE INSURANCE."

AND THE SUN LIFE OF CANADA GIVES THIS RESULT.

New Home Treatment for Banishing Hairs

(Beauty Topics.)

With the aid of a delatone paste, it is an easy matter for any woman to remove every trace of hair or fuzz from face, neck and arms. Enough of the powdered delatone and water is mixed into a thick paste and spread on the hairy surface for about 2 minutes, then rubbed off and the skin washed. This completely removes the hair, but to avoid disappointment get the delatone in the original package.

THE ALLIES WILL ADOPT MEANS TO SUPPRESS THE HUNGARIAN BOLSHEVIKS

CAMPAIGN IS BEING PREPARED BY FOCH WITH VIENNA AS THE OBJECTIVE.

TROOPS READY

(United Press.)

PARIS, July 16. — A final armed struggle between the Allies and the Hungarian Reds, with Vienna as the supreme objective, was foreseen to-day. The Allies have reached the definite conclusion that Central and South-eastern Europe is meneaced by a wave of Bolshevism. It was declared to-day that unless Vienna can be saved from the Bolsheviki and permitted to become the capital of a stable government the peace outlook in Europe will be dubious for years to come.

The Bosheviki apparently realize as fully as the peace commissioners the supreme strategic importance of Vienna. Consequently the Hungarian Soviets were reported to be staking everything upon a final effort to establish a Soviety Republic in Vienna similar to their own before the present government succeeded in signing peace with the Allies and placing itself on a solid basis.

According to despatches from Vienna and Budapest, Allied commissioners have sent special couriers to Paris asking the peace conference to adopt immediately the most drastic measures. That Marshal Foch has begun to collect military information already is shown.

Budapest despatches also indicated to-day that a combined Allied offensive, under General D'Esperey, was expected daily.

The Roumanian Czecho-Slovak and Polish armies with French and Italian contingents are ready for action, it was said to-day. Meanwhile Swiss despatches announced the Hungarian Reds were being reinforced by Russian Soviet troops.

COST OF LIVING STILL GOING UP

Slight Increase For the Month of June.

(Special to The Examiner.)

OTTAWA, July 16.— The cost of living is going up. Labour Department returns show the increase during June to have been slight, however. The average cost of a list of 29 staple foods in some sixty cities at the middle of the month was $12.72 as compared with $12.60 at the middle of May, $12.79 in June 1918, and $7.86 in June, 1914.

PRINCE OF WALES TO ATTEND BOUT

(United Press.)

LONDON, July 16.—American boxing prestige will meet its test against British skill to-morrow night, when "Pal" Moore, Memphis, Tenn., will clash for twenty rounds with Jimmy Wild, world's fly-weight champion.

The keen interest in the bout was inidctaed to-day when it was announced that the Prince of Wales and Prince Albert would attend and probably would sit in the same box with General Pershing. The match will begin at 9.30 o'clock.

FINANCING THE WHEAT CROP

GOVERNMENT WILL LIKELY FIX A MINIMUM PRICE FOR CANADIAN WHEAT.

(Special to The Examiner.)

OTTAWA, July 16.— In order to give stability to the financing of the Canadian wheat crop of the present year and safeguard prices from too violent speculation due to the opening of grain exchanges in the present uncertain and unsettled conditions, it is probable that the Dominion government will fix a minimum price which it will guarantee to dealers, bankers and others interested in the crop movement. It is not the intention that this minimum price shall be the price at which wheat be sold in Canada. Trading may take place freely on the exchanges at any higher price or prices which may be offered. The purpose will be to fix a minimum price at which the government will be prepared to take the wheat should the price fall to the minimum figure. The about the movement of the crop.

SILVER CUPS FOR DORRIS TRIPLETS

LEGAL COMMITTEE OF CITY COUNCIL WILL MAKE PRESENTATION.

The Legal Committee last night decided to present each of the triplets born to Mr. and Mrs. Albert Doris, Albert street, with a suitably engraved cup the total cost not to amount to more than $25.00. The presentation will be made in the near future by the Legal and Reception Committee on behalf of the city.

On motion of Ald. Hamilton, seconded by Ald. Garside, the Mayor and City Clerk Armstrong were authorized to attend the annual meeting of the Union of Canadian Municipalities to be held this year in Kingston on August 12, 13, 14.

City Engineer Parsons reported a large number of encroachments on the city property. He stated that numerous houses, fences and hotels were over the line on the street. The committee decided that each person who is encroaching on the property of the city was to be notified and that the City Council expects them to enter into an agreement with the city regarding the encroachment or remove the obstruction from the street. The City Engineer was also requested to furnish the committee with any other encroachments in the city.

A letter was received from Mr. E. G. Patterson regarding a memorial for the soldiers of Peterboro city and county who have fallen in the war. He asked that some move be made by the city in this matter and the committee appointed Chairman Turner, Mayor Duncan and Ald. Gainey as a Special Committee to consider the subject and consult representatives of other bodies embracing the G. W. V. A. the Board of Trade and the Trades and Labour Council and others interested in the project.

REFUSE TO ACCEPT BREAD FROM THE MASTER BAKERS

(Special to The Examiner.)

ST. CATHARINES, July 16.—The bakers' strike took on a new phase yesterday when the master bakers and members of their families took their bread to the grocery stores. They were met with the answer, "No bread wanted to-day," and were obliged to take their bread back to the bards. Shipments of bread from outside cities were brought in for local grocers, who, with the exception of four, signed an agreement to accept no bread from local bakers while the strike is on.

RESUMPTION HOSTILITIES

ARMISTICE PREVAILED TO-DAY IN THE SENATE DEBATE OVER THE LEAGUE OF NATIONS.

WILL RESUME FIGHT

By L. C. Martin.
(United Press.)

WASHINGTON, July 16.—An armistice prevailed to-day in the Senate debate over the League of Nations, while leaders of both sides prepared for a resumption of hostilities to-morrow.

Senator Hitchcock, the Administration leader, who was prevented from seeing President Wilson to-day by the stormy session on the League, hoped to go to the White House to receive information to be used in refusing arguments of League opponents.

Interest continued to centre in the probability of a call by the League of Nations. It was considered likely that Wilson would make a speech, probably at Boise, to explain to Borah's own townspeople and constituents his reasons for urging the United States to join the League.

(United Press.)

NEW YORK, July 16.— Speaking of the League of Nations covenent and the attitude of the Republican party to-ward it, Will Hays, National chairman, declared in a statement issued here last night:

"There must be effective reservations to safeguard the sovereignty of the United States in every particular. The pact must guarantee the Monroe Doctrine beyond the shadow of a doubt, and must either eliminate Article 10 entirely or so modify it that our own Congress shall be morally as well as legally free, after a specified period to decide when and where and to what extent our soldiers shall be employed and must provide full right to withdraw fro mthe League at an ytime without hindrance or conditions of any kind.

PETERBORO MAN ARRESTED ON A SERIOUS CHARGE

RELIED DIED FROM FRACTURED SKULL.

(Canadian Press.)

MONTREAL, July 16.— William Fallon, a returned soldier, who gives his home town as Peterborough, Ont., is under arrest in connection with the death of Mrs. Bella Picken, of Ottawa, with whom he has been living in a rooming house on St. Lawrence Boulevard. Last night, according to the statement handed out by the police, and which was based on an alleged confession by Fallon, he quarrelled with Mrs. Picken and struck her with a brandy bottle. The woman died from a fractured skull.

"ACCIDENT" WAS A PICTURE STUNT

FOUR "UNKNOWN MEN" PROVED TO BE DUMMIES.

(Canadian Press.)

TORONTO, July 16.—A despatch was sent out from Trenton last night and appeared on the front age of Toronto morning paper to the effect that four unknown men had been killed there when a big touring car went over a cliff at that place. The story referred to the bodies of men being found at the bottom and their having been reviewed by hundreds of people. Inquiry over the telephone to Trenton this morning failed to confirm the tragic part of the tale. The "accident" was a moving picture stunt and the four men were dummy figures. A moving picture company has for several seasons been operating at Trenton which is considered a particularly good locality for securing motion pictures, and yesterday's act was part of the programme.

FIRST HAIRCUT IN 48 YEARS

(Canadian Press)

MONTREAL, July 16. — For the first time in forty-eight years, J. A. Cholley, a veteran of the Franco-Prussian war of 1870 sat in a barber's chair last week for the cutting of a crop of hair nearly half a century old, and the trimming of a beard that was more than patriarchal. After a sitting of less than half an hour he emerged from the chair with close clipped head and an imperial after the style of Napoleon III, the last Emperor of France. Mr. Cholley had discharged his vow made in 1871 of never having his hair cut or his beard trimmed until France had taken her revenge on Germany.

SOUTH AMERICA DESTINED TO BECOME A HAVEN FOR GERMAN SETTLERS

HUNS ARE PREPARING TO MAKE A GETAWAY WHEN THE FULL FORCE OF WAR TAXES AND INDEMNITIES ARE FELT.

(By Carl D. Groat, United Press.)

BERLIN, July 16.—While the authorities are doing their utmost to keep secret any plans for emigration of Germans to South America, it is passing evident to-day that a strong campaign for such an exodus was being carried on above the surface.

The Government took occasion to-day to officially deny that Argentina was going to assist such a movement, but it is significant that a recently founded emigration paper at Breslau is dilating upon the opportunities in South America, especially in the Argentine. It presents full digests of immigration laws in the South American states, emphasising the value of a knowledge of Spanish, and warns that emigrants should have a fair working capital if they expect to succeed.

The general feeling is that Germany is going to experience considerable emigration in the coming year, especially when the full force of war taxes and indemnities is felt.

The Germans also are expected to discover that with decreased territory and industrial opportunities, life in Germany will be more difficult than in the old days.

It is pointed out that emigration to the United States is inadvisable at this time. So South America appears destined to become the land of opportunity for German settlers.

ASSOCIATION TO OFFER A REWARD

STONEY LAKE COTTAGERS WILL APPOINT A CARETAKER.

The failure of the County and Provincial police officers to apprehend the thieves who stole several thousand dollars worth of goods from the cottages at Stoney Lake during the winter months has prompted the Stoney Lake Cottagers Association to offer a substantial reward for information that will lead to the apprehension of the guilty parties.

On August the fourth, at four o'clock in the afternoon a meeting will be held at the Pavilion at Juniper Island when plans will be discussed relative to the appointment of a care taker for the winter months. He will be invested with the powers of a county constable and will be delegated to guard the interests of the cottage owners at Stoney Lake and if possible prevent a repetition of last winter's depredations. Cottagers will be assessed an amount sufficient to cover the

WILL CONTINUE TO REMAIN OUT

PRESIDENT MAKES A STATEMENT ON TORONTO SITUATION.

(Special to The Examiner.)

TORONTO, July 16.— The attack made upon the Metal Trades Council in one of the newspapers appears to be inspired by the employers, or their associations," said President R. C. Brown, of the Metal Trades Council to-day. "They are trying to convey the impression to the public that there is a break within our ranks. Such a statement is absolutely false, as is that which declares that some of our officials are resigning on account of the prolongation of the strike. As a matter of fact we have not received a single resignation from any of our officials, nor has any local union lost any of its officers for this reason. The only officials who are not on the Strike committee are those whose employers accepted our agreement, and consequently the men returned to their work.

"As far as the rank and file are concerned there is absolute harmony of purpose, which is to carry on the strike to a successful conclusion. At our mass meeting held this morning at which all the crafts affiliated with the Metal Trades Council were represented, our stand was re-affirmed without a dissenting vote. The attitude of all members was one of absolute confidence in the policy of the Metal Trades Council."

"When it is said that men are leaving for other countries on that that, the answer is obvious. They are going either to the old country or to the United States because they meet with far better conditions than they can obtain here."

"As to the charge that our men want to work I will agree emphatically with this view. They don't want to, but they are compelled to be, idle by their employers."

"Mr. James G. Merrick, of the Employers' Association, makes a public statement that the employers have all the men they need. If this is the case it is rather strange that practically all of the larger machine shops are advertising for machinists and similar help. In conclusion I may point out we are now entering the eleventh week of our strike and our morale is absolutely unimpaired. We are as determined as ever to carry on our fight for justice."

COUNCIL OF FIVE MET YESTERDAY

PROPOSAL REGARDING BLOCKADE OF RUSSIAN PORTS

(Canadian Press.)

PARIS, July 16.— The Council of Five met yesterday afternoon, its chief topic of discussion being the Russian blockade. There have been proposals that the Powers shall allow ships to enter Russian ports under certain special permits. It has been suggested that most of the Black Sea ports could be blockaded by the Denekine government, which is friendly to the Allies, but the Supreme Council has not decided to ask him to declare such a blockade.

REGULATION FOR AERIAL FLIGHTS

HEAVY PENALTIES FOR INFRACTION OF THE RULES.

(Canadian Press.)

OTTAWA, July 16.—The Privy Council has approved of safety regulations in air flights. Flying so low as to cause danger is forbidden everywhere and flights over towns must be at a height which will permit the machine to plane down to earth in the open country in case of engine trouble. Stunt flying over residence areas is forbidden, also dropping objects from airplanes. Penalties for infraction of these regulations are six months or a thousand dollar fine.

METRO STAR IS ADEPT IN WINTER SPORTS

Many of the beautiful scenes in the Metro production, "The Way of the Strong," to be shown at the Grand theatre on Thursday for a three-day engagement, and in which Anna Q. Nilsson is the star, were taken high up in the Californian mountains — in the land of perpetual snows.

Winter sports play an important part in this picture and Miss Nilsson will be seen on skiis, snowshoes, skates and is even called upon to drive a team of "huskies" — a feat which demands skill and unlimited nerve and power. She was quite equal to this however, and shows that she is a worthy descendant of her viking ancestors.

PRESIDENT WILSON MAY VISIT TORONTO

EXHIBITION BOARD IS STILL SEEKING ATTRACTIONS.

(Special to The Examiner.)

TORONTO, July 16.—Will both the King of Belgium and President Wilson be in Toronto with the Prince of Wales during Exhibition time?

That is the question that T. A. Russel, President of the Exhibition, has gone to Washington and Seattle. He left last night with a written request to President Wilson, suggesting that since the unwritten law that an American President should not leave America during his term of office has been broken, that perhaps it can be broken again, it is reported that King Albert is to be in America during August. A cable has been forwarded to him to see if his visit can be planned to allow him to visit Toronto during the fair.

NO SALE BY THE CHEESE BOARD THIS MORNING AS PROTEST AGAINST DECLINE

PRESIDENT BREDIN POINTS TO RESULTS OF THE INDIFFERENCE OF SALESMEN AND OF PRACTICE OF SOME FACTORIES THAT SELL OFF THE BOARD.

SHARP DROP IN PRICE

A "no sale" meeting of the Cheese Board this morning afforded a striking illustration of the results of a growing indifference with factory salesmen have shown towards its affairs. Only six salesmen and two buyers were present and the seeming lack of interest was aggravated by a sharp drop of seven cents in the top price.

The unusual action adjournment without sale for one week was largely a protest against the lack of interest which many of the factories have manifested for several years and also against what members term the evil of selling off the board.

Fourteen factories reported 1620 bexes for sale, but there are at least six other factories in this district which should be affiliated with the Board, but having broken their connection are selling independently at the price prevailing at the Board's sales.

Threatens the Industry.

Mr. Thompson Bredin, the president, this morning stated that the reputation of the Peterboro Cheese Board and of the entire industry in this district is being subjected by many patrons and factories to many serious injury. The only remedy it was stated, was an immediate revival of interest by all the dairymen ond factory patrons who are represented on the Board and also the others who should be represented.

Selling off the Board is causing disunion. The Maple Leaf, Pine Grove, Buckhorn, Cedardale, Myrtle and Fleetwood factories have adopted this proctice. The executive of the Cheese Board argue that the highest prices are obtained when the greatest number of buyers are attracted, and that the number of buyers depends upon the strength of the Board, in another they digest the advantages of collective selling, and of the competition in buying that has always brought the highest prices Mr. Bredin remarker that unless all the factories realize this it will be only a short time until Peterboro loses its high position in the cheese industry, for without the highest possible prices there will not be that strong interest and incentive to maintain the factories.

The complaint of the Board therefore is that every factory should send a salesman to every meeting, and that the factories now selling off should immediately join forces with the others now on the Board so that the cheese industry in this district should be thoroughly united and consequently receiving the attention and the top prices of as many buyers as may be expected to attend the sales.

Only Two Buyers.

Two weeks ago the price was around thirty-one cents. This morning's high offering by Mr. Gillespie was 24c. Mr. Thompson, of Belleville, the only other buyer, opened at 23c and the listless bidding proceeded by sixteenths to 24c.

The Board suddenly realizing the weakness that factories have permitted to develop refused to sell, and during the coming week will endeavour to arouse the farmers to a realization of the position to which their industry has declined.

THE COMMITTEE MET YESTERDAY

PREPARING FOR TEMPERANCE CAMPAIGN IN PETERBORO CITY AND COUNTRY.

The representatives of the prohibition forces of the county met in the Y.M.C.A. yesterday afternoon to organize the nucleus of a County Referendum Committee. Rev. Harold Bell of Hall's Bridge, was elected emporary chairman and Mr. T. M. Wesley, a returned soldier and organizer for the Provncial Referendum Committee of the counties of Durham, Victoria, Haliburton and Peterboro outlined the plan of organizatin which was adopted with a few minor changes to meet local conditions. Four men in the immediate vicinity of the city or living in the city will later be appointed to the County Executive which at present is composed of:

Otonabee Mr. A. Matchett.
Lakefield S. S. Spence.
Havelock, A. C. Denike.
Lakehurst, Joseph Harrison.
Norwood, G. A. Brethen.

Rev. John Galt of Gilmour Memrial Church was elected chairman of this committee.

Besides this county organization Mr. Wesley is organizing municipal organizations throughout the county and a meeting was held in Otonabee to-day and on Thursday and Friday meetings will be held in Norwood and Lakefield.

The Budget

Mr. Wesley was careful to explain that the object of the committee was not to intimidate the vote but merely to hysterize the prohibition element so that they do not fail to come out and vote. The committee are of the opinion that prohibition sentiment in Peterboro County and in every county is strong enough to outstrip the "wet" forces. Mr. H. B. Cowan gave some valuable suggestions to the committee and he with Rev. John Galt is throwing himself into the work of organization.

A city committee has already been formed and soon the whole county will be organized. The county committee are considering engaging a permanent salaried organizer to devote his whole time to the work and to raise the necessary budgets.

The city and county of Peterboro are asked for approximately $2000 for Provincial work and besides this a local budget must be raised for county expenses. A meeting of the executive is called for next Saturday afternoon to prepare a budget and receive suggestions.

FOOD SHORTAGE IN SASKATCHEWAN

(Canadian Press.)

REGINA, Sask., July 16.—In about one-fifth of Saskatchewan the crop is a failure and many people in the affected zone will need food for themselves and stock, and seed next spring. Much stock will have to be exported from the province, as it is admitted there is not enough feed, even if scientifically distributed, to feed all.

LEAVE IT TO "PAL"

Dog's Owner Relies on Animal's Intelligence.

Offspring of Gray Wolf and Highly Bred Scottish Guardian of Sheep, Four-Footed Companion Is Beyond Value.

While in Alabama I made the acquaintance with the strangest dog I have ever heard of—the most unique venture it has been my province to get acquainted with, writes George F. Worlin in the Columbus Dispatch. He belongs to a man living at Tyaskville, but is known all over the state, and his name is "Pal."

Pal's mother was a shepherd and lived on the plains out West, where she looked after a big herd of sheep. In fact, she was one of the best sheep dogs in the whole region. His father was a gray wolf. So Pal is half wolf and half dog—a common enough thing out West.

Pal grew up with the sheep his mother looked after, and learned all the tricks of rounding them up and bringing them in. But he learned a whole lot more than the average sheep dog knows. He learned that every other animal as well as sheep can be directed and guided and taken care of if you know how to do it. So when Pal's owner wants any certain animal on the farm brought in, he simply tells the dog what he wants and Pal attends to it. He can tell the dog to go to the pasture a mile away and bring in a certain mule and he goes and brings it in. He can direct him to bring in a certain cow or calf or hog and it is done.

But the strange thing about it is that Pal also brings in other dogs. His owner has numerous bird dogs, which he trains upon the plantation. Pal helps train them. If a dog gets too far away, the trainer says, "Pal, bring him in," and Pal does so. He runs to the dog and crowds him toward the owner. He simply will not let him go in any other direction. He doesn't fight the other dog, although at times it may be necessary for him to take hold of an ear and nip it a little. But he annoys the dog until there is nothing else for it to do but to be guided by Pal.

Then Pal is the high sheriff or policeman of the whole plantation. He keeps the peace between the other animals. If two dogs get into a fight, Pal separates them. If he finds a couple of hogs or chickens fighting, he does the same thing. He doesn't bother anything upon the plantation unless it is doing something it ought not to do, and then he takes a hand in the matter and settles it. If he finds a pig in a field where it doesn't belong, he drives it out without being directed to do so. If a horse slips his bridle while hitched to the hitching post and converts down the road, he will stop upon his heels or at his mouth and bring it back and keeps it standing where it was left.

Taking the Next Census.

The government takes stock of its resources this year. June 1, 1919, begins the next decennial census of the population and industries of the United States. It comes fittingly at an important epoch in the nation's destiny and at a time when we are launching upon a new era of expansion and foreign interest, Thomas B. Logan says in Leslie's. Our statesmen and students will be deeply concerned in the data accumulated as to the value of our industries as well as to their extent. It will be a greatly energized and strengthened America which the new census taker will find. He will observe and record the effects of the war upon our industrial life. He will report also the exact number of our citizens by races and ages. It will be possible to determine how far General Crowder's draft registration fell short of the actual number of population of draft age. The last census showed 91,972,266 population. Guesses as to the present population range from 105,000,000 to as high as 112,000,000. Inroads of the war, of influenza, without compensating immigration, have abated our rate of increase. Despite this, the totals may surprise us.

Verdi and His Admirer.

Verdi was once traveling in the same railway carriage with General Tournon. They got into conversation, which soon turned on the subject of music, and the general, who did not know his companion, expressed enthusiastic preference for that of Italy. "I can hardly go as far with you," replied the other. "For me, art has no frontiers, and I give German music the preference over Italian."

"Indeed, sir," said the general testily. "For my part, I would give all a German opera in the world for one act of 'Rigoletto.'"

"You really must excuse me from following you any further on this ground," replied the composer, blushing a little. "I am Verdi."

SENTIMENT IN THE TRENCHES

Soldier's Reason for Not Shooting Hare Was a Decided Reflection on the Hun.

This tale comes from a soldier who was one of the first Yanks to reach the front:

A big, burly, good-humored chap was with me on outpost duty and we were lying listening in a wood whereabouts were several clumps of underbrush in our neighborhood. We were thinking of another move forward when we spied a large French hare running straight toward us. He was coming as directly as possible away from the enemy lines.

Although there was no attack from either side in progress at that moment, the desultory rattle of some machine gun and the occasional crack of a rifle rendered it safe to try a shot at any object without fear of discovery.

"Hit him or I will," said I. "Don't shoot," was the answer, "the poor beggar thinks he has a better chance for life coming over to us than he has going in the Huns' direction."

That bit of sentiment knocked me cold and I could not stir the trigger. The hare disappeared in the underbrush and I felt convinced that his sympathies were with us. It would have been a different story had it been the spiked cap of a Boche we had sighted.

Automobiles in Canada.

In 1914 the number of automobiles in Canada was 97,418, increasing to 189,739 in 1917. It is estimated that the number of cars in use at the close of the present year will be approximately 250,000. With an estimated population of 8,000,000 this gives a proportion of one car for every thirty-two inhabitants, as against one for every 118 inhabitants four years ago. Statistics have been compiled showing the occupations of car owners throughout the country, and from this it is apparent that about 90 per cent of all the cars in use are owned by persons whose occupations are such that the automobile in their hands is a utility enabling them to do more and better work. Nearly one-half of the cars in use are the property of farmers.

Will Sell Scoudler.

An echo of the German sea raiders comes from the South Pacific. There on the coast of Lord Howe island lies the wreck of the Scoudler, of Atlantic fame two years ago. According to reports, the raider is to be sold by auction by the French government. Though her hull is badly damaged the Scoudler's engines are in good condition, and there is also a large quantity of hawsers, tanks, and other equipment. The famous raider was at one time the barque Pass of Balmaha, of 1,571 tons. After her capture by the Germans the latter fitted her out with powerful Diesel oil engines of 120 horsepower.

ALBERTA FARMERS HAD A WARNING

GRAIN GROWING A RISKY BUSINESS IN DRY SECTION OF CANADIAN WEST--CYCLES OF DROUGHT CHARACTERISTIC

The old cattlemen who shook their heads and declared that the farmers flocking into the range lands of the Canadian West to spoil the pastures, would get their fill of drought, were correct. The crop failure is greatest in South-western Saskatchewan and Southern Alberta.

Lying roughly west of Moosejaw, Sask., and south of Red Deer, in Alberta, stretches a vast region of treeless plains some 80,000 squares miles in extent. This section has always been known as the semi-arid country. A great prairie plateau ranging from 2,000 to 3,500 feet above sea level, its soil is light, and though bunch-grass, most nourishing of cattle foods, grows abundantly over most of this area not under cultivation, there are frequent barren spots where those true emblems of the semi-desert — sagebrush, tiny cactus and the snow-white alkali appear.

Frequent high winds, slight snowfall, little rain and rapid evaporation, due to the altitude and distance from any large body of water, are characteristics of this region whose dry air is most beneficial in cases of tuberculosis.

Within the memory of the oldest settler, this country has been subjected to cycles of drought and cycles of normal moisture. The writer first saw this section in 1899. After many dry summers, rains had once more blessed the earth and from that year until the year of 1904, the whole country blossomed forth. Grass grew luxuriantly where none had grown for years. The plains were dotted with ponds. Farmers who tried their luck with grain harvested enormous yields. Fall wheat, the great crop out there ran 40 and 50 bushels to the acre. As land was then selling at from $2.50 an acre upwards, and on easy terms Yankee foemers from the American middle west being among the pioneers. Some made small fortunes in the four years of fat crops, paid for their lands and banked money. The dry belt is a prolific yielder in wet years.

A Yellow Desert

Newcomers in those wet years refused to believe that the green prairies they saw could ever be the yellow deserts of dried grass the cattlemen swore used to exist in former seasons. But after 1904, the dry years began to return intermittently, and the farmers realized what they were up against. Flattening the surface with a heavy roller and thus making a blanket of dust to keep the moisture in the soil has been tried with considerable success in dry years. Careful cultivation of the soil has also helped. But without irrigation the prospects of raising a crop in a really dry season are slim. And even the irrigation system in Alberta don't always solve the problem. The harvester of several good crops simply must be prepared for lean years.

Manitoba and Northern Saskatchewan and northern Alberta possess quite a different climate to that of the semi-arid region. Manitoba with its black soil abundance of snow and rain and poplar dotted plains generally gets a crop. Simarly in the northern sections of its sister provinces, the soil is heavier, the presence of trees frequent and th snowfall and rainfall more regular. The height above sea level is much less than that of the plateau to the south and the climate more like that of Ontario. Frost is the only burbear of this monster region. For while oats, barley, etc., can be counted upon, a sharp frost at the last minute will often ruin a promising stand of wheat, which is much less subject to a freeze farther south.

MASSIVE BARGES ON STATE CANAL

When ten massive steel barges, owned by the United States Government and forming but a small part of the Federal barge line, passed recently through the Waterford Locks they brought to a successful conclusion the first trip ever taken on the new channel by modern steel barges.

Each of these vessels carried 16,800 bushels of grain, more than double the capacity of the old canal boat, and each is 180 feet in length, 21 1-2 feet wide, and has a capacity of from 900 to 1200 tons on a ten-foot draft. The boats on this occasioned moved in tows of two, but will in the future move in fleets of four, one barge being self-propelled and especially designed for use on the barge canal.

As the nine-knot ten horses passed through the new canal State Engineer Frank M. Williams was called to the telephone twice to witness the passage of two giant United States Navy coal barges. Both these boats were 198 feet long, 31 feet wide, and had a maximum capacity of 1,200 tons.

Before the present canal season is over about 100 new steel and concrete barges will be in operation on the United States' barge line, while a great many more boats will have been placed in commission on the different independent lines, which are now looking forward to a season of exceptional activity. Aside from these general lines manufacturing corporations are operating their own fleets.

WORLD HAPPENINGS

BRITISH AIRSHIP BELIEVED LOST AT SEA.

(Canadian Press.)

LONDON, July 16.—The British airship NS-11, which left Pelham on a 48-hour flight, is believed to have been struck by lightning, and the crew of seven lost at sea.

Parts of the dirigible have been picked up.

SERIOUS STRIKE.

(Canadian Press.)

NEW YORK, July 16.—The strike of seamen is becoming serious. Foreign crews have now joined the strikers, and it is believed that 50,000 are out.

SHIP EXPLOSION.

LONDON, July 16.—A Bill to restrict the amount of alien labour to be employed was rejected by the Committee of the Whole in the House of Commons last night.

FOUR KILLED.

(Canadian Press.)

TRENTON, July 16.—Four unknown motorists, including the chauffeur, went over a cliff near here yesterday.

All were killed.

None have been identified.

HAS RESIGNED.

(Canadian Press.)

LONDON, July 16.—The Spanish Cabinet, headed by Antonio Maura, which was formed on 15th April, has resigned, according to Reuter's despatch from Madrid.

Two's company; but it is just as well to have a lawyer to witness the agreement.

Honesty is the best policy, but some people we know seem to get on pretty well.

PRESENTATION TO HASTINGS PASTOR

REV. I. SNELL HAS LEFT FOR FRANKFORD CIRCUIT.

HASTINGS, July 16.—The following address and a substantial purse was given to Rev. I. Snell by the congregation of the Methodist church on the eve of his departure to his new circuit at Frankford:

Dear Mr. Snell,— The time has come when as a congregation, we must say good-bye to you, as a pastor, and it is with mingled sorrow and gladness that we have assembled to bid you farewell. We dislike to think of losing you as our pastor and friend, the thought of which is grievous unto us.

During the four years of your pastorate here, we have come, not only to appreciate the value of your work among us, but to love you as a man, so that it is with with heavy hearts that we separate from you.

On the other hand we are glad that we have been privileged to have had you as our pastor, glad to have had you in our midst, glad to have come in touch with you from day to day. In a quiet, unassuming, inoffensive way, you have preached to us the gospel, and the light of the Christ life has been so reflected by you that it has diffused itself among us, permeating our minds and hearts, so that we believe that through you, we have been drawn nearer unto Him.

Our only regret is that we have not supported you as we might have done. No one in Hastings, be they of our denomination or otherwise, be they Protestant or Catholic, but holds you in the highest respect, and as a congregation, we feel that we were never more united than now. Your good influence will continue to live, and rest assured that you will never be forgotten.

We beg of you, therefore, to accept this gift from the congregation, as a token of our esteem, and we wish for both you and Mrs. Snell the highest material prosperity and the blessing of God in your field of labour.

In behalf of the congregation.

THE PREMIER'S APPEAL

The appeal of Sir Robert Borden to labor to refrain from striking at the present time because Canada, he contains, cannot hope to pass through the perilous period before us if the industrial disturbances continue, would be more effective if the Government had been able to convince the workers that it realize the need of many reform and was prepared to deal effectively with the problems that have led to the present unrest. With the general tone of the Premier's statement, there can little fault be found. It is undoubtedly true, as he declares, that "lockouts and strikes are almost as destructive as war itself in the waste and loss which they occasion and in their disturbing influence upon all industrial life of the country." The Premier ignores the fact that much of the trouble in Canada might have been avoided if the Government had placed a firm hand on the profiteers and saved the people from being exploited by those who took advantage of the abnormal conditions, brought about by the war. Words of advice, no matter how true they may be, from the Premier, are a poor substitute for action and Sir Robert Borden's appeal albeit an admirable summary of the situation, is not likely to have much effect on the problem itself.

THE COLLEGIATE PROBLEM

The crowded condition of the Collegiate Institute is a matter that should give not only the Board of Education, but the citizens who recognize the importance of affording our young people every possible educational advantage, serious concern. Of course, a temporary solution of the problem is at hand—although it is a selfish policy. The admission of pupils who reside outside the city will have to be forbidden. There are many such pupils from the surrounding districts, whose education will be interfered with by such a move. They will either have to give up their hopes of continuing their schoolastic career or else have to endeavor to secure admission in High School elsewhere where the accomodation is not so severely taxed. There are many scholars, including the graduates from May's school, just outside the city limits, who would be affected by a decision that the local Collegiate shall henceforth be open only to those whose homes are in the city. What is to become of these pupils who hitherto have been able to atend the Peterboro Collegiate? It is a problem that presents immediate difficulties. The barring out of county pupils seems a handicap, but what is to be done if the accommodation is only sufficient for city pupils?

THE POLITICAL SITUATION.

The local newspaper supporter of the Government is not the only Conservative journal that is calling for the termination of Union Government, although, so far as is known, the cry for the scalps of the Liberal Unionists, has, so far, only sounded from the Hunter St. sanctum. Other Conservative newspapers are more moderate in their demands; they ask for the end of the Unionist farce and the return to the old party lines, but are willing to allow the Liberals to remain if they desire to do so. The Kingston Standard, one of the Government's staunch supporters, is one Conservative journal that has come out frankly for the re-establishment of the political situation on its old basis. "To be sure," adds the Standard, however, "some Liberals now in the Union pary, will remain there. Such men, for instance, as Ballantyne and Mewburn and Guthrie and maybe, Calder and MacLean and Rowell—but beyond these (and even some of these are not certain) there are likely to be few Liberals of importance who still believing in Liberal policies, will not desire to go back to their own party." The Review declares that the party doors are closed against these Liberals, and advocates that the Conservatives also turn them out, but the Kingston journal, with a more accurate vision of the situation, pictures the majority of them back to the Liberal colors again. "If the Liberals," declares the Standard, "at their forthcoming convention, by a 'get together' spirit, choose a leader acceptable to the faction and adopt a sane, rational, reasonable policy—not sectional, but national in its scope and ideals—we have a very strong suspicion that the old-time Liberals will flock back to their party, and that the Liberal newspapers (who practically all were quite frank in their declarations that they supported Unionism, only as a war-time emergency) will be fairly solidly behind them."

NO CHANCE FOR VETERANS.

The Great War Veterans know now how much chance there is of their request that the enumerators for the coming referendum should be returned soldiers, being granted The action of the executive of the Conservative Association of West Peterboro in ignoring the applications of two men who had served in France and men who were qualified in every way for the position, in accommending a chief enumerator for the riding, showed that the veterans can expect little consideration from the Conservative political machine in the matter of appointments. There is nothing to be said against Mr. Alex Elliot, who was the choice of the Conservative Executive, except that it was the general opinion that in Government appointments of this kind, preference should be given to the men who had fought overseas. There were applications from two such men one of whom was endorsed by the Great War Veterans' Association. But war services apparently did not count for anything in the eyes of the Conservative machine leaders. As The Examiner has already pointed out, the Tory party evidently regards the appointment of enumerators as a convenient method of placating the camp followers and the failure to recommend a veteran of the war for chief enumerator does not augur well for the selection of ex-servicemen on the staff. A report received by the local War Veterans yesterday afternoon indicated that Mr. Strickland the Veterans' choice for the position was sure of appointment, which it confirmed, indicates that the Government has shown better jurgment than the local executive.

SEARCHING THE SHALLOWS

The effort of the High Cost of Living Commission was a searching of the shallow places. The head lines were ecast out only when it seemed that the committee would not be kept too long on the job. Whenever it appeared that the lines were going deep, the committee evidently believed that the depths need not be fathomed and the hurried sounding of the troubled ocean revealed, according to these marine surveyors, a clear course, without reefs and other dangers to navigation.

Witnesses called from the great companies which held the magic lamp of governmental influence during the war, were not kept on the stand for more than an hour or two. The attitude of the spokesmen of the committee seemed to be sympathetic and when a Toronto editor who had questioned the cleverness of the committee when matched with Sir Joseph Flavelle's right-hand man, appeared before the committee, he was given the roughest time of all those who appeared.

The situation demanded some man who like O'Connor to delve into the practices of these companies. However he might have disliked the task, it is practically certain that the support of public opinion would have prevented interference with his methods. As it was, everyone, including the company that made more than 300 per cent. profits, "got away with it," and must have blushed at the implied eulogies to their business acumen expressed in the report.

There was no one connected with the committe to get at the facts. It suggested a vague sort of Chamber of Commerce to investigate matters. But the last session has departed, the members have hurried home and the high cost of living, so the people are told, is largely of their own making. The making of vast fortunes by means of extraordinary war conditions is given the seal of approval.

An election would reveal that the people would take back all but a reasonable proportion of profits made from war contracts by means of rascally combinations and price control.

It is howled from some quarters that profiteering is simply awful in in England. Yes, and some Canadian profiteers have been attracted by it. But are we to be led from the scent by this kind of herring drawing? We all know that there are rascals as great in England os in Canada Perhaps, because Uncle Sam made an example of some profiteers, there has been less of that sort of thing during the war across the line than in any other country. Specialists like Col. Allison in the shell game, as well as Government favorites like Grant Hugh Brown, came across to this side of the line to be at the feast. One of them has been placed under arrest by Uncle Sam. Canada has never arrested a single grafter since war began. She has been forced to turn them from the House of Commons, but it was more in sorrow than in angar.—London Advertiser.

A pretty face in a woman is always a standing recommendation for mercy.

THE HUNTER STREET BRIDGE

Dear Editor—Your article in tonight's issue shows that my open letter to the Mayor and Council has not even yet been fully understood. I did not overlook the clause providing for a steel arch —I specifically mentioned it, and suggested its adoption a once. My reasons I also stated, namely, that there will be a considerable difference in the foundation of the arch. You will not have any difficulty about the bottom of the fundation if you have not to provide for the enormous sidethrust of a concrete arch of the span of about 230 feet. My suggestion is to get bulk tenders for the approaches, and you will know what the cost is to be before starting, and you will know how much money you have for the centre span. The engineering difficulties lie in the uncertainty of the depth to be excavated at the river bank before a solid bottom can be found and a steel span dispose of it. I calculate the centre span at less than one tenth of the concrete contents of the whole, but its construction owing to piling, footings, etc., will be very expensive. I prefer a cantilever span as the lightest and cheapest as well as the most efficient and also the most artistic, but if it is to be an arch with a concrete top that is merely a matter of design and opinions may easily differ. The main thing is, you can get binding Contracts at a fixed price and know where you stand —I object to designing the structure as we go along—it is a wasteful method and has no finality.

I also wanted to make it clear to the Council, and the public the view I take of the plus cost system. Every cent the contractors pay out of their pockets goes under the head of cost. Everey cent paid for wages from the foreman to the humblest laborer will be paid by the city, and the full price of all materials and th ecost of all small tools—so that the twenty-nine thousand dollars bon us to be paid to the contractor is a payment for which we get absolutely to value whatever. If the city did its own buying, they could buy just as advantageously and better still would get all discounts—likely a large item —and the same foreman and workmen would be on the job at the same pay, and supervised by the same engineer. I make no charge of improper conduct, but I would like someone that knows to say what is to be done about trade discount on the materials to be bought by the Contractors and re sold to the city. Will they guarantee to give the benefit of every cent of trade discount by whatever name it may be called, they get from the purchases? If there is no reply to this straight question, it will leave in the minds of the public a strong suspicion that the contractors get more than the trifle of twenty-nine thousand, out of the purchases and where the inevitable audit comes I pledge my word as a ratepayer that I will have every item of cost closely scrutinized, and all commissions, discounts, etc., will have to be credited in full, and believe me I do not stand alone in this.

Yours truly
Jas. Guise-Bagley.

DOES ADVERTISING PAY?

Many advertisers, and particularly retail advertisers, never get the full cumulative power of advertising behind their business because they lack patience. They demand direct returns. They run a one-time announcement in the local paper to-day and look for sales enough—sales directly traceable to the little one-time advertisement—before next week to pay for the cost of the space. Of course they are disappointed. Retail advertising seldom works out that way. But they are impatient for results. They are not prepared to invest money in advertising as they would in new goods, in store fixtures, in stocks or in real estate—and wait for profits to be earned. No. The returns of to-day's advertising must ring in cash profits to-morrow, or, in the estimation of too many retail dealers, the advertising is not worth what it costs.

Hand-to-mouth advetising is not worth what it costs. It yields only hand-to-mouth returns. To show the best results as a business building power, the advertising of the retail merchant must be persistent: Its chief purpose should be to build up permanent trade; to make the people of your community turn to your store in preference to other stores; to make them think of you and of your place of business; to convince them that they cannot get better quality and price and service anywhere.

"Would you advise a sixty-inch advertisement in the newspaper once a week or six ads. covering ten inches of space each week?" was one of the questions asked.

"I would advise six ads., one each day, or, better still, three twenty-inch ads. each week." replied the advertiser.

"Anything that is desirable is advertisable," he said, and pointed out that the desirability of an article depends much on the consistency with which it is advertised.

"One of the best ways to advertise is to cultivate the customers you have acquired and they will assist you in your advertising."

His final message was; "Advertise and get out and prosper."

WAR AND CONTROVERSY

RENEGADE CANADIAN INSULTS THE ALLIED ARMY.

Offensive Article Written by Man Who Claims That Americans Raised the Broken Morale of the Fighters In France — Canadian Officer Exposes Ignorance of Mr. Pattullo.

"AT this time no troops except the Americans were seriously fighting the Boches. Strategic retreats were the vogue; sometimes at a run, again at a walk. Rearguard actions were the fashion — and all honor to the men who stood and died, to gain time for their comrades.

"I went to the Chateau-Thierry sector, and to other sectors as well, in those tragic days, and I pledge my word of honor that never have I seen the morale of fighting forces lower than it was among the allies at that period. They didn't seem to have a punch left in them. They were sullenly awaiting the next onslaught, fearful of its success, almost hopeless of their ability to stop the Boches. And then a small force of Americans did the trick temporarily — and presto! — hope revived. They took a new lease on life; their spirits rose."

So writes a person named George Pattullo, a renegade Canadian from Woodstock, Ont., in the Saturday Evening Post of May 10, 1919.

George's military capacity and sagacity lies in a certain reputation built up on tales of ranches in the wild and woolly west. Texas is his home of adoption, and in these days of war interest he seems to have taken upon himself to prove that the Americans won the war.

With that absurdity these few lines have nothing to do. The Americans did all that was asked of them and did it like the splendid soldiers they were. What they did do or what they didn't do; what the British, the French and other allies did or did not do Mr. Pattullo is scarcely in a position to say. He went over as a newspaper man to France in May, 1918, and was back home in time to pay a visit to America in August of the same year.

Those who were in the firing line know pretty well how much of the fighting Mr. Pattullo was likely to see. Neither is that even remotely the object of this article.

Mr. Pattullo found the morale of the allies—barring the Americans—at the lowest possible ebb, and that in June their reserves were exhausted and there was no striking power left, he remarks elsewhere. Just by way of information, let it be remembered that at the time of which Mr. Pattullo speaks the four Canadian divisions were away from the line, but only as reserves. Just training for the open warfare that it had been long foreseen would arise. Imperial divisions were also hard at this open warfare training and doubtless the French and others were doing the same thing.

Canadians may expect a certain amount of boasting with regard to the war from our cousins across the border. Canadians brag a bit, themselves. And it is inevitable that a certain amount of bumptious talk, blow, intended purely for home consumption, should slip over to this side of the border. But when Mr. Pattullo, a former Canadian, a writer of magazine stories, lets loose as he does in "Who Won the War?" it is bringing matters into the Canadian camp. Mr. G. Pattullo went to the States some years ago, to sell his stories, there being no market for his inferior style in his native country; and that now, he is in no sense to be considered as a Canadian. Offence cannot genuinely be taken to his writings on the ground of his being one of us, although he was a lieutenant in our militia for many years before the war. Possibly Mr. Pattullo realizes he has missed one of the biggest "stories" of his life in failing to rejoin his old regiment, on the outbreak of war, and in his article on who won it is trying to make the best of a bad job.

Canadian soldiers have no desire to belittle the part the United States soldiers played in the war. We did not at any time come in touch with them, except when their officers came up the line for short visits to us, to learn the game. Those were all fine fellows, keen and dead anxious to get on to the tricks.

One Canadian officer who saw a great deal of the fighting that actually won the war makes the following comments upon Mr. Pattullo's article:—

"After examining one or two little sectors of the western front Mr. Pattullo is satisfied that upon his honor, he never saw morale lower than it was among the allies at that time. If he meant among the few odd French and British battalions. But he doesn't mean that. He means among the allies, all the allies, all the way up the line. For his claim is that the stunt of one American Division so revived the spirits of all the allies that disaster was turned into victory—

"Will Mr. Pattullo believe me when I say that although I was in France all the time, with an infantry battalion, I never heard of the battle of Chateau-Thierry or of the St. Mihiel show until I got home to Toronto?

"I will admit we were a little disappointed at the success of the German rushes in March and early in April. But to say that either the Canadians or any of the British regiments we encountered in May, June or July were depressed or suffering from ailment of morale, is nothing but a bumptious piece of fiction born of ignorance.

"Mr. Pattullo's conception of a battle is quaint, if not comical. He says:

"In May and June he broke through the French front to the Marne and almost reached Compiegne. No inference to American troops here; Mr. who stopped the Boches? Paris seemed to be doomed, the French were aghast; but suddenly the enemy hordes were thrown back and held. Ask the mayors of Meaux and adjoining towns; go ask the inhabitants of the Chateau-Thierry region. They know. So do all of us who were up there or in France at the time. The Second Division of the Americans did it.'

"Mr. Pattullo suffers from shortsightedness. He thinks he saw the whole war down on that small sector of the western front. He should have gone over with his old regiment here, and even then he would have humbly admitted that he saw only a little of it.

"He also claims that the United States army so fiercely engaged the Hun, that it withdrew all the reserves of the German army down in front of the Yankees, so making it easy for the British to sweep on to victory. He says:

"'One has only to glance at the progress reported by the French, British and Belgian commands in those latter days of the struggle to realize that the resistance opposite them must have been half-hearted, and in some cases almost nonexistent. Anybody who knows troops knows that this cannot be done against obstinate resistance.'

"Anybody who knows anything at all about the war besides one battle sector will know that, according to official figures, that tritlingly small Canadian force of four understrength divisions engaged and decisively defeated between August 8 and November 11, forty-seven German divisions, that is, nearly one quarter of the total German forces on the western front. And 31,537 prisoners happened to get safely past our attacks. Mr. Pattullo is entitled to think what he likes about half-hearted resistance. So is an Eskimo.

"The body of Mr. Pattullo's article consisted of quotations from obscure generals, German restaurant waiters, hall porters, etc. I, too, could quote at random such people as a United States staff officer who told me that the only distinguished battle the United States engaged in was the St. Mihiel battle, in which all the actual work was done by British officers, and the artillery was British, and that the Argonne fighting was a gigantic tragedy of mismanagement and staff bungling. I don't believe all that. I'm just quoting as Mr. Pattullo did.

"But in conclusion I think every veteran association, patriotic organization and every institution with the good of the nation at heart should cable the British authorities to secure, before the Peace Conference breaks up, a definite statement of the exact and relative parts played by the different nations in the concluding battles of the war, signed by Foch, Haig and Pershing. The future peace and good-will of the world demands it."

In Memory of "Flu" Victims.

Plans have been completed in Brantford for a 40-bed isolation hospital, to cost $125,000, and the building will be erected in the form of a memorial to the names and orferlies who gave their lives in service in the influenza epidemic here last November. Both City and County Councils will be asked to provide the necessary funds.

BLANCHE ORTON MONOPOLIZES NEIL

CHAPTER XVII

At times I felt almost afraid of my love for Neil, so strongly had it always swayed me. Then again I was almost ashamed of loving him so much. This, when he seemed inanimate when with me—as often happened. Men are said to be selfish I had heard women talk as if selfishness were bre din men; and ineradicable; therefore, it must be accepted by women.

Neil was a composite. Selfish beyond anyone I ever had known in some ways; unselfish to a definite degree in others. And as his unselfish actions were invariably accompanied by passionate love-making and generosity toward me, I would forget the other side—the selfish side of his nature—for long periods at a time.

We had moved into the new apartment. I felt almost lost in the immense rooms. I had cared for the smaller one with a sort of joyous devotion and energy, because, as I told Neil, it was "my little house, my first home with him."

All thru my life at home with father and mother, there had been, aside from the necessary plainness of people in our circumstances, a note of simplicity. But Neil loved luxury. He often said laughingly: "I like the sensation of sinking down in things." So we had divans with big, fat cushions, and easy chairs that, once you were settled in them, you felt that never could you get out of them without assistance.

Our new home was exquisite in many ways. Yet to me it lacked the "homeiness" of the first little home. A fashionable and high-priced decorator had hung the walls with tapestries, or soft plushes. The furniture had been selected for the place it was intended to fill with the greatest care. But once put where it belonged it had to remain there. It was absolutely incongrous anywhere else.

Neil still looked worn and tired. He was always laboring under a sort of excitement, was restless, and "strung up" as father would have expressed it. I felt anxious about him, but when I spoke of what I called his "nervousness" he only laughed at me.

One day he came home in great glee. He and another man had decided to take boxing lessons. He explained his reasons.

"Everyone says I look tired. I think it is because I get no exercise. I'm sitting in an office three quarters of the time. One does get stale and soft. The softer one gets, the less is he inclined to make the effort reqired if he would harden his and she accused me of getting old So I made arrangements to box twice a week."

He had done it because of Blanche Orton's criticism. I had been telling him for weeks that he looked badly, and he simply laughed and dismissed it with a shrug. But the moment she spoke to him he had been awake to the necessity for action.

I think that jealousy of Blanche Orton wakened in me then. She, another man's wife, could influence a yhusband where I could not. I never had heard anything tangible in any way against Mrs. Orton; she was received everywhere. Yet I had seen a slight lifting of eyebrows, on occasion when she was more than usually frank in her actions. She was consummately clever. Very ingenious. Always she knew how to turn everything to her own advantage; to gloss over a too-pronounced speech and action so that it bore the look of innocence or ignorance.

That she was beautiful, I could no more deny than I could repudiate her fascinations. But I had thought nothing of her beauty as it might affect me, less of her fascinations, until Neil so frankly told me she had influenced him to take boxing lessons so that he would recover his looks.

We had a butler now as well as maids and the cook. Neil was planning to entertain extensively, that winter. When I asked him whom he desired to invite, he said:

"Business people mostly. It is necessary now-a-days, if one is to get on."

Mystery Port.

A mystery port on the east coast of England was one of the wonders of the war. Its name is now revealed as Richborough, near Sandwich. Here there is a wide stretch of marshland surrounding the mouth of the River Stour, and upon this has been built a town covering considerably over two thousand acres. From this place one and a quarter tons of shells were sent to the western front alone. This great new port is only outside Sandwich, one of the old Cinque ports famous in the days of Queen Elizabeth. The ancient town, where a few years ago the grass was growing in the streets has taken on a new lease of life.

Sniper Was Busy.

Private Lewis made down his bed in the corner of a building that was just in the edge of what would have been No Man's Land had the armistice not intervened.

"I sure didn't think I'd ever sleep here," he said to a comrade.

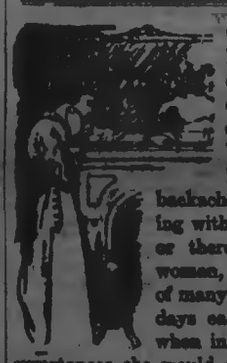
"Why, I was popping away at a sniper from that hole in the corner just a couple of days ago. Gee, but it seems queer!"

"And what was the sniper doing to you?" some one inquired from the other corner.

Well," said Lewis, "he was sure raisin' —— with my life insurance."

Miles of Cents.

Nearly two miles of cents raised among the office force of Thomas M. Rush, surveyor of the port of New York, were given to the Salvation Army as the Surveyors' Customs Welfare association's contribution toward happy holidays for the poor. A mile of cents was the goal set for the collection, about $220 being an estimate for that amount, but a sum of $1,500 was collected. The box containing the flood of copper required ten men to lift it.



Oh! Such Pain! dizzy—dragged-down With dull headache, backache — racking with pain here or there — poor woman, she's one of many. On those days each month, when in other circumstances she would go to bed, she must still be at the desk or counter, or struggle through the day as best she may with her housework or her family cares. Usually she who feels those dragging-down or dizzy symptoms, and other pains caused by womanly disease, can be cured by Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It cures the cause of these pains. Faded, jaded, tired, overworked, weak, nervous, delicate women are helped to strength and health by Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It makes weak women strong and sick women well. In liquid or tablets.

CHATHAM, ONT.—"Being a nurse I have had occasion to use 'Favorite Prescription' quite a lot. I recommend it to my patients and it has been a wonderful help to many of them. I never knew of a case where it failed. I have a patient who is using it now and is doing fine. I have taken it myself and got the very best results. I consider it the best medicine there is for women who are ailing."—Miss Emma Hoven, 18 Degen Street.

The Historical Bluebeard.

Bluebeard was a historical personage whose name was Gilles de Retz. He was nicknamed "Barbe Bleue," from having a beard of a bibe black shade Persuaded by an Italian alchemist that his strength could be restored by bathing in the blood of infants, he had many children entrapped for this hideous purpose into his castle of Chantuce, on the Loire, the ruins of which are still to be seen. At last the horrible suspicions of the country folk as to what was going on were proved, and the monster was burned at the stake at Nantes in 1440.

The Color of the Eye.

The color of the iris is not uniform in any eye. Some eyes have spots, others stripes, still others blotches of white, green, blue, yellow and black, and the eye takes its color from the predominance of one hue. An eye that is considered gray will often be composed of black and yellow. An eye that is thought to be brown will be very dark red with spots of yellow or blue.

IF BACK HURTS BEGIN ON SALTS

Flush the Kidneys at once when Backachy or Bladder bothers—

Meat forms uric acid.

No man or woman who eats meat regularly can make a mistake by flushing the kidneys occasionally, says a well-known authority. Meat forms uric acid which clogs the kidney pores so they sluggishly filter or strain only part of the waste and poisons from the blood, then you get sick Nearly all rheumatism, headaches, liver trouble, sleeplessness, constipation, dizziness, sleeplessness, bladder disorders come from sluggish kidneys.

The moment you feel a dull ache in the kidneys or your back hurts, or if the urine is cloudy, offensive, full of sediment irregular of passage or attended by a sensation of scalding, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any reliable pharmacy and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia and has been used for generations to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to activity, also to neutralize the acids in urine so it no longer causes irritation, thus ending bladder disorders

Jad Salts is inexpensive and cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which all regular meat eaters should take now and then to keep the kidneys clean and the blood pure, thereby avoiding serious kidney complications.

Record Apple Profit Seen.

The apple growers in four northwestern states will receive $21,000,000 for their 1918 apple crop, according to reports from those states. This is considerably the largest sum they have ever received for their apples and is not due to the large crop, as the 1918 crop was not a record crop. The larger returns from the Northwestern orchards the last year is due mainly to the exceptionally high prices that have been and are being received.

A fair estimate on the 1918 production in Washington, Oregon, Idaho and Montana puts the apple crop at 12,500 cars. A car of apples this year means 750 boxes, as against 600 in former years. This gives a total production of approximately 13,000,000 boxes.—Rural Life.

World's Wheat Consumption.

Per capita consumption of wheat for all purposes during the ten years, 1902-1911, averaged 5.20 bushels per year in France, 5.20 bushels in Belgium, 6.21 bushels in the United States, 6.21 bushels in Italy, 6.17 bushels in the United Kingdom, 4.60 bushels in Austria-Hungary, 4.20 bushels in the Netherlands, 3.80 bushels in Germany (rye consumption being high), 0.35 bushel in British India, and 0.32 bushel in Japan, rice consumption being high in the last two countries.

The Better Kind.

"Don't you think pilot gunboats when they go to sea in a fog ought to take signal guns?"

"I should think they could thread their way better with needle guns."

Tightwad.

"Why don't you ever call me up?"

"Since they put in metered service I'm not as liberal with my conversation as I used to be."

American Wheat Fields.

The wheat field of the United States in 1918 was four-fifths the size of the kingdom of Austria and more than eight times the size of Belgium.

DOG FED TRAPPED FRIEND

Massachusetts Farm Agent Tells Remarkable and Touching Story of Canine Affection.

In the Telegram, Worcester, Mass., John E. Dearth, field agent of Worcester county farm bureau, tells this story of the intelligence, sympathy, affection and clever understanding on the part of a dog, which came under his observation in a recent visit to Princeton:

A Princeton man who is fond of horses and dogs owns a finely bred hunting dog and he missed it for several days. He made inquiries all around, but no one had seen anything of the animal, and after a week the owner gave it up as lost. One of the farm hands was rambling through a chopped off wood lot a few days later and came upon the dog caught in a steel strap set for a skunk. Both fore paws were held in the jaws of the trap and the dog could not escape.

But in spite of its terrible predicament it was not emaciated, and although in pain had not gnawed its forelegs as many animals will do when they are in the torture of a steel trap. Strangest of all, scattered all around were bones and scraps of meat. Several ham bones and beef bones, with shreds of meat still clinging, were under the captive's nose, and it was chewing a bone when the farmer discovered its plight.

The trapped dog was carried home in the arms of the man who found it, and then, a little later, the owner went to the trap to see who or what brought those bones and scraps of dog food to the suffering captive. While he stood silently regarding the little heap of bones and scraps, another dog from his own kennels came through the brush with its jaws filled with chicken bones, meat trimmings and other gleanings from the kitchen garbage pail. The dog dropped its load close to the trap and sniffed around as if it were worried.

Calling the dog after him, the owner went back to where the injured dog was licking its wounds. When the other dog saw the rescued animal it barked, capered around, wagged its tail almost off, and then lost its own moist tongue to the healing process on its friend's sorely bruised paws.

Empires That Have Fallen.

Six empires have disappeared within the memory of living men, remarks a writer in the Brooklyn Eagle. Nearly 900,000,000 people, close to one-half the world's population, have been released from the shackles of imperialism since 1871. History has no parallel for such changes. In the retrospect of history 50 years are but a flash in the march of the ages and yet since 1871 the doctrine of republicanism has been embraced by half the world. Not all the preceding 2,000 years of mankind's march toward liberty records such progress.

Six emperors have laid down crown and scepter since Theodore Roosevelt became the exponent of the strenuous life. Three have died, one was murdered, the other two are in exile, while of the three still living, only one, the boy emperor of China, is still enjoying the luxuries that sweeten life for those in high places. It was Napoleon III who led this debacle of imperialism, Dom Pedro of Brazil was next and the last of the Manchu dynasty followed. The crash of the three remaining European empires, Russia, Austria-Hungary and Germany, resulted from the war for democracy. When it comes to mere kings, memory cannot recall them all, for they have tumbled everywhere from Hawaii to Portugal, from Saxony to Bulgaria.

Sea Constrictor Manset.

An officer of the fleet just returned from abroad says the queerest ship mascot he ever saw was a full-sized boa constrictor on H. M. S. Valiant, one of the dreadnaughts of the British grand fleet—long enough, he says, to use for a homeward-bound pennant, if slightly flattened out.

Careless Shampooing Spoils The Hair

If you want to keep your hair looking its best, be careful what you wash it with. Don't use prepared shampoos or anything else, that contains too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and ruins it.

The best thing for steady use is just ordinary mulsified cocoanut oil (which is pure and greaseless), and is better than anything else you can use.

One or two teaspoonfuls will cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in. It makes an abundance of rich creamy lather, which rinses out easily, removing every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves the scalp soft, and the hair fine and silky, bright, lustrous, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get mulsified cocoanut oil at any pharmacy, it's very cheap, and a few ounces will supply every member of the family for months.

War Fare Little Changed.

When General Pershing saw the dangerous salient in the German line, he put in the American army instantly, meeting the emergency as Caesar met the rush of the Nervii in that same northeast France. When he encountered the complicated fortifications, trenches, pits and tangles of the Argonne, he employed precisely the kind of tactics to win through that Xenophon employed at the River Centrites more than 2,000 years ago and the same that Caesar used in his triumphant campaign against Vercingetorix The details change, the principles remain. Napoleon summed up the unaltering art in 76 maxims, and the last of these declares that the only way to become a great captain is to study the campaigns of the great generals of all times.

War Horrors.

Two women were talking on a bus. "My hair becomes so gray during the war," said the first woman. "I hope it will be all right after awhile."

"I can understand," said the second woman. "It was enough to make any one's hair gray. I am sure you won't add any more gray hairs now that peace has come."

"Oh," said the first woman candidly, "it wasn't exactly because of the war that my hair became gray—that is, it wasn't because of worry; but, you know, the preparation I used to use—was imported—and during the war I couldn't get any of it. I had to let the gray hairs have their way—but now I hope it will be different," she ended brightly.

NO BOLSHEVISM FOR FREDERICTON

LABOUR COUNCIL DESTROYED LITERATURE AND SEEKS SENDERS.

Fredericton, N. B. July 15.—Bolsheviki literature similar to that which was distributed in Fredericton this week, was sent to the Fredericton Labor Council some time ago but was destroyed, according to a statement made by President Harry Ryan of the labor council.

That shipment of propaganda came into possession of James Cassidy, who is the financial secretary and was destroyed immediately, its nature was discovered, being burned, so as to prevent any chance of it getting abroad. This was some time ago and it was the only shipment of propaganda known by President Ryan to have come addressed to any official of the labor council.

At the monthly meeting of the Labor Council which was held last night several speakers denounced the distribution of such literature and otherwise spreading of the propaganda of Bolshevism and it is said that the Labor Council would be represented in the Peace Day celebration parade here on July 19, when banners would be displayed asserting that the Fredericton Labor Council has no use for Bolshevism and does not stand for its principles.

"If the Fredericton Labor Council is able to ascertin who was responsible for th edistribution of the Bolshevism literature in Fredericton this week, we will immediately give the information to the proper authorities," declared President Ryan today. "Our organization stands ready to do anything within its power to prevent Bolshevism from getting a foothold in this part of the country."

MR. ED. HANRAHAN'S SUCCESS IN MONTREAL

The many friends of Mr. Ed. Hanrahan will be pleased to learn that his dramatic and vocal talents have already been widely appreciated in Montreal. He made a fine success of his portrayal of the role of Judas in Father Benson's Passion play, "The Upper Room." Six performances were given to large audiences, and Mr. Hanrahan was warmly congratulated for the ability he brought to his part. He has sung at a number of concerts, more recently at the Chateau Frontenac, Quebec, and at the Church of St. Anne de Beaupre. Besides, he frequently sings solos with the choir of St. Patrick's Church.

DAVID S. KIDD BRYNE IS STILL CHASING THE ELUSIVE DOLLAR

THE REV. D. S. K. BRYNE OFF TO THE UNITED STATES TO COMPLETE DETAILS IN CONNECTION WITH THE FINAL TRANSFER OF THE GREAT ESTATE WILLED TO HIM FOR RESCUE OF A MILLIONAIRE'S DAUGHTER—WELL KNOWN IN PETERBORO.

(Montreal Herald)

"A Ten Million Dollar Preacher" that is the way in which the Rev. D. S. K. Bryne, of the Christion Workers Congregational Church at Victory Hall, 319 University street, is described Bryne, formerly resided at Bewdley in the Rice Lake district. He is well known in Peterboro.

Mr. Bryne, the story of whose rescue in 1907 of Miss Lucy Bryne from white slavery, daughter of the late millionaire of Chicago, has attracted continental attention during the last decade, is teaching, he says, the old Orthodox Doctrine with communion every Sunday evening. He was ordained on September 29, 1917, and a register was granted him for keeping records of marriages, deaths and baptisms. His church was incorporated in the same year. During the past eighteen months he has been invaluable in rescuing from the underworld over two hundred people between the ages of 14 and 16 years.

Plans Great Temple

A great temple is planned for erection in Toronto at an early date and if Montreal will support him he says, the same will be built in this city. The story that he has to tell is a simple one. In September 1908 he entered a saloon under the impression that it was a real estate office and there he met a girl. He attempted to show her the error of her way and then left and went to his hotel across the street. In turning around the girl was beside him with tears streaming down her face. "You have shown me the light; I am going back to my mother. I will never sin again." She obtained the name of her rescuer, who at that time was going by his baptismal name of David Kidd.

The girl kept her promise and later he received letters from the father who resided in Florida, and also held vast properties in Australia, Brazil and Mexico, and was adopted by Mr. Bryne with the provisory that his name should be added to Mr. Kidd's. "I was to share his estate," said Mr. Bryne, with his only child, she has since died."

Will Be Probated

The will has been probated before Judge B. B. Johnson, in Jasper, Hanover County, Florida. Proceedings began on the 4th day of April last and ended on the 29th day of that month. It was confirmed by the Secretary of State for Florida, the Hon. H. K. Crawford. In connection with it 107 decuments were filed. It is valued at over ten million dollars with Mr. Bryne as sole beneficiery. He has just recently concluded all the technical details in connection with the large estate and has returned to Montreal to carry on the rescue mission work to which he has dedicated his life.

Work for Montreal

He is planning to erect a branch memorial institute in Montreal of rescue work in connection with the girl outcasts of society giving $350,000 for this erection and endowment. The plan of the institute is as follows: a church auditorium, a hospital, industrial department and a rescue institute combined with a wing for living accomodation for the staff. $1,000,580 will be set aside for the erection and endowment of the Toronto Memorial Building, another $2,000,000 will be divided between Montreal, Detroit and Chicago for similar purposes. A number of advisorys representing the various branches of the church will be appointed and these will keep in touch with doctors and [illegible]s throughout Canada who may be able to give any information relating to female outcasts of society in their district.

Pay While Inmates

During the time they remain as inmates of th ehome to be established, they will receive board and a salary and an endeavor will be made to win them from the evil paths that they have chosen. When their training is complete and they leave the institute 25 per cent. of th proceeds of their work will be given them as a fund with which to start their new career.

These are plans for the future, but in the meantime Victory Hall will work with its orthodox doctrine, its weekly communion and its baotism by immersion, prayer for the sick and pentecostal power is being carried on. Mr. Bryne left Montreal yesterday for [illegible] to close up the estate [illegible] of the deed.

WILL ENGAGE IN "DUEL WITH GERMS"

Toronto Doctor Issues Challenge to Show That Disease Not So Contracted.

ST. PAUL, July 15.—Temporarily, at least, Dr. H. N. Zettel, St. Paul, will not be accepted for the proposed "duel with germs," in an attempt to prove that germs do not cause disease.

This was the edict of Dr. H. W. Hill, Executive Secretary of the Minnesota Public Health Association Dr. Zettel offered himself as substitute for Dr. J. B. Fraser of Toronto in the proposed test.

"I will not consider Dr. Zettel's offer until I hear definitely from Dr. Fraser," Dr. Hill said. "The original challenge was issued to Dr. Fraser, and if he accepts there are a multitude of details to be worked out that may take a month."

Disinterested physicians will examine each of the men to determine if they are immune to certain diseases. Tests will then be made to determine what disease both will react to in nearly the same manner. The germs of that disease will then be made into a culture and the culture injected, or otherwise introduced, into the bodies of both men. Dr. Hill will then use an anti-toxin, while Dr. Fraser is expected to rely on what he terms "natural and therapeutics"— fresh air, exercise and selected foods, to throw off the disease.

PETERBOROUGH TO HAVE FIRST CHANCE

IN THE FINANCIAL DEVELOPMENT OF THE NEW DUSTLESS SWEEPER —PROPERTY OWNERS AND WAGE-EARNERS BUYING STOCK.

Satisfaction with the business done in the war-troubled years just closing—strong faith and optimism as to the business outlook for 1919-20—these are the dominant notes in the minds of men who manufacture mechanical equipment of various descriptions. They are not retrenching in plans for production, but are going ahead confidently expecting that the demand for their products will be forthcoming.

Here in Peterborough the spirit of optimism is especially strong with the promoters of the Dominion Dustless Sweeper Company Limited The officials of this company look forward to a year of great accomplishment. The floating of the Company so far may be safely considered as a barometer reflecting a successful outlook for their undertaking. The war halted the progress and activities of their ability, but all mechanical difficulties have now been overcome, and the securing of sufficient stock for working capital alone remains.

Home products should get the first chance, and Peterborough investors are receiving first choice in securing the available stock in this company.

That's the spirit that should characterize all home enterprise,—the spirit it should help make Peterborough city the busiest town in Midland Ontario. Peterborough citizens should have a partnership in all first-class enterprises eminating for Peterborough and should be linked up with all that goes to promote its growth and prosperity.

In this country almost every article known to commence and employed as a necessity or convenience of civilized life is made in Canadian factories by Canadian workmen. Manufacture in the Dominion exhausts the list of articles for use, for comfort, for labor saving as well as for sanitary improvements.

Everything points to a great expansion of industrial life and with increased breadth of vision for future prosperity comes the urge for actual speculation. Investors are hard at work—even in these too troublous times the experts have been busy perfecting their inventions to develop machines ready for the capitalists to take over and place upon the market.

As an evidence of the public confidence, the Dominion Dustless Sweeper Company, Limited, are offering subject to prior sale, a limited amount of its stock as par value. The company has no "watered" stock—no "preferred" stock— and the financing arranged for will easily provide for future development.

A conservative estimate of the number of the Sweepers machines that could now be placed suggest a book value for the stock that could not be shown by some of the most successful undertakings that have been offered to the public.

This stock, freed from all objectionable features, is recommended as Peterborough investors as a speculation removed from any of the risks of a pioneering business. With a financially interested management whose proven capabilities and integrity are within the knowledge of our citizens, affords a good guarantee that its affairs will be conducted and its ability developed in the best interests of the shareholders.

Already Peterborough citizens have shown their confidence in the future of the new local undertaking convinced as they have been of its practicability as a perfect dustless street cleaner. It is hoped that the bulk of the stock instead of having to go abroad, will find its way into the hands of our public spirited citizens, both of the city and county.

Keep the dollar playing in our own front yard—it will only be a question of a short time until it will be knocking at the front door for admittance.

IN FAVOUR OF PEACE HOLIDAY

The attached letters are reproduced from a Hamilton paper at the request of local merchants who oppose the move to remain open on Peace Day, Saturday, July 19th. Among those who were present at the meeting of the local Retail Merchants Association and who urged that Saturday be observed as a public holiday in accordance with "the highest authority and the greatest motive" were Mr. Alexander Gibson and Mr. M. J. Maher of "Oak Hall". The letters follow:—

THE PEACE HOLIDAY

To the Editor: Since my return from France last November, I have witnessed many strange characteristics among a certain class of people in Hamilton. For one thing, the cold-blooded attitude of the average slacker and profiteer towards the soldiers of the empire, who have returned from a veritable hell on earth Many of these eager parasites exploit the returned men and all he stands for for personal profit; but the strangest part of it all is the aversion shown on more than one occasion in the recent past of our patriotic business men of this city. They have abused the mayor when he proclaimed aholiday because they fear a monetary loss. I wonder how much money we fellows of the C.E.F. lost during our service at the front during the past four years. We did not fight for wages. The wages paid in this country were fairly good during the war; what about the countless thousands who lie forever in Flanders, who will never earn again The 19th day of this month was decreed a holiday by the government of this country to celebrate a victorious and a just peace. The business men of this or any other city should thank God that they have an opportunity to see a day like this, regardless of his position in the week or pretended loss to themselves. There was a time when they had no guarantee but that th Hun would soon control this fair Dominion. They have little respect for us men who were the means of keeping the Hun where he is to-day. The sincerest appreciation of their patriotism and respect for the soldiers and their country and themselves would be to hold this holiday on Saturday and not measure loyalty in dollars and cents. It is time that the patriotism of these jingoes should be shown in other ways than by blatant exploitation of all that the empire stands for this day of days.

Principle before gold should be our motto.

F. C. PRESNAIL,
M. M. and bar, ex-19th battalion, C.E.F., Hess street, city.

PEACE CELEBRATION

To the Editor: I read with interest the letter of my friend F. C. Presnail and should like to endorse his statements. Since my return to my native city of Hamilton, I have noticed a considerable change.

We come back here, after an absence of four years and it seems to me that the majority of people are indifferent as to whether we came home or stayed out yonder.

I was more than surprised when picking up the Spectator a few nights ago to read some comments of the business men of Hamilton in regard to the 19th being kept as a holiday.

They claim it will entail to them financial loss. What would have happened to them if the hordes of huns had swept across our fair continent and left it in the same condition as she did Belgium and France?

Now, take our own cases, for instance, We left our homes and the pleasures of being with our loved ones, and bade farewell to our home towns.

Did we kick about financial loss and inconvenience which has occurred during our absence You never have heard a kick, but yet because of six hours' financial loss to the big business men, the whole city proposes to be in an uproar.

Furthermore ,one thing I have noticed that these slackers who never did don the uniform, but stayed at home, hiding behind their mother' aprons, are now driving around in their own cars ,on the money they have earned out of the war. Now we are back, what do we find? We cannot find a home unless we buy one, prices of food ,etc., are gone up and we are expected to live on almost the same money that we had in 1914, and nothing is said about the advances which have occurred between that year and now.

I have always prided myself on being a true patriot, but sometimes I wonder is it worth the while, and when I look around and see things I sometimes wish I had remained at home.

In conclusion, Mr. Editor, I hope the merchants of Hamilton will honor the day and the occasion, as fixed by those in power and let Hamilton stand out amongst the cities of Canada in celebrating peace, as it should be celebrated, and let every soldier who has done his bit be given the day as his own, as a thanksgiving to him also, for the part he played.

WANT DAYLIGHT SAVING BILL REPEALED

(United Press.)

WASHINGTON, July 16.—Another effort to repeal the daylight saving law will be made the Sentae and House leaders have cited.

The House Agricultural committee was to be asked to-day by Chairman Hawsen to report out the Agricultural Appopriation Bill ,with the rider repealing the daylight saving law, despite the fact that the South ordered the rider stricken out when it sustained the President's vote of the bill because of the daylight saving repeal.

EDWARD S. ABELES DEAD

Actor Who Won Much Success in "Brewster's Millions"

New York—Edward S. Abeles, the actor, died at the McMillion Hospital after a three weeks' illness of pneumonia, at the age of 49. His home was at Freeport, L. I. His last engagement was with the musical comedy "Oh, Lady, Lady."

He was gorn in St. Louis, studied law and practiced for a short time. He then tried journalism, but gave it up and made his first appearance on the stage in "Alabama," at Palmer's Theatre in 1891. Since then he had played important parts in many comedies, his greatest success being in "Brewster's Millions," in which he played Monty Brewster.

OXFORD WINS ON CREASE

Defeats Cambridge in Classic of English Cricket Season

London, July 15.—Oxford beat Cabbridge at Lord's by 45 runs in the first big classic of the English cricket season. The rival universities met for the first time since 1914. A large and fashionable crowd was attracted to the famous inclosure.

Oxford batted first and ran up the large score of 387, Howell carrying off the batting honors with the grand innings of 170. Cambridge responded with 280. With a lead of 107, the Dark Blues again took the crease, but were dismissed for 168, which left Cambridge 276 to win. The Cantabs put up a game fight, but could get together only 230.

SOLDIERS WERE CRUELLY TREATED

ONE AMERICAN SOLDIER COMMITTED SUICIDE IN PRISON CAMP.

(United Press.)

WASHINGTON, July 16. — The charges brought by me last Saturday of cruelty to American soldiers in France, caught in the web of the Paris-American military police, have been more than proved by testimony of witnesses called by the special committee of the House, Representative Dallinger, of Massachusetts, said today.

Several former soldiers who had been confined in prison camps near Paris, and in what was called "bastile" in Paris, told the committee about instances of cruel treatment.

That the striking of prisoners by sergeants was not uncommon, was the assertion of Paul Boggs, 12th Telegraph Battalion, who declared he had seen as many as fifty men beaten during his eleven days at the prison camp, No. 2, near Paris.

One soldier committed suicide because of the abuse he received, he said.

The men were deprived of all tobacco and were not allowed to smoke, Boggs told the committee. He described the camp as built for 800 men and said that into this space 1,200 had been crowded. Before he left, the men were starving to death and dug in swill barrels for ate potato peelings with relish, he testified.

LOG MOVEMENT NEAR FOOT OF LAKE ST. NARROWS THE BEACH

BOTTOM MUST BE MADE SAFE FOR WADERS ALONG THE SHORE.

The Lake street bathing beach needs finishing touches. After spending almost $1600 on the dresing quarters and the approach, the city should clear the bottom in the wading strip of cans, bottles and other refuse which, it is stated, was dumped into the lake at this place.

Yesterday's accident to Amos Feeley in which his knee cap was severely cut on a tin can, emphasizes the necessity of making the beach safe for the children who play in the shallow water along the shore. Moreover the Examiner was informed that until yesterday the popular part of the swimming [illegible] was immediately above the foot of Lake street. Yesterday a number of logs that had been lying [illegible] were floated up above adjoining the McDonald property, and considerable [illegible] what the [illegible]

The [illegible] is wide enough, and should be [illegible] oughly satisfatcory if the bottom were raked clear and levelled. Weeds and debris five or six feet out from the water's edge present a danger that will nullify the work of the Council and the Playgrounds Association. There has been considerable criticism that the beach was thrown open to the public with an implied assurance of security, while four accidents yesterday was positive proof that the place is decidedly dangerous for waders until the refuse is raked out.

HOLIDAY DOES NOT REST WITH MAYOR

EXPLANATION OF A POINT THAT HAS BEEN MISCONSTRUED.

There has been some opinion expressed on the street that there will be no holiday in Peterboro because Mayor Duncan would not officially declare it. This is an entirely erroneous idea. The council did decide not to assume any leadership in the celebration of the peace holiday, but neither the Mayor nor the Council presumed to speak in opposition or even in confirmation of the Government's proclamation. The authority that declared Saturday a national holiday comes from the highest source in the nation. This fact is thoroughly understood by the Mayor and if the citizens observe the holiday they will simply be recognizing the proclamation which applies to the whole Empire. Factories, stores and other industries that decide to continue business on Saturday are following their own will, and not the leadership or dictum of the Council.

THE HUNTER STREET CAMPAIGN

That there is a wide interest in the teachings concerning the second coming of Christ was indicated by the large attendance at the Union Evangelistic Campaign meeting in the big tent on Hunter street last evening, it having been announced that Evangelist Kennedy was to speak on this subject. The attendance was the largest of any week night meeting since the campaign started a month ago, and practically all present remained until the meeting was over after ten o'clock.

Mr. Kennedy made it clear from the outset that he has no sympathy with those who endeavour to set a date for the second coming of Christ as has often been done. He mentioned particularly such teachings as those of the late Pastor Russell, as well as earlier writers on this subject. It was through the scoffing of an infidel and a higher critic that he himself was led to believe in the second coming. For many years Mr. Kennedy was strongly opposed to this teaching. Years ago he took a course of study in the Moody Bible Institute and was about the only student who did not accept this teaching. For years after that while engaged in evangelistic work, he opposed the teaching and never referred to it, except to belittle it. On one occasion he made assertion at a meeting that he believed that the Bible was the Word of God from cover to cover and that he accepted every statement in it. An infidel minister, who heard him make the statement challenged him on it by stating that he could not believe everything in the Scriptures without believing in the second coming of Christ because the Scriptures clearly taught that Christ was to return. Coming from such a source this set him thinking. In the spring of 1914 he attended a great prophetic conference at Chicago where day after day he heard noted students discuss Bible teachings concerning the second coming. He was amazed at their knowledge of the Scriptures and by the fact that they stated that the world was on the verge of the greatest war and time of trouble ever known. A few months later when the great world war broke out in Europe, on looking back he found that practically all the things which these men had stated from the Scriptures would take place had taken place. Thus he was led to study the subject more fully and finally to accept it.

For a long time Mr. Kennedy hesitated to preach on the second coming but finally he felt led to do so and asked God if He approved of his using the message to grant numerous conversions because of it. The first night he preached on it there were 13 conversions and ever since then he has found it one of his most effective messages to the unconverted. If more ministers would discuss this and kindred subjects, Mr. Kennedy said, he was satisfied there would be less "isms" and false sects to contend with today than there are. These false sects are flourishing because ministers are failing to proclaim the whole Word of God.

JOHN J. PERSHING IN LONDON TO-DAY

A STRENUOUS PROGRAMME FOR THE AMERICAN GENERAL.

(United Press.)

LONDON, July 16.—General John J. Pershing, as the guest of Great Britain, undertook to-day to carry out a strenuous programme arranged in his honour.

American Ambassador Davis was to present the American commander to a number of distinguished British officials, including Winston Churchill, War Secretary, Viscount Peel, Under Secretary for War, and Lord Milner, Colonial Secretary.

Luncheon has been arranged for him by the American Luncheon Club. In the afternoon he was to be a guest at the King's garden party. At night he had been invited to attend a British official dinner at the Charlton Hotel, where the General and his staff are stopping.

Welcoming General Pershing to London, the Daily Mail said to-day: "We do not forget what we owe the United States, General Pershing and his men in the dark hours of 1918, When the German legions were driving towards Paris, General Pershing said to Marshal Foch: "Here are our men, trained and untrained, take them and use them." This magnificent gesture of sacrifice restored confidence from that time on.

"At Chateau Thierry and St. Mihel, and in the Argonne, the Americans played the essential part in the defeat of the enemy. Their fine courage, splendid comradeship and boundless fresh reserves were precious assets."

POLICE CLASH WITH SEAMEN IN NEW YORK

(United Press.)

NEW YORK, July 16.— Steamship piers along the both river fronts were guarded by additional police to-day to prevent a possible repetition of the demonstration by striking seamen.

About two hundred visited the Ward Line pier in Brooklyn at midnight and forcibly removed forty members of the crew from a vessel. They were met by a score of policemen and dispersed after night sticks had been freely used.

Earlier in the night nearly one thousand firemen, oilers and water tenders paraded along South street visiting vessels on which it was reported strike breakers were at work. Issuance of an order for a general walkout by the Marine Firemen, Water Tenders and Oilers' Union has increased the scope of the strike, which, it is believed, may spread to ocean steamship lines.

Freight was piling up at wharves and at terminals with no relief in sight.

Efforts were being made to induce Longshoremen to walk out, but officials of that Union refused to say what action they intend to take.

A Crying Need.

"There ort to be a school here for training young footpads," said Sandstorm Smith, the well-known cattle baron of Rampage, Okla., who is temporarily in Kansas City's midst. "After having grown accustomed to the regular fashions in such functions it pesters me to be fooled with by ignorant amateurs. Half of the time, with their jiggering and stuttering, I don't know whether they are trying to hold me up or act out some sort of a charade."—Kansas City Star.

Hotels That Pay Their Guests.

A newspaper reports that the hotel proprietors in Prague, Bohemia, have "cut their rates more than 100 per cent." From a financial point of view one might "rather live in Bohemia than in any other land."—Boston Transcript.

THE CELEBRATION ON CIVIC HOLIDAY

AUGUST 11TH WILL BE A FREE AND HAPPY DAY FOR ALL

The Peterborough Peace celebration on the Civic Holiday, 11th August, is to be a free and happy day from early morn till midnight, for all the people of the city.

The famed carnivals of Venice and Orleans are to have their rivals in Peterborough.

A big central committee was organised last night at the Board of Trade Rooms to begin work at once. Among those present and enlisted in the service were B. F. Ackerman, Peter P. Weatbye, Robert M. Beach, Arch. Barbeau, Dr. G. S. Cameron, Dr. E. H. Wood, C. Thornton, Jake Solomon, C. R. Banks, Thomas Barrie, G. O. Cameron, Charles S. Stapleton, Roland Glover, W. J. Byers, R. C. Breckenridge, Rev. F. A. Mallott, F. D. Kerr, Chris. Graham, R. Denne, George H. Groux, Bert C. Herridge, Wm. A. Logan, W. H. Lytle, Dr. E. E. Harvey, J. A. McKone, Dr. J. B. Mann, W. Merrell, H. A. Perry, G. Read Munro, Col. W. Miller, Herb. Martin, Dr. Middleton, J. E. Sullivan, H. J. Staunton, R. H. Turner, J. Cox, Russel V. Copping, Dr. McPherson, Dr. Young, Alexander McGregor, R. J. Soden, Frank Whitehouse, W. R. Breyfogle, W. S. Campbell, Robert S. Cotton, H. E. Hodgens, L. J. Picard, E. F. Mason, Alexander Sharpe, John Crane, Sergt. Nicholls, E. R. Wilson, Sam Houlihan, Thos. Hooper, J. T. O'Connell, Fred Roy, J. H. Meyers, George Lynch, T. E. Curvis, Frank Clark, John Primeau.

Mr. Thomas Barrie occupied the chair, and was made the permanent chairman of the committee. Mr. J. E. Sullivan, cashier of the Quaker Oats Company, was elected secretary-treasurer. An executive or governing committee was appointed of W. R. Breyfogle, John McNab, W. S. Campbell, Joseph Picard, Robert S. Cotton and H. E. Hodgens. Mr. Barrie being added to the committee as chairman.

Public Address.

The day will be heralded in by steam trumpets and bells. At ten o'clock the pupils of all the schools will be assembled to march together in the colours of the Union Jack, to be later massed in flag form, singing the songs of the Empire and Dominion.

The Great War Veterans are to march, and with them will be the boys who have returned with their physical scars and marks of war and with their medals of honourable service. All will be in uniform.

The Red Cross and all of the relief and aid societies, active during the war, are to be invited to participate, and it was suggested that the Red Cross might be granted a special privilege in the carnival plans.

A public address will be made to the people at the close of the morning's ceremonies.

Shortly after noon, the great parade, with floats built upon trucks, and decorated motor cars, will pass through the streets to the Exhibition Grounds. The floats will represent industry and trade, and many will add to merrymaking and jollity.

It is believed that the employees of the principal factories will prepare special floats. There may be also a marching unit, to include all the employees and employers in the city. Class influence or control of the programme is to be absolutely cut out, and the idea of citizenship featured. The purpose is to make the day one of serious memory and happy rejoicing for the whole people of the city. Everybody is asked to help.

In the afternoon the Industrial Fair Association will put on a fine programme of sports and attractions, and in the evening fireworks.

The great feature of the day will be an evening carnival to which everybody will be welcome. The probability is that a special section of the city will be set aside for dancing and merrymaking.

This evening the committee is to meet in the Board of Trade Rooms to select other committees and organise the work.

CZAR TO LIVE IN LEGEND

World May Look for All Sorts of Tales Concerning Autocrat of All the Russias.

The czar of Russia is lost in legend. Unless he shall again appear definitely in the flesh, so that his identity may be positively established before all the world, the question of his fate will be always disputed. He will take his place in the list with the lost dauphin of France, who is supposed to have lived a quiet life in America after being spirited away, and with "John Ord," a brother of Frank Jesse, who renounced his title and sailed away in a vessel reported lost with all hands, but who is supposed to be living incognito on an obscure, palm-shaded island, far from the reach of the turmoil that marked the last days of the Hapsburg court.

As a result of the conflicting stories now being circulated regarding the czar, the public mind is already divided as to whether a bolshevik bullet really ended his life or whether the Count Tatishev, the emperor's personal military attache, with a supreme devotion to duty, died in his master's stead. Only the clearing up of the mystery can prevent the reports years hence that in the death of some obscure old man of foreign appearance the end has finally come to him who was once Autocrat of All the Russias.

Roosevelt and the Jews.

At Professor Kano's jiu jitsu academy in Tokyo many years later I met Professor Yamashita, who had taught the Japanese art to President Roosevelt in Washington three times a week for three years.

The president, he said, was his best pupil, but also his most dangerous. "Very heavy, very strong, very impetuous, he always attacked as if he was going to kill me. Oh, many bruises, much worry, great trouble, I assure you.

"I could not tell him. It is not for jiu jitsu to complain, but when he would get me almost killed my trouble was to save my life without hurting him. No matter how madly he attacked I could not hurt. I could not kill the president of the United States. That was my point of honor."—J. I. C. Clark, in New York Evening Post.

Airplane Freight Carrier.

The aeroplane has proved its supremacy as a carrier of mails; and in the Americas, where most of the army's flying fields were laid out, airplanes are used daily for all-round utility business. A recent report from a Texas field tells of a pilot flying 120 miles from a practice field to the wing headquarters and carrying as a passenger a watchman who had fallen asleep on duty. Upon his return trip to the camp he carried $8,000 in pay vouchers, 100 pounds of bread, four airplane wheels, landing gear and struts. In addition he tucked in a large bundle of papers and magazines and a pouch full of mail.—Hart M. Findley in Red Cross Magazine.

Bagpipes in Brussels.

The Daily Telegraph in its account of the entry into Brussels of King Albert says: The Yanks came first in the military cortege which followed the royal party. Then came the French. An interval of 200 yards, and a silence, and then a sound strange to the Brussels, the skirl of bagpipes blown by thirty Highlanders leading the way for a company of their kilted comrades. The Scotsman, let it be recorded, had the success d'estime of the parade. How the ladies waved their handkerchiefs as the Highlanders swung past, and how everybody voiced his and her admiration for these stalwart men.

VETERANS THREATEN ... NIT TO GREET PRINCE

London, Ont., July 16.—Now the Prince of Wales is being drawn into the argument over the imprisonment of five London war veterans for offences against the Ontario Temperance Act. The men are serving terms at the County Jail for drinking, and are anxious to be liberated in time to participate in next Saturday's Peace demonstration.

The Great War Veterans' Association announced that the returned soldiers would tak eno part in the proceedings, if their comrades were left in the cells. To-day they added that if pardon is not granted by Friday night the members of the G. W. V. A. will refrain from taking part in the reception to be tendered the Heir to the Throne when he comes to London nx October.

There is, however, reason to believe that the soldiers will be dismissed from the jail in ample time to take part in the Peace celebration.

BALLET STAR RUNS AWAY

Lopokova, Now a London Favorite Quits Diaghilev Season

London, June 15.—London was treated to another sensation owing to the disappearance of Lylia Lopokova, the principal woman dancer of the Russian ballet, which has been drawing all the town to the Alhambra.

Lopokova, who is the wife of Barocki, business manager and agent of Sergei Diaghilev, director of Impresario for last night's performance not turn up for the latest production, the ballet's her at the Savoy and inquiries for The Alhambra in the evening received a note from Barocki, saying he was going to the Continent, but giving no further information. Lopokova had been made the idol of the London smart set, and had a special train of distinguished admirers.

The ballet's season here was to close on July 30, after which it was arranged to go to Paris, where 1,000,000 francs was to be paid for a season of fifteen weeks.

Negro Soldier Tells Amusing Story of His Game of Leap Frog "All Over France."

The inferno of battle [illegible] evoked the religious fervor of negro troops, which is never far from the surface, and this aspect of the fighting still occupies a prominent place in the recollection of wounded negro soldiers returning to this country.

"When Fritz spotted us hell bus' wide open an' us'n all dem enregiment fellers into ragin' prayuh meeting," said a sergeant. "Den we onlimbah on quite ol' Satan wid de swo'd o' Gideon; dem Fritzies, dey jes' skedaddle ev'y which ways."

Private Charles Walker of the Five Hundred and Seventieth infantry, a cited for his devotion to duty in carrying messages under fire when all the other runners of his outfit had been killed or wounded.

"I jes' keep a-prayin' an' a-runnin' an' a-dodgin'," he said, "an' the Lawd sho' keep wid me, but I don't see how he done it. I jes' naginatly played hide an' seek, an leap frog wid shells all ovah France, I reckon.

"But w'en de biggest of all come a-whoopin' along I was right out in de open an' no shell hole nigh. Honest to goodness, hit was as big as me an' a dern sight me' sure whonk hit was gwine. I hop like a rabbit an' fairly cuddle de yeth—rather I headed quickah'n dat ef' shell did.

Tobacco.

Tobaccos are said to have a remarkable effect on the voice. One famous singer never cared to smell a rose; he said the perfume of a bouquet of flowers made his throat "off singing for a week." In several cases well-known singers have suffered from the odor of tobaccos, and a famous opera singer declares that the odor from a single oil vitiates makes his voice "quite husky."

VETERANS HELPLESS IN FACE OF GOOD PITCHING OF KIRN AND MULHERN

ORIENTALS' TWIRLERS HELD THE TAIL-ENDERS TO TWO SINGLES, ONLY ONE MAN GETTING TO THIRD BASE—ORIENTALS HAMMER BALL HARD AND WIN EASILY BY 11 RUNS TO 1 IN CITY LEAGUE SERIES.

The Orientals worked both their pitchers against the War Veterans last night and as Kirn and Mulhern were both in great form, the G.W.V.A.'s winning streak was cut short with one game, the Orientals winning without trouble by 11 runs to 1. Only three of them were retired on the runways, only one getting as far as third. Kirn, who pitched the first six innings, allowed only one hit, a single by Murphy on the first ball pitched, while Mulhern worked the last three sessions and allowed only a scratch single, a rap through the box by Wade. The fine work of the Oriental box men and the fine hitting of the Orientals, who collected fifteen safe swats throughout the engagement, were features. The winners fielded in good style, McLeod at second handling eight chances without a slip.

Neither Wade or Daynard, who did the heaving for the Vets, was a mystery to the Orientals, and in addition the tail-enders fielded sloppily.

The G.W.V.A. were the first to score. Murphy rapped the first ball past third for a single and stole second, going to third on Cupoli's out, Murray to Phelan. Daynard lined one into Murray's hands, and in his anxiety to retire the side with a double play the third baseman muffed the ball and Murphy scored. Wade hoisted to McLeod, who completed a double by tagging Daynard.

The Orientals took the lead in the third. Head led off with a single past second, stole second and went to third on a passed ball. Murray lifted to Murphy. Cherrett hit to Kano, and Head was out at the plate. Cherrett stole second. Clancy hit to Legros, who fumbled, giving the batter a life, and Cherrett came home. Clancy scored when Foley fumbled McLeod's grounder, and Kano threw high to the plate. Heenan rolled to Wade for the third out.

In the fifth Cherrett beat out a bunt and took second on Wade's bad throw. Clancy doubled to left centre to score Cherrett. Clancy stole third as McLeod fanned, and scored on Heenan's infield out. Kirn singled through short and Phelan hit safely past Foley. McCarney beat out a hit to second. Head singled through short, scoring Kirn and Phelan. Murray rolled to Foley.

With Daynard on the slab, the Orientals got three more in the sixth. Cherrett led off with a double. Clancy rolled to Daynard. Cherrett scored on McLeod's sacrifice tap which Foley fumbled, the batter getting a life. Heenan walked. Kirn's fly to Cobb, which the left fielder dropped, scored McLeod. Heenan came home on Phelan's infield out and McCarney fanned.

In the seventh a pass to Head, a stolen base, Murray's sacrifice and a passed ball gave the Orientals another run. While they got their last in the ninth when Murray was hit and scored on Mulhern's long double to left.

After the first innings the Veterans had few chances to score. Kano got a life on Murray's error in the second, but was snuffed out on Head's good throw when he tried to steal. None of the Veterans saw first base again until Wade singled with two out in the seventh. Mulhern immediately picked him off first base. Legros walked with two out in the eighth and went to second on a balk, but died there, and in the ninth the losers went out in order.

"CANADA'S GOLGOTHA"

Official German Protest Against Capt. Wood's Bas Relief.

The attention of the Canadian authorities has been directed to a report transmitted through wireless stations of the German Government of an interview given out by the Under-Secretary of State of the German Foreign Office complaining of the exhibition of a bas-relief by Capt. Derwent Wood, A.R.A., and entitled "Canada's Golgotha," in a recent exhibition of Canadian war paintings and sculpture at Burlington House, says the London Morning Post.

The bas-relief in question represented part of a barn in ruins, with a Canadian soldier crucified to the framework or door.

As the interview mentioned above claims that the Canadian Government has lent official sanction to what is termed in the interview an "invented outrage," the Ministry of Overseas Military Forces of Canada has authorized the following statement to be published:—

The bas-relief in question was executed entirely on his own initiative and without any suggestion, so far as is known, from any Canadian source, by Capt. Derwent Wood, an Associate of the Royal Academy, who is not a Canadian citizen and does not hold a commission in the Canadian army.

Capt. Derwent Wood offered the bas-relief to the trustees of the Canadian War Memorials Fund, which is a voluntary organization supported by private subscription, and to which are from time to time allotted the proceeds of the sale and exhibition of certain Canadian official photographs and paintings. The trustees of the above fund on their own responsibility purchased this bas-relief, and it is understood have expressed their intention to offer it and other works of art purchased by or presented to them to the Government of Canada under certain conditions.

This bas-relief was exhibited recently in London, together with other paintings and works of art, the property of the Canadian War Memorials Fund, at an exhibition arranged by the trustees of that fund, who used for that purpose the facilities of the Canadian War Records Office. The proceeds of this and of similar exhibitions become the property of the fund.

Although the Canadian Government has not as yet signified its intention of accepting the bas-relief for any national purpose, certain investigations have been made as to the truth of the incident it purports to portray, and a considerable amount of evidence has been and is being collected with regard to this question. Included in the evidence so far in the possession of the Canadian Government are sworn statements by soldiers of the best character serving both with the Canadian and Imperial forces who were unknown to one another and between whom there was no possibility of collusion, the effect of which is identical, viz., that on or about April 23, 1918, in passing along a road in the vicinity of St. Julien, in Belgium, they saw a soldier pinned to a barn door by means of bayonets through the hands and wrists, and that this soldier wore a uniform and identification badges which led them to the belief that he was a Canadian soldier.

HISTORY REPEATS ITSELF IN WINNIPEG

Trouble in Winnipeg Recalls Fort Garry in 1869.

How history repeats itself! Just about fifty years ago Winnipeg, as it then existed, was in the throes of civil strife, and the powers that were, had throttled its press, gutted its pioneer newspaper, the "Nor'wester." There was then no Thief River Falls within train ride of the stricken town, where reporters could file telegraph copy. Yet two enterprising Toronto papers sent representatives hundreds of miles across the winter prairie, braving the dangers of cold and leaden bullets to get the news—and they got it.

Half a century ago Torontonians were anxiously scanning the papers for news of the troubles in Winnipeg. Greybeards remember the wave of excitement which passed over the Toronto of 55,000 inhabitants, when in December, 1869, word came through that Louis Riel, chieftain of the rebels, had taken Fort Garry (now Winnipeg), imprisoned the Canadian Government representative and the Hudson Bay Co.'s officials and set up his own government in the Northwest Territories.

It was a far cry from Toronto to the Winnipeg of 1869—Fort Garry, the little outpost of civilization away off in the Great Lone Land. The C.P.R. was then scarcely thought of and spoken of by sound business men as a "mad enterprise." Twelve hundred miles of wilderness stretched between Toronto and the prairie trading post. The most feasible route to the west in those days lay via Minnesota. And it was this way that the late John Ross Robertson, afterwards proprietor of the Evening Telegram, Toronto, and at that time on the staff of the now long-defunct Daily Telegraph, of Toronto, set out to visit the scene of the troubles on behalf of his paper. The Globe sent the late Mr. Robert Cunningham, And the two rival newspapermen travelled together into the wild west. Mr. Robertson got only an hour's warning. The city editor called him in, notified him of the assignment and handed him a roll of one thousand dollars for expenses on the long journey. Within the hour he was down at the old Great Western Railway station, boarding the train for Detroit.

The travellers eventually reached the little frontier town of St. Cloud, Minnesota—the end of the steel—and prepared to start off on the 400-mile trail across the prairies to Fort Garry. While waiting there, John Ross Robertson got an important story of what was happening in isolated Fort Garry, from the officer commanding the American troops at St. Cloud. The Toronto Telegraph's representative sat up all night, wrapped in a buffalo robe, writing the story which his rival had not secured and ere dawn came the despatch was in charge of the United States Government mail courier, speeding over the snow in a dog train, eastward. He secured a big beat for his paper and the first comprehensive news to reach Toronto.

Securing a farmer's sleigh and team and a French half-breed guide the travellers set out for Fort Garry, following the Red River valley and camping nightly in the woods along the bank. The weather was bitter, ranging from zero to 40 below zero, and during a blizzard one of the horses almost died of colic. But after a strenuous journey of ten days over the trail the newspapermen drove in through the famous gateway of Fort Garry. They were immediately placed under arrest and taken before the self-styled President of the Northwest, Louis Riel. Riel gruffly asked them how they had dared to venture into his country and shut them up in a section of the fort. However, he relented to the extent of allowing them out daily for exercise, when under the escort of a half-breed with a big rifle they were allowed to go about the town seeing friends.

During this time they frequently dropped into the office of the pioneer newspaper, the "Nor'wester," which was located in a log cabin. Like the Winnipeg papers of to-day, it had been ordered to cease publication. But the two Toronto men, sitting down amid the familiar smell of printer's ink, had long and interesting chats with the editor and the printers, picking up much news which came in handy later.

At the end of a week of this sort of thing, during which time the Torontonians had, of course, been unable to get out a single line to their papers, Riel sent for them. The rebel leader said that he had provided an armed escort to take them across the border into Minnesota and warned them that if he again caught them in the Northwest he would shoot them without more ado. So back they went for Pembina, Minnesota, in 40 below weather, after a brief but worthwhile visit to the storm centre of the Red River rebellion, which petered out when Wolseley and the troops went west after the murder of Scott, the Dominion Government agent.

FRANCE'S LADY MAYORESS

Is Mme. d'Ivry France possesses her first lady mayoress. The commune which unanimously appointed her as its representative is Nampcel, a little commune of the Aisne. Mme. d'Ivry attended the general meeting of the mayors of the army zone held in Paris recently. She had a moving tale to tell of a village completely destroyed by the Germans, and of a population, or what is left of it, living in the cellars or in the ruins capable of affording some kind of shelter. Mme. d'Ivry, in simple, eloquent language, did full justice to her theme.

Thoughtless Remonstration.

Senator Watson, the head of the committee on reconstruction, said in an interview:

"Many reconstructors is apt to be thoughtless and bad. It is like the young drug salesman.

"A lady approached this young salesman, reddened and said:

"'My hair is falling out. Can you give me anything for it?'

"'You bet! Sure!' said the salesman, heartily. 'How about this hand-painted hair receiver at one forty-nine?'"

FIREARMS ARE NOT FRAGILE

Shotgun Properly Cared For is Said to Be Good for a Hundred Thousand Shots.

A question frequently asked is, "How long will my shotgun last?" or "How many shots can I fire from my rifle or revolver before it wears out?"

It is impossible for anyone to say just how long a firearm will last, because it is impossible to tell beforehand what kind of care it is going to get, and the care it receives makes all the difference between a few hundred shots and a lifetime of faithful service.

Assuming that they are cleaned carefully and consistently a good shotgun will show practically no falling off in pattern or penetration for probably well over 100,000 shots. A 22-calibre rifle and a revolver are both good for 20,000 or 30,000 shots. A high-power rifle is good for about 5,000 to 6,000 shots, usually the higher the velocity the shorter the life of the barrel.

Judging from these facts it would appear that the higher the pressure developed by the explosion the more wear on the barrel, for the shotgun develops the least pressure and the high-power rifle the most.

A rather interesting sidelight on this question of barrel life is a determination of the actual length of time in which a good shotgun barrel is subjected to the force and burning effect of the powder charge during its lifetime. If 100,000 shots are fired from a shotgun the inside of the barrel is actually exposed to the flame of the powder charge for about four minutes.

AMOUNT OF FOOD NEEDED

Committee of Experts Has Decided Just What Must Be Supplied to the Average Man.

As a basis for calculating the amount of food which must be provided for the human system the International Scientific Food commission has found that an average man of 154 pounds working eight hours a day requires food having an energy value of 3,300 calories.

The commission consists of representatives of the United States, France, Italy, Belgium and Great Britain, and its purpose is to consider the food problems of the allies from a scientific point of view, and in agreement with the international executives to make proposals to the allied governments.

The commission agrees that, in event it should become impossible to supply 3,300 calories of food, a reduction of 10 per cent could be sustained for some time without injury to health. The minimum ration of fat for the "average man" was determined upon as two and five-eighths ounces a day.

The commission recommended that a uniform average milling extraction of 85 per cent for wheat be adopted throughout the allied countries, but this extraction may vary from 80 per cent in summer to 90 per cent in winter.

ILLITERATES IN CANADIAN ARMY

Illiteracy in the United States army was so prevalent that a committee was appointed by the government to examine statistics of it. They found 700,000 men in the greatest army ever were not only uneducated, but were ignorant of most of the elementary facts of civilization. The committee completed the work by discovering that there are nearly 4,000,000 native-born men and women in the United States who can neither read nor write.

Illiteracy in the Canadian army was so slight that it was never necessary to compile statistics of it. The soldier who could neither read nor write was no more a nuisance in the Canadians than he constituted an problem to anyone but the regimental police, who found his lack hampered the rare instances the theirs R's.

Col. John L. McLaren, the A.A.G. of Toronto Military District, who has had wide experience among the troops since the outset, says:—

"Illiteracy has never been a problem. Now and again a man would turn up who had to make his 'mark' on military documents, being unable to write. But such were extremely rare."

A paymaster of a Canadian battalion says:—

"About 500 thousand men have come under my notice. Only three could not sign their names. Two of these were foreigners."

All officers who have censored letters for the troops know that Canadians can write letters, in fact, are prolific writers! And while spelling was in many cases a variable art, the letter indicating extreme ignorance was an infrequent find. Among the troops were many veritable Chesterfields, whose letters were masterpieces in politeness.

As the Canadian corps was drawn indiscriminately from the backwoods settlements as well as the cities, from the mining camps of the north as well as the collegiate towns of the long-settled older provinces, the high standard of education and intelligence displayed in the war affords is most gratifying.

OUR COFFEE.

We Drink It But Are Not Authorities on Flavor.

In part the high price of coffee is attributed to a frost in parts of Brazil, but various causes have contributed. Puerto Rico, for example, which never is touched by frost, had last year a small crop, and the price of coffee in the island has increased 100 per cent. This has been ascribed sometimes to prohibition, but it is doubtful whether Puerto Rico could drink much more coffee than it was drinking before prohibition went into effect; its consumption of alcohol was extremely moderate and its consumption of coffee large, as is apt to be the case in the tropics.

It is noteworthy in this country that many of the plans for a substitute for the saloon call for the provision of coffee as a substitute for alcoholic drinks. In the cafes of Europe the two go side by side, on an equal footing; at the same table one person may be drinking coffee and another beer. It might almost be said that Europeans drink wine or beer with their meals and take their coffee in public, while Canadians drink coffee with their meals and take their alcohol in secret. This materially affects the position of coffee as a substitute.

If the coffee house is to be restored to the position it once had, considerable changes will need to be made in national habits and tastes. Used in moderation coffee is a relatively harmless stimulant, but it cannot be consumed so freely as beer, and most coffee drinkers take already quite as much as is good for them. To make coffee available as a social substitute for alcohol, therefore, the Canadian public would need to cut down its home drinking, so that the proposed establishment of coffee houses might not involve no great an increase in national consumption as has been predicted.

It is perhaps a more serious difficulty that the Canadian public, despite its enormous consumption of it, has not an educated taste in coffee. The market in Canada for the higher grades is relatively small, and there has been little appreciation for the excellent and full-flavored product. To the average Canadian coffee is a pale decoction used to wash down griddle-cakes, crullers and pie; it would never occur to him to take it as a separate luxury, nor if served would it be a luxury. Premier Clemenceau is said to have abandoned America because the people of the United States had no general ideas and no good coffee." It is to be feared he would like our coffee no better.

If the reformers can bring coffee up to the standard of countries where it is sipped as a delectable luxury, and can persuade people to like it, they will have accomplished a great deal, but neither undertaking is very easy. To be good, coffee must be made with great pains, and quite freshly; the aroma quickly goes and staleness is fatal. Our long-established negligence in such matters will not be easily overcome. To be an interesting beverage, too, coffee needs an extra roast which at first most Canadians do not like. When they learn to relish it they begin to see how in Turkey and other countries coffee may be an end in itself and not a mere accompaniment to doughnuts, but many an enterprising reformer has come to grief in trying to educate the Canadian palate to the standard of New Orleans and of Latin Europe. It remains to be seen whether the numerous projects for serving superior coffee as a substitute for alcohol will fare better, but at all events the experiments will be of interest.

Preserving Chilkat.

The phonograph has been requisitioned to preserve the tribal language and folk songs of the Chilkat Indians of Alaska. Louis Shotridge, a member of that tribe, has recently returned to the United States after an absence of four years in Alaska, in the interests of the University Museum at Philadelphia, Pennsylvania. He has devoted this time to studying the language, traditions and customs of his people, as well as to collecting their folk songs. Shotridge is the first Indian sent on such an enterprise. He has brought back many phonograph records of the Chilkat folk songs and ceremonial chants. Some of these will be transcribed into musical scores. The Chilkats are rapidly taking on the ways of civilization, and, but for the work of Shotridge, their native folk songs might have completely disappeared in time. The Chilkats are fortunate people. What would many give to hear a phonographic record of English as spoken in the days of Chaucer, or the French of Moliere's time.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

Bianca's Fortune

By AGNES C. BROGAN

(Copyright, 1919, Western Newspaper Union.)

Bianca sat on the steps of the tenement, gazing with somber eyes at the cheerless scene about her. Everywhere in the dingy gardens of houses all built alike children swarmed—wan, uncared for children. It was not strange that they should be wan, breathing constantly the smoky atmosphere of the factories' vicinity, neither had their working mothers much time to devote to their welfare.

And as Bianca sat, she was picturing in her mind's eye the glory of the vine-clad hills of her native land, the dark-skinned happy children who had played there. Bianca saw, too, the one-roomed cottage nestling among all the fragrant green, which had been her home.

What was it to tend growing things all day in a garden? The payment that labor brought, was all too small. When grandmother should go—for grandmother had already lived more years than Bianca could count—well, then she would cross the great ocean with the money which she saved each day for that purpose, and there, where gold might be found for the asking, Bianca would make for herself a fortune. When she came back to the sunny land, for always there was the thought of coming back, it would be as a great lady, with jewels shining in her hair.

So it happened that Bianca passed the tiny house over to a friend who wished it, and with just a sigh of regret for the grandmother who now was gone, the girl began the long journey.

In her cot at night the weary girl dreamed of that vine-covered hillside and the white-curtained home which now seemed like heaven.

"If she could only get back;" tears of longing filled her eyes, and the pain that was yearning grew and deepened round her heart. And then one day, when the first breath of autumn fell gratefully on Tenement square, Bianca, seated upon the lowest porch step, heard two men discussing an advertisement in the evening paper.

"What you know about it?" said one, "that's Tonie, who wants grape pickers on his farm. Just a few years ago, Tonie went away and worked the place; he like it, he make money an' buy it. Now, Tonie he hire people himself.

"'Girls to pick grapes,' read the man, 'earn good money.'"

Suddenly Bianca leaped forward. "Oh!" she asked, "would that mean me? Could I go there?—earn money, too? Or is it Italy, this Tonie's farm, an' must one cross the ocean?"

The factory men laughed.

"No, Bianca," one replied, "just a little way out on the train, mebbe forty mile. Tell you," he glanced at the girl's white face, "you go, Bianca. That be good thing for you. I go with you, buy ticket, put you on car."

And glowing, her breath coming fast at the mere thought of green fields and blue skies, Bianca went. The chattering girls on the train perplexed her, she felt very shabby beside their flower-trimmed hats and bright dresses.

When the tall young man of the vineyard drove down to the country station to meet his helpers, his keen gaze singled out at once the neatly-clad girl with her sorrow-appealing eyes.

"You mean," he asked, "ever pick the grapes before?"

And Bianca's eyes filled with homesick tears.

"Back there only, in the home country," she replied.

Successful Tonie helped her to the seat beside his own in the long wagon.

"I know how you feel," he said as they rode along.

Gratefully she looked up, attracted by the sympathy in his voice.

"With me it was like that too," said Tonie. I came to the factory. I couldn't stay. Wanted to see the sun shining over green hills. Wanted sheep there, too," he laughed, "an' even goats. Now, I got 'em all; I work hard, I own farm. An' it's better, you'll see, better than Italy."

When he took Bianca to the house where a woman waited to serve the helpers, the girl threw out her arms with a sudden joyous gesture.

"Oh! this is good," she cried, "it is—home, again."

The next morning she found herself singing as she caught the ripe grapes from their vines.

"Tess are doin' fine."

It was Tonie's voice. At last he had come, and stood looking down upon her. Some shyness in the man's bearing brought to the girl new confidence in herself.

"I love it all," she said and drew in breaths of the clear air.

"Even the little house that is my home?" asked Tonie eagerly.

Bianca nodded. "If it had white curtains in the windows," she said, "an' a flower peeping out between, it would then be like my own home across the seas."

"Do you think," asked Tonie haltingly, "that you—could put those curtains there, an' make it—your home, mebbe, Bianca? I know you little while, but Oh! I love you much. So much I want you, be my wife Bianca."

Swiftly, the girl bent again to her work, then the dark eyes flashed a glance of promise.

"By an' by," murmured Bianca, "sometime, I tell you."

OLD-TIME TOOTH POWDER AD

Printed in Scottish Newspaper in 1800, In All Probability It Was the First.

One of these individuals who has leisure enough to dig into the records of days long past, has unearthed what is said to be the first advertisement ever published of a preparation for cleansing and preserving the teeth. It appeared 268 years ago, and, though the language is a bit involved, the writer needed no lessons from modern publicity experts in claiming virtues for his product. The ad was printed in the Mercurius Politicus of Leith, Scotland, in 1660, and reads:

"Most Excellent and Approved Dentifrices to scour and cleanse the Teeth, making them white as Ivory; preserves from Toothache; so that being constantly used, the parties using it are never troubled with the Toothache; it fastens the Teeth, sweetens the Breath and preserves the Mouth and Gums from Canker and Impesthumes. Made by Robert Turner, Gentleman; and the rights are only to be had at Thomas Rooker. Stationer, at the Holy Lamb at the East end of St. Paul's Church, near the School, in sealed papers at 12d the paper. The reader is desired to beware of counterfeits."

Wedding-Ring Custom to Stay.

Jewelers say that the war-time custom in England of brides buying their own wedding rings has come to stay. It had to be done when the bridegroom only reached England an hour or two before the wedding, and now the custom has too many advantages to be given up quickly, for obviously a girl knows better than any man the size of ring that she requires.—Edinburgh Scotsman.

Lemon Tree Bears Oranges.

From the Journal of Heredity we learn of a rather novel case of a lemon tree which proceeded to produce oranges. The tree, supposedly of the ordinary Italian lemon variety, was transplanted to Egypt. When it bore fruit it was noticed that the lemons were more spherical than lemons usually are and bore an orange-colored stripe. One branch bore a large fruit which was unmistakably an orange.

ALL TO BE HONORED ALIKE

No Distinction in Headstones Over British Officers and Men Who Died in the War.

Speaking of the resolutions adopted by the imperial war graves commission, a writer in the London Times says: "From the first it was laid down by the commission that no distinction should be made in the form or character of memorial to officers and men lying in the same cemetery. It was felt that what was done for one should be done for all, and that all, whatever their military rank or position in civil life, should have equal treatment so far as their graves were concerned. Were the erection of monuments left to individual initiative, probably those of the well-to-do would overshadow those of their poorer comrades, to the loss of the whole sense of common sacrifice and service. The place for the individual monument, it was thought, should be at home. Therefore the creation of individual headstones of a single uniform pattern has been decided upon. These headstones will bear the badge of the regiment or unit to which the soldier belonged, together with the name, rank, regiment, and date of death. They should be easy of identification, and will perpetuate the present effect produced by the wooden crosses. As a central monument in each cemetery a cross and memorial stone are to be set up, simple but impressive in character. An inscription for the stone has been selected by Rudyard Kipling."

AN OLD RECIPE TO DARKEN HAIR

Sage Tea and Sulphur Turns Gray, Faded Hair, Dark and Glossy.

Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, brings back the natural colour and lustre to the hair when faded, streaked or gray. Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is mussy and troublesome.

Nowadays we simply ask at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." You will get a large bottle of this old time recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients for about 50 cents. Everybody uses this preparation now, because no one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair, as it does it so naturally and evenly. You dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, thick and glossy and you look years younger. Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound is a delightful toilet requisite. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.

EKATERINBURG.

City Will Be Capital of Kolchak Government.

Ekaterinburg is the east Russian city to which the Kolchak Government, set up at Omak, Siberia, is reported to be moving its headquarters. Ekaterinburg, geographically, is well adapted to be a gateway through which the Siberian Government seeks to spread its influence and oppose Bolshevism in European Russia. It is the most important city in the Ural Mountains, lying about 310 miles by rail southeast of the city of Perm, and in the erstwhile government of that name. Two-thirds of the Perm district lies in Russia and one-third in Siberia. Through Ekaterinburg passed the great Siberian highway.

Ivan III sent German spies into what he regarded as a Promised Land of natural resources, and when they brought back favorable reports the task of developing one of the richest mining regions in the one-time empire began.

This same Ivan III laid the foundation of Russia's material progress in other ways. He summoned an architect from Venice, who was commissioned not only to build palaces and churches, but to mase big bells, cannons, 'to fire off the said cannons, and to make every sort of casting very cunningly.' His name was Mureli, but small wonder that he was nicknamed Aristotle. For these protean services he received ten rubles a month.

As early as the eleventh century Novgorod began to exact tribute from the Perm district and to send settlers there. But when Ivan III, four centuries later, reached out from Moscow to Novgorod, deported a thousand of the wealthy families, and sent Moscow patricians to take their places, Perm was automatically released from Novgorod domination.

But the development of the mine region of the East Urals began with Peter the Great, during whose time Ekaterinburg, the Scranton of the Urals, was founded. It was as slow in growing as were many of Peter's reforms in taking root. In contrast to the radical experiments now launched before Lenine's breakfast in Russia, it is interesting to recall the storm of protest against the census instituted by Peter, because it was a 'profane numbering of the people'; or against the change in the calendar, assailed as an effort to destroy 'the years of Our Lord,' and of that freakish, if harmless, edict requiring beards to be shaved off, which was regarded as an insidious scheme to disfigure the 'image of God,' so Christ would not recognize His Own at the Judgment Day.

Peter named the city for his wife, later the Tsaritsa Catherine I, that strange figure in Russia's bizarre history, who was the daughter of a yeoman, foster child of a humble pastor, wife of a Swedish dragoon, sold after being taken prisoner of war to a Russian prince who fancied her, paramour of Peter the Great until the birth of a child impelled him to acknowledge her as his wife, to crown her empress consort, and to clear the way for her succession to the throne.

No Queen of proudest birth ever did (or would have wished to) adorn herself as did erstwhile Martha Skovronsky at the coronation ceremonies. Her crown bore more than 2,500 gems, with a walnut size ruby sustaining a bejeweled cross.

When Peter took her to Berlin the daughter of Emperor Frederick William, father of Frederic the Great, wrote in a volume preserved as her memoirs, that the empress appeared to be low born, and that she wore so many decorations that her dress rattled. The Paris verdict of her remains unknown because Peter left her at Amsterdam when he went to the French capital. It is not fair to assume that the monarch sought a free field for a gay time. Rather he seemed depressed by the refinements there and is quoted as saying, 'I am a soldier; a little bread and beer satisfy me."

Like Cleopatra, Du Barry, and other royal courtesans, Catherine was far from beautiful; positively homely, from most accounts. But when she ascended the throne her common sense redeemed her illiteracy. Her gem-laden crown, and the luxury and power it stood for, did not turn her head, while other head-dresses tell the story of her devotion to her husband and of loyalty to her people. When she accompanied Peter in the Caspian campaign she made the supreme sacrifice (for pre-Greenwich village days) of "bobbing" her hair, and wearing a close-fitting fur cap to protect her from the sun. She also set a fashion of wearing the cocked hat of the army.

The former Russian Government maintained an important mining school, chemical laboratory and gold assay office at Ekaterinburg. Imperial lapidary works were employed in cutting and polishing malachite, marble, porphyry and jasper and the Government mint for copper coins was located there.

The city also was important industrially and commercially. Paper, soap, candles and machinery were manufactured. It had flour mills and tanneries. Its trade was in cereals, silk goods, iron and cattle.

This is a Greater Maxwell

There have been many improvements made in the Maxwell since the war ceased. Some of them have made the car look better. Others have made it run better.

You will note a new type radiator, a further advance in body detail, an improved electrical system, a Hot Spot and a Ram's-horn, a superior development in upholstery, and a top more durable.

Any of these is well worth any man's time to look over, and the sum of all represent a decided value added to the car, which post-war purchases for cash have made possible without increasing the price.

But the fundamentals of the car are unchanged. 300,000 Maxwells on the highways of the world—all of the same model—have proved that a policy of never changing the base design is profitable in more ways than one to buyer and maker.

It means extra value at a lower price.
It means perfection in design.
It means perfection in workmanship.
It means you pay for no experiments, no engineering [illegible].
It means you pay for no mistakes.
It means a car of everlasting reliability.
It means a car of endless mileage.

You can easily pay $300 more and receive less. This Maxwell is old in antecedents but modern as far as sound engineering dare go.

There is no car of the day selling for so low a price to offer so many attractive inducements.

BELGIUM BEFORE WAR WAR VACATION MECCA

Enjoyable Outing at Small Cost Meant Golden Harvest to Little Nation

The bitter cry of Belgium for financial help, writes "M. H." in "The Manchester Guardian," is in tragic contrast to the wealth of the little country before the war. To go to Belgium was the cheapest—and pleasantest—holiday it was possible to take. Twelve-and-sixpence took you from St. Catherine's Dock to Ostend and back, by the boats of the Steam Navigation Company. It is true you usually got a tossing, but the passage was not too long. On arriving in Belgium you could for nine francs ($0.20) get a season ticket for a week, which took you everywhere. At Bruges you could stay in an excellent hotel for seven to eight francs ($2) a day, with meals—and such meals; six courses and as many helpings as you could cope with. At Malines hotels were even cheaper. Malines was the dormitory of Brussels and Antwerp, both of which could be reached comfortably by train in twenty minutes. For incredibly small sums you could take trams and trains all over the country. In these days it is difficult to believe in the prosperity which made Belgium a land of fabulous cheapness and comfort.

OLD FOLKS NEED MILD BOWEL TONIC

Harsh Pills and Drastic Purgatives.

Old people, no matter how sound and healthy, should avoid cathartic pills, purgative water, salts and all such temporary relief measures. They ease conditions to-day, but bind you up worse than ever to-morrow.

It is better to get the bowels into the habit of performing their needful function at a certain time each day and this can be done by strengthening the muscles of the stomach and bowels by the tonic action of Dr. Hamilton's Pills, a mild laxative that acts as close to nature's way as possible.

Thousands of people, old and young prevent and cure habitual constipation by using Dr. Hamilton's Pills, a mild yet active medicine that is noted for its promptness in curing headaches, belching gas, sourness in the stomach, fullness after meals, liver soreness and muddy complexion. You'll have the best of health, feel good, and well, digest and sleep well if you regulate the system by Dr. Hamilton's Pills of Mandrake and Butternut, 25c. per box at all dealers.

SUFFERED SINCE HER CHILDHOOD

MRS. MAY PRAISES TANLAC FOR ENDING LONG STANDING TROUBLE —IT'S WONDERFUL."

The best evidence of the merits of a medicine is what people who have actually taken it have to say about it. And this is true and beyond all question when such statements are made by people of high character and published right in the community where each and every fact can be investigated and verified.

Mrs. Effie May, residing on R.F.D. No. 1 ,Box 99, Sioux Falls, South Dakota, in relating her experience with Tanlac, recently, said:

"I certainly can say a good word for Tanlac for it has really and truly made me feel like a new woman. I have had stomach trouble ever since I was fourteen years of age and as I grew older other troubles kept coming on me. I had rheumatism in my right arm so bad I couldn't sleep for the pain, and would do everything trying to get ease so I could get a little rest. My back hurt me so bad at times that I could hardly get up when sitting or laying down, and I would often have dizzy spells and nervous, sick headaches. At the time I began taking Tanlac I was suffering with an awful pain in my side, so bad at times as to almost take my breath, and was told I would have to be operated on for appendicitis. I was frantic with pain and nearly worried out of my wits, besides.

"Then I happened to read a testimonial from a Nebraska lady, who had gotten relief from the same kind of troubles by taking Tanlac, and going on the idea that what's good for one is good for another I got a bottle. Well, it has helped me just like she said it did her and now I know for myself that it is wonderful. I don't get nervous any more nor have any more headaches, and the stomach trouble and rheumatism have disappeared, too. Tanlac has not only relieved me of my physical suffering, but it has eased my mind, as well, for I fully believe it saved me from an operation, as the pain is gone out of my side entirely. I am just feeling fine and my enthusiasm for Tanlac is unbounded."

Tanlac is sold in Peterborough by W. B. Warne Drug Co., Limited; in Havelock by A. C. Denike, in Lakefield by Tanner Drug Co., Ltd.; in Fowlers Corners by W. A. Hunter; in Gelert by A. J. Scott; in Westwood by G. Pringle & Son.

FOREMOST SWISS AVIATOR IS KILLED IN 3,000 FOOT FALL

Berne, Switzerland, July 15.—Oscar Bider, reputed to be the leading Swiss aviator, was killed near Zurich in a fall from a height of 3,800 feet. He was the chief pilot of the Swiss army and was performing stunts preparatory to a public exhibition.

Oscar Bider was one of the first aviators to fly across the Bernese Alps, making several trips over the mountains in 1913. In the same year he flew across the Pyrenees from Pau, France to Madrid.

Removes Wrinkles and Refreshes Tired Faces

As the skin tends to expand in warm weather, causing wrinkles to form, a good astringent-tonic lotion should be used these days .Dissolve an ounce of pure powdered saxolite in a half pint of witch hazel. Bathe the face in this and see how quick the wrinkles and furrows will disappear — and how much younger you will look! There's nothing better for sagging cheeks or double chin, or for enlarged pores.

Use this simple lotion during the heat of the day and you will find it wonderfully refreshing. You will lose that wilty, tired look. The ingredients of course are perfectly harmless. Be sure to ask the druggist for powdered saxolite.

Berlin, June 15.—Residents of Wilhelmshaven, the former German submarine base, say that the Allies may have took look a long time to find some U-boat commanders whose delivery is demanded.

Nearly all of them have left Germany, they say, and most interesting of their statements is that many entered the service of an Eastern power which joined in the demand for their surrender.

A large number of army officers supposed to be on the Allies' black list, are said to be in Russia.

FI PRICE IF COAL

Output in Australia

Melbourne, Australia, July 12.—Regulations have been passed under the War Precautions Act, putting under control of the Prime Minister the entire coal output of the Australian Commonwealth. The regulations further empower the Federal Government to fix wages and conditions of unemployment in the mines and establish the price of coal.

The Prime Minister in announcing the new regulations, pointed out that the step was taken in order to avoid a strike of the miners in New South Wales, through which the output of that State would have been stopped and many of the industries of the Commonwealth paralyzed.

HINDENBURG'S LAST OFFENSIVE

A YEAR AGO GERMANY PLAYED ITS LAST TRUMP IN THE GREAT WAR—PLANS OF THE JULY OFFENSIVE WERE KNOWN TO FOCH.

(From "Le Matin," Paris.)

"The battle of July was our Battle of the Nations. The French, English, Americans, and Italians all were heart to heart, shoulder to shoulder. All did their duty. All I did was to do mine. The battle of July 18 was only the beginning of the good work. When would the end come? That I did not know. But I knew well what that end would be. Never for one day or one hour did I have any doubt as to the result. In war he who doubts is lost—one should never doubt."

From the Marshal's staff Stephane Lauzanne, to whom Foch made the above statement, received the following story:

"On July 14 Foch and his staff were staying at the Chateau Bourbon, near the little town of Mormont, in the Seine-et-Marne Department. They had their eyes fixed alternately on the map and on the clock, for they knew almost to a second when and where Hindenburg was going to attack. The information gathered from prisoners and airplanes had been exact and detailed. Since the 10th the Marshal had known the day, the place, the arrangements, and the extent of the attack. All that he needed was the exact moment when the attack would be launched, and that he learned on the evening on the 14th.

"A local attack carried out by Gouraud's outposts captured twenty-seven Germans, who admitted that the first wave of the assault would leave the enemy lines at 4 a.m. on the 15th. The artillery preparation was to begin at midnight.

French Confident of the Result.

"Among the little group of French officers on whom lay such a tremendous responsibility there was no emotion for (in the words of Lauzanne's informant) 'one feels no emotion when one knows that the adversary's game is an open book, and that one's own plans are a mystery to the adversary.'

"Foch knew that the Germans intended to strike their final blow by cutting the right wing of the allied army in half; that they hoped to carry in a single stroke Rheims, Epernay, Chalons and even Verdun; that they expected to envelop Paris from the east and thus strike a death blow at public opinion. But what the Germans did not know was that from Chateau-Thierry to the Argonne they would meet a formidable defensive in which troops at least as numerous as their own had been accumulated. They had no idea that between Prunety and Main de Massiges they would find a void before them, and then suddenly in the second line, facing them in reserve, fourteen divisions of infantry. They did not know that between Rheims and the Marne on the front held by General Berthelot they would meet eleven infantry divisions in the first line, with three infantry divisions and one cavalry corps in reserve, or that, on the left bank of the river: between Chatillon and Chateau-Thierry, they would have to deal with five and a half divisions in line and three and a half in reserve.

"They never thought that at this second battle of the Marne they would find the Allies—all the Allies—ready to fight to the death—the Italian two divisions strong near Rheims, the American three divisions strong near Chateau-Thierry, the British four divisions strong west of Soissons, and the French thirty-two divisions strong everywhere. And, above all, they did not know that between Soissons and Chateau-Thierry, behind the dark screen of the forests of Compiegne and Villers-Cotterets, a tremendous counter offensive had been for weeks in preparation.

Beginning of German Retreat.

"Of all that they were ignorant, and the proof of it is that on July 18 at noon, on the front of Gouraud's army, they halted after nine hours of furious assaults, exhausted, anxous, and surprised, and that on the fronts of Berthelot and Degoutte, although they had passed the Marne, they halted on the evening of the 17th, checked and breathless; and, finally, that on the morning of the 18th, when in turn we passed to the attack from Soissons to Chateau-Thierry, the shock fell upon the enemy like a thunderbolt. Sixteen divisions — twelve French and four American — were hurled forward by Mangin and Degoutte upon the enemy flank, which was covered by only nine.

"On the whole of Mangin's front there was no artillery preparation. The troops went to the assault behind a rolling barrage, preceded only by tanks. They pierced deep into the enemy's lines and threw him into confusion. From the morning of the 18th disorder reigned throughout the enemy's forces. From that evening, threatened on his front and with his flank pierced between Soissons and Chateau-Thierry, he was compelled to begin a retreat across the Marne and the evacuation of the whole salient. From the 20th he was thrown back across Ourcq. Thereafter his retreat was slow and stubborn, but a retreat nevertheless, on the whole convex front from Rheims to Soissons— a retreat every day and every hour.

"By Aug. 6 there was not a single German soldier south of the River Vesle. Thirty thousand prisoners had been taken, 600 guns, 2000 minenwerfer, 3,000 machine guns, and the front had been shortened by forty-five kilometers. The railroad from Paris to Chalons had once more been rendered available and the threat against the capital removed. A terrible blow had been struck at the morale of the German Army and people, while that of the Allies had been inflamed by victory."

(From "Le Matin," Paris.)

"The battle of July was our Battle of the Nations. The French, English, Americans, and Italians all were heart to heart, shoulder to shoulder. All did their duty. All I did was to do mine. The battle of July 18 was only the beginning of the good end. When would the end come? That I did not know. But I knew well what that end would be. Never for one day or one hour did I have any doubt as to the result. In war he who doubts is lost—one should never doubt."

From the Marshal's staff Stephane Lauzanne, to whom Foch made the above statement, received the following story:

"On July 14 Foch and his staff were staying at the Chateau Bourbon, near the little town of Mormont, in the Seine-et-Marne Department. They had their eyes fixed alternately on the map and on the clock, for they knew almost to a second when and where Hindenburg was going to attack. The information gathered from prisoners and airplanes had been exact and definite. Since the 14th the Marshal had known the day, the place, the arrangements, and the extent of the attack. All that he needed was the exact moment when the attack would be launched, and that he learned on the evening on the 14th.

"A local attack carried out by Gouraud's outposts captured twenty-seven Germans, who admitted that the first wave of the assault would leave the enemy lines at 4 a.m. on the 15th. The artillery preparation was to begin at midnight.

French Confident of the Result.

"Among the little group of French officers on whom lay such a tremendous responsibility there was no emotion for (in the words of Lauzanne informant) 'one feels no emotion when one knows that the adversary's game is an open book, and that one's own plans are a mystery to the adversary.'

"Foch knew that the Germans intended to strike their final blow by cutting the right wing of the allied army in half; that they hoped to carry in a single stroke Rheims, Epernay, Chalons and even Verdun; that they expected to envelop Paris from the east and thus strike a death blow at public opinion. But what the Germans did not know was that from Chateau-Thierry to the Argonne they would meet a formidable defensive in which troops at least as numerous as their own had been accumulated. They had no idea that between Prunety and Main de Massiges they would find a void before them, and then suddenly in the second line, facing them in reserve, fourteen divisions of infantry. They did not know that between Rheims and the Marne on the front held by General Berthelot they would meet eleven infantry divisions in the first line, with three infantry divisions and one cavalry corps in reserve, or that, on the left bank of the river; between Chatillon and Chateau-Thierry, they would have to deal with five and a half divisions in line and three and a half in reserve.

"They never thought that at this second battle of the Marne they would find the Allies—all the Allies—ready to fight to the death—the Italian two divisions strong near Rheims, the American three divisions strong near Chateau-Thierry, the British four divisions strong west of Soissons, and the French thirty-two divisions strong everywhere. And, above all, they did not know that between Soissons and Chateau-Thierry, behind the dark screen of the forests of Compiegne and Villers-Cotterets, a tremendous counter offensive had been for weeks in preparation.

Beginning of German Retreat.

"Of all that they were ignorant, and the proof of it is that on July 18 at noon, on the front of Gouraud's army, they halted after nine hours of furious assaults, exhausted, anxous, and surprised, and that on the fronts of Berthelot and Degoutte, although they had passed the Marne, they halted on the evening of the 17th, checked and breathless; and, finally, that on the morning of the 18th, when in turn we passed to the attack from Soissons to Chateau-Thierry, the shock fell upon the enemy like a thunderbolt. Sixteen divisions — twelve French and four American — were hurled forward by Mangin and Degoutte upon the enemy flank, which was covered by only nine.

"On the whole of Mangin's front there was no artillery preparation. The troops went to the assault behind a rolling barrage, preceded only by tanks. They pierced deep into the enemy's lines and threw him into confusion. From the morning of the 18th disorder reigned throughout the enemy's forces. From that evening, threatened on his front and with his flank pierced between Soissons and Chateau-Thierry, he was compelled to begin a retreat across the Marne and the evacuation of the whole salient. From the 20th he was thrown back across Ourcq. Thereafter his retreat was slow and stubborn, but a retreat nevertheless, on the whole convex front from Rheims to Soissons— a retreat every day and every hour.

"By Aug. 6 there was not a single German soldier south of the River Vesle. Thirty thousand prisoners had been taken, 600 guns, 200 minenwerfer, 8,000 machine guns, and the front had been shortened by forty-five kilometers. The railroad from Paris to Chalons had once more been rendered available and the threat against the capital removed. A terrible blow had been struck at the morale of the German Army and people, while that of the Allies had been inflamed by victory."

ITALY HALF DEMOBILIZED

All Men Between 30 and 45 Years of Age Out of Army

Rome, July 16.—Some 2,200,000 soldiers of the Italian army have been demobilized since the signing of the armistice, according to a statement just issued by the Government, through the Stefani Agency. Of this number there were 1,700,000 enlisted men. The latter comprised all men of the classes between 30 and 45 years of age and men of the remaining classes who were released for special reasons.

The remaining effectiveness of the Italian army in service consists

BELGIUM BEFORE WAR WAS VACATION MECCA

Enjoyable Outings at Small Cost Meant Golden Harvest to Little Nation

The bitter cry of Belgium for financial help, writes "M. H." in "The Manchester Guardian," is in tragic contrast to the wealth of the little country before the war. To go to Belgium was the cheapest—and pleasantest—holiday it was possible to take. Twelve-and-sixpence took you from St. Catherine's Dock to Ostend and back, by the boats of the Steam Navigation Company. It is true you usually got a tossing, but the passage was not too long. On arriving in Belgium you could for nine francs ($1.20) get a season ticket for a week, which took you everywhere. At Bruges you could stay in an excellent hotel for seven to eight francs ($2) a day, with meals—and such meals; six courses and as many helpings as you could cope with. At Malines hotels were even cheaper. Malines was the dormitory of Brussels and Antwerp, both of which could be reached comfortably by train in twenty minutes. For incredibly small sums you could take trams and trains all over the country. In these days it is difficult to believe in the prosperity which made Belgium a land of fabulous cheapness and comfort.

OLD FOLKS NEED MILD BOWEL TONIC

And Should Avoid the Use of Harsh Pills and Drastic Purgatives.

Old people, no matter how sound and healthy, should avoid cathartic pills, purgative water, salts and all such temporary relief measures. They ease conditions to-day, but bind you up worse than ever to-morrow.

It is better to get the bowels into the habit of performing their needful function at a certain time each day and this can be done by strengthening the muscles of the stomach and bowels by the tonic action of Dr. Hamilton's Pills, a mild laxative that acts as close to nature's way as possible.

Thousands of people, old and young prevent and cure habitual constipation by using Dr. Hamilton's Pills, a mild yet active medicine that is noted for its promptness in curing headaches, belching gas, sourness in the stomach, fullness after meals, liver troubles and muddy complexion. You'll have the best of health, feel good, eat well, digest and sleep well if you regulate the system by Dr. Hamilton's Pills of Mandrake and Butternut, 25c. per box at all dealers.

When a man has a lot of money there is only one thing he wants. More money.

FOREMOST SWISS AVIATOR IS KILLED IN 3,000 FOOT FALL

Berne, Switzerland, July 15.—Oscar Bider, reputed to be the leading Swiss aviator, was killed near Zurich in a fall from a height of 3,000 feet. He was the chief pilot of the Swiss army and was performing stunts preparatory to a public exhibition.

Iscar Bider was one of the first aviators to fly across the Bernese Alps, making several trips over the mountains in 1913. In the same year he flew across the pyrenees from Pau, France to Madrid.

Removes Wrinkles and Refreshes Tired Faces

As the skin tends to expand in warm weather, causing wrinkles to form, a good astringent-tonic lotion should be used these days. Dissolve an ounce of pure powdered saxolite in a half pint of witch hazel. Bathe the face in this and see how quick the wrinkles and furrows will disappear — and how much younger you will look! There's nothing better for sagging cheeks or double chin, or for enlarged pores.

Use this simple lotion during the heat of the day and you will find it wonderfully refreshing. You will lose that wilty, tired look. The ingredients of course are perfectly harmless. Be sure to ask the druggist for powdered saxolite.

WEDDING BELLS

MORE—SHEPPARD

Knox church was the scene of a pretty wedding at high noon today when Ethel M. Sheppard, daughter of Mrs. Annie Sheppard, Alfred street, was united in marriage to Captain David J. More, M.C., late of the 21st Battalion, C.E.F., son of Mrs. Ellen More, Aylesbury, England. The ceremony was performed by Rev. J. A. McKenzie in the presence of a large number of the friends of the young couple, and the church was beautifully decorated with daisies and ferns. The bride was given away by her brother, Mr. Fred Sheppard. She looked charming in a white satin gown trimmed with pearls, and also in her bridal veil and wreath. She carried a lovely bouquet of Ophelia and Sweetheart roses. There were no attendants, but Master Hudson Hall who preceded the bridal party as ring bearer.

The music by Mr. George Kenyon included the interlude in Lohengrin and Mendellshon's wedding march. The wedding luncheon was served at the bride's home, among the guests from out of town being Miss Gladys Hepburn of Lindsay, Mrs. Arnott and Miss Jessie Arnott of Bethany, Miss Gertrude Dewell of Bethany and Mrs. James E. Noble of Kingston

Mr. and Mrs. More left on the afternoon C. P. R. train on an extended honeymoon to Buffalo and New York. The bride's traveling suit was of navy blue broadcloth and a georgette hat. Mrs. More has enjoyed a wide popularity in Peterboro. She was a prominent member of the Knox church choir and was successful in amateur theatricals. Many handsome presents were tokens of the esteem in which she was held by a large circle of friends.

OBITUARY

MRS. CATHARINE GILTENAN

The death occurred yesterday at St. Joseph's hospital of Mrs. Catharine Giltenan, wife of the late Patrick Giltenan of Lindsay, in her 69th year. The funeral will take place Thursday morning in Lindsay on arrival of the Grand Trunk train from Peterborough.

MRS. V. MORIN.

The death occurred at the residence of her sister, Mrs. R. Gordon, 180 Perry Street, of Mrs. V. Morin, in her 47th year. She came to the city last May from Montreal, where she resired. She leaves to mourn her loss one son, six brothers, and two sisters, and also her mother.

The funeral takes place from the residence of her sister, 180 Perry Street, on Friday morning at 6.30 to St. Peter's Cathedral and, thence to St. Peter's Cemetery.

Her son is a resident of Montreal.

WILL CELEBRATE AT STONEY LAKE

PEACE DAY TO BE OBSERVED BY THE COTTAGERS ON STONEY LAKE.

A meeting of the Stoney Lake Cottagers' Association was held in the Pavilion at Juniper Island with a view to arranging for a suitable peace celebration on Saturday next.

This action was taken in view of the large number of cottagers present from all over Canada and the United States, which would tend to give an event of this kind an international character.

Addresses will be made by prominent persons at the Lakes, and will be interspersed with a good programme of music.

A dance in the evening will likely conclude the day's programme.

SUSTAINED A TERRIBLE CUT

Was in Swimming Near the City's New Bathing House.

A swim at the new civic bathing beach on Lake street east proved disastrous to Amos Feeley, 14 years of age an employee of the De Laval Company, who resides at 207 Park street. He is now resting in St. Joseph's Hospital after an operation by Dr. J. V. Gallivan yesterday afternoon.

Feeley was swimming near the bathing house when he felt something cutting him and coming in put his hand down to his right led and to his surprise the fleshly part of his knee cap came up with his hand. He looked at his knee and horror was pictured on his face when he discovered that it had been cut to the bone. The water had deadened the pain and he felt no twinges until he left the water. Unable to ride his bicycle he walked on foot from the bathing house to his home on Park street, near the corner of Sherbrooke street with the terrible cut bleeding profusely. Dr. F. P. McNulty was hurriedly called and instantly ordered the boy to St. Joseph's hospital. Dr. McNulty was called out of the city and Dr Gallivan took the case over and performed a delicate operation on the knee joint but the doctor believes that the boy will recover without a stiff leg unless blood poisoning sets in

Residents of Crescent and Lock streets warned the city that tin cans, old bottles and rubbish littered the bottom of the edge of the lake and the city intended to have the whole beach raked but unfortunately Feeley took a swim before this was done.

Reports this afternoon say that Feeley is resting quietly.

POLICE COURT FINES GOING UP

COSTS TEN DOLLARS TO CUT THE CORNER WITH AN AUTOMOBILE.

Like everything else, Police Court fines are going up in price. The market has been fairly steady for the past year, but this year the amendments to the Motor Vehicles Act, providing for a maximum speed in the country of 25 miles an hour and 20 miles in the city, has raised the price of infringements of the Act to an unprecedented level.

Frank Hynes, a driver for the Auburn Woollen Company, last Friday, at one o'clock, was driving from the mills to the C.P.R. freight sheds, but instead of taking the corner square at Charlotte and George Streets, cut from the United Cigar Store pre[illegible] same time narrowly averting a collision with a motor car coming north on George Street and another car going east on Charlotte Street.

Hynes was under the impression that the police were going to prosecute him for running into a street car and hurting a man, which he was prepared to deny. He admitted that P. C. Thomas was correct in his version of the affair, but raised his eyebrows a half-inch or so when the Magistrate imposed a fine of $10.00, and costs, amounting to $13.10.

The Auburn Company paid the fine.

THE BOY SCOUTS IN PETERBORO

There will be a meeting for all the boys who want to pass the swimming test at the east side of Smith street bridge at 7.30 Thursday and Friday. The two nights are arranged so that scouts whose meeting is on either night can pass their test and attend their own meeting. The test is as follows:

Boys entering for first-class test, swim 50 yards any style.

Boys entering for proficiency badge (second class scouts only):

1. swim 50 yards with clothes on (shirt, shorts and socks as minimum,)
2. be able to undress in the water.
3. swim (without clothes) 100 yards, using best stroke 50 yards, and 50 yards on back with the hands clasped on the arms or folded in front of body.
4. be able to dive when in 6 feet of water and bring up some specified object from the bottom of at least 5 lbs. in weight.

Boys entering are asked to be sharp on time and bring towels and clothes for the test, and rubber shoes if they have one.

STREET CAR FENDER SMASHED BY AUTO

An automobile that took the liberty of frisking over the fender of a C. G. E. street car at the corner of Charlotte and Reid streets yesterday afternoon, overturned but escaped with a slight damage. In the automobile was Mr. Fred Sheppard and a party of friends returning from the country with sheafs of daisies, which were used in the decorations of Knox church for the Moore-Sheppard nuptials today. The automobile was travelling south and the street car with Mr. A. Northey and Mr. L. Fry in charge was going west. No person was injured and the only apparent material damage was to the fender of the street car.
